Mother Roberts was buried beside her husband in the Baptist cemetery just ten days after he had been laid there. The funeral held on a bright afternoon, was well attended.

B-2-R

CAR OWNERS: DODGE HAS THE ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS YOU FREQUENTLY ASK!

Q Should I use a standard or premium gasoline in my car?

A That depends on the make of your present car. All new Dodge engines are designed to operate with maximum performance and top efficiency with ordinary gasoline.

Q How can I judge the amount of choking my car requires to start under varying weather conditions?

A Unfortunately, you cannot. But new Dodge cars are equipped with an Automatic Electric Choke which makes starting easier — particularly in cold weather, and avoids wasteful overchoking.

Q If my foot brake should fail will my parking brake still operate?

A Yes. If you own a Dodge. The Dodge parking brake is completely independent of the foot brake, operating on a drum of its own fastened to the propeller shaft. When the propeller shaft is locked, the wheels cannot turn. In many cars the parking brake operates on the two rear drums of the foot brake.

Q In face of the high cost of body repairs, why don't all cars have overhead valve engines?

A It would seem that some manufacturers have sacrificed the practical for styling. All Dodge heads are bolted on and are easily removed to facilitate replacement or repair.

Q How can I stop my gas lines from clogging with dirt and water?

A With most cars there's no sure way. You might try draining and cleaning out your tank from time to time. In cold weather always keep your tank well filled as this reduces the amount of condensation. With a 1951 Dodge, of course, you cannot experience this annoying trouble. The new Dodge is equipped with an Ollite fuel filter located in the gas tank which keeps the entire fuel system free from dirt and water. It's self-cleaning, too, from the swishing action of the gas in the tank.

Q Why is rear seat riding in some cars so tiring?

A That's because a low, sloped-back rear seat places you in an uncomfortable position without support under and behind the knees. Dodge chair-high seats, both front and rear, give you proper knee and back support — let you ride long distances in comfort.

Q How can I best protect my engine from the dirt and abrasives which collect in the oil?

A You should install an efficient oil filter, if your car is not so equipped. Not only are all Dodge Coronet and Regent models equipped with a highly efficient Micronic Oil Filter as standard equipment, but all Dodge models give you added protection with a Floating Oil Intake. This type of intake draws only the clean oil from just below the surface, preventing both surface foam and bottom sludge from entering the oil lines.

Q Should I buy a set of the special tires or tubes advertised as protection against blowouts?

A Many motorists would not be without them. Dodge owners, however, have an exceptional safety factor in "Safety Rim" wheels. Protective ridges on these wheels hold the standard tire in place in case of tire failure, reduce the danger of loss of control and allow safe, straight stops.

Q Why do my windshield wipers slow down and sometimes stop working when I accelerate my engine—often when I need them most?

A That's a little technical but here's the answer in simple terms. Your wiper is a vacuum type, operated from the vacuum in the intake manifold. This vacuum is highest when the engine is idling—lowest when the engine is under full load, such as when you call for fast acceleration, so your vacuum wipers slow down. With the new Dodge cars you do not experience this trouble,as they are equipped with constant-speed electric windshield wipers.

Q Is there any real difference in the various types of air cleaners?

A Yes, there are vast differences. For example, all Dodge cars use a heavy-duty oil-bath air cleaner. In "dust storm" tests, this type cleaner proved much more efficient than ordinary mesh-type filters even at the start. And, after 2,000 miles of driving it proved to be still 98% efficient, or nearly double that of other types of cleaners.

These are some of the reasons for DODGE DEPENDABILITY, COMFORT AND ECONOMY and why we say "Drive a Dependable Dodge for 5 minutes and you'll drive it for years!"

U.N. Will Send Liaison Team To Neutral Zone

Allies Agree to Request Of Communists for Parley

BY DON RUTH

Tokyo, Sept. 19—(AP)— The United Nations command tonight agreed to a communist request to send a liaison team tomorrow to the Kaesong neutral zone, site of the suspended Korean armistice talks.

The reds made the request shortly after the U.N. command announced that four unarmed South Korean soldiers yesterday mistakenly entered the neutral zone.

The request for a meeting raised speculation that the communists may want to discuss resumption of the stalled talks, or may want to lodge another charge of allied violation of the neutral zone.

The communists broke off the talks Aug. 23, charging that an allied plane had fired on communist armistice negotiators with strafing fire in the zone the night before.

Meet Tomorrow

The reds asked for a meeting with allied officers at Panmunjom, communist outpost near the edge of the neutral zone, at 9 a.m. Thursday.

Brig.-Gen. Frank A. Allen, chief of information at general headquarters, said U.N. liaison officers, accompanied by three correspondents, will meet with the reds.

The South Koreans who wandered into the neutral zone by mistake Tuesday were held by the communists 20 hours, then freed, a U.N. command release said.

The reds had charged that the incident was a violation of the Kaesong neutral zone.

The U.N. command took a lighter view.

It said the four, members of an anti-epidemic unit, were "armed with nothing more dangerous than DDT."

Investigation on the communist complaint, the command added, "took place without incident and in an atmosphere almost completely devoid of tension."

Changed Attitude

The release from the headquarters of Gen. Mathew B. Ridgway, supreme allied commander said U.N. liaison officers who made the investigation Wednesday noted a marked change in the communists' attitude as they drove through rebel territory into Kaesong.

"Nearly all the communist soldiers along the road stood very rigidly at attention as the U.N. command party passed," the announcement said.

"Many of the civilians in Kaesong smiled as the U.N. personnel passed by, in contrast with inscrutable countenances which have always characterized."

The release said the U.N. investigatory party found the dead Korean soldiers, headed by Sgt. Na Kwang Sin, following which they and their truck were released.

Change Radio Frequency

During the meeting, the release added, the communists and allied officers discussed "a proposal for changing the radio frequency in use by the delegations" for communication between Kaesong and U.N. advance headquarters at Munsan. Signal officers of both sides will meet in Kaesong today to talk over the personal further.

The release said NA told interrogators the enemy pilot was on route to spray South Korean billets and inadvertently entered the neutral zone.

The U.N. liaison officers told the reds the Communists and the men were lost, that they wanted to turn back and that there was no intention of violating the neutral zone."

The reds told the U.N. team then requested the men be turned over, to him "for return to their organization and such disciplinary action as we may take."

The reds replied they still considered it a violation of the neutrality but let the men go with the words:

"We desire that you will observe the neutrality agreement faithfully and you will not permit such things."

Two Detroiters Swim Long Way To Reach Safety

Amherstburg, Ont., Sept. 19 — (CP) — Two Detroiters swam a mile-and-a-half Tuesday night to reach safety, after their 16-foot schooner-rigged sail boat overturned in Lake Erie.

Theo. Peter Hamill, 25, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Jaequeline Foxgrover Hamill, 22, started swimming after their craft capsized to the sides of their overturned boat for three hours.

They were picked up by a Kelwood Beach, under their own power, at 9.30 p.m. They had been visiting friends at Lakewood Beach, four miles south of Amherstburg.

The capsized boat was lost.

Two British Oil Officials Asked To Leave Iran

Abadan, Iran, Sept. 19. (Reuters)—The Iranian Oil Board today ordered two senior British officials of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company to leave the country by Sunday.

The board withdrew the residence permits of James F. Cunningham, superintendent of public communications, and Dudley Box, the company's shipping manager here.

The board replaced Cunningham last Thursday with an Iranian technician, alleging he withheld technical information from them.

Ontario Election Said Nearing

Toronto, Sept. 19 — (CP) — Rumors that an Ontario election will be held this fall were strengthened today when a member of the government said the "campaign grapevine is in earnest" when the royal tour through the provinces is over.

Rumors have been current for months that Premier Frost will announce an election during the forthcoming session of the legislature dealing with old-age pensions.

One minister, who preferred to remain anonymous, said:

"The time was never better for Premier Frost to seek a mandate from the people of Ontario for his government, and once the royal visit clears Toronto streets it will be down and the campaign on in earnest."

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Sept. 19 (CP) —Synopsis: A narrow band of cloud accompanied by light showers, extends from Sault Ste. Marie to the Haliburton region and is moving steadily eastward. Skies are clear north and south of this area.

Yesterday Ontario was seasonably cool last night with the low temperature near the white frost mark in northern Ontario. Lake Huron reported a temperature of 37.

Thursday will see a disturbance, now over Saskatchewan, moving into the central region of our province, giving rain to a northern and central belt, with sunny, warm weather to the south.

Flyer R.H. Neiswander, Lost in Bush, Turns Up at North Tourist Camp

Winnipeg, Sept. 19 — (CP) — An American flier, object of an R.C.A.F. search in northern Manitoba and northwestern Ontario for the last three days, Tuesday night landed his light plane at a tourist camp near Vermilion Bay, Ont., 170 miles east of here.

The wife of Roy H. Neiswander of Springfield, Ill., said today in a long-distance telephone interview from Kenora, Ont., that her husband "apparently had engine trouble, but got it fixed."

She received a telephone message from the Patricia Transport Company that Neiswander had landed at Dale Clark's camp at Vermilion.

It was the second time within four years that Neiswander was reported missing in Ontario's north country. The first time, he and several companions were lost four days in the bush, 50 miles north of Kenora.

U.S. AMBASSADOR TO RETIRE FROM DIPLOMATIC LIFE

H.F. Grady Relieved Of Duties in Iran

Tehran, Sept. 19 (AP)—Henry F. Grady, United States Ambassador to Iran, left Tehran today to retire from diplomatic life after serving a frustrating 14½ months in this turbulent country on Russia's southern border.

Grady, who spent $1,000,000 a day helping save Greece from communism, came to Iran hoping to set up an American economic assistance program.

Through no fault of his, he left with the $25,000,000 U.S. loan still tangled in red tape and his ambitious economic rocks because of oil nationalization.

Grady's successor is Loy Henderson, who will arrive soon from India.

Grady plans to return to private life in the U.S.

He is leaving Iran fatigued and somewhat bitter at the State Department and President Truman for sending him into retirement in the midst of the oil crisis in which he tried to bring British and Iranian economic rocks together.

One official Washington story is that Grady was sent here only for a year to get the economic programs started, and that he is being relieved because his year is up.

Critical of Department

Such Grady has been critical of the State Department's handling of Iran's problems of economics and oil.

Behind him, he left the Iranian cabinet in the throes of a showdown as Premier Mohammad Mossadegh prepared to fight through the nationalization of the British over oil properties and receipts.

Report here were that the Shah, after talks with Mossadegh, gave him the word to go ahead.

The two governments are to order today on the British Bank of Iran and the Middle East, forbidding the exchange dealings.

British diplomatic sources said the action put the possibility of oil settlement even farther off.

One British official said the bank will continue operations, but at a reduced level. American companies ceased operations at least temporarily as a result of the new restriction.

Lord Inchiquin Taking Boarders To Keep Castle

Newmarket-on-Fergus, Ireland Sept. 19 (Reuters)—Lord Inchiquin, Irish peer and one of the "Big" kings, is taking in boarders to keep out of the red.

One Irish-titled peer can no longer maintain his vast County Clare ancestral home without help.

He has already sold his Stradbrook estate in Sussex and his 2,000-acre estate in Shropshire, England.

"So now I take in paying guests, I do not run a hotel but like guests who live here in a permanent house party, mean that I can keep up my family home," he said today.

Lord Inchiquin is the head of the O'Brien family, branches of which have migrated from Ireland to most parts of the world.

For £3 a week, Lord Inchiquin's guests have the run of Dromoland, his 50-room castle on the 1,100 acre estate.

Lord Inchiquin is a descendant of Brian Boru, the first king of Ireland.

Royal Medical Advisers Say King's Lung Condition Serious; Vacation in Scotland Curtailed

London, Sept. 19 (AP)—Several London newspapers demanded today that the King's subjects be told more about his illness.

A wave of concern swept the nation on the heels of a medical bulletin from the King's doctors reporting cryptically that "structural changes" have occurred in one of his lungs.

The King had no public engagements today but was reported to be up and around at Buckingham Palace. A small crowd milled outside throughout the day.

Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard declared in an editorial that "more specific information should be released as soon as possible" about what is wrong with the King.

"Rumor feeds on ignorance," said the Standard. "The British people are over the world should be told the facts."

The Evening Star said "it is to be hoped" that the doctors "will continue to keep us informed as fully as possible on his progress."

The Evening News suggested that the King's 15 years of "restlessness and selfless devotion to duty" may have led to a condition "in which mental and spiritual causes have their bodily effects."

News stands did a land-office business as early commuters snatched papers carrying such headlines as "Grave" and "King's lung is affected."

Little knots of early risers gathered in the Mall outside the palace in front of Buckingham Palace. They hoped to get an early bulletin on the King's condition.

Doctors for the third monarch declared last night that "structural changes have developed" in one of his lungs, indicating a serious ailment. A medical bulletin last night gave no explanation of the condition.

Nine doctors signed the bulletin, including a tuberculosis specialist.

A London lung specialist—not one of the nine examining the King—said "structural changes" can mean any of several lung illnesses. He said the wording of the bulletin "suggests the doctors are not sure what is the for treatment.

United States Offering Plan To Settle Iran Oil Dispute; 'Be Practical' Mossadegh Told

BY EDWARD E. BOMAR

Washington, Sept. 19 (AP) — The United States made public today a three-point proposal for solving deadlocked British-Iranian talks over control of Iran's strategic oil industry.

Presidential Assistant W. Averell Harriman told the Iranian Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, in a letter that Iran must be "practical" if her dispute with Britain is to be settled "and avoid dangerous to middle eastern peace—is to be settled.

Harriman wrote Mossadegh that "negotiations can soon be resumed" if the premier accepts the U.S. proposals as a basis for discussion. This might indicate Harriman had talked them over at least informally, with Britain.

Must Compensate

The three points called for "competent" management of the oil industry under the company Iran set up after nationalization; compensation for the British and British control of overseas sale and distribution of Iranian oil products.

Refusing to transmit a 15-day British ultimatum, the world saw President Truman's special envoy said the terms laid down by Mossadegh in the oil dispute were largely the same as those the British rejected last month when negotiations stalled.

Harriman said plainly that both sides must show more flexibility and give recognition to the "practical business and technical aspects" of the industry.

Mossadegh sent the ultimatum to Harriman, to take effect 15 days after the latter left Iran with it. This roundabout method was widely interpreted as leaving the door open for negotiations on a just what he has—pocket the ultimatum and propose new talk terms.

Mossadegh's 1,200-word ultimatum demanded that Harriman's mission could accept them or face expulsion of 300 British managers and technicians employed at the Abadan refinery of the vast Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

Harriman's Offer

Harriman met his three-point counter-proposal would satisfy Iranian aspirations to control her own industry while giving justice to Britain.

They were:

1. The Abadan refinery would be run by a "competent organization" under control of the Iranian Oil Co. of the two countries with "common business practice developed for the world."

2. Payment of compensation to Britain for nationalization of Britain's properties and "suitable arrangements for efficient operation of the oil industry, to assure that the products required to be made available for sale in world markets."

3. Iran must rely on Britain for overseas distribution of Iranian products pending the starting by Britain, he said, has transportation and distribution facilities available.

PROFESSOR FIRED

McKenzie, Tenn., Sept. 19 (AP)—Dr. John E. Bauman was fired from the non-profit professorship at Bethel College because he believes in the Communist group. The 59-year-old professor said today that his contract was not renewed after word got out that he is a member of the Communist party.

SEAVERTON BANK ENTERED

Beaverton, Ont., Sept. 19. (CP)—Three men fled in a car and robbed the Bank of Commerce here and escaped with loot estimated at between $4,000 and $5,000. Details of the robbery were meagre. Five reports said the men were armed with machineguns. They were last seen headed north out of this resort town on the east side of Lake Simcoe, some 70 miles north of Toronto.

SHOTGUN USED TO SCARE WOMAN SAYS ACCUSED

Statement of Man Read Into Records

Welland, Sept. 19—(CP)—Torn woman's clothes, spent shotgun shells and a gun were among exhibits introduced today at the murder trial of Edward Anthony Bassett of Buffalo, N.Y.

Inspector Thomas H. Wright of the Ontario Provincial Police, who produced the exhibits, described the Bassett cottage, at Crystal Beach as the "Chateau Flamingo," and he is accused of murdering his common-law wife with a shotgun last June. He is reported to have fired one shot as he picked up the gun merely to frighten her after a bitter quarrel.

Gilbert Robinson, former police chief at Crystal Beach, testified that two shots were fired in the Bassett cottage after he arrived on the scene.

After he founded Mrs. Peterson lying dead at the foot of the cottage steps, he said he heard a shot.

He then sent for the provincial police and before they arrived, he heard another shot fired in the cottage.

A statement Bassett gave police the day after the shooting was admitted as evidence yesterday, the first day of the trial.

Inspector Wright said Bassett told him in the statement that the night before he had a day-long quarrel with the woman, Mrs. Grace Peterson.

The statement quoted Bassett as saying that when he arrived at Mrs. Peterson's home in Buffalo, he found Mrs. Peterson in bed with another man.

Bassett said he slapped her, punched the man in the bed and ordered him out of the cottage. He also told the woman to get out.

Three hours later, she returned and he asked her to assign half the property to him. After she refused once again, he took a pair of scissors and slashed her clothes to rags and underwear, knowing that she had always liked good clothes. The woman returned again at 10 p.m., and the ripped-clothing and flew into a rage.

Beer Bottles Thrown

"She threw two or three empty beer bottles at me and caught me in the face and arms," Bassett said in the statement. "I knew she would get the police chief and left. I, like a fool, decided to end it all."

He said he took the shotgun from the car when he left and that Mrs. Peterson came back, he refused to let her in. She returned to the car 15 minutes later with a vase and threw it through the glass in the front door. She reached through the shattered pane, unlocked the door and walked in. He threw the vase and then shot and it at him.

Bassett then picked up a piece of glass from the floor and came at me. I picked up the gun to frighten her. She ran out through the door, I all the time pointing the gun at her.

Canadian Army Likely to Continue Traditional Association With British

Ottawa, Sept. 18—(CP)— Canada apparently is to continue its traditional association with the British Army despite the army's switch to American equipment.

This was implied in a government announcement last night that Canada has been authorized to prepare the 27th Brigade for movement in November to the European theatre of operations.

However, at the same time it was announced that Canada's 25th division will be grouped with United States forces when it gets there.

Both the RCAF squadrons and the brigade group will be part of Eisenhower's integrated Atlantic Pact force.

The U.K. War Office had promised co-operation in carrying out this arrangement.

This indicated the brigade will continue Canada's traditional association with the British, and had been thought in some quarters that the army's switch to U.S. arms would end that association.

The placing of the air division under U.S. command represents a major change from the system of the Second World War when R.C.A.F. squadrons came under the over-all command of the R.A.F.

Attlee Will Call General Election On October 25th

Prime Minister Expected To Issue Early Statement

London, Sept. 19—(AP)—Prime Minister Attlee tonight will call a British general election for Oct. 25, Labor party sources announced.

The prime minister's residence is expected to issue within hours a statement saying the King has been asked to dissolve parliament to pave the way for the Oct. 25 election in which Winston Churchill's Conservatives will bid to end the six-year rule of Attlee's Labor government.

Election talk was a prime topic of British newspapers, reporting and reporting outright that the Oct. 25 date already had been set.

With the worst winter since 1947 in prospect for Britain, the Attlee decision appeared to be a difficult one, particularly in view of recent public opinion polls showing the Conservatives gaining in popularity. But some Labor party leaders believe living costs and conditions generally will be easier this fall than next spring.

The British Press Association lobby correspondent said the date will be Oct. 25. He often writes with official guidance.

Reports in the air-war was in the offing spurred buying on the London stock market. Most of the items of the domestic list rallied strongly, obviously in the hope that the government's freeze of dividends would not become law. British government bonds went down fractions all about the line as investors pulled out their money to get aboard a mild boom.

Earlier it was learned authoritatively that Prime Minister Attlee is expected to issue a statement soon making clear whether the British will send an army contingent to Europe.

He is being forced to take this action because widespread speculation and uncertainty threaten to have a bad effect on industry.

There was no indication today whether the prime minister has decided for or against such a contest. But it is strongly suggested that he plans to call the election possibly Oct. 25 or Nov. 8.

Socialists, from the leaders downward, now seem convinced an election is pending. They expect the date to be set after a winter of acute problems with an overtone majority of six, which might be cut further by by-elections.

Announcement of the dissolution of parliament in the first week of October would provide a comfortable three weeks' campaign period before polling as early as mid-month.

Parliament is at present adjourned for summer recess. Technically it need not be recalled before an election.

McMahon Sees Atomic Weapons Becoming 'Cheap'

BY ELTON C. FAY

Washington, Sept. 19—(AP) — Can the United States make atomic bombs in abundance such as only $240,000 apiece instead of the present multi-million-dollar cost.

Senator Brien McMahon (Dem., Conn.), top man in Congress on atomic affairs, says yes.

Atomic bottlenecks in materials, production, equipment and design have been broken and the country can turn the weapons out in mass production at a cost less than that of a tank, the Senator said in the Senate yesterday.

Fewer Men Needed

If, he said, the U.S. will produce a huge arsenal of atomic arms there will be fewer foot soldiers needed; fewer old-style artillery pieces and fewer big missiles with atomic warheads; fewer bombers and more radiological warfare planes and submarines and aircraft carriers given unlimited range by atomic engines; ships firing guided missiles with atomic explosives and frogmen which automatically lay down enemy ships.

Within an hour after McMahon spoke, military leaders had copies of the text under close scrutiny.

They are known to be eying the navy or the air force or all of them would be installed "atomically" but strong emphasis on cutting national defence cost.)

New Tactics Needed

How much revamping of tactics and strategy would be required?

The air force now has bomber units trained and equipped for using the atomic bomb. They are putting a combat unit into actual atomic mission test in Nevada. The navy has carrier and air crews trained for atomic bomb use.

McMahon spoke of revolution in military firepower."

But no one expects that the transition would be abrupt or that all present weapons would be scrapped.

The last great revolution in firepower was the invention of gunpowder. But hundreds of years later the spear, made obsolete by the musket, still exists in the form of the bayonet.

McMahon estimates it will take three years for the mass production of atomic bombs. Other weapons may take much longer.

Canadian Legion To Ask Increase In Pension Rates

Strong representation by the Canadian Legion will be made at the coming session of parliament in Ottawa, when a brief setting in the basic pension rate for veterans and veterans' dependents. To prepare the grounds for the request and to acquaint members of parliament with the need for increased pension rate, Canadian Legion branches across Canada are meeting with their local representatives. Last evening committees from branches of Belleville, Stirling, Frankford, Tweed and Deseronto met with Frank S. Follwell, M.P. for Hastings South.

Len. Taylor of Tweed acted as chairman of the meeting which was held in the Legion headquarters on Coleman Street, with Leroy Madden of Belleville as secretary.

Legion members emphasize that they are not asking for the full value of pensions to be increased—only that it be restored to the pre-war value. Both service pensions have not kept pace with the rapidly increased cost of living. It was pointed out that the need for increased basic pension rates was very great, it was stated.

The Canadian Legion is asking for a 33 1/3 per cent increase in the basic pension rate and for the war veterans' allowance to be raised from $40 to $50 for single men and from $70 to $100 for married men.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mr. Follwell indicated he was both in favor with the idea for increased basic pension rates and also for the proposed increase in war veterans' allowances, and intimated he would support such across-the-board increase for veterans' pensions.

N.Y. MAYOR VISITS ITALY

New York, Sept. 19 (AP) — Mayor Vincent Impellitteri, left by plane for Rome last night but was three thousand miles of the police bomb squad checked the plane's interior. The mayor's baggage, it was described, however, as nothing more than a routine inspection. The mayor plans a three-week tour of Italy and Israel.

Civic Officials May Protest Change in Plans

Toronto, Sept. 18 (CP) — Civic officials may protest a change in plans that calls for Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh to arrive here by plane from Trenton, Ont., Oct. 5. Originally the Royal couple was scheduled to come by train.

The weather may be the chief reason, for an objection. If the Royal plane were grounded at Trenton by bad weather, it would disrupt the minute-by-minute arrangements scheduled for that day.

Traffic complications also arise, say police. The busy Queen Elizabeth Way, south of Malton, would have to be cleared for a distance of some 13 miles to the city limits—on the Friday before Thanksgiving.

The change, announced Saturday, lso would deprive residents of Cobourg, Port Hope and Oshawa of a peak at the Royal pair on their train.

Pope Urges All To Join Campaign

Vatican City, Sept. 19 (CP)— The Pope called today upon Roman Catholics to fight against publications which, he said, purvey filth for books of sex instruction, "deliberately attempt to destroy the moral quality of exploit for vile interests the lowest instincts of debased natures."

The Pontiff made this in an address to a group of parents, whom he urged to join in a campaign to protect morals and ensure the sanctity of by family.

The Pope said the church realizes the importance of proper instruction, and dealt with it through books and other means which is given with dignity. But he added:

"One is astounded, however, in the face of the intolerable effrontery of this literature, that the secrets of marital intimacy, before which even pagan antiquity stood with reverence, should be violated and held up to view, sensualized and familiar as food for the whole public and even youth itself.

Canadian Congress of Labor Launches Price Controls Drive; Convoy Wants United Front

By JOHN LEBLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, Sept. 19. (CP)— The Canadian Congress of Labor, Canada's second biggest union body, was launched today on a new drive for price controls.

The 350,000-member Congress decided yesterday to push for controls, a rollback of prices, an excess-profits tax and consumer-goods subsidies.

In these objectives, it was looking for joint action with the 100,000-member Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, though there appeared considerable doubt as to how far the T.L.C. was prepared to go in co-operating with the C.C.L.

The bigger Congress voted on its Halifax convention last week to cut down on the extent of its co-operation with the C.C.L. and other central labor bodies. Just yesterday the C.C.L. leadership said it is still hopeful of closing that breach and getting even further toward labor unity.

Asks Complete Unity

Pat Conroy, secretary-treasurer of the C.C.L. and one of its top policy spokesmen, told the Congress that the C.C.L. doesn't want to settle for anything less than complete unity of Canadian Labor.

The only way for labor to get its end, Conroy said, would be through an amalgamation of the two big Congresses along with other labor organizations. That would put about 1,000,000 workers into a single organization.

"Anything less is playing into the hands of the government," he said as he launched a drive for political action that was backed by several other speakers among the 600-odd delegates.

(The CCL for several years has designated the CCF party as the "political arm" of labor.)

In a sometimes-uproarious session, the TLC saw the temporary eviction from the floor of one of its delegates, the first time this has occurred in several years.

Getting the bounce was hefty Jimmy Speal of Local 200 of the United Automobile Workers of America at Windsor, one of a handful of left-wingers who have slipped into the big UAW delegation. Speal was escorted out of the meeting-hall for too-sharp heckling of Jack Taylor, his own local president, while Taylor was making a speech on aid to southeast Asia.

Eviction Causes Uproar

After an uproar over Speal's eviction could die down, the Congress adopted a resolution supporting the idea of aid to southeast Asia.

Later, the Congress heard from Health Minister Martin in a dinner speech that the foundations now are being laid for a system of national health insurance. Mr. Martin made the statement shortly after the congress had adopted a resolution calling for a national health insurance scheme.

Another demand of the congress was for relaxation of the federal government's credit restrictions. A resolution adopted by the delegates said they have benefited in unemployment in automobile plants, the needle trades, furniture - making and other industries.

Defence Dept. Tightens Control Over Copper Wire

Ottawa, Sept. 19. (CP)— The defence Production department took steps today to tighten control over the use of copper and also gave industry a concession on inventories of two forms of copper—wire and wire rod.

Under an order effective Oct. 1, permission of the department must be obtained on orders for copper wire and cable placed with wholesale distributors as well as those placed with manufacturers.

Two changes affect stock limitations:

1. To make government controls more practicable, industry will be allowed to build up 60 days' supply of copper wire and wire rod. The previous limit was 45 days.

2. With departmental approval, buyers who have not purchased copper wire or cable previously can place orders now. However, the material must be consumed by their own industries within 60 days.

HOUSE LACK TO GET WORSE?

During the next two or three years, the supply of new housing in Canada is not going to increase as fast as the demand, and by 1955 the housing shortage may be even greater than it was at the end of the Second World War.

This opinion was expressed in an address made in Toronto a few days ago by Dr. O. J. Firestone, economic adviser to the Canadian department of trade and commerce and Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Dr. Firestone had statistics indicating that in the current year the number of families without homes was estimated at 500,000, or about twice as many as in 1939 and about two-fifths more than in 1945.

Referring to the housing shortage as one phase of a broader problem characterized by other shortages and resultant high prices. Dr. Firestone blamed a large part of the trouble on the shortsightedness of many businessmen.

These businessmen, said Dr. Firestone, "even the shrewdest and most successful of them," have persistently misread the Canadian market and fallen down in their planning for the future.

If Dr. Firestone is right in his forecast that the housing shortage is going to become even worse than at present, the average tenant appears to be in for a grim time of it.

Already, a large proportion of Canadians are paying more for their living accommodation than the one-quarter of their total income which is considered the normal economic maximum for rental.

Sooner or later, it would appear, someone connected with the building industry is going to have to accept some cuts. Will it be building trades labor, the suppliers of building materials or the financial houses which make loans for new buildings, or all three?

TOO MANY POOR DRIVERS

Figures published in these columns a few days ago showed that the number of persons killed in motor accidents in Ontario was more than 10 per cent greater in August last than in the corresponding month of 1950. Figures for the first eight months of 1951 were similarly a good deal higher than for the first eight months of 1950.

Last weekend, in the North Bay area alone, here was the automobile accident toll: five dead, two seriously hurt, an unstated number less seriously injured, and five automobiles destroyed.

The number of fatalities and other motor accidents which occurred at North Bay in a single weekend is not representative of the province as a whole, but it does indicate that the trend recently mentioned by the Ontario Intelligencer is continuing.

No stringency of the law, no number of improved highways and no increase in policing will take the place of individual care in driving a motor vehicle.

One thing which the provincial authorities can do to reduce the highway slaughter is to stiffen the examination which must be taken by those seeking the right to drive.

At the present time, a large proportion of those driving cars and trucks on Ontario's roads must be, either physically or temperamentally, incapable of driving safely.

MILLION DOLLAR ARSON?

(Brantford Expositor)

A fire which occurred in Manhattan the other day offered excellent support for the old adage, "Crime does not pay." According to the police, the fire, which wrecked a nine-storey building, doing approximately $1,000,000 worth of damage, was set by hirelings of a clothing manufacturer in order that he might obtain $20,000 in insurance. However, the plot backfired with disastrous results. Not only was the entire building destroyed by the lives of a New York detective and one of the suspected arsonists were lost in the blaze.

A very trustful man am I.
There's much I will believe.
I'll take for truth the reason why
All sorts of things I ought to buy

But fails in such a claim I lack:
No borrowed book of mine

I wondered could the man be sane
Who wrote that falsehood bold:
My full name typed in letters plain
Brings back a borrowed book again—
If it be stamped in gold.
If it were stamped in platinum
Since when no borrowed book

Time was I thought a book plate might

And borrowing friends to my delight
Would bring them back to me—
Books don't come back! Upon my shelf

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

STICK IT OUT

In reading from some of the delightful writing of Thomas H. Raddall, Canada's famous novelist and story teller, I came across this piece of advice that the father of one of his characters gave. He told the boy to never run from anything son, till you've had a good look at it. Most times it's not nearly as bad as it seems.

There is a world of sound advice wrapped up in this wise counsel. How often in times it's our habit each one of us could have benefited greatly by this advice and by not running away from something that we did. The father who gave that suggestion to his son must have been a great philosopher, as well as a good father.

We like worrying over things that never happen. How rare it is that we have need to worry, if ever! Things just happen regardless of our foolish worrying, but most things we don't even us happen! We'd better stick things out, and never run away. We'd be a lot like a good boy at anything that we are tempted to run away from.

We all have such temptations, I am sure. In my junior year in college I got discouraged and many advised me to quit school, earn some money and go back and finish. (I was working my way through.) I thought it over and then went to an old friend of my father's who was a preacher minister in Kansas City. When I told him my story he turned to me and said: "Boy, stick it out. Don't quit. There are already too many chaps with ragged edges in their characters. I got ashamed of myself after that talk and went back and finished the course with my twin sister. You don't feel very good when you have anything only half finished.

People try to run away from themselves, and even from life itself. But you can't do that. When you take a look at such things they can change right before your eyes! How many of us have regretted running away from duties and opportunities that we ought to have stayed by, and handled! When things get toughest is the time to—stick it out.

DENIED PERMISSION

Southampton, England, Sept. 18. (AP)—Raymond Greeno, United States army veteran who followed his war bride to England as a stowaway, was denied permission to land today for the second time in a week.

Immigration officials told Greeno he would have to stay aboard the Liner Washington for her return trip to New York.

Greeno's wife, Madge, and their four-year-old daughter, Sandra returned to England a year ago. Greeno was found aboard the Washington when it docked here last week. Barred from landing he went on with the ship to Germany. His second application to land today also was turned down.

CAUSEWAY MAY BE BUILT

Deseronto, Ont., Sept. 19—(CP) —A bridge or causeway may be built across the Bay of Quinte from the northeastern tip of Prince Edward county to Deseronto on the mainland, Hastings county and Prince Edward have agreed that the link should be constructed. The province is ready to pay 80 per cent of the cost, said Reeve Ross Neal of Deseronto. Now it's up to the federal government to approve the plan.

Donald Devereux Goes on Trial On Murder Count

Brantford, Sept. 19 (CP) — Donald N. Devereux, 23, went on trial Tuesday charged with the June 16 murder of Mrs. Violet Thompson, 27. The body of the slain woman was found in Devereux's truck which was parked outside the home of her estranged husband, Charles Thompson.

Dr. Leverne Fischer of Kitchener, provincial pathologist, said the woman had died from haemorrhage as a result of a bullet wound in her left chest. He testified that a butcher knife, such as the one entered as an exhibit, could have caused the wound.

Fred Smith, brother of the dead woman, testified that he had identified his sister's body after the slaying. He described the butcher knife as one similar to a knife he had bought for his sister.

He did not recognize a paring knife, also on exhibit, which is supposedly one which Dr. Fischer said, in finding in Mrs. Thompson's coat pocket when he performed the post mortem examination.

Smith claimed he had been Devereux in his home with Mrs. Thompson on the night of her death.

Canadian Soldier Flown Home In Fast Time

St. Davids, Ont., Sept. 19 (CP) —An anxious Canadian soldier came home from Korea Tuesday just three days after he learned that his four children had been taken to hospital with polio myelitis.

Sgt. Ralph Essex, on the orderly room staff of the Princess Patricias Light Infantry, flew from Korea to his Niagara District home in 72 hours after being granted 30 days compassionate leave.

"I went numb when I first heard the news," said Sgt. Essex.

Tuesday night he visited his children in Hamilton General Hospital. He brought them treats which he hastily picked up on the way.

Three of the children, Marilyn, 11, Jane, 8, and David, 5, appear to be well on the way to recovery, he said. "We are still concerned about Ann, who is five."

Sgt. Essex, who has served nine months in Korea, said he "was astounded at the speed in which I was returned home. Everybody seemed to be ready to help me, it was wonderful."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

This is a very small Packsack, addressed at most to about four thousand Canadians. But since those four thousand are scattered all over the face of the Dominion, I might be seemly to speak to us all. Yesterday I Folkestone, England, I got aboard a channel steamer for the short run over the water. I was just lining up the gangway and entered the trim little ship's foyer. I saw over the offices the word "Canterbury." I may say a chill like cold steel struck my heels to the deck.

I asked a steward: "Which way to the bridge?" and he showed me.

On the bridge I found a young-ish officer.

"Is there any officer or man," I enquired, "in this ship's company, who was here on the 17th of June 1940?"

He thought not. He rang a bell and spoke down a tube.

"Yes," he said, "the bosun." Presently the bridge came Mr. Charles Gilchrist, the sole living survivor on the Canterbury of the crew that took regiments, a field ambulance, sundry digalls of artillery engineers and army service corps of the British army to the port of Brest two weeks and four days after Dunkirk was all over, and the last Expeditionary Force.

"Were you boatswain that evening, Mr. Gilchrist?" I asked, as we squirmed hands.

"No sir, I was signalman," said Mr. Gilchrist, the bosun.

"And what message did you get?" I enquired, merely for the drama.

"The destroyer comes in the Brest harbor channel!," recalled Mr. Gilchrist. "She signals 'Are you de-gaussed?' I answers 'Negative.' Yes." And back comes the signal: 'Then what the hell are you doing here?'"

And out went the Canterbury for Plymouth, with 3,000 Canadians on a ship that thinks 1,200 a maximum load.

That ain't all," said Mr. Gilchrist when we released hands. "The Canterbury took the Royal Winnipeg Rifles over on D Day."

NEVER MIND YOUR BLOOD PRESSURE

I know that people suffering from high blood pressure should not smoke, begins a letter from a person named Julia K.

It goes automatically into the chucker.

For the benefit of Julia K., if she reads this column, and for the benefit of others who happen to give it the o. o., let a one-horse-and-buggy doctor point out that no one suffers from high blood pressure.

The only advice I offer concerning blood pressure, high low or sarae, is this: Never mind your blood pressure. Stand confidently that means leave your blood pressure to the judgment of your physician, that is, if your physician is worthy of his hire. On the other hand: if the doctor mutters about how high or how low your blood pressure is, shakes his head over it, or tells you how many "points" or millimeters it measures, do advise you to give him the old heave-ho right there and go find a real doctor.

Just as the chucker grabbed Julia K's letter—it was reaching fast and I had only a fleeting glance at it—she said, I believe, that of course she knew it was sensible smoking and not chain smoking.

Chain smoking means making a doubly qualified hog of yourself. An effeminate hog and an only-form of depravity. Repulsive self-indulgence by an individual without character.

Good doctors generally agree that excessive smoking is injurious to patients with certain heart or artery troubles. Some of the sort described in booklet C V D, for which send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope. Excessive smoking in this connection would mean, I should say, one cigarette, cigar or pipeful right after another; smoking with less than a fortnight of waiting till the job is finished; smoking to relieve "tension" or "nerves."

It is by no means established that the ill effects of smoking are due to nicotine. In the first place presence of nicotine in tobacco smoke is difficult to determine by chemical analysis. In the next place, the nicotine in tobacco is destroyed by burning. Finally, if nicotine is so poisonous that from one to eight grains or drops of it on the tongue would kill a man, it is remarkable that a cheroot of tobacco (containing anywhere from 0.91 to 4.17 per cent of nicotine sold dom makes the chewer turn up his toes.

Nicotine, by the way, is colorless. The brown stain commonly called "nicotine" is really tar stain and is easily removed by ordinary kitchen or laundry chlorine solution used for bleaching and disinfecting.

I'm no authority, but it seems to me that the ill effects of smoking are due chiefly if not entirely to carbon monoxide in the smoke.

Good doctors may permit some patients with heart or artery trouble to smoke moderately or temperately. This is for the doctor to define in the individual circumstance. My conception of moderate or temperate smoking will be stated in a talk to follow.

REALISTS

In browsing over my library the other day I came upon my boyhood copy of Robinson Crusoe. The fly leaf indicates that my mother had given it to me in December of 1880. I recall the thrilling hours spent poring over the pages. More than 50 years later I still regard it as one of the best pieces of literature to which any student may be exposed through many years of education.

There is a realism about the old books which many present day books strive to emulate but cannot. Many writers believe they are realistic if they are ob scene—if they barge into the precincts of life and use the language which until recently was considered revolting by the refined. The realism of many of the classical writers arises from the fact that they had no thought of it as it is and described it with simplicity and candor.

They did not believe that the whole of life is smut. They looked at life with a penetrating eye. They saw the good in humanity as well as the evil, and they never made the mistake of calling evil good because it happened to be practised by sophisticated people.

They drew a sharp line of distinction between right and wrong, and this very fact itself classified them as realists; for principles of living manifestly exists in the core of life's realities.

Shipments Held Up by Shortage Of Cheese Boxes

Shipments of cheese from district factories are still being held up by a shortage of cheese boxes, but no action was taken Tuesday night by members of the Belleville Cheese Exchange with respect to two new types of boxes.

One week ago a special committee was appointed to investigate the new type of boxes and this week the boxes were on display at the cheese exchange meeting.

Considerable discussion was heard regarding the respective qualities of the two boxes, one of which is a fibreboard container and the other a plywood box bound with metal. Approval of the federal department has not been given for the fibreboard box but cheese have been exported in the plywood box.

It was decided to leave the matter of decision on the boxes for another week.

W. D. Cook, of W. S. Cook and Son, cheese buyers, pointed out that considerable damage was being caused to cheese by inferior boxes and this was reflected either in higher costs to the consumer or in a lower price for the producer.

"It would be of interest to the factories to see that a satisfactory container was provided for the protection of cheese," he said.

W. H. McCreery was of the same opinion. "The loss from damaged cheese as result of inferior boxes is tens of thousands of dollars every year," he said.

Four thousand, three hundred and twenty-four white cheese were boarded, 1,334 colored and 924 specials. White and colored cheese sold for the minimum price of 36c with two buyers taking 741 colored and the marketing board the balance.

Cabinet Meeting Approves Placing Of Further Loan

Toronto, Sept. 19 (CP) — A special cabinet meeting of the Ontario government today approved the placing of a further loan of $50,000,000 with a New York syndicate.

The money was obtained at an effective rate of 3.48 per cent. The issue will be for 21 years bearing a 3 1-4 percent coupon.

The issue compares with the last $50,000,000 loan floated in August which was for 20 years at a rate of 3.46 percent.

The money will be used in the extension of the Ontario Hydro Power Commission development throughout the province.

Premier Frost said the cabinet was called into special session to ratify Ontario's half of the bargain prior to a meeting of the United States securities commission which approved the transaction this morning.

While he was pleased with the rate obtained, Premier Frost exrate obtained, Premier Frost exsary to obtain funds in the United States market.

CORRECT SMOKE NUISANCE

Fort Erie, Ont., Sept. 19—(CP) —R. C. Smith can hardly object to a request from town council asking him to help correct a smoke nuisance resulting from use of soft coal in several Fort Erie buildings. Not only does he own one of the offending buildings, he also signed a petition asking that something be done to remedy the situation. Councillors who noticed his name on the petition asked him to correct the matter himself, at least as far as his building is concerned.

Garson Sees War Emergency Lasting Generation

Niagara Falls, Sept. 19—(CP)—Justice Minister Garson says Canada's defence effort may last a generation or more and that Canadians should continue to make sacrifices and accept inconveniences to achieve the long-term goal of maintaining peace.

He told the annual meeting of the Ontario Municipal Association last night that requests had been made for imposition of price controls to halt increases in the cost of living. He repeated that the government felt that over-all controls would not have the support of most Canadians at this time.

"I, for one, am most hesitant and most reluctant to commit the Canadian people for an indefinite period of years to a comprehensive system of economic controls, in many ways indistinguishable from those of a totalitarian country, except as a last resort.

"It may ultimately be necessary, but surely we should do our best to try out every possible alternative before we employ such a system.

May Last Long

"As far as we now can tell, our defence effort may have to carry on for a long period of time, perhaps a generation or more. During this indeterminate period of defence effort, we will not be sustained and disciplined by the single - mindedness of purpose which war evokes, nor by the hope that with the conclusion of the war our emergency measures can be terminated.

"The present emergency, indeed, calls for an attitude and an understanding which in some respects is more difficult to sustain than the patriotic fervor which carried us successfully through the war."

The resulting sacrifices and inconveniences would be a challenge to Canada's national maturity and to each citizen's sense of responsibility.

WEDDINGS

CALBURY—MOYNES

The Frankford Free Methodist Church was the scene of a wedding Saturday, September 15, at 3:30 p.m., for a pretty wedding, when the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elgie Moynes, Ruth Viola, became the bride of William Smith Calbury, also of Frankford, son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Calbury, of Belleville. The Rev. G. H. Basche, of Manvers, officiated before a background of ferns, gladioli and Colonial bouquets of fall flowers.

Traditional wedding music included, "Because" and "I'll Walk Beside You", sung by the soloist, Mr. Harold Kemp.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a lovely bridal gown of white satin and lace, featuring a full sweeping train. Her fingertip silk tulle illusion veil was held by a coronet of seed pearls and she carried a shower bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Miss Sylvia Moynes, of Frankford, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, gowned in blue taffeta with matching headdress, and carrying a nosegay of pink and fall flowers, while little Miss Annabelle Twiddy was flower girl, dressed in her floor-length frock of pink taffeta with matching headdress and carrying a Colonial nosegay of similar flowers.

Mr. Martin T. LaRue, of Belleville, was groomsman.

At the reception which was held at the home of the bride, the bride's mother, gowned in navy blue sheer, received, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a gown of medium blue jersey.

For the wedding trip, the bride donned a suit of navy blue with grey accessories. Upon their return, they will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Peterborough, Odessa, Marmora, Campbellford, Stirling and Belleville.

WALSWORTH—ROWE

Miss Thelma Mae Rowe and Mr. John Andrew Walsworth were married at four o'clock on Saturday in a ceremony in First Baptist Church, Oshawa, when the Rev. Stuart Ivison officiated. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Howard Rowe, and Mr. Walsworth is the son of Mrs. Ina E. Walsworth and the late Mr. Peter Walsworth.

Mrs. M. Cameron played the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Miss Madeleine Golding of Kapuskasing; Miss Barbara Bowes, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Margaret Mackay, of London, Ont.

Mr. Lionel A. Delorme, of Cornwall, was best man and the ushers were Mr. Charles Rowe, brother of the bride, and Mr. Robert Walsworth, of Kirkland Lake, brother of the bridegroom.

The bride wore a gown of white Chantilly lace, the bodice and peplum of white satin, with long sleeves pointed over the hands. A heart-shaped headdress of Chantilly lace held in place her fingertip veil. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and stephanotis.

A reception was held at the Rivermead Golf Club, after which Mr. and Mrs. Walsworth left for Muskoka. Going away the bride wore a light blue suit with navy accessories. They will take up residence in Kingston.

Out-of-town guests included, Mr. and Mrs. Coles, and Phyllis, Belleville; Miss Marjory Cook, Belleville.

SILLS—MEENS

Standards of pastel-tinted gladioli, asters, ferns and evergreens formed a beauteous setting in St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill, Bellevile, on Saturday, September 15, at 2:00 o'clock, when the Rev. John J. B. Creggan, rector of Christ Church, united in marriage Joan Beatrice Meens, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Arthur Meens, to Joseph Keith Sills, of Belleville, R.R. 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sills.

Mr. Frank Moore, church organist, provided the wedding music, and Mr. Pat Blaker, soloist, rendered "I Love You Truly", before the ceremony, and during the signing of the register, "Because".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her bridal gown of English robia over taffeta, fashioned with fitted bodice, long sleeves ending in lily-points over the hand, round neckline, and shoulder cape. The floor-length skirt, which fell in graceful folds, was accented at the hipline with a slight crinoline. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held by a halo of orange blossoms and she carried a white prayer book with satin streamers caught with red feather roses.

Miss Hilda Meens, of Belleville, sister of the bride, was senior bridesmaid, attractively attired in mauve English robia taffeta over satin, matching halo and mitts. She carried a nosegay of yellow roses, bronze mums and gold-coloured gladioli florets with maline ribbon.

Miss Nancy Jean Meens, of Belleville, was junior bridesmaid, dainty in a gown of green taffeta, with matching halo headdress and mitts, and carried a nosegay of yellow roses, bronze mums and cream gladioli florets.

Mr. Bruce Holton, of Belleville, R.R. 5, attended the bridegroom, while the ushers were, Messrs. Fred and Harry Meens, of Belleville, brothers of the bride.

At the reception, which was held at the home of the bride's parents, the bride's mother, gowned in pale blue printed sheer with grey accessories and corsage of Pinocchio Sweetheart roses, received. The bridegroom's mother assisted, gowned in wine crepe, with matching accessories, and corsage of pink Briarcliffe roses.

Following the reception, the young couple left for points east, New York, Long Island and Niagara Falls, the bride travelling in navy blue sheer with white accessories and corsage of red rosette Sweetheart roses. Mr. and Mrs. Sills will reside at Belleville, R.R. 2, upon their return.

Out-of-town guests included those from New York, Newtonville, Oshawa, Tweed, Cannifton, Redneersville, Halloway, Foxboro, and Port Hope.

Prior to her marriage, neighbors and friends tendered the bride a miscellaneous shower at the home of her parents.

St. Michael's High School Inaugurates Parent-Teacher Assoc.

The inaugural meeting of St. Michael's High School Parent-Teacher Association was held in the school auditorium on Tuesday evening, with Sister Lenore acting chairman and a large number of parents and friends present.

Sister Lenore welcomed those present, and explained the purpose of the meeting—viz to organize a parent-teacher association for St. Michael's High School and asked Reverend Father Buckley to open the meeting. After doing so he addressed the meeting—first congratulating those present for their attendance; making special mention of the executive of the Catholic Women's League, whom he thanked on behalf of the pastor, the Very Rev. He asked those present to act as leaven to spread the news of the new St. Michael's High School Parent-Teacher Association throughout the parish and to boost it and with the steadily growing congregation anything could be accomplished in time.

It was decided that a Parent-Teacher Association be organized for St. Michael's High School after which Sister Lenore read the constitution and by-laws of the proposed new organization and asked if they were approved.

Mrs. Burley suggested an increase in membership fees. One dollar was decided upon; the constitution and by-laws then amended were adopted.

Women's Activities

BANCROFT W.A.

The first fall meeting of the Afternoon Woman's Association of St. Paul's United Church, Bancroft, was held at the home of Mrs. C. S. Stringer, on Tuesday last, with Mrs. Bneznek in the chair.

Following the business session, reports were heard from various committees. Ten sick calls were made during the summer months and Mrs. R. Delyea and Mrs. James Vance were appointed to the visiting committee for September. Mrs. E. McColl reported that a stone border was placed during the summer, to mark the boundary of the church lawn in an effort to discourage the careless parking of cars on the grass. October 29th was the date chosen for the annual church anniversary. Next month, further plans to be made at the next meeting. A number of members plan to attend the W.A. convention to be held in Maynooth on October 17, and it was decided to invite the convention to meet in Bancroft in October of next year.

A visit from Mrs. R. Broad, of Madoc, president of the Women's Missionary Society of Quinte West, South Hastings, is expected early in October, the exact date to be announced shortly. Plans were also made to have the next meeting at that time in the church and a committee composed of Mrs. Maude Thompson, Mrs. H. Strudwick, and Mrs. E. McColl was appointed to take charge of the tea hour. An invitation to attend will be extended to all the women of the church.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Ritchie Robinson, vice president in charge of W.M.S. study. Mrs. E. McColl read the introduction to the book "From Lakes to Northern Lights", written by Dr. Malcolm Macdonald.

CENTENARY W.M.S.-W.A.

The September meeting of Centenary Auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Roblin with 20 members and seven visitors present. Mrs. R. Edmondson, vice president, had charge of the meeting in the absence of Mrs. G. Mills.

After singing of "Lord of The Landy", Mrs. Edmondson led in responsive reading of Psalm 72.

A letter of resignation was read from Mrs. J. Laurence Platt, which was accepted. Mrs. C. Bain accepted the position for the remainder of the year. The offering amounted to $4.80. Thankoffering of $10.00 was collected for the autumn offering to be taken at the October meeting.

The forming of a G.L.T. group or Mission Circle was discussed. This would hold the interest in missionary work of the girls, who are not able to attend the afternoon meetings.

Mrs. W. Slavin was in charge of the study book, entitled, "From Lakes to Northern Lights". This book deals with home missions in the United Church of Canada. It goes to the bright into the remote areas of Canada. Areas which are not often heard from, but where there is a great Christian work going on. Mrs. C. Bain read the chapter on "Home Missions" and Mrs. R. Hart took the part of "Canada", which was an interesting skit.

Since World War II there have been 400,000 immigrants to Canada from all parts of Europe. These are Canadians, along with Canada's own increased population will bring the population of Canada to around 14,000,000 by 1952. There is a great need for Christian workers to help these people.

Mrs. Edmondson closed the meeting.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

LETTERS and ANSWERS

A 14-Year-Old Tries to Solve a Family Problem

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 14 and I have two brothers and one sister. A brother is older, but all the rest are younger than I am.

My dad is a drinker, and I have been wondering what to do about this problem. It seems as though he should realize the fact that he has children and a wife to look after. Mom says, "You can't do anything about it," but I feel that there must be something we can do. Can you tell me anything to do? — R. A. L.

Dear R.A.L.:

I think you are a very thoughtful and loving little girl to want to do what you can to help your family with this problem. I'm afraid, though, you are trying to tackle something that has proved too big and too difficult for people far older than you are. When either a man or a woman develops the habit of drinking too much, it is usually because they are troubled and unhappy inside themselves, and they don't really know themselves just what is making them feel that way. So unless they can go to someone who makes it his business to try to help such people find out why they drink, no one else can do much to help them, no matter how much they love them.

There is an organization whose members are men and women who had this dreadful habit of drinking too much and have quit, often over it. Now they try to help others who have the same problem. The headquarters of this organization are in New York City, but there are branches of it in many cities and towns all over the United States. If you would like to write a letter to this organization and find out where there is such a group near you, perhaps you or your older brother could go and talk to someone who might come to see your father. Your letter should be addressed to Alcoholics Anonymous, P.O. Box 459, Grand Central Annex, New York 17, New York.

Let me know if you write them and what comes of it, will you?

Use Your Husband's Name on Your Invitations

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My husband and I were asked to stand up for his sister on the occasion of her coming marriage. I am of the same age as she, and we are very good friends.

I would like to give her a shower, but since we have the same names I feel it might look odd on the shower invitations for Mrs. Mary Smith to give a shower for Mary Smith.

Should I use my husband's name on the invitations and call myself Mrs. John Smith, or how would you advise me.—Mrs. J. S.

Dear Mrs. J. S.:

By all means use the name Mrs. John Smith on your shower invitations. That would definitely be the correct thing to do.

Good luck with the shower!

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Building Beauty in Childhood

Cultivating good looks and attractiveness can't start too early and the mother of a little girl, if she is wise, will do whatever is necessary to build her child's loveliness. She knows the importance of health and medical check, but there is more to the project than that. Personality develops early, so certain habits that may decide the course of a child's future. The spoiled, over-indulged child eventually becomes the selfish woman. Parents who are over-strict and lack understanding may be responsible for children who are sneaky and untruthful. The right kind of parents mean the right kind of a start in life.

Nowadays ill-formed teeth are straightened, while in the past nothing was done about them. The baby doctor watches the child's weight; flabby fatness may be due to a glandular disturbance. If a child holds reading close to her face a mother has her eyes examined, usually finds that she needs glasses. This can be discarded later.

If a little girl doesn't romp and play with the other kids it may be because her little pedals are in need of prompt attention. Corrective shoes are the solution. What kind of leather boots are selected for her little dogs is important.

A child's skin requires simple care. When she is old enough to wash her face she should be taught to do it thoroughly, not give it just a lick and a promise with a washcloth. She should be provided with a bland soap, the towels she uses should be soft and absorbent. When the skin is chapped it should be creamed, the same as the adult complexion. Dry lips are a common trouble among youngsters; a little lipstick will usually overcome the condition.

The hair should be washed every week. A shampoo halo that can be bought at the notion department or the big store will keep the suds from the little one's eyes. There should be two soapings, two rinsings with a bath spray. If the child rebels against this necessary ritual, put her in the bath tub and make a game of it. Play beauty shop. Play that the rinsing water is rain coming down on a little flower to make it grow. That's better than having a battle.

Be mindful of the child's posture. Nagging won't do a bit of good. Tell her she must stand tall, keep her backbone extended so her frocks will look pretty and neat. Help her to develop pride in appearance. By all means, urge her to be neat in every way. A sense of order makes for efficiency and she will be a happier woman than if she were to develop sloppy, careless habits.

Chill cantaloupes well before serving, but never dilute their flavor by filling the cavities with ice.

Ones Again Needs Necessity at Having Wedding Invitations Engraved With Date Line Left Vacant

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are making our wedding plans, but cannot decide definitely about the date because my fiance does not know just when he can get his leave from Camp. I want very much to have the church wedding invitations and the reception cards engraved, but of course this presents the problem of the definite date. Would it be absolutely incorrect to have the invitations engraved with the date line not filled in, and when I know the date, fill this in in ink?. — Florence B.

In these uncertain days and in these days of uncertain leaves, this is often the necessary procedure . . . as, unhappily too, it was the necessary accepted procedure in World War II. For the reception card you may obtain a form that avoids using the date line . . . for example, "Reception immediately after the ceremony —etc." And also ask the engraver to send you the proofs immediately after you have placed your order, so that you can have these addressed and stamped.

Bridal Shower Should Not Be Given by Family of Bride or of Groom

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me if it is proper for the mother of the prospective groom to give a bridal shower for her future daughter-in-law. I have read in your column that the girl's family should not give a bridal shower, but I am wondering if it is the same for the young man's family. — M.S.

It is not considered proper, not considered in good taste, for a member of the immediate family of either the bride-to-be or the groom-to-be to give a bridal shower. And this social suggestion makes sense, very good sense because a bridal shower given by a person so closely related to either bride or groom too obviously takes on the appearance of a "promotion" for gifts for the new home. A shower-party given by a group of intimate friends of the bride-to-be is one thing, a very charming and natural kind of party . . . but a shower given by, say, the sister of the bride-to-be or the mother of the groom-to-be is quite another kind of party — an obviously-planned bid for presents.

Guest Not "Concerned" Need Not Stay at Reception After Greetings

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been invited to the wedding and wedding reception of the daughter of a professional friend of mine. I am a lawyer. For professional reasons I should like to go to the wedding, but, since I will probably know none of the guests and also because I really have no special interest in staying any length of time at the reception, I should like to make an appearance and then leave. Would this be "correct procedure," or could it be criticized?—D. B. H.

It would indeed be "correct procedure" for you to leave the wedding reception after you have "gone down" the receiving line, greeting the representatives of the bride's family who are in the receiving-line and the representatives of the groom's family, and offering your best wishes to the bride and your congratulations to the bridegroom. These gestures-of-courtesy are the point of a wedding reception, and there is really no need for a guest to stay after making these gestures to those most concerned with the wedding . . . particularly a guest who is, like you, more or less a stranger to all the other guests.

Princess Elizabeth Trained Since Childhood as Future Queen

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Princess Elizabeth is destined to become the sixth reigning queen of British since the Norman Conquest.

By custom and protocol, she is officially designated as the heiress presumptive, rather than heiress apparent — to the throne," she declared in a broadcast address that her whole life would be "devoted to your service and the service of our great imperial family."

Her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, has no place in the order of succession. He will become the prince consort as the husband of Britain's Queen. The best prince consorts have been Germans.

The handsome German, Prince Albert, husband of Queen Victoria, the great-great grandmother both of Elizabeth and Philip.

The queens of Britain since the Norman Conquest, with, with the periods in which they reigned, were: Jane, 1553 (14 days); Mary I, 1553-58; Elizabeth, 1558-1603; Mary II, 1689-94; Anne, 1702-14; Victoria, 1837-1901.

Slow to Propose Marriage

From Princess Elizabeth, the line of succession now goes to her son, Prince Charles, 2, and her daughter, Princess Anne, 1. Next in line is Princess Elizabeth's younger sister, 21-year-old Margaret Rose.

The order of succession then for the Duke of Gloucester, the King's brother, and his sons — Prince William, 9, and Prince Richard, 7; the Duke of Kent, 15, the King's nephew, and his brother, Prince Michael, 7, and his sister, Princess Alexandra, 14; the Princess Royal, the King's sister, and her children — the Earl of Harewood, 28, and Hon. Gerald David Lascelles, 21.

From there, it goes through the families of the sons and daughters of Queen Victoria.

The Duke of Windsor, the former King Edward VIII and the King's older brother, renounced his right of succession for his descendants when he abdicated in December, 1936.

Two fateful events early destined Elizabeth to be Britain's next reigning queen since Victoria, who ascended the throne nearly a century before Elizabeth's birth.

One was Edward's abdication, an act which put Elizabeth's father on the throne.

The other event was the birth on Marguerite Rose. The fact that she is only other child of the King and Queen of Britain first secured Elizabeth's position — a brother would have taken her place in the line of succession.

Pledge Broadcast

Elizabeth's pledge of faith to the Commonwealth came early in 1947 as she reached 21, the legal age of maturity. In a birthday broadcast to the Commonwealth, she gave this undertaking:

"There is a motto which has been borne by many of my ancestors — a noble motto — 'I Serve.' Those words were an inspiration to many bygone heirs to the throne when they made their knightly dedication as they came to manhood.

"I cannot do quite as they did, but through the inventions of science, I can do what was not possible for any of them. I can make my solemn act of dedication with a whole empire listening.

"I declare before you all that my whole life, whether it be long or short, shall be devoted to your service and the service of our great imperial family to which we all belong. But I shall not have the strength to carry out this resolution alone unless you join in it with me as I now invite you to do. I know that your support will be unfailingly given.

"God help me to make good my vow, and God bless all of you who are willing to share in it."

Gross, star witness at the graft trial of 18 New York policemen, readily admitted his identity and when asked why he had gone into hiding, said: "why, I'm not in hiding, I just wanted to enjoy a couple of days of racing and get down a few bucks." Ironically, when arrested, Gross had a fistful of winning tickets on the last race, but was not permitted to cash them. — Central Press Canadian.

Once Re-Ride Horse Now Mighty Bucker

Calgary —(CP)— In the western United States, rodeo riders are talking about one of the buckingest horses they've come across for years.

Originally called Didsbury Express and renamed Calgary Stampede, the high-kicking bronc has been causing some of the greatest riders in the rodeo game.

Raised about 200 miles from Calgary, the horse was bought by the Calgary Stampede board as a re-ride horse. He ditched riders so fast that Verne Elliott, who provides bucking stock for most of the large U.S. rodeos, borrowed him for a season.

In return he promised to bring back not only Calgary Stampede but his own best rodeo horse for next year's Calgary Stampede.

The horse has proved such a mighty bucker that his pictures and story were page-one news for the Wyoming Eagle. Said the Eagle:

"The tremendous, twisting lunges, and stiff-legged landings of the powerful, 1,400-pound chunk of dynamite sent shudders through the crowd and started old-timers to talking about the Immortal Midnight."

Midnight is acclaimed the greatest bucking horse that ever lived.

Said the Denver Post: "Calgary Stampede, a big-boned chunk of solid horse flesh . . . so far has defied any human flesh who has dared climb on his back.

"Billy Ward, a veteran cowpoke . . . was dusted off like a stuffed fly."

Canoe Overturns, Duck Hunter Drowns in River

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Sept. 18 (CP)—David Moss, 20, was drowned last night when the canoe in which he was duck-hunting with two companions overturned in the St. Mary's River, above the Soo locks.

Moss, father of two children and employee of Algoma Steel here, clung to the overturned canoe for 10 minutes after it tipped in heavy winds.

His companion, Glover Collision, 20, a brother-in-law, and Clarence Moss, 23, a cousin, clung to the craft for more than four hours. They were rescued when they drifted close enough for their cries to be heard by the United States coastguard.

The two were taken to hospital in Sault, Mich., where their condition today was reported as "fair."

When should a family borrow

A family should borrow only when a loan is the best solution to a money problem. For example, to pay old debts, medical expenses, taxes, food, education, car or home repairs. Loans for these reasons are not inflationary, for the money is not used to buy goods in short supply or increase indebtedness.

SOLVING MONEY PROBLEMS

At HFC—Household Finance—we believe a family should borrow only when, by careful planning, the money problem can be resolved, and the loan repaid in an orderly manner. When a family borrows under these circumstances, it is simply "renting" money on terms it can afford. At HFC you may borrow $50, $250, $500 or more on your signature, without backing security.

Detroit Wings Will Top Loop Says Jolly 'Jawn'

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Sept. 19 (CP)—In a display of unusual confidence, the general manager and coach of Detroit Red Wings intimated Tuesday that the team is almost sure to finish first in the National Hockey League this season.

"We have more fire and dash than at any other time in the past seven or eight years," said general manager Jack Adams as he reviewed the first 10 days of the Detroit training camp here.

"These youngsters and the spirit of the veterans have proved just the right combination to make this year's Detroit Red Wings a very dangerous threat for another NHL title."

Coach Tommy Ivan was even more certain.

"I've never seen such a hungry bunch of players," he said. "The way things are going now we should take over first place by a comfortable margin."

Leonard (Red) Kelly arrived in camp during the weekend and already has shown the drive which made him an all-star defenceman last season.

Captain Sid Abel was enthusiastic about the play of linemates Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay.

"I believe Gordie and Ted will have the best scoring records of their careers this season," Abel said.

Adams indicated he is pleased with the work of Tony Leswick acquired from New York Rangers, and he is expected to fit into a line with the brother combination of Larry and John Wilson.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Sept. 19—(AP)—The most important hit of the 1951 American League season may have been a bunt. . . There'll be plenty of debates over Al Lopez' strategy before Monday's Yankee-Indian game is forgotten. . . but the fact remains that Phil Rizzuto's perfect bunt that squeezed to's perfect bunt that squeezed Joe Dimaggio home with the winning run just about knocked Cleveland out of the pennant race. . . So the Indians were a game behind, where a victory would have put them a game ahead, and it was left to the Red Sox to do something about that Yankee team that manages to win most of the important games. . . The Sox have had the same sort of opportunity the past two years and failed to cash in, so how can you figure the same team will do it this time. . . Incidentally, did you notice that Ed Lopat and Allie Reynolds have won nine out of 12 games from the Indians this year —more than the whole Cleveland staff did against the Yanks.

Sports Before Your Eyes

The New York Heart Fund has been named as the third recipient of the Lou Lavitt award for humanitarian efforts by the U.S. Harness Writers Association. The trophy is a gold telegraph key—quite appropriate for an association interested in good tickers. . . Joey Maxim likely will accept 20 G's inducement to fight Don Cockell, his one-time sparring partner, in London next March. . . Louisiana state has an all-senior backfield dubbed "the four workhorses". . . and it probably has backfield coach Ed McKeever feeling his oats.

Toronto Wins Soccer Title

Montreal, Sept. 19 (CP) — Toronto Ulster United won the Canadian soccer championship last night on the strength of a 2-2 tie with Vancouver St. Andrew's in the final game of their three-game series.

The teams played to a 1-1 tie last Saturday in the series opener, and Toronto won the second game 2-1. Last night, Ulster needed either a win or a tie to clinch the championship.

Black Hawks Get Quackenbush

North Bay, Sept. 18 (CP)—Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League have obtained defenceman Max Quackenbush, 23, from Detroit Red Wings in exchange for Doug McCaig.

McQuaig also is a defenceman, is a native of Guelph.

Quackenbush is expected to give additional depth to the Hawks' defence. He is the youngest brother of Bill Quackenbush, former Detroit player now with Boston.

Veteran Roy Conacher, Bill Mosienko and Doug Bentley are expected to check into the Hawks' training camp here soon to join the rest of the squad with Detroit at Copper Cliff and North Bay.

Fred Hucul, Guyle Fielder and Syd Finney, all from western Canada, are possible starters in an amateur line coach Eddie Goodfellow plans to use in the exhibition game.

Goaltender Harry Lumley has been working hard to get in trim. Jack Stewart, Bill Gadsby, Clare Martin, Rags Raglan, Leo Fogolin and Al Dewsbury are trying for defence spots.

Coach Goodfellow has been experimenting with Dewsbury, a big fellow who packs a powerful shot, on forward line.

Senior Series All Tied Up

(By The Canadian Press)

Senior baseball playoffs in both northern and southern Ontario are all tied up as a result of Tuesday night's action on two fronts.

Wood Tigers shaded Garson Greyhounds 5-4 in Sudbury to even their best-of-seven Nickel Belt final series at three games each.

Also tied 3-3 in games is the Niagara District best-of-seven final as a result of Welland Stokes' 6-5 victory over Niagara Falls Forks at Welland.

Deciding game of the Niagara League playoffs will be played in Niagara Falls tonight. The winner meets Oshawa Merchants in the Ontario Baseball Association playoffs.

Toronto Staffords took a firmer hold of their best-of-seven final series against Toronto Kingsway Lumber last night in the Viaduct Major Baseball League playoffs. The Lumbermen now lead the series 3-2 with the sixth game scheduled for Thursday night.

"TOP RATED" B-A 88 & 98 GASOLINE

"You know I'm pretty stubborn about admitting one gasoline is better than another . . . but this B-A 88 gasoline has made a real difference in my car. I'm getting more power and pickup than ever before! And talk about economy! For my money B-A 88 gives me more per gallon—in every way—than anything I've tried."

"I'm one of those 'show me' kinds myself . . . but I figure I'll be a winner when I decided on B-A 98 for this new car of mine. Up hills and on the straight-away, B-A 98 sure answers the demands of a high compression engine. And you're right about B-A economy. There was a difference in my gasoline bill the first month I used B-A 98!"

REDMEN COME THROUGH

It's all over. The Redmen sparked by the sensational all-round performance of Dick Fitzpatrick came up with a sparkling performance against the Kingston Disney Leafs and tossed them into the Central Ontario Baseball League playoff discard with a 3-1 seventh game victory.

Coach Pat Wilson shuffled the team and popped up with a winning combination. Besides tossing Fitz at the foemen he brought Vern Geyer in to second base and put Billy Strahan in the left field pasture. The move was the right one. Strahan pulled down four hoists racing to the fence for the final out in the ninth.

The Reds performed brilliantly throughout. Led by Fitz who not only restricted the Leafies sluggers to five measly circuits, but bashed out a double and two singles, they came up with two nifty turfs. Hillman, now a Shiffler whom "Buck" Shaw reserves pulled down a dazzling line drive to double the runner off first. "Buck" pulled out a mighty long one that swooped over the twenty-foot left field fence. It was Buck's first payoff smash since his sensational four-bagger that won the game for the Belleville Juniors against Oshawa a decade ago.

It was, as this column noted before, a somewhat wacky series with both the Reds and Kingston delivering some erratic baseball and turning around to come up with a titular wallop. According to that system, Leafs should have won the eight but the Wilson crew proved they were chips players and came through with a well-deserved victory.

Now for Brockville. The Memos in another hi-and-out series vaulted last year's champions Smiths Falls Royals for the spot in the finals sun and meet our side for the title and mythical championship hashish. The memos climb in the eastern city tomorrow night and back here Friday.

The Memos will toss the near-venerable "Smoky" Smith at our hopefuls. In the first tilt, 'tis likely, in an effort to grab the all important initial victory. It should be a hot series.

A GOOD MOVE

The acquisition of the senior franchise "egg" to the Belleville Hockey Association looks like a coup that has caused considerable favorable comment along sports rialto of the city.

Summing the various types of commentary it seems the consensus is that "all the eggs in one basket" is a distinct move in the right direction and a step toward better hockey for city and district fandom.

That in itself will be a sufficient reward for the hardworking coterie of sports-minded men of this city who for years have been trying to bring the best hockey available here.

For behind the scenes of such an organization as the Belleville Hockey Association which now has climbed under the wing of administrative-sponsorship wing, is a tremendous task. The average fan who pays his way to see a hockey game, judges when things are going right and just as quickly, or quicker, criticizes when things appear to be slightly askew, which is his inalienable right, has but a slight conception of the terrific headaches, work, worry, headaches and a hundred and one worries that lie behind the presentation of a modern hockey team to the public.

And in these days of high-powered activities, caused by the conversion of what used to be called amateur sport into big business, the worries, activities and accompanying headaches are multiplied.

The executive of the Belleville Hockey Association, numbering some twenty or twenty-five prominent men of the city realize the big job that confronts it with the entering into the hockey field of the senior team, but rather than see the city not represented in senior "B" circles, and deprive the average sports-blooded citizen of his favorite pastime, they have taken on these extra curricular duties.

Not only has the association taken the senior entry into the hockey family but it has increased its minor activities with the inclusion of several extra teams. This year it will operate a juvenile league of four squads; bantam and midget leagues of six teams each; the Junior "D" Hawks, and an unknown quantity of peewee squads.

But to get back to the original themes of his piece. The putting, as it were, of all the hockey eggs in one basket, should be of distinct benefit to all concerned. Formerly when hockey teams were operated under the banner of different organizations there usually resulted a situation that often disrupted the proper administration of all sports and entertainments. Hockey dates affected schedules. These in turn were twisted and sometimes distorted in an effort to please everybody concerned. Sometimes both organizations wanted similar nights. This in turn disrupted the arena management's efforts in trying to arrange suitable dates for not only the city teams but schedule squads as well.

Under the new arrangement, these troublesome wrinkles should disappear. Special executive committees operating under the central head should have little trouble synchronizing their hockey watches, so to speak, and make the former rough trail a great deal smoother.

That bugbear of all sports organizations, finances, should be made a great deal easier for the association than heretofore. Formerly, the public was approached at different times by different managements for donations either in cash or through the medium of paid advertising in special programs. Under the new regime, this can be done in one movement, presuming that is the plan of the organization, and thus eliminates a lot of work for the executive, and headaches on the part of donors. A sort of hockey community chest, as it were.

And in addition, the general public when appealed to for financial assistance will know what their money is going for and how it is being spent.

BRAND NEW HAWKS

The Chicago Black Hawks who will be here October 4, 5 and 6 will start the 1951-52 National Hockey League grind as the most remodelled team in the circuit. Prior to the opening of the Hawks training camp at North Bay, Ontario the Windy City organization purchased six players from the N.H.L. champions, the Detroit Red Wings for the sum of $75,000.00, the largest cash transaction in the annals of the N.H.L.

The six players to wear the livery of the Black Hawks this coming season are forwards Jimmy Peters, Jim McFadden, George Gee and Max McNab and defencemen Clare Martin and Clare Raglan. It was generally admitted that the Black Hawks had one of the weakest defences in the league last season.

While the Hawks forwards were near the top of the league in scoring, they seemed to have forgotten that a winning team was also expected to check back and help out his defensemen and goalie, with the result that the Hawks had more goals scored on them than any other team.

It was with the intention of remedying these defects that Manager Ebbie Goodfellow consummated the deal.

The Hawks mentor considers it an advantageous deal and said, "It will add considerable defensive strength, plus some experienced scoring punch to the Hawks, and I'm pretty sure that with what we retain our 'for and against' figures will be revised considerably."

Indians Wallop Boston 6-4, As Chicago Thumps Yanks 7-1; Brooklyn's Lead Cut to Three

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Say, doesn't anybody want a pennant?

That seems to be the picture today as the top contenders in the American and National Leagues keep passing up chances to take a stranglehold on first place.

New York Yankees appeared on the way to the American League flag after winning vital games from Cleveland Sunday and Monday. But they blew a 7-1 decision to the fourth-place Chicago White Sox last night. That cut their lead over the Indians from a full game to three percentage points.

Now take Boston's third-place Red Sox. Winner of six of their last seven starts, the Sox seemed ready to deliver the knockout punch to the groggy Indians. Instead, the Tribe scalped Boston 6-4, leaving the Red Sox 2 1-2 games off the pace.

Even Brooklyn Dodgers, who generally regarded as sure-fire World Series participants, the Dodgers seem to be throwing everything hard put to keep the persistent New York Giants off their necks.

Brooks Lose Again

The Dodgers saw their margin reduced to two games yesterday when they bowed to St. Louis Cardinals 7-3, while the Giants took a 6-5 squeaker from Cincinnati.

While there is no end season for Dodger alarm, it would still take a minor miracle for the Giants to overhaul Brooklyn still has a five-game bulge in the important losing side. The Giants have only eight games left to play against the Dodgers' 12.

That's where the Yankees have their edge too—in the losing side. Cleveland has won more than New York but the Indians have also lost two more. They have only seven games left to 11 for New York and 12 for Boston.

Pitcher Billy Pierce and outfielder Eddie Stewart collaborated to beat the Yankees. Pierce throttled them with eight hits. Stewart hit a home run to tie the score at 1-1, then looped a bases-loaded single in the eighth to put the Sox in front 3-1. Chicago added four more runs to rout Vic Raschi before the inning ended.

Garcia Wins 20th

Mike Garcia, strong-armed Cleveland right-hander, gained his 20th triumph. The Mexican hurler held the Red Sox to nine hits and helped himself to a mighty double in the Indians four-run sixth inning that sent Bill Wight down to his sixth defeat.

Young Tom Poholsky limited the Dodgers to eight hits in posting his sixth win. Cardinals' A five-run fifth, ignited by rookie Vern Benson's home run off loser Ralph Branca, clinched the victory.

George Spencer helped Dave Koslo post his ninth New York victory with a sterling ninth-inning relief job, relieving pinch-hitter Hank Edwards for the final out after the Reds had scored three times and had the tying runs on base.

Elsewhere St. Louis Browns swept a twi-night doubleheader from Washington 8-0 and 3-2; Detroit topped Philadelphia Athletics 8-6; Pittsburgh nipped Boston's Braves 6-5 and Chicago Cubs defeated Philadelphia Phils 7-4.

Glen Roys Nip Howe-Hagerman In 10th Inning

Glen Roys took a stranglehold on the Commercial Softball League city championship at Alemlite Field last night, turning back the Howe and Hagerman threat by a 7-6 score in a ten-innings thriller.

The third game of the three-of-five final series is scheduled for Thursday night, with the fourth to be decided.

The game, the second straight for the Glens saw them narrowly avert defeat in the tenth when they came up with a smart double play with the bases loaded to end a Howe and Hagerman rally.

Glen Roys broke a five-all tie in their half of the inning with a two-run splurge off Doug Sword's double, Jack Hunter's single, a sacrifice and a walk.

Locke struck out to open the Howe - Hagerman bracket and Goyer got a life on an error. Don Boyle walked Williams and Wardhaugh in a row to fill the bases with one out but Al. Adair drove a grounder to Sword on third who threw the runner out at home. Mallory fired the ball back to double the runner from second to end the game.

Pitchers Go Route

Don Boyle was touched for eight hits four of them coming in the eighth when the Pilsbiehl ers tied the count with three runs. He struck out six and walked five.

Lum Carson also went the route for the losing Mallory four and sending five down via the whiff route.

Glens came up with two runs in the first off Corbett's single and Mallory's homer and scored another in the second when Boyle smashed out a roundtripper. They added two more in the seventh off three hits and a walk.

Plumbers got a brace in the fourth off Locke's triple and Mallory's single and tied the count in the eighth off four hits and an error.

Goyer led the Plumbers with two singles with Young, Widge and Al Adam, Locke, L. Goyer, Williams, Wardhaugh, Al Adam, Carson, Jack Howe, Henn.

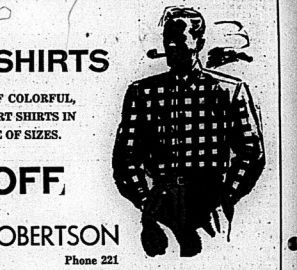
Four Wrestlers In Ring at Once



All four wrestlers will be in the ring at the same time and there will be two referees in charge of the explosive fireworks in the ring at the Memorial Arena on Friday night, when the team of Yukon Eric and Timothy Geohagen will clash against the team of Fred Atkins and The Zebra in the feature team event. This bang-up, four man match will conclude the wrestling for this season at the Memorial Arena, until its resumption next spring.

Two of the strongest men in sport, Yukon and Geohagen will be in against two of the roughest disturbers when they meet Atkins and The Zebra. One more feature will be the presence of two officials in the ring at all times to watch on Atkins' and The Zebra's usual unorthodox tactics. Eric and Timothy emphasized they don't want and don't need any breaks to beat their rough-and-ready opponents —all they need is a fair, equal deal in officiating. Two athletes ought to ensure that condition.

Two other all-star bouts will complete the outstanding card. Lou Sjoberg will tackle Tommy O'Toole in the semi-final and Pat Flanagan will wrestle Sonny Kurgis in the first event.

Auctions are fun... but lost parcels aren't funny!

A lady you never heard of just bought the lovely tea set you mailed to Aunt Sophie last year. Not much fun for you in that, but nice for the lady who got it for half what you paid for it.

The gift didn't reach Aunt Sophie because the Post Office just couldn't read the address on the package, or the wrapper came off because the package wasn't tied securely. The Post Office couldn't return the gift to you because there was no return address on, or inside the parcel.

Along with 6,000,000 other letters, circulars and packages—toys, wearing apparel, surveying instruments and even a horse collar—the tea set went to the Dead Letter Office, Canada's largest lost and found department. Experts couldn't figure out where the package was to go.

The package was stored for a year, but no one enquired about it. With thousands of others it was catalogued and sold at auction. That's when the lady you never heard of legally bought Aunt Sophie's tea set.

Redmen Oust Kingston In Seventh Game; Meet Brockville In Finals

Fitzpatrick Tosses 5-Hitter In Well-Earned 3-1 Victory, Blanks Leafs for 8 Innings

The Belleville Redmen, behind the neat five-hit hurling effort of righthander Dick Fitzpatrick earned themselves a spot in the OHAL finals by pulling out a 3-1 victory over the Kingston Dixie Lees last night in Megaffin Stadium.

The win gave the Moira City crew the best of seven series, four games to three, and entitles them to play Brockville, who won out over Smiths Falls, for the league championship. The first game of the final series will be played in Brockville on Thursday night with the second game slated for Belleville on Friday.

Fitzpatrick, once again, proved to be the clutch hurler for the locals as he set the homesters down with a scant five hits, and not more than one per inning. Not until the ninth frame when the Redmen had a three run lead did the Dixieys plate a run. Dick showed near perfect control as he struck out a pair and walked only one, and that in the ninth.

"HUCK" HITS HOMER

Jack Stone, who had started the night before and had been knocked out of the box, started for the Leafs and with the exception of that one blow, hurled on equal terms with Fitzpatrick through eight innings. He fanned eight and issued two bases on balls, one of which was intentional.

Buchanan started the ball rolling in the ninth after Reeves had been retired, by driving a clean single to centre. Gilmour [illegible] into left with Buchanan holding up at second. Strahan [illegible] Gilmour at Second but successive singles by Fitzpatrick and Munroe plated a pair and drove Stone from the box.

He was replaced by "Babe" Stinson who threw only one ball to retire Goyer and the side but the main damage had been done. Much of the tension had been relieved.

Don Gilmour drew the only Leaf walk to start the ninth for the homers but he was forced by White, Scrutton's single sent him scampering to third from where he scored on Milne's ground ball to Buchanan. Rank sent left fielder Billy Strahan to the fence for the third out. It was a fitting finish to a spine-tingling game and a closely-fought series.

In contrast to the first six games of the series, both teams played well defensively and although the Reds out-erred the Dixieys they came up with the hardest chances and took advantage of every break in the game.

Two Twin Kills

Two sparkling double-plays made the winners shine afield. Fitzpatrick snagged a pop bunt in the third and rifled a throw to first for the double to cut off a threat and "Huck" Reeves brilliant catch of a liner through the box in the seventh caught Milne, who was running, flat-footed between first and second. "Paddy" Gilmour came up with two lovely running catches in the outfield while Tom Buchanan turned in another stellar performance at first base.

Stan Scrutton and Don Gilmour were the pick of the Limestone lads on the defensive side of the ledger.

Fitzpatrick led the Reds attack, banging out a double to the centre-field fence as well as picking up a pair of singles. Reeves garnered a single on his circuit clout and Gilmour collected two singles.

Scrutton was the only homester to reach Fitzpatrick for a pair of hits, both singles, while Don Gilmour and Rank each picked up a two-bagger.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

The United Church Ministerial Association of Toronto has sided with coach Hap Emms of the memorial cup winning Barrie Flyers in the underlayed war with Conn Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs over Sunday hockey.

Rev. J. C. Perkins, association president, said today that he sept a telegram to Emms yesterday praising his stand.

The telegram read:

"On behalf of over 300 United Church ministers of Toronto, the executive extends to you sincere congratulations, appreciation and support for your stand against compulsory Sunday sport.

"We are proud of you and the Flyers, not Connie Smythe."

Because Emms refused on what he says are religious grounds to allow Barrie to play Sunday hockey, Gordon Bruins have withdrawn their sponsorship of the team.

However, Emms said yesterday the Flyers will remain in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League. Emms has appealed to other O.H.A. clubs for player help.

Hector Rodriguez, Montreal's 31-year-old third baseman, is the International League's "rookie of the year" in the estimation of the league's baseball writers.

The Cuban won the honor by one vote over teammate James (Junior) Gilliam, outfielder-infielder baseman. Matt Jackson of the Rochester Times-Union, president of the I.L.'s baseball writers, said 21 writers voted in the poll with Rodriguez getting 11 votes and Gilliam 10.

Saint John Beavers of the Maritime Major Hockey League will be studded this season with the names of players who performed for two Toronto teams last season —St. Michael's and Marlboros.

From Marlboros the Beavers will have defenceman Howie Lee, winger Al Buchanan and right winger Ron Hurst.

Featherweight champion Sandy Saddler and challenger Willie Pep signed contracts Tuesday for their title fight Sept. 26 at the polo grounds. Saddler will receive 37½ per cent of the net receipts, Pep 22½ per cent.

Riot squads of several hundred police were called out in Vienna, Austria last night to quell an angry chair-throwing crowd of wrestling fans disappointed in an exhibition starring prima Carnera.

Carnera, attempting to fulfill a bet that he could beat two wrestlers in 60 minutes, finished off one grappler in 20 minutes. Then, for the second time in 10 days he met Adi Berber, Australian innkeeper. Berber was disqualified in the third round.

The fans thought they had been cheated.

Indians Confident in Flag Drive, 'Sweep Boston Series, And We're In'

By JOE KELLEY

Boston, Sept. 19 (AP) —Cleveland's confident Indians who trail the American League leading New York Yankees by three percentage points today expected a satisfactory ending to their season's business at Fenway Park, their happy hunting ground.

Thrice this season the Indians have been on the brink of falling out of the American League's stirring pennant battle. Each time they revived here, on the same field where in 1948 they battered Boston's Red Sox in the American League's only pennant playoff.

Their most recent revivification occurred yesterday when Indian manager Al Lopez and pitcher Mike Garcia combined to silence the Sox who trail New York and Cleveland by 2 1-2 games.

Garcia, relying 90 percent of the time on blazing, snapping fast balls, won his 20th game of the season, weathering a rocky ninth inning 6-4.

Gracia Comes Through

Mike's unexpected double when all the percentage and custom called for him to try a sacrifice bunt after Jim Hegan had singled, caught the Sox napping and set up a four run sixth inning.

"I remembered Mike had hit a homer against St. Louis," explained Lopez. "And I knew the Sox never would expect a .210 hitting pitcher to swing away. I told him to swing and if he missed to look for a sign from me. He didn't miss."

Today Lopez sent Early Wynn after his 20th triumph, something the veteran righthanded pitcher never has been able to accomplish since he broke in with Sanford in the Florida State League in 1937.

Lopez stood by his prediction: "If we split these two games here we have a fair chance. If we sweep both we have an excellent chance to take it all."

Steve O'Neill, Sox manager who has named southpaw Maurice McDermott to pitch the Bostonians back into the race, lent indirect, and unintentional support to Lopez.

"We have to win today," said stout Steve.

Rocky Graziano Is 8-5 Favorite Over Tony Janiro

Detroit, Sept. 19 (AP) —Rocky Graziano's superior punishing power makes him an 8-to-5 favorite in his scheduled 10-round middleweight bout with Tony Janiro here tonight.

The granite-chinned gladiator from the Bronx was a heavier favorite—12-to-5—in two previous bouts with the baby-faced scrapper from Youngstown, O.

The closeness of those fights, however, has cut the wagering margin.

Both fighters will be bidding for one of boxing's best "money shots"—a crack at Sugar Ray Robinson's 160-pound crown. The winner stands a good chance of gaining an engagement in February with Sugar Ray, the ring's hottest box office attraction at the moment.

The fight will be broadcast and televised over national networks at 10 p.m. EST.

The first encounter between Graziano and Janiro on March 31, 1950, was a draw. In the second meeting last October, Graziano won a very close decision.

With his eye on a chance at regaining the middleweight title, Graziano will be in there swinging tonight for a knockout. He is unbeaten in 18 fights since he lost the title to Tony Zale in June, 1948.

Janiro's chances for victory rest on his superb boxing skill, in his previous bouts with Graziano he tired in the late rounds. But he insists he is ready to go the full distance at top speed this time.

Janiro is expected to weigh in at about 153 pounds and Graziano at 161. Janiro has an advantage in youth. He is 24, five years younger than Graziano.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Akoolap Oxhead needs to have his head examined. Hidden therein must be a flock of dead sick kings and queens. They are the ones he does not expect to find in the hands of opponents.

The obstinate mule always bids no-trump in answer to my simple overcall. With what does he expect to take enough no-trump tricks? Search me. Nor will you find them on him.

A simple overcall (non-jump defensive bid) in a suit admits being able to take five tricks if that suit is trump. Among these tricks are admitted two high cards, one of which is a sure trick.

There are 12 aces and kings and queens (high cards) in a pack. These high cards are the ones that count as no-trump tricks. If the simple overcaller has only two of them, ten must be with partner and two opponents.

To make a no-trump contract, your side needs more high cards than are held by opponents. So, if the simple overcaller has only two, his partner should have at least five before bidding no-trump.

South starts with an opening bid of one heart. Your west partner sticks in a simple overcall of one spade. Do not respond with one no-trump if you have this east hand:

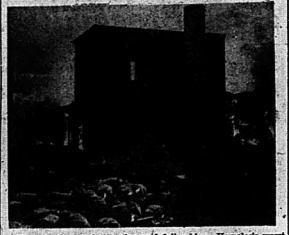
♥K Q 7
♦7 6 5 3
♣A 8 4 2

Your partner does not promise more than two high cards. You have only three high cards. So the opponents may have more high cards (no-trump tricks) than your side. That's elementary.

When should you respond with a no-trump bid in answer to such a one-spade simple overcall? When you have at least five high cards. In other words, when you have five no-trump tricks.



You see, the one-spade simple overcall does not promise more than two high cards. If you have five high cards, your pair will surely have seven. So, you can make one no-trump.

There are only 12 high cards in a pack. If your side has seven, opponents can have only five. That's elementary, too.

Two Hespeler Plants Destroyed by $250,000 Fire

Two hundred and fifty thousand-dollar blaze, Hespeler's worst fire in 30 years, destroyed the plants of the Hall Foundry Ltd. and Standard Castings, seen above. Firemen from Hespeler and Preston, Ont., working frantically to save nearby industries, were aided by rainfall which helped extinguish fire. — Central Press Canadian.

MAY BE SHORT OF BOOTS

London, Sept. 19—(Reuters)—A war office spokesman said yesterday that British troops in Korea may be short of winter boots and parkas this year because the items will not have reached Korea in sufficient quantities to equip all British troops before the beginning of winter.

Bolt of Cloth Encircling Globe Made Each Year

Edmonton, Sept. 19 (CP) — Canadian Chemical Company announced today its $54,000,000 Edmonton chemical plant, now being built, will make each year enough yarn for a bolt of cloth encircling the globe.

A press statement issued here today said part of the sprawling plant's output will be 15,000,000 pounds of "staple fibre and filament yarn" annually.

A company official estimated three yards of synthetic fabric can be made from a pound of fibre or yarn.

That means more than 25,000 miles of fabric — more than enough to go around the world at the equator.

Source of the fibre and yarn will be cellulose which is made by combining acetic acid with wood pulp from an affiliated pulp plant near Prince Rupert, B.C. A year's output of cellulose acetate will be 25,000,000 pounds. Some 10,000,000 pounds of this will be for export, the company spokesman said.

A variety of industrial organic chemicals also will be made at the plant from Alberta natural gases. Source material will be provided by Ajax Petroleum and by the Edmonton refineries of Imperial Oil and McColl-Frontenac.

433 Acres in Site

The plant site of 433 acres, just east of Edmonton on the south bank of the North Saskatchewan River, now is being developed. Construction of some plant buildings has started. Orders have been placed for major items of machinery and equipment.

Canadian Chemical, a division of the Celanese Corporation of America, today announced here and in Montreal that $45,000,000 worth of mortgage bonds will be offered to the Canadian public to finance the new plant.

It also announced that Celanese Corporation has bought 500,000 common shares of Canadian Chemical for $5,000,000 and has agreed to spend $15,000,000 to buy the rest of Canadian Chemical's shares—1,000,000 preferred and 500,000 common.

Russia Engaging In Kidnappings Say Union Men

San Francisco, Sept. 19 (AP)—Leaders of the American Federation of Labor today assembled evidence to put before the United Nations charging that Russia is engaging in kidnappings in western Germany, Austria and other free areas of occupied countries.

A resolution calling upon the U.N. to launch a full investigation also was being readied for introduction at the AFL convention here.

It will be based on documents collected and verified by the AFL's European staff. Members include Irving Brown, who has been fighting to rebuild free trade unions there.

Brown told a reporter the material has been assembled to show that persons are being snatched from their homes in west Germany and elsewhere, and spirited behind the Iron Curtain.

Fuller details will be presented to the delegates before they act on the proposed resolution, Brown said.

The convention was in recess yesterday.

It resumes today (1 p.m. EDT) with speeches by Oscar Ewing, federal security administrator, Governor Sidney McMath of Arkansas, and others.

Speakers to be heard before the week is over will include price administrator Michael V. Di Salle, interior secretary Oscar Chapman and economic stabilizer Eric Johnston.

Chapman, Di Salle and Johnston were expected to add their pleas to those of AFL president William Green, labor secretary Maurice J. Tobin and others to work for repeal of three major provisions of the Taft act. The administration says the three make it difficult to enforce price controls.

Yesterday the administrative committee of the AFL's political league chose James L. McDevitt, president of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, as its new director.

The AFL plans to ask each of its 8,000,000 members to contribute $1 to finance its 1952 political activities.

Ratepayers Want To Have Lawyers At Meeting

Whitby, Sept. 19 — (CP)—A ratepayers' association Tuesday night went on record as asking the Whitby police commission to let witnesses at a police department inquiry be represented by lawyers.

The commission is inquiring into 12 charges of misconduct against Police Chief Ronald Love.

The probe bogged down last week when witnesses declined to testify without legal aid. If the commission doesn't grant the ratepayers' request, the association would probably petition the town, Harold Wickett, president of the association said.

Such a petition would be forwarded to the attorney-general's department for action.

Ex-councillor Harold Mace, recommended that the town council seek to have the commission abolished and to handle police matters itself.

GIVEN 12 YEARS EACH

Cliff Fife, Van Gates Losers in Fire At Garage, Store in North Trenton

Trenton—(Special)—A fire that destroyed the Old Mill Inn garage and adjoining office and store early Monday night destroyed a sedan and servicing and repair equipment.

The business was operated by Cliff Fife of North Trenton. Van Gates, R.R. 3, Trenton, is the owner of the building.

The flames had made good headway by the time the firemen arrived. It took two lines of hose and chemicals to bring them under control. Fire Chief Harry Filion estimated the damage would amount to $8,000.

It is not known how the fire started, but apparently the source was in the grease room, as the flames spread quickly as it gave off black smoke indicating it was fed by waste gasoline or oil. Pressed embers above the garage doors had to have a second application of water after firemen had reeled up their hoses and made ready to return to the fireball. It was 1 p.m. before the building was considered safe to leave.

The Old Mill Inn is located north of Mayhew's Mill at North Trenton and is in Murray township.

Important Sale Of Hackney Made At Local Fair

Picton—Picton Fair is not only a show spot for everything that is representative of agricultural life and of commercial exhibits, but it is a place of important sales.

Topping the list of sales last weekend was that of a beautiful Hackney, owned by Haig Kelly, Peterborough, trained and driven by Bloomfield's master horseman, George Atkinson. This handsome horse quickly attracted the eye of Lance Rumble whose stable of Hackneys is famed in Canada and the United States. Before the Fair as over the animal had reluctantly changed hands at a sum high in the four figure sales. King's Counsel by name, this horse was unbeaten last year when it carried off at least sixty first prizes. Shown at many fairs this year it has not been beaten in its class.

Mr. Rumble plans to add it to his large stables at Lawrum Farms and prepare it for the big shows. Mr. Rumble was surprised to find a horse of this calibre locally and his "find" added to the enjoyment of his stay here.

Lesser sales included a great variety of merchandise which was displayed in the Palace, cars, machinery, sheep, hogs, poultry, even rabbits and bantams, as well as most of the home cooking. Exhibitors expressed themselves as greatly pleased with sales and prospects.

Metcalfe, Bessey Fly to Trenton From California

Trenton,—(Special)—Sgt. Jack Bessey, of Tyendenaga, and Cpl. Vince Metcalfe, of Goderich, had a unique experience over the weekend when they flew home from Van Nuys, California to No. 6 Repair Depot, a distance of 2,800 miles. Flying time was seven and a half hours. They were crewmen in two of the three T-33's recently added to Canada's growing jet-liner strength.

Bessey flew with F/L. A. A. Proctor of Winnipeg, while Metcalfe was crewman in W. Speck's Toronto aircraft. R.L. Joe McCarthy flew the trip solo.

The jet team travelled at altitudes between 25,000 and 40,000 feet most of the way. Except for brief stops in New Mexico, Oklahoma and Ohio, the modified Shooting Stars thundered right through from the southern California base until touching wheels down here.

Observed Sgt. Bessey; "There is no sensation flying at 25,000 feet at speeds upwards of 500 miles an hour."

WALLBRIDGE PRESENTATIONS

Wallbridge — On Friday night a large crowd of friends and neighbors gathered in the Orange Hall to present Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Fisher, who have moved to Belleville to reside, and also to present the recent bride and bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fisher, with gifts.

The evening was spent in games and singing, Mr. Lawrence Ketcheson acting as chairman.

Refreshments were served and all enjoyed a happy time together.

Mrs. M. Harris is spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. R. Tucker.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wallace of Belleville were recent callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Chisholm.

Corn picking is the order of the day and the canning factory will soon be busy, although the corn crop is not very good.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris were recently guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pound and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Pound.

RATEPAYERS MUST DECIDE

Stratford, Sept. 18 (CP) — At the next civic election taxpayers will decide whether they wish to shoulder another civic load—their garbage. At present they don't have to carry it to the curb for the collectors but the present routine costs them $10,000 more a year than if they left it near the street. They will vote to see whether they prefer carrying or paying, the city council said yesterday.

Caterpillar Plague Expected in Alberta

Calgary — (CP) — A large-scale invasion of tenters is expected in Alberta in 1952.

Only they won't be tourists — but a plague of tent caterpillars.

Studies made this summer by the Dominion Forest Insects Research Laboratory indicate the caterpillars are reaching the peak of a seven-year cycle and there may be a wide outbreak next year.

The favorite meal of the tent caterpillar is poplar foliage.

A one-year scourge of the caterpillars is not expected to cause serious damage to the trees.

To the city dweller, the caterpillars are largely considered only as nuisances. Treatment of the nuisance depending on the number of caterpillars.

But in the country they can stop trains by being ground under the wheels — and strip large areas of leaves.

MSGR. O'BRIEN DIES

Peterborough, Sept. 18 (CP) — Msgr. J. O'Brien, pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart here, died Monday. He had been in ill health for the last year.

Born in Otonabee township, Msgr. O'Brien was ordained a priest of the Roman Catholic Church at the Grand Seminary in Montreal, Dec. 17, 1898.

Ontario Court Dismisses Appeal Of Mrs. Moffatt

Toronto, Sept. 19—(CP)—The battle of Moffatt's Gate ended Tuesday in Ontario court of appeal.

The court dismissed an appeal by Mrs. Hazel Moffatt against an order issued last December requiring her to close the gate which gives her and her husband access to the Queen Elizabeth Way near St. Catharines.

The gate opened onto a private road leading from the Moffatt home to the highway. The highways improvement act forbids construction of private entrances to the highway without a permit.

The case has been fought through various courts for several months.

The battle reached a peak in 1949 when Mr. Moffatt, wielding a rake, defied highways department men who had been given strict orders to fill in the driveway so it could not be used.

For several months prior to that, the department's workers had tried to close the driveway by stringing fences across it, by blocking it with guardrails and by piling tons of sand across the entrance.

MORE CALLED OUT

Nanaimo, B.C., Sept. 18 (CP)—More men were called out last night to fight spreading forest fire burning on the slopes of Mount Benson, 10 miles from this Vancouver Island City.

More than 100 men tried to stem the tide of the flames as they advanced toward the city's watershed.

The fire has burned over 2,500,000 feet of felled and bucked timber and moved toward 15,000,000 feet of prime standing timber.

The blaze started Saturday — Forest Rangers blamed careless hunter—on the property of Northwest Bay Logging Company.

MOUNTAIN VIEW

Mountain View — The September meeting of Mountain View Women's Institute was held at the home of Miss Ellen Anderson with 20 members and three visitors present. The president, Mrs. E. Hall, presided.

The business details were discussed and completed. It was decided to send a letter of appreciation to Mr. Jay Sprague for donating time of his employees for work done on the gravestones in the cemetery.

Many interesting articles were shown. Mrs. Ben Anderson gave interesting current events of the past month.

Mrs. Lewis Wallbridge, as convener for historical research, gave data of Rossmore and Rossmanage in the year 1900.

Mrs. S. Barber conducted a contest featuring farm implements. This was won by Mrs. G. Neal and Mrs. E. Hall.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Ben Anderson and Miss Lillian Sprague, served refreshments, and a social hour was enjoyed.

A vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. Alfred Teale to Miss Anderson for the hospitality.

The October meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Wilfred Motley.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a walk with pop before supper, and I said, Wait, pop, here's a chewing gum slot machine, I've got a cent to put in it.

I'll watch the operation with grate intrist, pop said, and I said there trying to make up my mind what flavor, saying, I dont know whether I want spearmint or licorish.

Life is full of crossroads and turning points, pop said. Some of them are vital, such as the decision whether to tell your employer just what you think of him or whether to continue keeping the information to yourself, and others are comparatively unimportant, such as the decision you are facing rite now, he said.

Interesting to hurry up and make up my mind, which I did, putting my cent in spearmint slot and pulling the button, and I said, Heck, pop, it didn't work.

And I pushed it some more times and it still didn't, and I said, Do you think I ought to go in the store and tell the man, pop?

I think you should, pop said. If all the small injustices were righted, the big injustices would probably take care of themselves. I'll wait for you while you register your protest, he said, and I said, But jimminies, pop, the man is libel to take advantage of my size and not believe me, but if you go in and I do it he'll know you wouldn't make all that fuss about a cent unless it was in a good cause.

In principal I suppose you are rite, pop said. And he tried the slot himself and what did it do but werk, and I picked up the chewing gum saying, Would you of went in and told him if it hadn't of werked for you either, pop?

History will have to remain forever silent on that point, pop said.

THIS MR. ICARUS

By Harry Meldrum Moore

And when it was over Lance Bradley went to his rooms in the Roberts home to gather up his belongings, preparatory to moving them to his new apartment in The Realgn building. A little while later he was back to take a last look at the garden, to tell the neighbors' wifs that the vegetables were there for her taking. Then he picked up the garden tools, put them away and closed the hen-house, drew the blinds, locked the doors and stood on the sidewalk in front and thought of the many happy hours he had spent under its kindly roof with the finest man and woman he had ever known. And now, it was home to him no longer. Now it would be an apartment with no Dad and Mother Roberts to be with him in the restful evening hours—No Dad or Mother Roberts to bid him good night or good morning—no more home cooked meals that Mother Roberts had loved to prepare and been so delighted to serve.

But living alone in his new apartment did not prove to be lonely as Lance had anticipated. Being directly under the radio station, close to the stairs up which radio staff must pass to and from work up to eleven o'clock at night, he never felt altogether alone. It seemed no time until members of the CEDE staff were dropping in to see his well furnished, well-lighted quarters. Here he had telephonic connection to all parts of the building, his books and magazines and papers, and easy chairs for his callers.

And soon fellow members of council, members of his staff, even police officers, formed the habit of dropping in to see him. Stub Rose and Goldie Webster were frequent visitors as they returned from work-outs at the Y.

Even Doris Parker went to see what manner of retreat he had built for himself. But she didn't go alone. She took with her the little blonde school teacher, Miss Alice Price. And he showed them around—his bedroom, his bathroom, explained that Mrs. Grooms wife of the caretaker, dropped in every afternoon to make his bed and clean up the place for him.

"But, Brad," Doris said, "you've forgotten something. Where's your kitchenette to cook? Your place is too sweet for anything but it will never be complete, until you have a kitchen—"

"And of course, a good cook," Miss Price put in archly.

"Oh, I don't know," Lance laughed, "what if the cook and I couldn't agree. I'm pretty hard to get along with, y'know."

"I can imagine that," Doris said.

Well, that's the way it was almost every night up until Jimmy Hastings read the news and signed CEDE off for the night. But that was only when Lance Bradley was at home. There were evenings when he had to attend council meetings, or drop into the GWVA hall to have a chat with his buddies, or to go to the 'Y' to see a more ambitious and dangerous Goldie Webster train for his coming bout with Tex Burdell. Goldie meant to vindicate himself in the eyes of his followers this time.

The big fight was scheduled for the town hall on a mid-September night and it was held before a sell-out crowd. The odds were two to one that Tex Burdell would repeat his victory. And there was plenty of money to take it up as fast as it was offered, for Stub Rose had stressed the fact on his news-page that this Goldie Webster was the same boy who had lost to Burdell previously.

Prior to the fight Lance Bradley was in Goldie Webster's dressing room, just talking to him to keep his mind off the important business at hand. Stub Rose was cutting up with Doris Parker who admitted that she had placed her last penny on Goldie to win inside of six rounds.

Presently word reached the dressing room that everything was ready. Doris kissed Goldie good luck. Lance slapped him on the back.

"This is it, son!" he said. "It's your last chance—make it count."

"You can say that again, Dad," Goldie grinned.

From the opening bell, that return bout between Goldie Webster and Tex Burdell was the fiercest, hardest contest that boxing fans were to see for a long, long time in the town of Emerton. It was the final meeting between a boy who must win to vindicate himself in the eyes of his followers and a boy who had won before and believed he could and would win again. It was a fight that kept the spectators on the edge of their seats or brought them cheering, to their feet.

But Lance Bradley didn't see that fight through. Just as Goldie bounced off the floor where he had been dumped on the seat of his pants by a vicious left hook, Lance clasped his breast. Nearby spectators saw him slump, slide to the floor, and there were calls for a doctor. Dr. Brown came. Lance Bradley was carried to Goldie Webster's dressing room where the doctor worked over him before rushing him to hospital in his own car.

When Lance Bradley opened his eyes again, it was another day, and with a wry face he recognized his surroundings. There was a white capped nurse standing nearby.

"Feeling better now, Mr. Bradley?" she asked.

"Yeah," he said. "Yeah, I guess I feel all right. But what happened?"

"Cardiac condition," the nurse said softly, "over excitement. You're probably run down from worry, too."

"Yeah, I guess I am," he agreed. "Just a little too much on my mind lately—and Dad and Mother Roberts, y'know. But, nurse—" he broke off and turned to her, "what about the fight last night? Who won?"

"Dr. Brown told me to tell you that Goldie won in the fifth round. After it was over, he told me, he threw his gloves into the crowd. 'You can have 'em fellows—I'll never fight again!'" he said, according to the doctor.

"Yeah, Goldie would do that," Lance mused. "He promised me he would, and he's yet to break his word with me. But, say nurse how long will I be here? I'm a busy man, y'know—"

"Your business must take care of itself, Mr. Bradley," the nurse observed, "if you're a good boy and do what we tell you, we may have you out of here in a week or so."

"Okay, sarge," Lance grinned. "That'll have to be all jake with me. If you can stand it, I can. But when do I eat?"

Dr. Brown came in shortly afterwards to tell him he must rest, that he had a grave heart condition, and he instructed the nurse that until he said so, she must not permit any visitors.

But that did not prevent the Parkers and the Hastings, along with the town council and his radio and newspaper staffs from sending him flowers in plenty to cheer him during his convalescence.

FIND ANOTHER PLACE

Toronto, Sept. 19—(CP)— An apartment-for-rent advertisement seldom fails to bring plenty of replies these days. But T. W. Rowe received something of a surprise when he placed an ad in a Toronto newspaper several weeks ago. One reply came from Fred Tedder of Hamburg, Germany, who plans to move to Toronto shortly with his family. The apartment was already rented when Mr. Tedder's reply was received. But Mr. Rowe says he is trying to find another place for the Tedder family.

Churchill Scents Tory Victory In October Voting

Attlee Says Conservatives Have no Alternative Policy

London, Sept. 20 — (AP) — Prime Minister Attlee opened the Labor party's campaign for the Oct. 25 general election today by telling the country it must choose whether it will "go backward with the Conservatives or forward with Labor."

At the same time, Winston Churchill and his Conservatives, sensing victory for the Tories in the air, began shaping their election strategy.

Conservatives considered a good sign for them the developing boom on the London stock market in the wake of Attlee's broadcast announcement yesterday that the general election will be held. Millions of pounds were added to the share values on the London exchange in a buying spree obviously touched off by the prospect that the Labor government may be ending six years of rule.

Attlee spoke to reporters before an automobile trip to North Berwick, Scotland, where he will address a Scottish Labor party conference Saturday.

Laid Down Policy

He laid down what is likely to be the Labor party line in the campaign:

"The Labor party will go to the country with confidence. For six years under the leadership of the Labor government the British people have carried through an immense task of social and economic reconstruction.

"Britain has played a leading part in the promotion of peace in co-operation with all the free peoples.

"The Conservatives have consistently belittled these achievements.

"They have no alternative policy. All they can do is to oppose.

"No fair-minded man can deny that the majority of the people of this country are better off and more secure than when the Conservatives ruled."

While prospective candidates for the 625 House of Commons seats fanned out into election districts for preliminary spadework, Churchill said Britons now have the opportunity to place in power a cabinet effective at home and abroad, and "not misled by class warfare or doctrinal fallacies."

Attlee's brief announcement by radio to the country said the Labor party wants a decisive vote of confidence from the people after 18 months of government with only a small majority in the House of Commons.

Labor's margin on important votes has been only from six to 10 in the 625-seat House since the February 1950 elections. The Labor party took power in 1945. It now has an effective majority of six.

Attlee appeared to leave no doubt he wanted popular endorsement of his policies not only over the attacks from the Conservatives but also over a left-wing section of the Labor party that opposes so much spending for rearmament.

The Liberal party, which has only nine seats in Commons but holds a strategic position between the 313-seat Labor party and the 297 seat Conservatives, called planners to London headquarters to decide whether this party conference, set for Oct. 25, should be called off.

May Junk Convention

The Conservatives had planned their fall conference at Scarborough Oct. 11-13 but a Tory spokesman indicated Churchill and his lieutenants would decide to junk it.

Of the other six seats, an independent has one, the Irish Nationalists 2, and three are vacant.

The Labor party secretary, Morgan Phillips, indicated the party will fight for every seat. The party fall conference, slated to begin Oct. 1, would be cut from five days to three.

Anthony Eden, Conservative deputy party leader, was expected to hurry back to London from an Italian holiday. Some predict that if the Conservatives win, the aged Churchill would take the prime ministry for a few days as a victory trophy, then turn the job over to Eden, 53, or some other younger Tory.

Churchill, who will be 77 Nov. 30, is suffering from increasing deafness.

Swing to Tories

Recent public opinion polls indicate that the country's 34,000,000 voters have swung heavily toward the Conservatives. One poll gave the Tories 51 1-2 percent to 38 1-2 percent for Labor.

STILL IN THE RING

Fresh and vigorous after a holiday in Venice, Winston Churchill lost no time, on his return to England, in signifying his Conservative party would welcome an election. He called a conference of his party leaders, prepared strategy for forcing an election on Attlee's Labor Party. —Central Press Canadian.

RUSSIAN-MADE MIGS DAMAGED IN AIR BATTLE

Badly-Needed Air Support Given Infantry

U.S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Sept. 20. (AP)—United States warplanes today damaged three Russian-made MIG-15 Jets in a series of dogfights over northwest Korea. Altogether, 49 Allied and 78 red planes were engaged.

The U.S. Fifth Air Force said there were no Allied losses.

For the first time in history, giant Helicopters ferried battle-ready troops into action. The Helicopters delivered a reinforced company of Marines and their equipment to a rugged mountain summit in only four hours. By foot the same job would have taken two days.

Other U.N. troops faced withering red mortar fire as they pushed off again in the bloody "Battle of the Hills" on the east-central front.

Clearing weather gave them badly-needed air support.

Communist troops on commanding high ground rained artillery and mortar fire at the attacking Allied infantrymen.

Elsewhere on the east-central front, Eighth Army soldiers continued local attacks against reds dug-in on high ground.

U.N. advances also were reported on the western front. They were north of Yonchon and northwest of Chorwon.

An allied jet photo plane was jumped by 12 communist jets near Anju, but escaped without damage.

Other allied planes attacked the red transportation network in North Korea. Tracks were cut in 17 places south of Chunghwa. South African F-51 Mustangs and U.S. F-84 Thunderjets pounded tunnels and trains in other air actions.

On the ground, United Nations infantymen pulled themselves together for a drive to regain Wednesday's losses. The final score for Wednesday — no hills won, three lost, and seven allied attacks turned back—was relieved only by the successful defence of three other peaks against strong communist attacks.

Clearing weather brought help from air force and marine fighter pilots, plus air-directed artilley fire.

The "battle of the hills" flared from northwest of Yanggu almost to the Sea of Japan, west of Kansong. The allies were fighting for a series of east-west positions that, if taken, would place the U.N. army in the best position yet to launch a wheeling movement to the northwest.

Ground action in that area was savage.

Head of Consumer Association Says Ottawa Must Help Fight Inflation by Reduced Spending

Ottawa, Sept. 20—(CP)—Mrs. W. R. Walton, Jr., president of the 13,000-member Canadian Association of Consumers, said today that if the government is going to curb inflation, it must first slash some of its own unjustified spending.

Dependence by the government on "still more burdensome taxation on essentials" alone will not provide the cure, Mrs. Walton said in her presidential speech prepared for delivery before the association's board of directors.

Her speech initiated a two-day discussion of consumer problems, particularly the cost of living.

Resolutions were expected to follow from provincial delegations calling for a new campaign to hold the price line and to get the government to control margins of profit on consumer goods.

Affiliated with the association is a group of national women's associations, representing more than 100,000 Canadians, and including such groups as the Y. W. C. A., the I. O. D. E., the Salvation Army of Canada, business and professional women's clubs and the National Council of Women

Cuts Living Standard

"The sharp, mounting cost of living," said Mrs. Walton, "has made inroads into the standard of living of many Canadians . . ."

Swamped by requests for protection against high prices, the association has been asked to support a roll-back in prices, subsidies, prohibition of some imports, bans on somt exports and for selective and over-all price controls.

Mrs. Walton said that because Canada is an exporting country, it could not by itself control the scale of prices which prevail around the world. The pricing of its goods was influenced more by external forces than those within her boundaries.

But some steps could be taken within a country to slow up or even deflate high costs. A few of these steps had been initiated by the government. But these were not enough.

The government had adopted a policy of high taxation to help fight inflation, but had weakened its position by making insufficient effort to curb its own normal expenditures.

Sees Inconsistency

"It seems absurd," said Mrs. Walton, "to control the low-powered credit of instalment buying and the medium-powered credit of bank loans, if the government itself fails to exercise more adequate restraint on thecredit and spending policies of its own ordinary expenditures."

But Canadians could not leave the matter of fighting inflation entirely in the hands of government.

"The time has come," said Mrs. Walton, "when Canadians need to roll up their sleeves and produce more, and at the same time decrease their purchases of goods and increase their savings.

"We cannot leave this cost-of-living business just to government. We can do something about it ourselves and each individual who is able to, must do everything he or she can."

United States Will Continue To Seek Agreements with Reds And See They are Enforced

--Truman

Washington, Sept. 20 (AP)—President Truman said today the United States will continue to seek agreements with Russia but will build up its armed strength to see that they are enforced.

Truman told a press conference there is a stronger possibility of preserving the peace as a result of the strengthened arms program. He added that possibility will grow still stronger if the United States got along with her defence program.

Under existing circumstances, Truman said, it is necessary to rely on force. He said he dislikes this.

He said the United Nations was organized to settle differences without the use of force, and that Korea was just one example of how the communists have made this impossible.

Truman said he is willing to put forth every effort to get a solution of the Korean conflict without having to kill more people.

This was his comment on the communist proposal for resumption of cease-fire talks.

The press conference questioning began with a reporter's reminder to Truman that he told an audience here Monday that an agreement with Russia was not worth the paper it is written on.

In view of that, the reporter asked, did he propose to continue to seek agreements with the Soviets?

Yes, Truman replied, and added that when one is in a position to enforce agreements with Russia they'll be kept.

REDS NOW READY TO RESUME TRUCE TALKS AT KAESONG

Allies Will Likely Agree to Suggestion

Tokyo, Sept. 20—(AP) — The communist high command reversed itself today and suggested that Korean cease-fire talks be resumed immediately in Kaesong. The reds broke off the talks 28 days ago. They charged then that an allied plane bombed and strafed the neutral Kaesong area Aug. 22 in an attempt to murder communist truce delegates. The allied command called the charge fraudulent and faked.

Heretofore the reds have demanded that the allies admit responsibility for a string of alleged neutral zone violations before the truce talks could be resumed.

They proposed today only that a "suitable organization" be set up to guarantee the neutrality of Kaesong.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway made no immediate comment.

But a release from the supreme commander's headquarters said "there is reason for hope that the latest communist reversal in policy and agreement to renew the peace talks may bring some sort of a cease-fire in Korea."

It cautioned, however, that "it is a hope that must be tempered by the realization that a renewal of the talks does not mean necessarily that previous difficulties will suddenly iron themselves out."

Proposals Made

Chinese Gen. Peng Teh-huai and North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung proposed:

1. That liaison officers of both sides meet to fix the time for reopening the meetings.

2. That at the first session after the conferences resume, delegates discuss a plan "to establish a suitable organization" for guaranteeing the neutrality of Kaesong and settling differences over previously-charged violations.

The United Nations command has admitted the validity of only two alleged violations.

Ridway's headquarters said an allied plane strafed Kaesong by mistake Sept. 10, and that four unarmed South Korean soldiers mistakenly approached the neutral zone Tuesday afternoon.

Tone Will Not File Civil Suit Against Neal

Hollywood, Sept. 20—(AP) — Franchot Tone has scorned suggestions that he file a civil suit against actor Tom Neal, who beat him up last week over the fleeting affections of actress Barbara Payton.

Wealthy Tone, heir to his father's carborundum fortune said through his lawyer that he is considering only a criminal complaint.

Meanwhile, producers Walter Wanger and Eugene Krenke announced Miss Payton is no longer under consideration for a role in (The Lady in the Iron Mask." This would have been Miss Payton's most ambitious screen portrayal.

W. H. Wright, Globe And Mail Owner, Dies in Barrie

Came to Canada Penniless, Later Acquired Great Wealth

Barrie, Ont., Sept. 20 — (CP) — William H. Wright, 75, discoverer of the Wright-Hargreaves Gold Mine and one of the Commonwealth's wealthiest men, died at his home here early today.

Death was due to a persistent bronchial condition from which he had suffered for months.

Dr. Eaton Turnbull, attending physician, said the bronchial condition led to "gradual disintegration."

Funeral services will be held here Saturday with burial in Barrie Union Cemetery.

Mr. Wright is survived by a sister, Mrs. Edward Hargreaves, Barrie; two nieces, Mrs. Byron Quarrington, Hamilton, and Mrs. W. H. Craig, Barrie, and a nephew, Frank Hargreaves, Barrie.

The English butcher boy who arrived in Canada a penniless immigrant at the age of 33 had lived in semi-retirement for many years although he held the vice-presidency of the mining company he helped establish in First World War days—before he went overseas to become Canada's millionaire private. His fortune once was estimated to yield him an income of $2,000,000 a year.

Founded Globe and Mail

Bill Wright—as he was known to the mining profession across the country—also was founder of the Toronto Globe and Mail, a morning newspaper he acquired in 1936 when he bought the Toronto Globe and then its competitor, the Mail and Empire. The paper has been published by George McCullagh, a close friend of Mr. Wright and at the time of the Globe and Mail purchase, a young broker.

Born in Seaford, Lincolnshire, April 21, 1876, Mr. Wright reached Toronto in 1907, almost penniless after paying his passage from England. His personal history since seemed to parallel that of his adopted country—a rise from nothing to a position of international eminence.

Lived Quietly

Unassuming to the point of self-effacement, Mr. Wright in recent years lived so quietly that to many he was a man of mystery, of fabulous wealth but almost a hermit. But his intimates found him always ready to tell stories and to chat about his days in the army and his prospecting trips. Too, he always was ready to talk horses. He had a racing stable that produced many good Canadian-breds.

The man who discovered more than one gold mine, who bred a horse that won Canada's premier horse race, the King's Plate, and who owned one of Canada's leading newspapers once remarked that his biggest thrill was when a British relief column reached beleaguered Ladysmith during the South African war. The column brought cigarets with it.

ODDS FAVOR TORIES

London, Sept. 20 (AP) —British bookies today offered six to four on the Conservatives to win the national election Oct. 25.

Professional politicians among the Conservatives warned against over-optimism, pointing to the United States presidential elections in 1948 when the Democrats won after most predictions.

Shift of Winds Gives Towns Breathing Spell

Nanaimo, B. C.—(CP)—A forest fire which had threatened 650 homes in the suburbs of this Vancouver Island city retreated in its blackened tracks today.

The wind shifted late last night as the flames were bearing down on the suburbs of Extension, White Rapids Road and Harewood, carrying the fire back up the slopes of Mount Benson.

Before the wind—and 600 loggers—turned the blaze, it had reached a point eight miles from the city centre. Mains carrying water to the city were punctured to allow firefighters to bring more hoses into play.

The blaze, believed started Saturday by a careless hunter, was burning on a 6½-mile froont. It covered 2,000 acres and destroyed 4,000,000 feet of timber.

The provincial forests department closed all forests on Vancouver Island and the south coast of the mainland at midnight last night.

The closure, imposed because of the fire hazard, threw 15,000 loggers out of work for the second time this year. They had been back to work only nine days following a two-month lay-off brought on by the July 12 closure order.

BANDITS GET $200

Toronto, Sept. 20—(CP)—Two armed men and "a little guy who looked stupid" held up a suburban Swansea service station early today, escaped with more than $200 in cash and kidnapped one of the attendants.

One of the gunmen forced attendant Al Cox to drive him around the district in search of his two accomplices after they disappeared in the dense fog lying over Toronto this morning.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Sept. 20 (CP) —Synopsis: Wednesday night Calgary reported driving rain and snow with a temperature of 34, making Ontario's warm spell seem even more enjoyable.

A disturbance west of Lake Superior is moving steadily eastward spreading cloud and some rain ahead of it and will gradually eliminate our sunny skies but temperatures will continue warm for Friday with highs again reaching the 80-mark in south western Ontario and the mid-60s in northern regions.

Mutilated Body Of Infant Found in Hamilton

Hamilton, Sept. 20 — (CP) — Police searched the city today for the killer or killers of a newly-born baby whose mutilated body was found Wednesday in the east end of the city near an abandoned street railway track.

The body was found in a paper-wrapped cardboard box in shrubbery beside the Hamilton street railway spur line between Wilson and Cannon Streets. Fred Clarkson of Fruitland, made the discovery while walking along the tracks.

Doctors Again Visit King George

London, Sept. 20 (AP)—The King, suffering from a mysterious lung ailment, was visited by his doctors again today.

The physicians stayed at Buckingham Palace just under an hour. Last night they saw the King for nearly two hours.

No medical bulletin was forthcoming on either occasion.

The King's doctors issued a bulletin Tuesday night which said that "structural changes" had developed in one of his lungs.

Book Describes 'Flying Saucer' That Passed Scientific Test

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

New York, Sept. 20—(AP)—A "flying saucer" that passed a scientific test is described in "200 Miles Up," a book on conquest of the upper air.

The author is J. Gordon Vaeth, United States Navy aeronautical engineer. He does not claim the thing was a saucer, but he does not know what it was.

He describes the flying saucers which fooled thousands—namely the new skyhook balloons. The skyhooks even fooled aviators.

On April 24 Vaeth was one of the officers in charge of a skyhook balloon flight from White sands, N.M. Skyhooks are instrument-carrying balloons for observation at about 18 miles altitude.

Some distance from White Sands Charles B. Moore, Jr., set up a station to observe weather as an aid to the skyhook flight.

Moore sent up a balloon, watching it with a 25-power telescope. When he took a naked-eye look, he saw a white object which was not his balloon. He turned the telescope on it and saw an ellipsoid about 2½ times as long as it was wide. It was gleaming white. It did not have a metallic shine. Toward the underside, near the tail, the gleaming white became a lighter yellow.

The sky was cloudless. There was no vapor trail or exhaust from the thing, nor any noise of any kind.

Yet it was travelling too fast to get a hard, clear focus in the telescope to see details.

"It represents," Vaeth writes, "one of the best-substantiated and authentic unidentified object sightings on record."

Private Secretary To Labor Minister Calls the Shot

London, Sept. 20. (CP)—Intuition, not inside information, brought off a long-shot political double for Labor member Norman Dodds.

Dodds, who called the shot on the last two general elections, said today his latest effort was part hunch, part careful doping.

In a speech a month ago, Dodds predicted the next election would be Oct. 25, last night the date was announced—Oct. 25. Dodds also forecast the exact day of the Feb. 23, 1950, election.

"One thing I want to make clear," Dodds said. "Although I am parliamentary private secretary to the Labor minister, I had absolutely no inside information.

"It was just intuition—and a little thought.

"The next election was bound to come before another winter set in. The government, with its small majority, could not risk a sudden defeat."

NOT VALID GROUND

Toronto, Sept. 20—(CP)—Refusal of a tenant to sign a two-year lease is not a valid ground for eviction under the Ontario Leasehold Regulations, Louis Cecile, administrator of rent regulations for Ontario said today.

"The purpose of the two-year-lease regulation is to allow landlord and tenant to negotiate on an equal footing and endeavor to arrive at an agreement fair to both parties," said Mr. Cecile.

Sole Motive To Commit Perfect Murder

Nottingham, England, Sept. 20 (AP)—Herbert L. Mills, 19, was accused in court Wednesday of strangling a woman with the sole motive of committing a "perfect murder."

The victim was Mrs. Mabel Tattershaw, 47, mother of two. Her corpse was found in an orchard here Aug. 9, after she had been missing for six days.

Mills led police to the spot after they caught him in a telephone booth talking to the city editor of the "News of The World." The editor had kept him talking while an aide called the police on another line.

The prosecutor said Mills made a date with Mrs. Tattershaw Aug. 3, and choked her to death in the orchard.

He said Mills told police:

"I had always considered the possibility of the perfect murder. I was satisfied I had found a perfect victim. Here was my opportunity. No motive, no clues.

"I was very pleased. I think I did it rather well."

WILL BROADCAST GAMES

St. Catharines, Sept. 20 (CP) —The Chamber of Commerce is moving into the radio feld n a new way—as sponsor of broadcasts of 40 Junor O.H.A. hockey games of St. Catharines Teepees. Both home and away games will be covered. President James Rodger said this is the Chamber's first venture into the sports field via radio.

N. A. Council Pledges Extensive Program for Advancing Co-operation

Ottawa, Sept. 20 (CP)—The North Atlantic Council, brushing aside "vague and obscure" Russian peace appeals, pledged its 12 member nations today to consolidate their North Atlantic community under a three-barrelled program for advancing non-military co-operation.

Canada was named to a five-nation committee to recommend further steps which include "co-ordination and frequent consultation on foreign policy"—something Canada has been urging.

The 12 powers agreed "they will never reject any genuine move for peace but they will not be deflected from building up their defensive strength by mere empty words about peace."

The 500-word document, referred to sometimes as an "Ottawa declaration," emerged simply as "a statement...regarding the North Atlantic community."

It named a committee to consider and make recommendations to the council in three fields so as "to build up the inner strength" of the alliance.

It was greeted as the start of long-range planning to turn the pact into something deeper and broader than a mere military alliance.

These were the three fields for long-range spade work.

1. Co-ordination and frequent consultation on foreign policy, having particular regard to steps designed to promote peace.

2. Closer economic, financial and social co-operation, in order to promote and to ensure conditions of economic stability and well-being, both during and after the present period of the defence effort, within the North Atlantic Treaty organization or through other agencies.

3. Collaboration in the fields of culture and public information.

"In these and other ways the council will build up the inner strength of the North Atlantic community, without duplicating the work of other international organizations which promote the same objectives," the statement said.

County Council Takes No Action On Business Assessment Rebates

Matters pertaining to assessment were the chief topic of discussion by members of Hastings county council at the opening of their September session at the Shire Hall this morning. It is the first time in the history of the county that a September session has been held, members voting early in the year to hold the four sessions per year.

Council ratified a recommendation from the finance committee directing that each municipality in the county purchase its own assessment supplies.

It was pointed out by county clerk Eric Dennis and also by county treasurer Harry Harrison that supplies for the various municipalities may differ to some extent or possibly a different system of assessment and collectors rolls may be desired thus not making it feasible for the county to purchase the entire supplies.

Appraisal cards must necessarily be the same but each municipality should purchase its own assessment and collectors rolls that is best suited to its needs," Mr. Harrison said.

No Action Taken

Council took no action on a petition from Wellington county asking a revision in the Assessment Act which would allow municipalities to discontinue payment of rebates in business taxes to industries which qualify for part of the year. Under the act such businesses may apply for a rebate to business taxes for the portion of the year the business is closed. Cost of operating this portion of the act affects tourist resorts, cheese factories and canning factories.

Several of the councillors supported the resolution claiming that business rebates should not be allowed. They claimed additional work for municipal officials and were difficult to take into account when setting the tax rate for the year.

County Assessor Harrison disagreed, noting that the act was only "Anybody in the show business knows that if you can get a crowd you don't have to operate for a full year to make your money. The same thing applies to summer resorts," he said.

Support Cheese Factories

Farmer members of the council came to the support of cheese factories, however. Councillor Les McLaren of Tyendinaga said cheese factories had hardships enough at present without piling more on, while Reeve Elmer Wood of Huntingdon admitted that resorts may make their money in a hurry, but such was not the case with cheese. "If they are taxed any more the cheesemen will have to put them on their hands," he said.

Reeve Neil Neal of Deseronto said the principal of rebates was all wrong and he felt the same result would be accomplished through a change in assessment for such businesses. He noted that the cheese factories in his village operated only part of the year and that the rebates amounted to considerable money.

The county road committee was authorized to take any action necessary to speed up settlement to farmers for lands acquired for road purposes.

The decision authorizing the road committee to take action followed a letter to council from Claude Tucker of Stirling district who stated he had not yet received payment for land purchased by the county in 1949 for use in rebuilding of the development road from Stirling to Hoard's.

Not Isolated Installation

Reeve Clarke T. Rollins of Wollaston said this was not an isolated instance of delay in the county failing a complete payment for property used for road purposes. Such delay reflected back on the men, who in good faith, arranged for the easements, he said.

No action was taken with respect to increasing the cost of living bonus for jail employees to a maximum of $25 per month as followed. County jail employees are at present receiving $15 per month cost of living bonus.

County Treasurer Ross Bailey noted that the Provincial Government has hiked the jail employees and sets the salary which is paid by the county. The amount of the cost of living payment, however, is up to the county. The maximum allowable has been recently increased to $25 per month.

Request Deferred

A request for renovations in the judges' room off the main courtroom in the county court building was referred to next year's council, it being felt by the county had already this year spent considerable money for alterations and repairs at the courthouse.

In the future the county will be charged for Children's Aid Society children who are in hospital. Previously the CAS had assumed this cost, the clerk informed council.

At the commencement of the two-day session, Warden Jeffrey Coulter noted that the agenda was not expected to be long. However, some important matters were up for consideration.

He expressed regret that T.C. Graham, Reeve of Tweed village, would be unable to attend the council session due to illness. Mr. Graham had been ill for several weeks, he said.

Cheaper Pork In Retail Stores

(By The Canadian Press)

The housewife shying away from the butcher shop in recent months—for years—will move in more confidently today. Pork is cheaper.

The decline on the country's livestock markets, already being reflected in retail stores, has been under way about two weeks. The reason, as outlined by leading packers in near unison: a seasonal upsurge in hog marketings and consumers' resistance to high meat prices.

Hog prices in livestock markets across Canada have dropped by weight in the last two weeks as from $8.25 to $7.50 a hundredmore animals are coming to market in the east. The hog run in western Canada has not yet started, but western prices follow the pattern.

A Canadian Press survey showed the prevailing price now stands around $29 a hundredweight in most parts of Canada.

Many Military, Veteran Personnel Needed to Line Royal Route

Over one thousand representatives of the military and veterans' organizations will be available for special street duty during the Royal visit to Trenton on Oct. 5th, but many more will be needed, it was revealed at a special meeting held in the Trenton Street Armories last night.

The meeting called by Lieut.-Col. Max Porrit, MC, commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, who has been named to the co-ordination committee, drew representatives from veterans organizations in Marmora, Madoc, Stirling, Trenton, Belleville, Carrying Place, Wellington and Picton.

City representatives came from the ANAF and Canadian Legion branches as well as the RCAF Association Wing.

Also represented were Boy Scouts, Army cadets of Belleville, Picton and Trenton. Sea cadets from Belleville and Trenton.

The main purpose of the meeting was to co-ordinate plans on be in uniform.

how to line the four and one-half mile route along which the Royal procession will pass. Col. Porrit issued an urgent appeal to all veterans to assist in this "responsible and honored" job.

He pointed out that there is not sufficient military personnel available to carry out the job, and it resolved upon veterans, scouts, cadets, etc., to fill the necessary quota. It will take a large number to place one man every three feet on both sides of a 4 1-2 mile route.

Veterans and others were urged to report to their organizations as quickly as possible so that plans for the route-lining can be completed.

Those coming from Frankford, Carrying Place and Trenton will assemble in Trenton, but the remainder will rendezvous in Belleville from where they will move by convoy to the assembly point in Trenton.

Veterans will wear berets and medals while cadets, etc., will for some months and had undergone an operation in the spring. He marked his 63rd birthday in July.

Funeral service, under Masonic auspices, is being held at his late residence, Adolphustown, Friday afternoon. He will cross the ferry on his final trip as the cortege wends its way to Glenwood Cemetery, Picton.

Son of the late Robert McLeod and his wife, Annie Orr, he was born in Picton. As a young man he sailed on the lakes, serving as mate on the barge Algonquin. Later, he was a member of the Toronto police force. He built and operated a six-car ferry at the Glenora crossing. When the Ontario government established a ferry service there in 1934, he commanded the 'Quinte' and had charge of the ferry. He was widely known to the thousands who used the ferry and was a courteous and obliging official. He built his home on the Adolphustown road near the ferry in 1926. He was a member of the Prince Edward Lodge No. 18 A.F. & A.M.

Survivors are his wife, formerly Julia Watson, three sons, Robert, Jr., employed on the ferry, William and Chris who attend school in Napanee, three daughters, Margaret and Jessie, both at home, Alison, and Mrs. Ball, Cornwall, the latter by his first marriage.

Hastings County Woodlot Contest

The contest being sponsored by Hastings County Council to name the woodlot of the year award winner is reported by the secretary to be receiving good support from the farmers of Hastings county.

Ten entries were required in order that the contest would take place this year and to date double this number have been received.

The members of the County Council are backing this project with the hope that the selecting of the best managed woodlot will encourage others to take more interest in this important crop, which is produced on non-agricultural land.

Cash prizes are being offered, with $50 to the award winner, and two additional prizes of $30 each.

Although sufficient entries have been received, the agricultural and reforestation committee of the county council are insisted that as many as possible should enter their woodlots.

Judging will be carried out during the latter part of October with local men acting as judges. Entries are to be sent in to the Competition Secretary, Mr. W. E. Edwards, Box 299, Napanee, before September 30th. No entry form is required, but it is requested that the township, lot and concession number be included when entries are sent in.

LUCAS. — In loving memory of my dear wife and mother, Eva Lucas, who passed away September 20th, 1949.

Time heals a rose I will remember
There thoughts and wishes meet.

For the one I cannot greet.
Never said at the years departure
With memory lives within our hearts
Though the face we cannot see
The one we loved we will never forget.
That is within our hearts concealed.
—Sadly missed by daughter Betty and son-in-law Douglas. 8325

W.H. WRIGHT

He called himself "Lucky Wright," and he was. He turned down a $10-a-month farm job in 1907 and went west where he became fired with the talks of fortunes that could be made in minerals. Then, after a year in a Georgetown, Ont., butcher shop —he had been apprenticed to a butcher in England at the age of 14—he went into the northern Ontario mining country at the height of the Cobalt boom in 1909.

Break Came in 1911

His big break came in 1911. With his brother-in-law, Edward Hargreaves, he went shooting for rabbits at a break from the grind of prospecting for gold. He came across a "likely-looking vein". That was the start of the Wright-Hargreaves gold mine, among Canada's largest, a mine that produced millions of dollars worth of the yellow metal.

By 1916, a prospective millionaire, he had staked the Sylvanite mine, parts of the Lake Shore mine and a dozen other good prospects. But the First World War was on and the men who had served the King in South Africa, Ireland, India and Egypt enlisted with the Canadian forces. He served from 1916 until the Armistice.

Refused Promotion

Known in the army as the "millionaire private", he several times refused promotion and returned to Canada in 1919 to make his home at Haileybury, Ont., not far from the scene of his mining enterprises. In 1922 his home was destroyed by fire and he moved 200 miles south to Barrie the following year.

Here he lived simply with his only close relative, his sister, who had been widowed by the death of Mr. Wright's original partner. He never married. Most of his time in recent years was devoted to his horse-breeding establishment.

At the time of his purchase of the Globe and the Mail and Empire, he said:

"I have been a prospector, mine owner, soldier and horseman, but never before have I aspired to be a publisher. I have no politics myself and I intend to adopt an entirely independent editorial policy on public affairs in the Globe."

Mr. McCullagh was given a free rein in his handling of the newspaper which is listed as independent in its political support but which usually supports the Progressive Conservative party. Mr. McCullagh also is owner and publisher of the Toronto Telegram, an evening newspaper which he purchased in 1949.

AN UNSATISFACTORY CURE

Inflation robs people of the value of their savings, their incomes and their skills. In this way, it is a kind of fraud. Like other kinds of fraud, it benefits the few while cheating the many.

One authority in Great Britain thinks that he has the answer. He thinks that all wages, salaries, pensions, rents, et cetera should be linked to the cost of living. To impede inflation, he would keep the increases in income somewhat behind the increases in prices.

The effect of this plan, he believes, would be "that all would be cheated equally, whereas at present some are not cheated at all and others are expropriated."

His argument would appear to be that, as the value of money depreciated, everyone would get more of it, and get more of it in equal proportions.

This plan, it would appear on examination, has at least one glaring weakness. While it might help to equalize the hardships caused by inflation, it would do nothing to halt the inflation itself. The purchasing power of money would continue to decline.

We'll have to wait until someone thinks up another cure for inflation. That one won't do.

CONTROVERSY OVER PRICE CONTROL

Down in Windsor, Alderman Bill Riggs, a former resident of Belleville and a former employee of the Ontario and of the Intelligencer, has been advocating the imposition of price control by the federal government.

Advocacy of price control by Mr. Riggs is not surprising, as he is a prominent member of the C.C.F., and price control is one of the planks in that party's plpatform. Mr. Riggs is, in fact, a former C.C.F. member of the Ontario legislative assembly.

R. M. Harrison, columnist for the Windsor Daily Star, takes issue with Mr. Riggs, and defends the federal government's attitude, in the following words:

"The federal government's reluctance to impose price controls is largely based on the incontrovertible fact that you can't have price controls without wage controls. The two, automatically, must go together. And Ottawa doesn't propose to stick its noggin in a noose by dictating how much we shall be paid as well as how much we shall pay. That's the whole situation in a couple of nutshells. Price controls without wage controls — impossible."

THOSE QUEER OLD DAYS!

(Editorial in The Fort William Times-Journal)

Nowadays when the thirsty are served through government stores, and we have become accustomed to the orderly sale of beverages, the days of prohibition and the circumventions of the law that attended them take on a fantastic aspect.

This was brought out recently when a citizen was reminiscing about a man who used to be kind to his friends. He was a druggist with an otherwise good reputation, who winked at the law for a chosen few.

Up on a shelf, he had a bottle that bore the label, "Arsenic." When one of his pals came in the store with his tongue hanging out, he reached for the "Arsenic," poured it into a glass, added some flavoring, and then handed the medicine to his friend.

The "Arsenic," of course, was alcohol.

This story recalled the case of the salesman with a broken nose. It appears he had his nose broken by a fist in a pool room.

Previous to the nasal accident, the victim had peddled a large container of alcohol to a customer. However, while the customer paid for 25 gallons of the stuff, he didn't know that the salesman had gone to much trouble in fixing the said container. He had welded a one-gallon tin of alcohol to the top inside corner of the large container, filling the remaining 24 gallons with water.

When the customer poured, he got alcohol. That is, until the one gallon was used up. Then nothing came out. Puzzled, he opened the container — and found the water.

Then he went out to find the vendor — in the pool room.

TOO MANY NEW CHIEFS

(Fort William Times-Journal)

Being made an honorary Indian chief in Canada has been an honor highly appreciated by recipients for some time past. The ceremony is generally a colorful one, and because Indians as a race have a reputation for being cautious and deliberate in sizing the character of a paleface, their selection has been considered a mark of distinction.

It would be a pity if the conferring of a chieftainship were to become so common that the ceremony lost some of its importance. Fortunately at the Lakehead, the Indian band has spaced the honors far enough apart to avoid this possibility. But in the West and in the East, those responsible for the ceremonies have not been so wise.

Kentucky colonels have become so numerous, the title ceases to be impressive. That should not happen to honorary Indian chieftainships in Canada.

THE BUS RIDERS

He rides in his costly car
Where never the strangers are,
So the news he never discusses
With the people who crowd the buses.

He never gives up his seat
To a woman with weary feet;
Never shares in the evening swarming
Of the home-bound cue line forming.

Gay laughter he seldom hears;
Never wonders why the tears
The cheeks of a young girl
streaking,
Or why suddenly brakes are shrieking.

He is proud such a car to own.
In comfort he rides alone.
Some may think that a good life this is,
But, oh! There's so much he misses.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Statuary is one of the things we do not much go in for in Canadian cities and towns. There are a few in Quebec, some in Montreal, and, wherever they don't get in the way, or obstruct traffic, a handful in Toronto. In Ottawa and Orillia there are a couple of memorial statuary groups that make good picture postcards. But compared with, London, England, or any French or other European city, we might say the new world is statueless.

In Edinburgh, on one of the main intersections, is a huge classic statue of a fat man, announcing in the most un-Scottish fashion that "George III visited here." With the date. What a feat! What an astonishing thing to pause about, or to make anybody pause.

London is full of statues, some on foot, some on horses, some in dramatic attitudes of thought or anguish. Walking along the embankment the other evening, I passed a dozen statues, all of which were beautiful and decorative, but none of which had the power to halt me or anybody else to read the inscriptions. When I passed Westminster and went on into Great George St. and Great George Place, I came to the statue of George Canning. It must weigh ten tons of bronze and thirty tons of granite. In a doorway of a government building hard by, leaned a doorman.

I went up to him and asked "Who was George Canning?"

"I couldn't rightly say," said the doorman. "Somebody in the government, I expect."

Fine. That is the proper attitude towards statues. They are noble, they are fine. They add greatly to the decorative character of cities. They create perspective. They fill gaps. I am all for statues, so long as I don't have to know who the heck they are.

JURISTS LAMENT

Port Talbot, Wales (CP)—A leaking roof brought reminiscences from County Judge Temple Morris. "During the last ten years," he said, "I have presided at court with whooping cough, I've ridden to court in a hearse when my car broke down—and I am now, it seems, establishing a record by sitting under a waterfall."

SUBSTITUTE NEEDED

Castelderg, Tyrone, Ireland.—(CP)—A substitute minister had to be called when William Sproule and Cissie Patterson arrived for their wedding at the Presbyterian church here. The regular minister had married the week before and was still honeymooning.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

BABE IN HOLLYWOOD

I have been following the progress of the James Masons' daughter, Portland, aged two, with more than passing interest and a vague sense of alarm.

The interest dates back a few years to the time when Mr. Mason and I used to take regular morning walks along the embankment of the Thames in Chelsea. We did not go together. Mr. Mason had a lavish river flat down near Battersea Bridge. I, being in His Majesty's thing, happened to be billeted in a hovel nearby.

Most mornings I would pass the actor, who affected a costume consisting of a large knitted scarf tossed carelessly about the neck, a disreputable looking tweed jacket, brown corduroy trousers with baggy knees and brown suede shoes, a combination worn in Chelsea almost as a uniform. I, myself, wore a uniform.

These brief encounters gave me a kind of proprietory interest in Mr. Mason and naturally provided me with a small conversation piece. At this time James was making some outstanding films, having not yet been processed by the Hollywood manufacturing plants. I felt it an honor to share the Thames with him.

My interest waned somewhat when Mr. Mason began performing in a series of California corn feeds, but then, within a week, we both produced girl children. Or, rather, our wives did. And I was moved, in my maudlin way, to reflect on what a small world it is.

The Mason's tot was hardly out of the maternity ward before her life became, as it were, public property. She was, it seems, being brought up in a manner described as "progressive". That's where the alarm comes in.

A Busy Girl

The latest report on wee Portland, courtesy McCall's Magazine, is titled "The busy life of a two-year-old adult" and as the father of another busy two-year-old, being brought up in a most conventional manner, I find it mildly disturbing.

I note that Porty, as the kid is called, gets up and has breakfast at noon, is allowed to eat whatever she wants, spends several nights a week looking at movies with her talented parents, goes along with her folks to dinner parties (eating at the same table as the grown-up guests) and hits the crib at midnight, doubtless full of sophisticated talk and milk laced with bourbon. Cocktail parties are out because Porty has her nap at this time and will have to wait until she is four.

All of this is because the Masons "enjoy being with her and want her to have security of care by parents instead of nurses."

This sounds fine for the parents, as I know full well, being roused by an infant trumpet call at 6.30 a.m. each and every day of the week. I would like nothing better than a child that stays zippered up until noon. But certain other tiresome considerations enter into the life of a child.

The two-year-old adult who sleeps until noon is missing a full half day of sunshine, for one thing. The two-year-old adult who eats as she chooses is clearly not eating wisely. I wouldn't let a two-year-old dog eat as it chooses. Even on a budget considerably more limited than the Mason's we find it worthwhile to subscribe to a pretty careful diet, dull and old-fashioned as this may seem in Beverly Hills. I still believe stubbornly in spinach.

I cannot see that a kid's health or outlook is improved by sharing the nocturnal hours with her elders. A parent's love and a parent's care, I agree, are essential. But it has always seemed to me, dullard that I am, that these commodities should be administered on the child's time.

Night Life

The magazine article doesn't say so, but I fancy the Mason's social life is dwindling rapidly. I am occasionally exposed to the children of "progressive" parents, or those who believe that an infant has as much sense as they have, and there comes a time when the breaking point seems dangerously close.

Here, for example, we see little Porty after a dinner party at the Walter Wangers. The picture shows Joan Bennett offering the little girl a box which appears to contain cigars. (You don't suppose—oh, no, they couldn't be that progressive.)

Miss Bennett and the other guests visible in the picture seem to me to be wearing that slightly pained or clubbed look which comes over any group of adults when they have had—you should excuse the expression—a belly full of a moppet, however winsome.

A gathering of that kind, presumably even in Hollywood reaches a point where the cute antics and the "grown-up" behaviour of the progressive child begins to cast an anaesthetic over the party and everyone wonders when in God's name are the parents going to put the strange little beast to bed.

Porty, herself, appears to be a most appealing tyke, but pale, James, very pale. Kid needs a few regular hours and less of that gay social whirl that makes a girl of of two old before her time.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

YOURSELF, MYSELF—FRIEND

You are your best friend, and I am my best friend. This is something we rarely realize and rarely think about. Before leaving for my city home I spent many hours picking huckleberries from loaded bushes, the heaviest laden I had ever seen, and as I picked the sparkling black treasures from nature's earth I thought of Thoreau and what he had to say about huckleberries that he gathered, and thought things to himself, as I did.

It is very interesting to note how happy any of us may be if we will make friends with ourselves, and comune with ourselves as we work or relax, or just sit and think. I keep telling myself what a favored human being I am to be able to appreciate so much beauty that is ever about me. The most unhappy people I have known have been those who had no idea how to make friends out of themselves!

Yourself—myself—friend. We ought to give this a thought. We can correst ourselves, we can admonish and inspire ourselves—and it's all in the family, with no bitterness, no hard feelings—just friendlike. It's something to get along with yourself peaceably and contentedly. There are those who hate themselves at times, and that's when they make bad company for themselves and others.

Being friendly to that body of yours, and treating it kindly and considerately, creates in the mind and heart a happy atmosphere—and if you are such a person, you are glad to be alive, active, and appreciative toward all nature, all beauty, and all people.

It's a good thing to seek solitude quite often and talk things over with that self of yours. Give yourself an interview. Are you getting the most out of life, are you doing your best, are you contributing to the well-being and happiness of others? Every once in a while are you giving yourself away?

Over a lifetime we accumulate but a handful of genuine friends, so it's a good pain to make the best possible friend of yourself—you are the one human being who can give yourself a successful and happy life.

Personal Health Talks

SHAME, SHAME ON THIS DOCTOR

As a result of various assertions in my booklet (C V D, dealing with heart and artery troubles—for copy send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope) and in this column, to the effect that I would take digitalis, if at all, only in obedience to the order of a doctor in whom I had the greatest faith, there have come in the mail recently half a dozen letters from readers who chide me for my dangerous teaching. These readers seem to think that when the big shot at the best advertised clinic or the eminent specialist pronounces an opinion about a medical or health problem, that makes it so.

I did too, in the halcyon days when I was a one-horse-and-buggy doctor in Penn Yan, N.Y. But I was pretty young then. Sometimes I look over the suggestions, ideas, recipes or prescriptions of the well known doctors of that era, entered in the notebook I kept for the record, and wonder how they got away with it or why I took it all so seriously.

One reader, who, I imagine, may be mature, makes me feel like an irresponsible or naughty boy in need of discipline. She writes:

Having followed your column for years we had come to regard you as...but your statement that digitalis is of no value is a great disappointment... only a year ago the foremost heart specialist, Dr. ———, prescribed digitalis for my husband and told him to keep on taking it for the rest of his life..

I'm sorry, Ma'am, that our long asosciation had to come to such an unhappy end, but I still say I doubt that digitalis does any real good and I'm sure it does a good deal of harm.

In taking digitalis away from the poor deluded invalid or near-invalid who thinks it keeps his heart going I am not without compassion. I offer a substitute which I believe may do a lot of good and in any circumstance can do no harm, namely, the only real heart tonic we have, an optimal daily ration of vitamin B complex. Optimal daily ration means three or four times the minimal daily ration which nutrition authorities consider essential to prevent manifestations of nutritional deficiency disease.

One of the manifestations of American beriberi, due to inadequate intake of vitamin B complex through the years, is weak heart—and I'd rather not repeat the signs and symptoms which point to weak heart. If you wish to learn about this in a wholesome way read the booklet C V D, about heart and artery troubles—for copy send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope..

As for the foremost heart specialist, and other members of the medcial profession who cultivate in the minds of their patients the belief or fear that the heart will cease to function if the regular dose of digitalis or other drug is not forthcoming, I say these three words:

Shame, shame, shame!

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Milk is Good Food

As a consistent and, we think, very influential advocate of more liberal use of milk in the American diet, you may be interested in the remarkable statement italicized in the ad inclosed. We're in the dairy products business but we question the wisdom of such exaggeration. (Signed)

Answer—The italicized statement is as follows: One quart of milk provides half your daily food requirements. The author of that whopper should be sentenced to 30 days confinement to an exclusive milk diet—two quarts a day, 1300 calories. He'd be well thinned down by the time he had served his sentence.

Olive Oil

Husband, 79, has pains off and on in right side. Neighbor suggested he take olive oil, spoonful after each meal. He did so, and glad to say he doesn't have the pains any more. Would it be all right for him to continue to take the olive oil, and if so, for how long? (Mrs. E. M. C.)

Answer—It is harmless. He may safely take it from now till the cows come home. Mind, I do not advise anyone to take any kind of oil for any such pains or for bellyache.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

PEACE VS. GLORY

We hear a great deal today about the blessings of a peaceful mind. We are urged to cultivate a peaceful spirit within us and in so doing to learn the real meaning of life.

There is much Scriptural support for this position. Jesus constantly dwelt on the beauties of peace. He said to his disciples, "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you." He himself was called the Prince of Peace.

But this same Jesus declared that He came not to bring peace but a sword. There were many times when Jesus dwelt upon the necessity for conflict—not conflict with persons but conflict with our own selfish propensities. Jesus was not a peace-at-any-price man. He held that goodness and an implicit trust in the power and love of God were matters of such importance that peace or anything else must be thrust aside that men might gain these priceless possessions.

A great Spanish philosopher has written: "May God deny you peace and give you glory."

Many of us find it impossible to live righteous lives without much conflict. Others have agonizing intellectual difficulties before they can arrive at anything like a satisfactory knowledge of truth. We have to brush aside peace of mind that we may possess things vastly more precious than peace of mind. We give up peace and gain glory.

Sgt. Cecil Day, Middleton Park, Back Home After Japan Visit

Trenton. (Special.) — Veteran of six months on the R.C.A.F. airlift between Canada and Japan, Sgt. Cecil Day, of Middleton Park, returned home last week. Sgt. Day spent most of his time at the island airbase of Shemya, one of the Aleutians chain between the North Pacific and the Bering Sea.

Shemya, with its 10,000-foot runways, was a stopping-off place for four-motored C-54s shuttling wounded and supplies to McCord Field in Washington from Tokyo.

The desolate, windswept island, according to Sgt. Day, was enveloped in bad weather the most of the time. The population fortified to armed service personnel, 100 American civilians and 11 R.C.A.F. maintenance men.

During his stay, Sgt. Day was granted four days' leave in Japan. There he found the Nipponese people very friendly and honest with tourists.

On one occasion, Sgt. Day lost his wallet. The next morning it was returned to him, with apologies, by a Japanese.

Store prices impressed Sgt. Day. He found articles in every way resembling North American designs selling at figures that seemed ridiculously low to him. Cigarettes at the PX stores retailed to armed service personnel at eight cents a package. Officers were allowed Canadian Club liquor for $1.70 a bottle. Nippon beer was "very tasty", reported Sgt. Day.

Sgt. Day is the son of Mrs. Maude Day, 94 Cedar Street, Belleville, and the late Mr. Harry Day.

Man-Eating Tigers Terrify Workers In Malayan Jungle

By LIONEL HUDSON

Singapore. (Reuters) — Man-eating tigers are a growing menace today in Malaya, where the bulk of the population is already living in daily fear of communist terrorists.

Thriving, ferocious families of tigers are on the prowl and they are becoming bolder, according to the latest up- country reports.

Malaya's tigers have multiplied rapidly during the last ten years seemed ridiculously low to him. Cigarettes at the PX stores retailed to armed service personnel at eight cents a package. Officers were allowed Canadian Club liquor for $1.70 a bottle. Nippon beer was "very tasty", reported Sgt. Day.

Sgt. Day is the son of Mrs. Maude Day, 94 Cedar Street, Belleville, and the late Mr. Harry Day.

while people have been pre-occupied first with an invasion, then with energy occupation, and now with armed insurrection.

Hunting the tigers has become foolhardy. There are too many communists in the jungle with guns waiting to take a shot at the hunter.

The olive-green jungle which covers nine-tenths of Malaya has become safe for wild animals only.

Game authorities say that tigers here have rarely had it so good. There were never more unmolested wild pig and deer on the hoof in the jungle for the tigers. Well-fed cats have larger litters.

The worst tiger menace is on the sparsely-populated east coast area. So far this year at least 20 civilians have been killed by tigers in Trengganu, a state lying inland from Malaya's east coast, near the Thailand border.

This is more than the total number of civilians killed by guerrillas in Pahang, Trengganu and Kelantan in the same period.

Lurk Near Plantations

Not long ago the big cats were content to snatch dogs and goats from village outskirts. Recently, there have been numerous reports of them lurking near rubber plantations, slinking through the undergrowth to pounce on the rubber tappers when they reach the rows of rubber trees closest to the edge of the jungle. Some tappers, never knowing as they work among their trees at dawn whether they are being stalked by a man-eater, now refuse to go out alone.

As one planter remarked: "The tappers can usually pay off bandits, but tigers do not need protecting money."

Plus Vendergon, a seasoned hunter on the east coast, attributed the spate of killings by tigers to the fact that security force patrols and guerrillas may have shot and wounded tigers in the jungle.

When a tiger has once been wounded, he said, it will attack any man on sight even after the wound has healed.

But an experienced British army guerrilla hunter stated that tiger on patrol would not usually dare to shoot at jungle animals for fear of giving away their position to the enemy. And the guerrillas are believed to be so short of ammunition that they would be unlikely to waste bullets on tigers except in self-defence.

Airmen Prepare For Royal Visit

Trenton. (Special)—Expecting 900 visiting officers and men from commands all across Canada, personnel at the Trenton Air Station are busy these days preparing for the royal visit on October 5.

First of the 200 standards flying the air force insignes with the rondel of a blue field went into place earlier this week. They will line the route on both sides from the town limits to the main gate.

At the same time, preparations are under way to decorate No. 8 hangar on the south side as a reception hall in the event the weather is bad. It has been announced that the Princess and Prince will be introduced to various R.C.A.F. personnel and civilian dignitaries in the officers' mess building.

Trenton. (Special)—Injured in a parachute drop in Western Canada, Freddie Genereaux, is home in Trenton on ten days' leave. Chutist Genereaux suffered a damaged leg on a qualifying jump and spent several days in hospital at Rivers, Man., before his release. And unexpected trip home.

Two Farmers Swindled Out Of $1248.50

Stouffville, Ont., Sept. 20 (CP) — Tricked into a long explained trance by two confidence men who claimed to be eye doctors, two farmers near here were swindled out of $1,248.50.

The farmers, Edward Lewis, 78, and his son Bruce, 45, said today they don't know how it was done.

The con men offered to cure Bruce's weak eyesight. One put a sort of prism in front of Bruce's eyes.

"I looked through it and became a little dizzy," said Bruce. "I can't remember too much after that."

Edward also looked through the glass and became "kind of woozy."

Bruce drove into Stouffville, took $1,248.50 from the bank and paid the men. They departed.

When he returned home and showed his father the bill, Provincial Police were called in.

"If somebody told me that a trick like that could be pulled on us I would have told him he was crazy," said the father. "But it happened."

Dr. Bruels Addresses King George Home, School Association

The initial meeting of King George Home and School Association was held last Monday evening, with the president presiding and Mrs. R. Waite at the piano. A most gratifying sight was that of new parent members who came in response to the invitation sent out.

Mr. Hall opened the meeting and discussed plans for the curriculum of the coming year, after which the new principal, Mr. Cousins, was introduced to the members of the Club, who in turn introduced the new teachers who have joined the staff of King George School, paying out the appreciation of the teachers in meeting the parents and being able to talk over individual problems with them.

During the course of the business of the evening, it was decided that Mrs. Brown, who had previously been appointed to the Central committee, be relieved of her duties in this respect, and appointed as convenor of the program committee. Mrs. Babcock was appointed to the Central committee in place of Mrs. Brown.

Another point of interest was the decision that the Home and School Association purchase a radio, to be given as a class reward for attendance, rather than the money award. Miss Heasman's class won the class award for the coming month.

It was also suggested that a Sick committee be set up. Mrs. Rompen, Mrs. Durant and Mrs. DePaul volunteered their time to this committee.

Dr. Bruels, of the Department of Health, gave an interesting address on the health unit being set up in the city, and at the close of his talk he asked for any suggestions that might be given to aid in the setting up of the new health unit, pointing out that the association had the opportunity to make this unit in Belleville, a modern and efficient organization for the benefit of all persons, in this rapidly growing city.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting by the committee.

WEDDINGS

WERDEN—SHARPE

Baskets of gladioli and ferns formed the setting for a lovely autumn wedding ceremony at Deseronto United Church, Saturday afternoon, September 15, when Alice Donna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sharpe, Belleville, became the bride of Robert Santoro, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Werden, Bloomfield.

The Rev. William H. Clarke, a life-long friend and neighbor of the bride, officiated. Mr. Knight, organist of the Anglican Church, Deseronto, played conventional wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Ronald Sharpe, of Belleville, was gowned in floor-length white sheer with portrait neckline, seed pearl trimmed yoke, fitted bodice long bishop sleeves, tying at wrist and full skirt. A fingertip embroidered tulle veil fell from a tiara encrusted with seed pearls. She carried a petal bouquet of pink gladioli.

The bridesmaid, Miss Elsie Knight, wore a floor-length frock of pink taffeta with sweetheart neckline, halo headdress, matching skirts and carried a petal bouquet of cream gladioli.

Mr. Jack Sharpe, Belleville, brother of the bride, was groomsman. The ushers were Messrs. Carl Ainsworth, Peterborough, brother-in-law of the bride, and Ronald Bury, Amsterdam, cousin of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Sharpe chose a dress of flowered silk, with harmonizing corsage, for her daughter's wedding. The groom's mother wore a dress of wine faille and corsage of Talisman roses.

The reception for sixty guests was held in the church parlors which were tastefully decorated in pink and white. The bride's table was centred with a beautiful tiered wedding cake flanked by candelabra. Five of the bride's girl friends the Misses Barbara Dawson, Marion Aylsworth, Joan Church, Mary Breen and Jacqueline Delantey served.

Rev. T. F. Towersey, pastor of the church, proposed a toast to the bride, to which the groom responded.

Mrs. A. Cole, grandmother of the bride, was the recipient of the bridal bouquet.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a chest of silver, to the groomsman a wallet; to the ushers, belts. The bride's gift to her bridesmaid, a locket lamp and to the girls who served, glamor pins.

Mr. and Mrs. Werden left by motor for a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and other points. For travelling the bride wore a powder blue gabardine suit with navy and white accessories and corsage of Sweetheart roses. On their return they will reside at Deep River, Ont.

Guests were present from Ogdensburg, Toronto, Peterborough, Belleville, Napanee, Picton and Bloomfield.

Prior to her marriage the bride was honored by her Deseronto friends at a shower when they presented her with a matched set of travelling bags. She was also honored by her Belleville girl friends, who tendered her a cup and saucer shower, and by her fellow workers of the lock room of Belleville Sargent, who made her the gift of a silver cream, sugar and tray set.

ELLIOTT—PRITCHARD

St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling, was the scene of a pretty autumn wedding on Saturday, September 8, at 2:30 p.m., when Ila Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Pritchard, Stirling, became the bride of William Mackay Elliott, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Elliott, Belleville. Rev. Herbert C. Secker, officiated.

Mrs. Harry Morrow rendered the traditional wedding music and Mr. William Reynolds sang "Because", and "The Lord's Prayer".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white bouffant tulle with lace bertha collar. Her fingertip veil of French tulle illusion was held by a bandeau of braided tulle and seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Alton Cass, of London, was matron of honor, wearing a gown of apple green taffeta and lace, with matching Juliet cap. She carried a nosegay of peach gladioli petals, mauve asters and yellow roses.

Miss Beth Stephens, of Toronto, cousin of the bride, was flower girl, wearing yellow taffeta and net with a bandeau of yellow rosebuds. She carried a nosegay of yellow gladioli petals, mauve asters and yellow roses.

Mr. Earle Elliott, of Belleville, brother of the bridegroom was groomsman, and Mr. Morley Pritchard, of Merrifton, brother of the bride, and Mr. Borden Elliott, of Deseronto, brother of the groom, were ushers.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother received in a gown of clarion color crepe with black accessories and corsage of yellow roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing navy sheer gown with navy accessories and corsage of pink roses.

For travelling through the Adirondacks and Quebec, the bride chose a grey suit with grey accessories and corsage of yellow mums. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott will reside in Belleville.

Guests were present from Toronto, London, Minaco, Oshawa, Wellington, Belleville, Merrifton, Picton and Deseronto.

Mr., Mrs. Lazier Feted by Friends At Shannonville

Shannonville—A very enjoyable evening was spent at the Shannonville hall last Friday evening, when friends of Shannonville and Melrose gathered to honor Mr. and Mrs. Orley Lazier, who were married recently.

The evening was spent in dancing to music supplied to McEvoy's orchestra. After the dancing, refreshments were served.

On behalf of the gathering, Mr. George Blatherwick presented a purse of money to Mr. and Mrs. Lazier. They were also the recipients of other gifts.

Fashion Flashes

DO YOU LIKE ostrich feathers? If you do, please not that some of the nicest of the new hats use this trimming effectively. Two luxurious, over-size ostrich plumes curled with green-bronze fashion an evening hat that tilts to one side and is worn with a sequin-spattered mantilla veil.

COMING IN for a lot of attention is brown, for all types of clothes. Rust brown silk taffeta makes a handsome afternoon dress, its slim skirt marked by flying panels at either side. The deep square neckline is finished at one corner with a tab held by a jeweled button.

A GOOD LOOK at the order books of store buyers would reveal heavy purchases of the fitted coat, a style well handled this year. The heavy textures, such as poodle cloth, call for suave handling and styling. Purple poodle cloth, very curly and bulky, makes a trim, figure-fitting coat with wide, notched revers above a snug, three-button closing. A button holds the convertable cuffs—smart when worn long and pointed or turned back and flared.

ENTER black velvet for a group of very attractive after-dark costumes. A strapless black velvet dress has a net-lined skirt which stands out in full, rippling effect. It is embroidered with sequins by the hips and has a taffeta stole to match its slip.

Bush Voyage by Stephen Fennimore.

This is the continuation of the adventures of Martin and Penny which started in Bush Holiday. These books are interesting for their setting. They have a very good description of the interior of Australia. Grades 6-8.

Little Wild Honker by Dorothy Hogner.

This is a new picture book. The Little Wild Honker is a Gray Goose of Canada that was hatched on Bronx River. The illustrations are delicate and like.

Meetinghouse Bay by Henry Patterson.

The young lad in this very good yarn started out life with very few advantages. He was sleeping in a freight yard one night when a smooth speaking stranger asked him if he would like to work on a boat. The boat is a beautiful sleek power launch and their trips are along the Maine coast. There are a few things that do not add up. There are a few rooms he is not allowed to enter. The tale is a sea yarn full of suspense with a delicate suggestion of romance near the end. Grades 7 up.

The Peculiar Miss Pickett by Nancy Julian.

Miss Pickett is a baby sitter with a rare quality. If she takes off her glasses and looks at anything, strange and fascinating things result. For instance she had the kitchen kettle singing "Dixie". Another night she caught a burglar's hands in the silverware drawer just by looking at the drawer. In fact the happenings in this book are almost unbelievable. Grade 5.

When the Root Children Woke Up by Fish and Offers.

This is a new edition of a beautiful picture book. The pictures of Good Mother Earth and all the little root children are a delight. When the spring comes the root children have to make their spring finery and also have to sponge and brush up the insects. They are very busy.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A divorced woman is in danger of making a second mistake

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am the mother of two children, am 30 years old and have been divorced for five years.

For the past four years, I've been going with a man of 36 who has never been married before, and we have become engaged. But the trouble is that we are forever arguing and getting mad at each other. Then we don't see each other for days, sometimes weeks, at a time. When we are mad at each other, we each go out with other people. When we make up, and he tells me about having gone out with others, I get mad all over again because I am jealous, and it starts another argument between us. He isn't jealous of me, though, and doesn't get mad about my going with others. Sometimes I think a lot of the trouble comes because after going with him awhile, I suddenly get tired of him and pick a fight.

How would you advise me?

Mary C.

Dear Mary C:

A woman of 30 who has been married certainly ought to have learned enough about men and women to have common sense about a situation like this.

Didn't your marriage teach you anything? Can it really be possible you don't realize that if you and this man argue and quarrel now, you would have a very stormy time of it if you were husband and wife? Certain married couples who normally get on very happily together find each other very trying occasionally. What chance of happiness would you two have, when you're continually getting mad at each other already? You even know that you repeatedly tire of this man. How tired will you have to get before you could be convinced that you wouldn't want him as a husband?

Come in, your senses, Mary! How many divorces do you want? And incidentally, if you ever expect to be happily married, you'd better do something about this jealousy of yours. You won't get far, if you don't.

She seared her young man away

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16, and in love with a boy who is 20. I have been going with him off and on for about six months, and finally I told him how I feel about him. After that, I didn't see much of him any more, and when I did see him, he acted as though he didn't care anything about me. Finally he just stopped coming to see me.

Then I started going out with other boys, not because I wanted to, but to show him I could get others. I thought that when he found out, he would come back, but he didn't. I hear he isn't going with any other girl, and I don't want to go with other boys, either. What can I do about it?

R. D.

Dear R.D.:

You certainly scared that young man off, didn't you? Now you know—I hope—that it's very poor technique for a girl to come right out and tell a chap she's crazy about him. If he's not that interested himself, there's no quicker way to make him take off in a hurry.

There's nothing you can do about it but be smarter next time. Do you want to chase a man who has given you an unmistakable brush-off? And anyhow, it's not likely he would have kept on going with you indefinitely, as twenty is too old for sixteen. Keep on going with those other boys, who are probably nearer your own age, and be more discreet about revealing your feelings.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Two introduction-questions from a teenager

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am sixteen years old, and I have two questions concerning introduction that are bothering me.

1. How should I introduce my mother to one of my girl friends?

2. How should I introduce my father to a boy schoolmate?

Janet

1. May I tell you first that your question is worded incorrectly? You introduce anyone to your mother. . . . not your mother to, for instance, a girl friend. That is mention your mother first in the introduction. A correct form for your introduction: "Mother, this is Margaret Allen", or "Mother, here is Margaret Allen, who is in my Sunday School class".

2. And your father is not introduced to a boy . . . the boy is introduced to your father. Mention your father first in the introduction. Like this, for instance: "Father, this is Tommy Robinson".

When it's a mistake to "Date" in for a While"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I drop in to see a friend and she says she must leave in say fifteen minutes, but very cordially invites me in for that length of time, should I accept her invitation or should I leave at once? I feel that perhaps if I don't accept her invitation to come in for the fifteen minutes she mentions, she may think I'm offended by her telling me she must leave.

Myra S.

It's a mistake, I think, for a visitor to come in at all when it is perfectly obvious that her call is inconvenient. In probably ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the one called-on is making a special effort to be polite by quickly mentioning a period of time before her necessary departure. Undoubtedly she hasn't the fifteen minutes to spare . . . except in a special effort toward courtesy.

About cutting a serving of meat

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct to cut a serving of meat into mouthfuls before starting to eat it?

Jane T.

No . . . not after nursery days! Cut one piece (a small mouthful of meat at a time, as you are ready to eat it.

Today considered proper to omit reason for regretting invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle a discussion, will you please answer this question: When one regrets a formal invitation (by a formal reply, of course), is it necessary to give a reason for regretting the invitation? "A" says this is the polite thing to do. "B" says it is not necessary. Who is right?

. . . A and B

Both "A" and "B" are right. When one writes a regret for a formal invitation, it is indeed "polite" (as "A" says) to give a reason for regretting. But "B" is right too, for in today's social usage it is not considered "necessary" to give a reason (or excuse) for not being able to accept the invitation. The usual formal form is:

Mr. and Mrs. John Smith regret that they are unable to accept the very kind invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Robinson for Tuesday, the first of October

FRANKFORD

Lions Club to Sponsor Tag Day for Blind

Frankford—On Saturday, September 22nd, the Frankford Lions Club will sponsor the annual tag day for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. On that day, a girl will call at your home to ask you to help this worthy organization. When she calls, greet her cordially, and give her whatever donation you can afford. The girls will be making the rounds in both Trenton and Frankford, and it is hoped that the club will have better results than a year ago, at which time the district fell far behind other years.

12,000 Blind Helped

The C.N.I.B. has been helping over 12,000 blind Canadians for many years, as well as taking steps to prevent future blindness among others who have suffered accident or eye afflictions of some sort. The C.N.I.B. is instrumental in teaching the blind trades at which they can earn a comfortable living. Through their efforts, many items which are required by the unfortunate friends could not possibly be obtained, except for the substantial reductions in price which the C.N.I.B. can provide. Braille books, talking books (these are records of books), white canes and games, are available to the blind through the C.N.I.B. at prices which they can afford, and in many cases, free of charge. Social services, arrangements for guest lags, in large centers, and many, many other services are rendered by this organization, which goes quietly on its way, without the publicity and advertising which many other organizations doing service work receive.

This Saturday, when the girl calls at your door for a donation to the blind, remember the neighbor who is less fortunate and give generously.

Over 30 members of the Frankford United church choir enjoyed a chicken social Friday evening along the Murray Canal, opposite Twelve O'clock Point. Two Americans and Canadian Guide Feared Drowned on Lake Huron Fishing Trip

Sudbury, Sept. 20 (CP) —An Ohio couple and a Canadian guide are believed to have been drowned Tuesday in an autumn gale that overturned a small boat in which they set out for a fishing trip in Lake Huron near the eastern end of Manitoulin Island.

A Provincial Police search plane late yesterday spotted two bodies, wearing life preservers, in shallow water near the eastern shore of Squaw Island, about 20 miles east of Manitoulin. Officers said a third body might be caught under the capsized boat, which they spotted on the other side of Squaw Island.

From the air, they could not those of the Americans, a Dr. and Mrs. Gibson from Ohio, or East Goulding, guide and operator of a tourist camp near Manitowaning on the eastern end of Manitoulin.

Two officers, Cpl. Louis Needham and Constable G. Hall were assigned to obtain a boat at Killarney on the mainland, about 20 miles from Squaw Island, and go back to Squaw Island to investigate.

The trio left Goulding's tourist camp Tuesday morning and an Indian near their home base Squaw Island about noon that day. During the afternoon, strong winds sprang up. When the fishing party did not return to the tourist camp that night, police were notified and a plane was sent yesterday from Sudbury, 80 miles to the northeast.

The Americans went to Goulding's camp only a few days ago for fishing. Police said it would probably be necessary to break into the visitors' automobile to ascertain their full name and home address.

Kitchen Knife Found May Have Been Weapon Used

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Sept. 20 (CP)—The crown has presented evidence at the murder trial of Wasyl Krawiec, 24, that Jonas Norkus, 28, could have been fatally stabbed shortly before his body was found July 22 on the porch of a lonely railway section house in the bush 130 miles north of here. The trial, which started Tuesday, is continuing.

Dr. E. S. Pentland, police pathologist, testified yesterday that a 10-inch kitchen knife found in the Agawa River near the section house was of a size and shape "quite consistent" with a wound in Norkus' chest. He said the man, a railway worker, died after a knife pierced his heart.

Dr. Peter Sharpe, provincial pathologist, said stains on the kitchen knife were human blood. He said he also found blood-stains on the pockets of trousers Krawiec wore at the time of his arrest, as well as on several articles of clothing scattered through the Algoma district bush around the section house.

Provincial Constable Orville Waito of Wawa described the scene at the Agawa section house on morning after Norkus' death.

Man Found Dead

"I found Norkus dead, lying in a big pool of blood on the floor of the section house," Constable Waito said. "I found Krawiec listening to a radio in the house, which was a shambles. Also there was Mrs. Adele Vinslovas and her two young children and three railway workers. One of the workers was lifting Mrs. Vinslovas to a chesterfield. She had apparently fainted and the men were bathing her forehead with a rag and cold water."

Constable Waito said that later when he asked what had happened, both Mrs. Vinslovas and Krawiec jumped up at the same time, telling almost identical stories.

Drinking Heavily

Krawiec told me that Norkus had been drinking heavily at a party in the house which was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Vinslovas (Mr. Vinslovas was away at the time of the party) and Krawiec. Norkus was a visitor at the house and a friend of the Vinslovas family.

Krawiec said that Norkus had struck him in the face following an argument and that Norkus attempted to take Mrs. Vinslovas out of the house but she refused. He said Norkus then went out of the house by himself and returned holding his chest and running out through the back door.

Constable Waito then told of talking to Mrs. Vinslovas.

She told me that Norkus tried to make love to her and that he had a wild look in his eyes. She said she refused to go."

LEAVES FOR GERMANY

New York, Sept. 20—(AP)—John J. McCloy, United States High Commissioner for Germany, left by plane for that country yesterday after a two-week vacation.

Private Interests Eager to Secure Rights to Develop

Washington, Sept. 20 (AP) — Senator Herbert Lehman (Dem.-Lib. N.Y.) said today President Truman is willing to let New York State eventually administer Niagara river power under terms of legislation introduced by himself and Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. (Dem.-Lib. N.Y.).

The Lehman - Roosevelt bill, one of three under consideration by a House of Representatives Public Works sub-committee, would authorize re-development of the river to approximately triple the present power yield.

Lehman, describing the Niagara project as a "bonanza" said private interests are "eager" to take the development out of the public domain.

"They," said Lehman referring to the private interests, "are willing and eager to pay all the costs, including the cost of remedial works (to preserve the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls).

"They know it is a good thing. They know it is self-liquidating, and could be a source of handsome profit."

Representative William E. Miller (Rep., N.Y.) author of one of the other bills before the committee, proposes that it be undertaken by private enterprise. He contends that private interests can undertake the estimated $300,000,000 development "most efficiently and most economically."

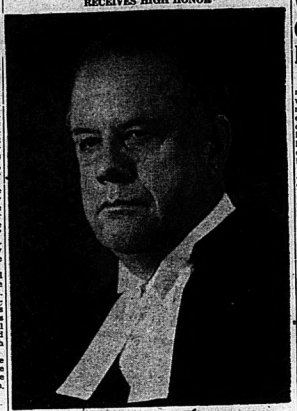
Flyer Made Many Tours but Could Not See Road Fork

Toronto, Sept. 20.—(CP)—Kenneth Hartleman of Kitchener made an operational tours over Germany, many as a pathfinder navigator. But he did not see a fork in the road in Wellesley township near Kitchener.

This point was brought out Wednesday during the hearing of an appeal by the township against the award to Hartleman of $3,300 damages as the result of an accident. The township was held to be negligent because a sign marking the fork in the road had been carried away in a previous accident.

The Ontario Court of Appeal Wednesday reserved judgment on the township's appeal after J. H. Amyo, counsel for the township, argued that a man with Hartleman's eyes and his experience should have been able to spot a fork in the road without a sign.

Red Ambassador To Iran Leaving For Moscow



Tehran, Sept. 20 (AP) —Russia's ambassador to Iran is leaving by plane Saturday for talks in Moscow, a government spokesman said today.

Speculation stirred here immediately on what move Iran's northern neighbor is planning in the oil crisis that has brought Iranian politics to a crucial stage.

The ambassador, Ivan Sadchikov, is dean of the diplomatic corps. He visited Foreign Minister Bagher Kazemi yesterday and plans to see Premier Mohammed Mossadegh today, the spokesman said.

Iran's small communist party, the Tudeh, has been lying low in the oil dispute. It has supported oil nationalization and its up-setting effect on Iran's shaky economy, but it has also assured Mossadegh of being too moderate in his attitude toward the British.

RECEIVES HIGH HONOR

Mr. F. L. Ward, K.C., Picton, has been elected a Bencher of the Law Society of Upper Canada. This is one of the highest honors which can be bestowed on any lawyer in the Province of Ontario. Out of the 3,500 lawyers in the province, 30 lawyers are elected each five years as Benchers to govern the Law Society of Upper Canada. Every lawyer so nominated is eligible for election. So far as is known, this is the first time that any lawyer from Prince Edward County has been elected to this high office.

London Stocks Begin to Climb At Election News

London, Sept. 20 (Reuters) — Announcement of the general election date released a previously restrained industrial share market today and prices bounded higher in active trading.

Gains of one to three shillings were registered by leading issues with buyers seizing on the hope that the proposed dividend limitation will soon be extinct.

All groups participated in the upswing but later reacted slightly on profit-taking.

Oils, rubbers and tins also showed useful gains although these were more the result of marking up than actual business.

There was a slump in prices of recently active British bonds. Holders hastened to sell in order to join the boom in other sections.

British government funds climbed slowly higher in a moderate turnover. There was a firm tone to minings with coppers a particularly good market.

OXYGEN TENT EXPLODES

Boston, Sept. 20—(AP) — An oxygen tent exploded yesterday when Arthur Peltier, 57, lighted a cigarette while being treated for a lung condition. He was killed in the blast.

Witnesses Tell Of Finding Man's Body

Windsor, Sept. 20 (CP) —The murder trial of George Liska went into its second day Wednesday with nine crown witnesses telling the jury of the finding of the dead body of Mike Lesko in the backyard of his Drouillard home last June 8, and the subsequent discovery of a .32 pistol in a yard near the scene.

The trial of Liska, charged with the murder of Lesko, began Tuesday.

Wednesday, witnesses were mostly police called to the Lesko house by neighbors shortly after the shooting.

Police told of finding the body lying on a boardwalk in the back yard of the Lesko home, and finding two bullet holes in the siding of the small enclosed porch at the rear of the house.

Star reporter Ron Robertson told the court he found the gun lying in a backyard, about 300 feet down the alley from the scene of the shooting. He said he informed police of the find and watched a police photographer take pictures of the gun before it was moved. The trial is continuing.

Iceland Small But Important To Atlantic Pact Countries; Has Many Reds to Watch

By HAROLD MORRISON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 20.—(CP)— The delegate saying the least and listening the most at the North Atlantic Council meetings here is a quiet, grey-haired man whose home land might be considered a plum to Russian military aggression.

Bjarni Benedickisson, Iceland's 43-year-old foreign and justice minister, represents the smallest of the North Atlantic Pact's 12 powers.

Yet Iceland, small as it is, has immense strategic importance to Canada and other Atlantic Pact countries.

Fearful of Reds

Isolated by the Atlantic, and with a population of only 140,000 Iceland could fall easy prey to any communist plot to swoop down from the north and grab it as a base of operations against the Atlantic community.

With this fear hovering over it, Iceland has become one of the staunchest of the Atlantic Pact's members, though because of its size and strength, it can offer little in the way of men and materials and must rely on other members for defence support.

Unlike Canada, which has no communist members of parliament, Iceland's problem is aggravated by the fact that 20 per cent of her electorate vote for the reds.

Nine communist members sit in Iceland's 52-member parliament at Reykjavik, Iceland's capital and one of the world's oldest parliaments. The Independent or Conservative party, to which Mr. Bennedikisson belongs, has 19—just two more than the second largest group, the Progressive (farmer) party.

Double Threat

These are problems which N.A.T.O. must consider in its grand military strategy, Iceland seeks closer economic threat — from co-operation with its neighbors to meet the double communist within and without—by building up trade and getting more markets for her chief export—fish.

Iceland finds little to sell to Canada—one of the world's big fish exporters—which sometimes competes with Iceland for markets.

Nevertheless' there is a great sentimental attachment in Iceland to this country. Thousands of Iceland's citizens have migrated to Canada, forming, says Mr. Friendship between the two countries.

BIG INDUSTRY

The moving picture industry in India is the second largest in the world, exceeded in quantity of output only by the United States.

Mabel Gray, 16, North Hastings Girl Crowned Beauty Queen At Successful Stirling Fair

A sixteen-year-old North Hastings girl now working in Stirling was crowned beauty queen at the annual Stirling fall fair held Wednesday. Miss Mabel Gray, who calls Bancroft her home town was named winner from a field of 10 contestants.

Runner-up to the beauty queen was Sharlene Eaton of Stirling, while Margaret McDonald, also of Stirling took third place.

Something less than a record attendance was on hand for the annual fair, which was favored with perfect weather. Taking advantage of the weather, numbers of farmers stayed at home to catch up with the threshing operations that have been badly delayed by rains.

Fine Program Offered

But for those able to attend the fair a fine program of varied events was offered. The exhibits were of good quality with the display of school children's work being especially interesting. There was a large exhibit of women's handiwork while the many exhibits of pies, cakes and other pastry, pickles and preserves, proved that Stirling and district women are keeping their hand in the art of home cooking.

The livestock exhibit was possibly not as large as in some years but most of the common cattle breeds were shown. Included were Jerseys, Ayrshires, Aberdeen Angus, Herefords and Holsteins. There was a good display of poultry by local breeders, while there were also a few pens of sheep and hogs exhibited.

Good Horse Show

There was a good horse show with carriage horses being particularly numerous. In fact seven lady drivers paraded their prancing steeds on the track before the grandstand while the same horses returned for the gentleman's turnout. There were also some good heavy horses shown with W. F. Scott of Campbellford showing a four-horse hitch; McMullen and Heath paired their teams and also showed in this class.

There was heavy emphasis on junior farmer events with grain club members, members of the Stirling Calf Club and the tractor club showing their stuff.

In the first prize group in calf club events were Jim Rainie, Bob Donnan, Carl Reid and Douglas Detlor; in the second prize group Merle Moore, Carl Holden, John Craighead and Ralph Parks while in the third prize group were George Cook, Frank Bailey, Murray Martin and Arthur Martin.

In showmanship Merle Moore, Doug Detlor, George Cook and J. Rainie were the winners.

41 Entries in Grain Club

There were 41 entrants in the grain club events; 10 being in the South Hastings second year club and 31 in the first year club. Winners in the second year club were Bob Mallory, Bob Bush and Gerald Cook. Winners in the first year club with Banner oats were Robt. Burkitt, Frankford; Frank Harry, Trenton, Lyall Leavens, Cortyville; Keith Richards, Frankford; Doug Broadworth, Harold, and Ross Bateman, Tweed. Top two winners in the Beaver class were Fred Fulls, Marysville, and Clare Hagerman of Ivanhoe.

Winner in the tractor rodeo was Bob Mallory with 391 out of a possible 400; other club members placed as follows: Francis Wrightman, Keith Clancy, Don Montgomery, Bob Bush, Merle Moore and Lyle Anderson, tied; Griffin Ketcheson, Wayne Harrington, Kenneth Matthews and Ron Hadley.

The rodeo was in charge of Harold Detlor, club leader, A. O. Dalrymple, agricultural representative, and Carl Reid.

Well Contested Baby Show

The baby show was well contested with 12-month-old James and Janet Scott twin children of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Scott being adjudged near perfect babies by the contest judge Dr. Lily Mathieson of Belleville. The Scott twins were the only pair entered but according to the judge they would have been almost sure winners in any class.

Winner in the one to six months class was Wm. Ranger (parents name not secured) Judy Ann Bush, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Flint Bush was second with Paul Vandervoort, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Vandervoort, third. Winner in the seven to twelve month class was Freddie Tanner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morley Tanner. Second was Susan Hart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hart, and third, Lloyd Clancy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Clancy. Assisting at the baby booth were Mrs. Carleton Potts, Mrs. Don Campbell and Mrs. Kenneth Weaver.

Member Given Diploma

A long-time member of the Stirling Fair Board and one of the men instrumental in purchasing the present fair grounds, Mr. J. Clinton McGee of Stirling was honored by presentation of an Agricultural Service Diploma. Fair president C. D. Pitcher made the presentation to Mr. McGee on the platform in front of the grandstand.

There was a good cheese exhibit by district makers. Exhibiting in the four classes, one of which was for finish, were Gerald Fluke, Marmora; Murney Heath, Rylstone; Howard Parr, Stirling; Everett Reid, Stirling and Ivan Sine, Stirling. Fifteen large cheese, three small ten pound cheese and two square type cheese were shown.

Judging of the various horse classes took up most of the afternoon in the judging ring. The pony class was a big attraction for the kiddies. Winners of the pony race were Paul Simpson, Gene Mack and Douglas Wood.

No Midway

There was no midway at the fair as midway operators who had contracted failed to put in appearance. Members of Stirling band were on hand, however, and under the direction of Bandmaster Maurice Bell played various selections. School children from district schools paraded before the judges.

There was a varied platform program of novelty events with Barton Haggerty acting as master of ceremonies. Winners in the bicycle race were Walter Wrightman, Ted Simpson and Ray Hermiston, while June Wright copped the honors for girls under 15.

Winners in the ladies' nail driving contest were Mrs. R. McMurter and Mrs. Flint; in the children's singing contest J. Armstrong and D. Meldrejohn with a trio of Beverley McInroy, Grant Dingman, Mrs. Ash and Mr. Wood.

Farm machinery exhibitors were represented at the fair with the latest in farming equipment.

Good Racing Seen

President of Stirling fair is Clarence Pitchett with Doc Campbell and E. Wallace as vice presidents. Secretary is R. E. Shortt and treasurer Ewart Bellcy.

Kross Road Kapers, featuring local talent and sponsored by the fair board, was held for two nights at the Stirling community hall. The last night's performance was concluded with a dance featuring Potter's orchestra from Warkworth.

ANCIENT HOMESTEADS

Oslo. (CP)— Homesteads, believed to be 4,000 years old, have been unearthed by a Tromso archaeologist. Located in the Varangerfjord district of Finnmark province, the find included slabstones with red-painted figures dating from the stone age.

RECORD MONTH

Ottawa, Sept. 20—(CP)— The avengers and sea furies of 30 carrier air group flew 1,016 hours during August, a record for a month's flying training in the Royal Canadian Navy, the Navy said today.

The air group is attached to the aircraft carrier H.M.C.S. Magnificent, now at sea off Malta.

The group's two squadrons, 871 Sea Fury Squadron and 881 Avenger Squadron, logged most of the 1,000-odd hours during the latter half of the month in exercises off Malta.

BRAKES SLIPPED

Quincy, Mass., Sept. 20—(AP)—A driverless automobile passed over two little girls and toppled a fence on the brother of one of them yesterday — and all the youngsters suffered were minor bruises. Police said Lorraine Burke, 4, and Eileen Saurhans, 5, were straddled by the wheels as they threw themselves down to the ground in the nick of time. The car knocked down a fence, pinning Eileen's brother John, 8, beneath it. Police said the car's brakes apparently slipped.

CHAPTER XXXII

Lance Bradley's illness kept him confined to hospital for ten days. But although no one was permitted to see him, he was not forgotten by his employers, the G.W.V.A., the town clergy, town council and countless friends who had made Lt. Emerson Bradley and the Parkers and the Hastings.

Flowers were sent to him, and one particularly fine bouquet from Miss Doris Parker was given special care by a smiling nurse. At his request, the small radio from his office was placed beside his bed so that he could keep in touch with CEDE and what was going on there. Every evening a copy of his own paper and a brief report from the office were sent to him. On Friday the pay cheques came for his signature and with unsteady hand he signed them. Saturday and Sunday he was a walking patient, and a rather lonesome one at that, he got his feet under him.

Cpl Mitchell arrived the fifth day at fall. Dr. Brown picked him up and drove him to The Ensign building, and then to Lance Bradley's apartment. The doctor lectured him, told him he must take better care of himself, gave him some tablets—to be used only when needed, and warned him that an overdose might be fatal.

Dr. Brown had just scarcely left him than Ted Wilson dropped in to welcome him back, followed a few minutes later by Goldie Webster, who, attracted by his light came shyly into his apartment.

"Gee, Dad, I'm glad to see you back,—" he said, "I was afraid we were going to lose you. I was up to the hospital twice to see you and they wouldn't let me in."

"Yeah, I know son," Lance explained, "but I'm all right now. I have it—said it was bad for the patient. But, say, son, this is the first time I've seen you since fight night—" He searched his face. "Well," he said at last, "he didn't get your good looks, anyway."

"No, he didn't hurt me. Had a black eye for a few days, but it's o.k. now. But I'll never fight again. Next year I think I'll try baseball."

"Yeah, you quit in good time, son," Lance observed. "The worst part of prize fighting is that it's a sport that gets such a hold of a man that he wants to keep on when he's through, and then he ends up a physical and moral wreck. But with baseball—you might indeed turn out to be a good player. At least you're fast on your feet."

Lance Bradley stepped over to his desk, opened a drawer and returned with a small box in his hand.

"Here's something I was saving for your birthday, October 31, but I was thinking the other day better give it to you now, just in case I don't happen to be around then—" He opened the box. "Roll up your left sleeve," he commanded.

Then he strapped a watch on Goldie's wrist, and stood back to admire the effect on his son's face.

"Aw, gee, Dad," Goldie stammered, "you're just swell. Just swell—that's all. Thanks. Thanks very, very much."

"By the way, Goldie, did you keep everything going all right when I was away?" Lance changed the subject.

"Everything went as smooth as silk," Goldie said proudly. "Gee, Dad, you've a lot of fine people working for you."

"Yeah, I guess they are. I guess there are some here say—where."

Goldie glanced at his watch. "Well, Dad, I think I better run along. Six o'clock comes early mornings. Good night, Dad."

After a while Jimmy Hastings came in on his way home from the radio studio to broadcast the eleven o'clock news and he stopped to shake his hand and welcome him back.

Lance slept well and was in the restaurant next door early next morning for breakfast. A few minutes later he was being welcomed by his business staff. There was a bouquet of flowers on his desk, and he knew without asking where it came from. A bit shaky, he started on a tour of his plant, receiving smiling welcomes everywhere he went. As far as he could see his business would run regardless of whether he was on the premises or not. The only complaint he received came from the newsroom where he was reminded that there appeared to be little headline news any more. The boys looked to him when they said it.

"I'll have to oil up the old gun and go hunting again," he laughed. "But what are you doing with it, Stub? Don't you run lotto any more cock fights?"

Stan your Stub snorted, and the newsroom staff broke into a laugh.

He looked into the office of his women's editor, where he found Doris working away.

"Hello, Doris," he said. "How's everything?—Thanks for the flowers."

"Hi, Brad," she smiled, getting up from her desk and coming towards him. "Glad to see you back. I hope you're feeling better."

"Oh, I'm okay, I guess," he said. "A bit weak, that's all."

"That's all the more reason then that you should have a good cook. Better let me look after that for you."

"Your rate for advertising is too high," he laughed.

"But why advertise?" she asked. "I can get you a good cook for free."

"I'll take that matter under advisement," he grinned, moving on to chat with Advertising Manager Dolson, the proof readers and the compositors.

A few days of that and Lance Bradley was rapidly regaining his strength. He was ready for council meeting and he was proud to father a motion whereby all vacant town offices must be filled in future by veterans of the great war. He pointed out that men who had been ready and willing to fight for their country should be permitted to administer its affairs now. And he met with no opposition.

And that one afternoon he was in Lawyer Parker's office to hear the reading of the Roberts' will. And he was not greatly surprised when he learned that the estate, including house and household effects and cash in the bank, had been left to him.

"The estate is valued at fifty-five thousand dollars, forty-four thousand of which is in the bank, the balance in real estate and personal and household effects," lawyer Parker explained. "Of course after the expenses of probate have been taken out and the government takes its share in succession duties and one thing and another, the total will be decreased considerably. Yet, there will be a lot of cash left and all the real and personal property and—it's all for you."

"And I don't need it," Lance said. "While I appreciate that the Roberts's had me in mind when they made their will, yet I feel that a much better use of their estate, their money, can be found than to give it to me who does not require it."

"For instance?"

"Give the house and lot to the First Baptist Church for a residence for the pastor whoever he may be," Lance said. "Give the same church all the cash left to pay any indebtedness, to purchase a pipe organ that is so greatly needed. And if there is any balance, place it to the credit of the church for any use the board of managers see fit."

"You mean Brad, that your would do that?" Johnston, Parker asked.

"And why not—it was their church, wasn't it?"

"Yes, Brad, it was their church, as it is mine. And I know the church can make good use of the property and the money. I must say that this is mighty fine of you, Lance Bradley! Mighty fine indeed. But it surprises me. I had been thinking along other lines. I thought that you would be keeping the Roberts' home for yourself."

"You mean—that I get married and live there?" Lance asked.

"And—why not, Brad?"

Instantly Lance Bradley was on his feet to pace the floor. This was it! Johnston Parker had asked him about marrying before—at which time he had merely stated that he was definitely against the idea. But now, he would explain. He would place his cards on the table. He would reveal his secret. He returned to his seat, leaned forward, and he spoke slowly, carefully. He said he knew nothing about his birth, all he knew was that he had been adopted by a family named Bradley. He had reason to believe that he had come into this world before his parents had taken their vows—an unwanted child—a nobody. As he told his story, Johnston Parker listened intently with sober face.

"That's my story," Lance said finally. "And now, Mr. Parker, I would ask you a question."

"Go on, Brad," Parker said.

"Since you have good reason to be proud of your family name and your antecedents, would you like someone like me for your son-in-law—the father of your grandchildren?"

It was Johnston Parker's turn to leave his desk, to pace the floor. Lance watched him as he finally stopped at the front window to gaze down on the street below. What would Johnston Parker say to that? Lance felt that he knew. In all the time he had been associated with the lawyer in business matters, not once had he been invited to his home. He had not knowingly ever seen Mrs. Parker. And on those rare occasions when he had escorted Doris home she had never asked him inside her door. That was excusable, of course. It had always been late—after her parents had retired. Johnston Parker was a proud man, proud of his name, proud of his profession, his family, and he had a good reason to be proud. Lance Bradley's eyes never left the lawyer as he stood in thought, looking below but not seeing anything. And then the lawyer turned and without their eyes meeting, he sat down to his desk again.

"I've been going, Brad," he said, "that the property across the street from your block has been purchased as a site for a new steam laundry—" Then changing the subject quickly, "Now, about that Roberts' will. I'll have it probated, the property and money will be transferred to the church as you suggest. I suppose we'll have to sell off the household effects by public auction, so I'll have an auctioneer look after that. As we go along, there'll be some papers for you to sign, and since you're a busy man, I'll run them over to your office when ready and have you sign them there."

Having unburdened himself to Johnston Parker and as he had anticipated with the only inevitable result, Lance Bradley had no regrets. He was neither disappointed nor angry. The air had been cleared. He would have had to disclose his secret some time, so why not now and have it over with? And now that Johnston Parker by his silence had told him that he didn't want him for a son-in-law, he was better fortified to deal with Doris Parker when she came to him and demanded a showdown. Not that he had been keeping company with her, or that at any time had he ever given her cause to believe that some day he would ask her to marry him.

Lance Bradley's show-down with Doris came on a late Friday afternoon after The Ensign was out and all the employees, as he thought, had left the building. He was going through the plant, preparatory to locking up, and when he neared the composing room, he stopped. He heard the clicking of a typewriter in Doris Parker's office and for a moment he thought of turning back or hiding until after she had gone, before he went into the newsroom.

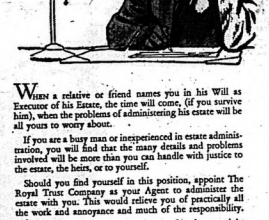
But he didn't retreat or hide. He braced his shoulders and went to her to ask why she was working after hours. Doris explained that she was cleaning up some of her copy for next day's paper so that she would have more time to prepare her Saturday afternoon radio program.

"But, don't run away, Brad," she said. "Now that you're alone, is something important to ask you." And she resumed her typing.

Wondering what Doris had on her mind, Lance proceeded to the newsroom and sat at the double desk shared by his editors during their working hours.

After a while the typing ceased and Doris came in and sat down in the seat across the table from him.

"Brad," she said, "there's been something on my mind for some time now. It's something that concerns the two of us."



"You're not going to tell me that you're leaving—that you're quitting your job!" Lance asked in a tone of alarm.

"No, Brad, nothing like that." She leaned forward expectantly.

Indians Sweep Boston Series, But Yankees Keep Pace: Brooks Gain

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

HERE THEY GO!

The war is on. With both sides reinforced by league cast troops the Redmen and Central Hockey League champ Central Canada baseball League best-of-seven finals series in Brockville tonight.

The Alphonse-Gaston gestures have already started with the Redmen playing Alphonse to the hilt recently and the Maroons turning opportunists to better, if possible, their front-line troops.

The Redmen have secured the services of Gilmore, starry Kingston Leafs first baseman who will replace Tommy Buchanan at first base. Buchanan was forced to leave for London to commence his studies at the University of Western Ontario, and the Redmen quickly sought Gilmore.

Munro, who received permission to play in the semi-finals from Kingston was given a free pass to play in the finals series by Brockville in view of his Stan Scrutton, dynamic player-manager of the Kingston Leafs who will be permitted to operate in a Redmen uniform for one game only, that on Saturday when Munro cannot put in an appearance.

Now for the Brockville end of this lend-lease agreement. The Maroons will get the services of Gordy Smith, Eastern League player-manager-pitcher for Giffin, and also those pitchers, Smiths Falls Royals catcher if and when Coleman receives his release from the army. Thanks for the military duty. The Redmen had better exercise their "pull" with the whitecoat east south of the border, if they have any, to keep Coleman out of the service until this series is finished.

The Reds did not make any mistake when they secured Gilmore to handle the initial sack chores. He is one of the best first baseman in the league and is considered that. The best-off position with the Leafs all season. Giffy won't weaken on the squad one iota.

Today's game got under way at five o'clock, weather permitting while the second local here tomorrow night will begin at 8.30. Saturday's game in Brockville is an afternoon affair beginning at three o'clock.

GAME THROUGH IN CLUTCHES!

Money makes the mare go and it takes a fair-to-middlin' baseball team to come through when the chips are down. The Redmen demonstrated their "money team" ability no less than three times, grandstand managers and outside critics to the contrary. Prior to the "famous" series between the Batawa Shoemen for the play-off spot, the Reds whipped Smoky Smith of Brockville and Boston, Cheffins of Smiths Falls, rated two of the best flingers in the loop, to maintain their chances of the berth.

Came the Batawa series and again the Reds rose to the occasion, wheeling two straight and defeating Art Wright who also ranks with the league's topflight hurlers. True they slipped rather badly in that sixth game with Kingston when they nearly tossed away the verdict after leading 9-3 but they came through magnificently on Tuesday night to conquer the Leafs for the finals berth in an outstanding exhibition behind Fitzpatrick's fine hurling.

Brockville, on the other hand, practically rolled the loop pennant from the time the first game was played to the grand finale. They boast a well-balanced squad, well fortified with good hurlers and players who can come and hit in their pinch-hitting clutches. The Maroons roared through the 150p schedule winning game after game until they left the pack well in the rear. They complied the season's business, or at least finished first in a canter. Whether they were coasting, as some of their drop-in-the-bowl fans have stated, or it was the wear and tear of a lengthy schedule, the Maroons slipped from their dazzling the last few games of the grind with nearly all squads in the league taking their measure.

Came the Cornwall Cardinals and Smiths Falls, last year's champions. The Fallsers loomed a bad scare into the river-towners only giving up the play-off chair after a hectic slightly-wacky series that produced reel and bat baseball, rhubarbs, some near fist-fights and all the trimmings that make baseball the colorful game it is.

THIS FROM KINGSTON'S MR. RODDEN

"Fitzpatrick, a second baseman by trade, was rushed to the relief of the hard-pressed pitching staff here last Friday and astonished all and sundry when he held the Leafs to two hits and one unearned run, while the Reds were collecting nine markers. In the Saturday and Monday games he guarded second base but last night big Vernon Goyer was moved to the middle sack after Manager Wilson had cast the die that sent Fitzpatrick to the mound in the pay-off battle.

"Needless to say this daring master-minding had as flaws the while Fitzpatrick proved that he is a secondsman far above the ordinary. Through eight consecutive innings he had the batsmen waving at nothing in particular and it wasn't until the ninth inning that the dazzled Dinners managed to avert a shutout."

LOSE CLOSE ONE

Cleaner Combines, Eastern Ontario Intermediate AA Softball champions lost a close tilt in their first game of the O.A.S.A. playdowns in Toronto last night when they bowed to the Toronto Paddy Cronin Jewellers by a 12-9 score. The Cleaners entertain the Jewellers here on Saturday in the second game and are confident they can take the measure of the Toronto crew and force a third tussle. Game at 2.30.

Tribe Atomics Red Sox 15-2 While Mantle Beats Chicago; Preacher Roe Gets 21st Win

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Cleveland's sweep of the Boston series leaves the league-leading New York Yankees gasping for breath in the American-league race.

Still ahead by three percentage points after yesterday's 5-3 victory over Chicago, the Yanks have tough going ahead. They play nine of their remaining 10 with first-division clubs, while the tribe plays only 6—5 with the bottom half of the league.

Chances are the Yanks and Red Sox will knock off one another in their eight meetings while Cleveland picks up enough ground to get home first.

Then they can start worrying about Brooklyn which opened up a 3½ game lead on idle New York in the National last night by blanking St. Louis, 3-0.

Chicago can knock the Yanks out of first place today while Cleveland rides a train to Detroit.

Wow, What A Licking!

Cleveland showed its old drive yesterday in walloping Boston 15-2, a blow that practically doused the last Red Sox hopes. Trailing by 3½ with 11 to play, Boston's job now seems to be making or breaking the Yankees in the series opening tomorrow.

Early Wynn became the tribe's third 20-game winner with a seven-hit 5-0 win on Boston. While he coasted the Indians took full advantage of 11 hits and 13 bases on balls by Maury McDermott and five successors. Ray Boone, Luke Easter and Bobby Avila hit home runs.

The Yanks didn't bruise the ball in beating the White Sox. They had only three hits, but two of them—off Lou Kretlow—were enough to win with the help of walks. Gil McDougald's homer with nobody on tied the score at 2-2 in the third, and Mickey Mantle's homer with two on won the game in the fourth.

Roe Shuts Out Cards

Lefty Bob Kuzava, who replaced Tom Morgan in the third, earned his 11th victory.

Preacher Roe pulled Brooklyn out of its tailspin by shutting out St. Louis on Cardinals with five hits. The crafty lefty's record now is a phenomenal 21-2 for the season.

Before the game, friends from Arkansas gave Roe a new car. Given a two-run edge in the fourth on Mickey Livingston's single with the bases full, Roe had only one tight squeak, and one of the Brooks' three double plays helped him out of that. Max Lanier was knocked out in the eighth inning as the Dodgers added their third run.

Brooklyn ends its last western swing today at St. Louis while the Giants finish up at Cincinnati.

Bubba Church whipped Chicago 5-1, as his Phillies took advantage of four Cub errors.

Murry Dickson's 19th win let Pittsburgh out of last place, 7-3, at the expense of Boston's young Chet Nichols. Dick Cole and Gus Bell homered for the Pirates, Earl Torgeson for the Braves.

The hustling Philadelphia A's, struggling to catch fifth-place Washington, knocked off the Tigers 8-1, on a seven-run spurt in the fourth inning.

Two Michaels singles with the bases loaded in the eighth to score two runs for Washington's 4-3 edge over St. Louis, breaking the Senators' four-game losing streak.

Royals Nip Chiefs For 2-1 Edge In Cup Series

Syracuse, N.Y., Sept. 20 (AP) —With a 2-to-1 edge in the final best-of-seven series for the International League Governors' Cup series, Montreal tonight sends Chris Van Cuyk against Syracuse Chiefs' Bob Keegan.

George Shuba's homer off Bob Miller with nobody on in the seventh inning last night gave Montreal a 4-3 victory. It was Shuba's fourth homer of the post-season competition.

Montreal hopped on Miller for two runs in the first on a walk and Bert Haas' home run. But the Chiefs came back to tie in the second on hits by Catcher Hollinsworth; Gene Markland and Miller on a wild pitch.

Vic Powers' triple and Hank Workman's single off Bob Alexander gave Syracuse the lead in the fifth. Johnny Welaj's double, a sacrifice and an infield out tied it up in the fourth.

That set it up for Shuba's winning blow. Ernie Broglio, who came on after Alexander was lifted for a pinch hitter in the ninth, was the winner over Miller, who was relieved by Chuck Eisenmann in the ninth.

The clubs will meet again in Syracuse tomorrow night and then return to Montreal unless Royals sweep the next two games to qualify for the Little World Series against the American Association champ.

Drastic Move by School Faculty Follows College Sports Scandal

Williamsburg, Va., Sept. 20 (AP)—William and Mary faculty members, reacting bitterly to a sports scandal which stunned the campus, have moved to take the college off the big-time football map.

Sweeping reforms in the athletic program at W. & M. were deemed "a solemn duty" by the faculty last night in a statement which condemned the college's ambitious sports policy as a corrupting influence.

The "exaggerated athletic policy" is wrecking the academic standards of the college, the faculty charged, has ravaged the morals of the student body, overshading athletics and "has vitiated the most elementary standards of honesty and right conduct."

To curb this, the faculty said, a system of "complete faculty control" must be instituted.

Eliminate Scholarships

Dr. Nelson Marshall, dean of the college, said faculty control would, in effect, eliminate athletic scholarships in William and Mary.

This, to all intents, would mean a sudden end to an era of football prosperity which has brought W. & M. a series of winning seasons against major-league opposition and two post-season bowl bids.

The faculty's statement came exactly a week after a secret football handbook issued at the college had predicted the current scandal would mark a "new emphasis" of athletics at the institution.

Oscar L. Shewmake, rector of the W. & M. board of visitors, said the board would consider the faculty recommendations at an Oct. 5 session in Williamsburg.

The scandal in the department of athletics already has resulted in the resignation of the college president, Dr. John E. Pomfret; athletic director and head football coach D. C. McCoy; and basketball coach Barney Wilson.

The board of visitors found Sept. 8 that the athletic department under McCray had altered the scholastic records of certain high school athletes to make them eligible for entry at William and Mary, and had given other athletes passing grades in physical education classes they did not even attend.

OMHA Starts 1952 Activities

Applications for admission to the Ontario Minor Hockey Association are now being received. Certificates will be available to all entries October 1st, and the OMHA operates juvenile (under 18), midget (under 16), and bantam (under 14).

Teams are reminded that the new age limit date of August 1st is not effective this season, but will be in force for the 1952-53 season. For this season all players must be under 18 (juvenile); under 16 (midget); or under 14 (bantam) as of November 1st, 1951.

Will Sponsor Rules Forum

In response to many requests, the Ontario Minor Hockey Association will again sponsor the popular rules forum for managers, coaches and referees. The OMHA has appointed a committee, headed by Bert Hick, 76 Adelaide Street South, Lindsay, and whose membership includes Fred Norman, Simcoe; Ted Elmes Galt; Frank Doherty, Thorold, along with the president and secretary, to arrange the series of meetings. Tentative sites suggested are Belleville, Oakville, Thorold, Gravenhurst, Simcoe, Kitchener, Strathroy and a centre in the Lindsay, Oshawa, Peterboro area, yet to be selected. Further information may be secured from the committee chairman, Mr. A. E. Hick, in Lindsay.

Paces Mile In Record 1.59

At Delaware, O., Sampson Hanover Wednesday turned in the fastest mile ever recorded over a half-mile track in the history of harness racing.

The undefeated four-year-old son of Volomite went the second heat of the $2,500 Alumhurst pace at Delaware county fairgrounds in 1:59 3-5. It ran his victory string to 16 in a row.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Cleveland Indians began accepting world series ticket orders Wednesday.

"We aren't counting our chickens," the club announced, "but we can no longer delay announcement of our world series ticket plans."

Currently the Indians are in second place in the American League, only a shade behind New York Yankees.

No orders will be filled before early next week, and fans have until Saturday to get their applications to the club. Orders post-marked after midnight, Saturday, Sept. 22, will not be accepted.

If more orders are received than there are tickets available—which is invariably the case—applications will be filled by lot rather than on a first-received, first-served basis, the club announced.

Charlie Pinnell of Calgary was re-elected president of the Dominion Football Association Wednesday at closing sessions of its annual meeting at Montreal.

Quarterback Wally Mellor and Don Griffen attracted plenty of attention Wednesday as 31 candidates for the Queen's University senior football team in the Intercollegiate League worked out under the eye of coach Frank Tindall at Kingston.

The Tricolor squad will take its players to Hamilton Friday for its exhibition game Saturday against McMaster University tiltrmakers of the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

Coach Vic Obeck of McGill University announced Wednesday regular backfielders Ken Wagner and Gene Robillard have been declared ineligible for football by university officials following failure in one course of studies.

McGill plays their first exhibition match here Saturday with Sarnia Imperials.

Huron Express, the fast-clipping pacer of Woods and Gardiner, of Godrich Wednesday raced to the wire first in three straight heats of the 2.14 feature harness racing event at the Tillsonburg and District Fair, before a crowd of more than 6,000.

Lindsay Trims Picton A's 13-8

Lindsay trounced the Picton Athletics 13-8 in Picton yesterday to take a two-game lead in their Intermediate "B" best-of-five OBA playdown series. Lindsay won the first by a 7-1 score.

Picton blew an early 7-1 lead as the Lindsay crew roared back when the local balloon started to soar.

Loucks went the distance for the winners with Dyer starting and McPhail finishing on the mound for the losers.

Lindsay clouted out eight hits as against nine for Picton.

'Little Brown Jug' Rich Pace Race Attracts 14 Horses

Delaware, O., Sept. 20 (AP)—Fourteen of the fastest, three-year-old pacers in the world go today in the $66,280.55 "Little Brown Jug."

The classic, sixth of the series, is the feature attraction of the Grand Circuit meeting over the half-mile track at the Delaware County Fair.

Thirteen colts and a filly make up the sterling field, with the winner due to collect $33,140.27 of the greatest pacing purse in history. Second place pays $18,780.14, third $9,942.06, and fourth and fifth $3,314.03 each.

Dudley Hanover's record "Jug" time of 2:02 2/5, set a year ago, is expected to be erased following a series of world marks set over the lightning-fast twice-around the last two days.

Sampson Hanover, undefeated four-year-old son of Volomite, was the only one to record both yesterday with a 1:58 3/5, mile, fastest ever recorded over a half-mile track since harness racing began. Sampson Hanover, owned by R. D. Owen of Houston, Tex., and driven by Frank Ervin, won the Almahurst Park $2,500 2-3 class pace for his 16th straight win.

A three-horse entry from Del Miller's stable—Direct Rhythm, Tar Heel and Solilitor—was the early favorite at 3 to 1. At 7 to 2 were Floating Dream, the only filly in the race and H. D. Hanover. The rest were strung out on the odds board to 20 to 1, at which the three-horse field made up of Battle Prince, Red Brown and Repeat Direct was quoted.

Waterloo Juniors Say Canadiens Grabbed Player

Waterloo, Sept. 20 — (CP)—Waterloo Hurricanes of the Ontario Junior A series have filed a complaint with the Ontario Hockey Association alleging that Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League have been tampering with a player drafted by them Thursday.

Earlier this year the Waterloo Club was successful in an O.H.A. draft drew in which six teams participated for Ron Atwell, centre player of the Noblston Junior D team of last season.

Waterloo officials allege that Canadiens have taken Atwell to Montreal and that he is working out at the Canadiens' junior school there. He was to have reported in Waterloo last Friday.

Graziano Blasts Janiro in Tenth To Snatch Last-Minute Victory

Detroit, Sept. 20-(AP)—Rocky Graziano, whose blasting comeback in the last 20 seconds stunned Tony Janiro last night and gained Rocky a technical knockout, wants to get into the next business—a middleweight title fight with champion Sugar Ray Robinson.

This may be early next year.

Meanwhile the "we was robbed" cry came from Janiro and Frankie Jacobs, his manager.

Until Rocky's crashing lefts and rights suddenly sprawled Tony on the canvas with the fight properly over, Janiro appeared a sure winner in a wide-open slugfest. Referee Lou Handler halted the 10-round, televised fight just as Janiro hit the floor.

Janiro Protests

Janiro hopped right to his feet and joined manager Frankie Jacobs in protesting Handler's decision. Many in the crowd of 8,086 booed.

Despite the knockdown—Janiro who had a 5-3, 6-3 and 5-2 edge by rounds on the official scorecards—evidently would have won by decision if the fight had gone 14 more seconds to the conclusion.

Graziano, 160 pounds to Tony's 154, exploded a left to Tony's face with 20 seconds left. Tony tried to back away but roughhouse Rocky rained rights and lefts at him.

Tony slid from rope to rope as he tried to cover up and get away. Rocky punched and half-shoved Tony to the canvas.

Hopes for Crack at Title

The winner was slated to get a possible title fight in February in Detroit or Chicago with Robinson. Rocky said he planned at least one fight a month meanwhile and hoped he'd get a title chance.

Tony, a superior boxer, had danced and ducked out of range of Rocky's explosive rights most of the fight and kept slamming his left into Rocky's face as the crowd roared.

The fight grossed $25,251.36. In two previous 10-round fights Graziano had failed to floor Janiro. Graziano won one battle and the other was a draw.

AT THE CAPITOL — Victory comes to Ishmal, the caring gladiator, and Fabiola, the patrician beauty, in this tremendous scene after the slaughter of the Christians in the Coliseum which climaxes Jules Levey's fabulous film spectacle, "Fabiola," now showing at the Capitol Theatre thru' United Artists release. Marc (Green Pastures) Connolly and Fred Pressburger did the adaptation.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 20—(AP) — New York fashion models need not apply to fill Hollywood's shortage of dancing girls. They're not wanted.

That's the blunt statement of Lenny Prinz, in command of the beauty brigade at Warner Bros. Gals who wear the latest clothes in the fashion mags are not suitable for films, said the dance director.

"Why, the public would throw rocks at Hollywood if we put that kind of girl in our musicals," said Prinz. "They may look all right in fancy clothes, but without them they look awful. With their long legs and flat chests, they look like bean-poles."

The lack of enough dancing girls for films was caused by two factors, he said:

1. The public appetite for musicals and other escapist fare.

2. The rise of a new kind of dancing girl. He explained it thus:

"The 'chorus girl' is a thing of the past. Until recent times, all a girl had to do was a semblance of a time step and could get in the chorus. But nowadays, the girls don't dance in a line.

Must Be Top

"The dancing girl of today must have many attributes. She must be good looking and have a good figure. She must know how to tap dance and must be a ballet dancer as well. Also, she must sing, read lines and do comedy.

"The result is that the business is attracting a much finer calibre of girl. The dumb chorus girl of the past is disappearing."

Prinz cited Virgina Mayo as a prime example of the new type of show-business girl. She started out as a dancer, but her training soon pulled her out of the ranks.

Capsule Review

"A Streetcar Named Desire" stretches the censorship license about as far as it will go. The sex-ridden Tennessee Williams play is translated almost intact (except for a couple of franker passages). The result is a highly-charted picture of baser emotions in New Orleans' French quarter. It is one of the best-acted pictures of the year, with Vivien Leigh brilliant as the world-weary southern belle.

Marlon Brando is amazingly natural as the brutal husband, and Kim Hunter is fine as his forgiving wife.

Cleaners Lose To Toronto 12-9

Family Credit Jewellers of Toronto took a one game lead in their best-of-three OASA Intermediate AA semi-final series by defeating Belleville Cleaner Combines 12-9 on Wednesday night.

The game, played in Dentonia Park, Toronto, before a small crowd saw the homesters take an eight run lead before Belleville could get started. Bob Bunton started on the mound for the Cleaners and was nicked for six runs before being lifted in the fourth. Jack Holmes relieved in that frame and finished the game.

Next game in this series is scheduled for 3.30 at the Alemite field on Saturday afternoon.

Judging from the torrid get-together being staged by Barbara Rush and Peter Hanson, hilarious Molly rates a bow. Restaurant Prices 'Fantastic' Says Official of Horticultural Council

Ottawa, Sept. 20—(CP)—L. F. Burrows, secretary of the Canadian Horticultural Council, charged in a statement yesterday that Canadian restaurants are "raising their patrons' pocketbooks" with "fantastic prices for homegrown fruits and vegetables".

Defending producers, he said the restaurants' "excessive prices are cutting consumption at a time when fruits and vegetables are in peak production."

"Whenever a customer complains about food prices in restaurants," he said, "he is given a sympathetic smile and told that high prices demanded by producers and wholesalers are entirely to blame."

Mr. Burrows cited figures to back his contention that the mark-up or profit percentage charged by restaurant operators was huge. The wholesalers and producers were making "only reasonable profits."

He said the hotel and restaurant prices "are damaging the entire fruit and vegetable industry," and suggested that a lowering of prices would not only increase restaurant sales, but would mean that "hotels and restaurants would be doing their part to help curb inflation and assist producers in moving a heavy crop."

Season of Plenty

"This is the season when fruits and vegetables are most plentiful, but many public eating places are not giving their customers the benefit of low peak production prices. In fact, he added, "there is practically no seasonal variation in the prices restaurants ask for fruit and vegetable dishes."

Mr. Burrows offered several recent examples of what he termed "price gouging at the expense of the public."

With early McIntosh and Melba apples selling from $2 to $2.25 a bushel—"about one cent per apple" —an Ottawa hotel was offering them for dessert at 15 cents apiece. A large restaurant chain cuts its pies in eight pieces and charged 15 cents per cut. From six to eight apples were required for a pie.

"Therefore the main ingredient of a pie which sells for 15 cents, costs 2 cents. Peaches were selling at 65 cents a six-quart basket on Toronto wholesale markets, while a downtown cafeteria was featuring peach pie at 35 cents per cut. There are six to eight peaches in the average pie. Peaches and cream were listed on a restaurant menu in Ottawa at 25 cents a dish the same week.

"It's the same with vegetables," Mr. Burrows added.

"One of our directors reports that a Toronto cafeteria has been charging 15 cents each for a serving of onions and potatoes when the selling price of these vegetables is less than two cents a pound. Even when the high costs of labor and overhead which the establishments have to meet are taken into consideration, these prices are ridiculous," he said. "If retailers indulged on the exorbitant markups hotels and restaurants are getting, few people would be able to afford enough to eat."

Figures recently released by the Bureau of Statistics, he said, showed that Canadian fruit and vegetable wholesalers in Canada averaged a net operating profit of one cent for each dollar of sales before income tax deduction in 1940.

"To wind up with a net profit of one cent for every dollars' worth of merchandise sold means a pretty slim margin on which to operate, compared with the mark-up of from 200 to 1,400 per cent on some fruit and vegetable items in hotels and restaurants," said Mr. Burrows.

Not Getting Fair Return

"Canadian farmers received an average of $2.30 a bushel (about 200 peaches) for peaches and $1.18 per bushel (about 180 apples) for apples in the 1950-51 season according to Federal Department of Agriculture marketing service figures. This shows that the producer is not getting a fair return for his labor and investment," Mr. Burrows declared.

"While the 1951 apple crop, estimated at 14,547,000 bushels, is down somewhat from last year, this year's peach crop is estimated at 1,722,000 bushels, an increase of half a million bushels over 1950.

"This means a big selling job has to be done to increase the domestic consumption of these two products alone. We believe it is in the public interest to focus attention on the unfair prices being charged by hotels and restaurants because these practices are damaging the entire fruit and vegetable industry.

"If the hotel and restaurants would offer fruit and vegetable dishes well within the reach of every one during the peak season, and thereby help to restaurant operators would cooperate by bringing their prices more in line when these products are plentiful, consumption could be boosted. Profits would probably be increased because they would be selling more of these dishes than they are now. At the same time, hotels and restaurants would be doing their part to help curb inflation and assist producers in moving a heavy crop."

A-BOMB ORE FOUND

New York, Sept. 20 (CP) — Morgan Beatty, Washington news commentator for NBC, said in his news broadcast Tuesday night that vast new deposits of atomic bomb ore have been discovered in Alberta's Athabaska district.

He said that the Eldorado mining group owned by the Canadian government is prepared to mine 500 tons of ore rich in uranium. The ultimate goal is 2,000 tons a day.

Hockey Bigwigs Deny MLA Charge Amateurs Freedom is Unrecognised

Quebec, Sept. 20—(CP)—A preseason hockey tempest about hockey agreements was stirred up last night by Hon. Gerald Martineau, member of the Quebec provincial legislative council.

Mr. Martineau, former president of the Quebec Aces, in the Quebec Senior Hockey League threatened to ask the Quebec government to apply a 1938 law regulating sports "if hockey magnates do not recognize the freedom of amateurs to play with clubs of their choice."

He said because of an agreement between the National Hockey League and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association any player whose name was on a negotiation list for an N.H.L. team had to sign with that team before he could sign and play with an amateur team.

Hockey officials denied the senator's charge.

George Slater, president of the Q.S.H.L. said if a player didn't want to sign with an N.H.L. club the pro clubs wouldn't likely keep him out of hockey.

No Negotiation List

George Dudley, secretary of the C.A.H.A. said that "no "negotiation list" agreement had been signed between the N.H.L. and the C.A.H.A.

Clarence Campbell, president of the N.H.L. said an agreement between the N.H.L. and Q.S.H.L. regarding the signing of players was made "at the insistence" of the Q.S.H.L. at a later conference he said details were worked out and the Q.S.H.L. officials said "it was exactly what they wanted".

He said "obviously Mr. Martineau has not been supplied with correct information about this agreement. We aren't forcing anything on the league."

One of the terms of the pact, authorized by the C.A.H.A., was that the Q.S.H.L. would respect the N.H.L. clubs' player lists and all players on those lists would have to sign a standard player contract with the N.H.L. club before playing with the Q.S.H.L. club.

Got Prompt Relief From Gas, Stomach Disorders

Also Suffered Two Years Backache and Rheumatic Pains, Nerves on Edge, Couldn't Sleep. Tells How Syntona Helped Her.

How often have you heard a friend or neighbor tell of the good results they got by taking a short treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound? Time and again you read or hear of people who obtained gratifying relief from common disorders of the stomach, kidneys, liver or bowels, and how it helped to rid them of that terrible feeling and heartburn, lame, aching back, dizzy spells, or nervous, run-down condition.

Here is what Mrs. Edith Gunby, Caledonia, Ontario, has to say of her experience with Syntona:

"My dizziness was so bad that even the lightest foods gave me gas, cramps and sour acid rising. I would get attacks of heartburn often followed by a nauseous feeling and sick headache. Many days I didn't care whether I ate or not. My entire system became rundown, nerves were so bad I couldn't sleep and I was losing pep and energy. My back was lame and sore and I often felt completely tired out.

"So many people were recommending Syntona that I decided to see what it would do for me. After I started I began it too highly. It is all due to this medicine that I am now really well and feel again as I used to. I have no gas, sourness or heartburn. I am free of headaches and dizzy spells, my nerves are better and I am able to sleep more soundly and night. Also, the rheumatic pains and backache have gone away and I am now have strength to do my work."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Gunmen Fire Sten Gun Blast Before Leaving

Beaverton, Sept. 20—(CP)—The search for three masked bandits who robbed the Canadian Bank of Commerce here of "less than $10,000" centred early today in the Toronto area.

The cool fast-working trio entered the bank yesterday afternoon and forced the bank staff at gunpoint to lie on the floor. Then after one of the thugs scooped the cash from a teller's cash drawer, the three walked out of the bank and drove away.

One man with a machine gun fired a burst at the bank manager, F. Stanley Croft. He was not hit.

The bandits drove slowly at first, eluding a provincial police car on its way to the bank. The policemen suspect them because of their slowness. Then they accelerated up to speeds of 110 miles an hour and shook off pursuers.

The car, a green Meteor was reported stolen in Toronto and police said they believed a Toronto gang had engineered the robbery.

The Meteor was found abandoned four miles from this Lake Simcoe resort village where the thugs picked up a second car which they had waiting for them.

Police said Mr. Croft had a narrow escape. As the gunner turned to leave the bank, Croft fired a .22 rifle at the man who appeared to be the leader. The shot missed.

The leader whirled and blazed away with a machine gun. The bullets whistled by the manager's legs, waist and head. Police counted 17 bullet holes in the partition and door of Mr. Croft's office.

N.A.T.O. COUNCIL ENDS FIVE-DAY SECRET MEETING

Pearson Takes Over As President for Year

Ottawa, Sept. 21. (CP)—The North Atlantic Treaty Organization, with a blast at Russia's "empire" ambitions, offers additional plans for bringing Greece and Turkey into the anti-communist coalition, yesterday concluded a five-day secret meeting here.

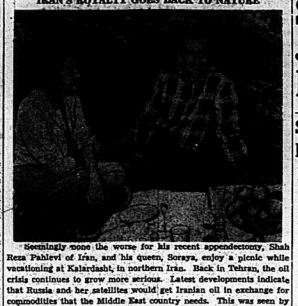
The 15-member organization today enters a new phase in its two-year career with many problems ahead and with Canada's External Affairs Minister Pearson at the helm. He took over from Foreign Minister Van Zeeland of Belgium as president at the end of the council meeting and will hold the post for a year.

The decision to recommend admission of Greece and Turkey to N.A.T.O. was described by State Secretary Acheson of the United States as the "big, concrete, immediate achievement" in Ottawa.

He told a press conference it was not easy for some members to support a U.S. proposal that N.A.T.O. be extended to the Near East. But in the end the decision was unanimous. Earlier, Norway and parliament had opposed and pressed for a Mediterranean Pact that would include Greece and Turkey.

The two countries cannot be invited to join N.A.T.O. until the parliaments have ratified the council's recommendation. However, it is understood that the United States, Britain and France have already unofficially agreed on a separate N.A.T.O. command for the Near East.

New Command For Turkey



Greece would be under Gen. Eisenhower's European command but a new command would be built around Turkey. This command would possibly work out close military arrangements with other eastern countries.

The reference to the Russian peace offers was contained in a statement, declaring the council's decision to expand its co-operation in such non-military fields as economics, finance, technical aid and even culture.

The statement recalled that the Atlantic Pact organization was formed to preserve peace. Then, without mentioning Russia by name, the statement said:

"A number of official peace offers as vague in language as they are obscure in content are being made by the Soviet Union. The peoples of the North Atlantic community have no illusions as to the deeds that follow them. They will never reject any genuine move for peace, but will not be deflected from building up their defensive strength by mere empty words about peace."

IRAN'S ROYALTY GOES BACK TO NATURE

Seemingly 'none the worse for his recent appendectomy, Shah Reza Pahlevi of Iran, and his queen, Soraya, enjoy a picnic while vacationing at Kalardasht, in northern Iran. Back in Tehran, the oil crisis continues to grow more serious. Latest developments indicate that Russia and her satellites would get Iranian oil in exchange for commodities that the Middle East country needs. This was seen by diplomats as a reprisal for recently applied British economic pressure. — Central Press Canadian.

Speeding Express Train Jumps Tracks In England; Death Toll 11, Injured 45

Sight of Indians Impresses French Visitors

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 21 — (AP) — It's going to be harder than ever to convince some Frenchmen that America isn't all the "Wild West."

Three Frenchmen were standing in a hotel lobby yesterday while one of them told a reporter they had come to get acquainted with America.

"They are in Hartford," he said, "because it is the — how do you say — typical American city."

He was about to go on when his voice broke. He stared. So did the other Frenchmen.

Three men in full Sioux Indian regalia were stalking across the lobby.

The "Indians" were here for a cigar festival.

Engine Leaps Embankment, Five Coaches Crumpled

Weedon, Northampton, England, Sept. 21 — (AP) — A speeding express train jumped the tracks here today, smashing five coaches and killing at least eleven persons.

Another 45 passengers on the 15-coach train, bound from Liverpool to London, were injured.

Hours after the crash, police and British army rescue workers were still combing the wreckage for possible further casualties. Earlier police had said 20 persons were killed.

(Reuters news agency quoted a Canadian Pacific Steamship official as saying that so far as it is known, there were no passengers from the liner Empress of France aboard the wrecked train. The ship docked at Liverpool early today with Canadians aboard.)

The accident occurred at the train was leaving Stowe Hill Tunnel, half a mile south of here on the main London-Liverpool line.

The locomotive plunged down a steep embankment. Five of the leading coaches piled up, badly smashing the first two.

The engineer, buried under tons of coal which slid from the tender, was dug out badly injured.

An early estimate by the Northamptonshire county police had given the number dead as 20. The later figure was based on actual count of bodies recovered.

Verdict Boosts Risks of Married Life Says Judge

Welland, Ont., Sept. 21 (CP)—By a verdict which a judge said typified the hazards of married life, Edward Anthony Bassett, 49-year-old foundry worker from Buffalo, N.Y., last night was acquitted of murder in the shotgun-slaying last June 16 of his roommate, wife.

Bassett said he did not intend to kill Mrs. Leone Peterson when he wielded the pump gun that literally blew the top of the woman's head off as the cottage they shared at nearby Crystal Beach.

He said he had taken out the gun to end his own life after a day of quarrelling that started when he found the woman in bed with another man.

The jury deliberated only 22 minutes at the end of the three-day trial. When its verdict was announced some of the spectators cheered as the presiding judge, Mr. Justice Malton Wells of the Ontario Supreme Court, ordered the seven women removed from the courtroom.

After thanking the jury for its services, Mr. Justice Wells commented:

"It may be that, is common with other juries in Ontario, you are considerably increasing the hazards of married life. But that is your responsibility and I have to leave it with you."

Whisked Away

A free man, Bassett shook hands with his lawyer, Allan E. Brooks, as he stepped from the courtroom dock. Then he was embraced by relatives, who quickly ushered him outside and whisked him off to Buffalo by car.

Earlier, in the witness box, Bassett said frequently as he described the turbulent scene of the day of the shooting. He said Mrs. Peterson threw beer bottles at him and threatened to cut his head off with a piece of shattered glass.

Just before the shooting, she threw an ornament through a window and hit him on the shoulder. He picked up the gun. "I told her to drop the glass and leave. She wouldn't. I was holding the gun, it went off."

Bassett said he had used the gun on himself, inflicting arm, chest and neck wounds.

Agreement was reached on sharing the costs of European airfields, communications and barracks for the integrated forces in Europe. Canada's share of the contribution will be about $10,000,000.

Unanimity also was reached on a request that the council meet three or four times a year instead of once.

Allies Uncork Tank Attack In Heavy Fighting and Reds Thrown Back on Two Fronts

Tokyo, Sept. 21 (AP)—Allied tanks and infantry today crashed into the apex of the old communist "iron triangle" on Korea's central front in perhaps the heaviest armored blow of the war.

Elements of three United Nations' divisions powered the mighty assault.

A field dispatch said the giant task force late Friday completed its first-day objective. The mission: to seek out communist strong points and shoot up every target in sight.

The assault force rolled deep into the valley massing area before it ran into firm resistance.

Front-line reports said one speeding war jacked in savage combat with red troops swarming on all sides.

Overhead, allied planes darkened the skies.

The thrust was dubbed "Operation Cleaver". But it was not officially labelled an offensive—it was an armored raid.

Pyonggang, apex of the triangle which also is bounded by the key cities of Chorwon on the southwest and Kumhwa on the south-east, is 29 miles north of the 38th Parallel.

Bitter Fighting Flares

Bitter fighting flared across 80 miles of the Korean front, all the way from the triangle area eastward to the sea of Japan.

On the east-central front the reds hurled fresh troops into thereported fairly easy going.

bloody "Battle of the Hills" they stopped the month-old allied advance in its tracks.

Only local patrol clashes were reported from the western front.

Eleven times U.N. infantry stormed the spiny ridges. Eleven times they were thrown back. It was the strongest communist stand in months.

But there were signs that the allied air, artillery and small arms fire were taking their toll. AP correspondent Stan Carter reported from the east that hundreds of north Korean reds apparently were trying to surrender.

Carter said allied troops near "Heartbreak Ridge," north of Yangyu, were ordered to hold their fire while a communist battalion walked toward allied lines making surrender signals.

Ten miles away another group of north Koreans threw up their hands after allied planes bombed, strafed and fire-bombed their position on a hill north of Yanggu.

"Operation Cleaver" kicked off at dawn Friday. Armored spearhead ranged out ahead with the infantry right behind to mop up. Allied planes prowled overhead like a giant serial umbrella, seeking out any moving target.

It was a new phase of the Korean war. Until now, save for the Naktong breakthrough last fall, armored operations have been comparatively small.

Allied Air Force Chief Is Killed In Crash

Canberra, Australia, Sept. 21 (AP)—Air Vice-Marshal Frederick Scherger, 48, chief of the Australian air staff, was killed today in the crash of a Canberra bomber.

Scherger was the highest ranking Australian officer to be killed in the Korean war.

Two other officers were killed in the crash of the jet bomber at Point Cook, near Melbourne.

Buyers' Resistance to Beef Prices Suggested by Head Of Women's Institutes

Ottawa, Sept. 21. (CP)—Mrs. Hughes Bummett of Fonthill, Ont., president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, suggested today that women could help hold down the price of beef in Canada by a "buyers' resistance".

In her own hometown, she told the Canadian Association of Consumers' Board of Directors, there is evidence of such resistance and that a decline in the price of beef is likely.

A spokesman for Canadian rural women, Mrs. Summers suggested that if Canada is going to set up controlling measures to scrutinize prices for agriculture products, she should also set up commissions to control the prices of machinery, equipment and supplies used in the production of those products.

Free Threat to Health

Mr. Avis Clark of Winnipeg, the association's national chairman on milk, said the effort by producers and distributors to raise the price of milk posed a dangerous threat to the country's health.

Milk consumption in Canada, he said, was declined because prices were rising beyond the consumer's ability to pay.

She did not believe the answer was in the establishment of rigid price control by provincial milk commissions.

When these commissions refixed milk prices, they were always upwards, never down. They pampered inefficiency. Perhaps the answer was in limited control and a wider sphere of competition in the trade.

Defeat Resolution

The association, turning to meat prices, defeated a resolution aimed at imposing an embargo against the shipment of Canadian beef to the United States and thus providing cheap beef for the Canadian market at possibly lower prices.

A majority opinion was that this would lessen Canada's chances of getting American dollars required to purchase essential U.S. products.

Owen Sound, Sept. 21—(CP)—The board of governors of Owen Sound General and Marine Hospital Thursday night abolished the 20-per cent surcharge of patients from outside Owen Sound and Grey county. The surcharge was to help meet operating charges.

In its place the board imposed a 10 per cent capital surcharge on room rental. The change results in a substantial reduction in charges for patients from outside Owen Sound and Grey.

The deficit now is only about $1,700.

Trail of Wreckage Left by Daniel

Medis, Pa., Sept. 21—(AP)—Daniel Kennedy drove only two blocks, but it cost him $100.

Patrolman Chester Souders said this is what happened:

Kennedy entered a plea of guilty before Judge William R. Toal yesterday on a charge of operating a car while under the influence of liquor.

Oklahoma Folk Fish by Telephone Without Use of Hook, Line, Sinker

Hugo, Okla., Sept. 21 (AP) — You-grind-it-telephones are being used in these parts to put a mess of fish on the tables — and not by calling the corner market.

The folks here are telephoning for fish — and getting them on the end of their lines.

Fishermen don't get a "number please" from an operator, although they are cranking the old-style telephones.

The fishing is based on sending an electrical charge through the water, and shocking them into unconsciousness.

Haskell Watson, a state ranger, says there's no trick of making the gear in the outfit.

The fishermen take the crank phone, extend two wires out of it — attach them to two large squares of screen and then they're ready to fish.

They drop the screen to the bottom of a stream, give a couple of turns on the phone and wait.

"After the shock," Watson says, "the fish come to the top like a wild Brahma bull in the rodless angler nabs them in a net."

Mossadegh Likely to Await Result of British Election Before Sending Oil Ultimatum

Tehran, Sept. 21 (AP) — Informed sources said today Premier Mohammed Mossadegh is dropping plans to send Britain an ultimatum on the stalled oil dispute until after the British election next month.

A note demanding the reopening of negotiations—broken off last month—will go to London soon, but it will not contain the threat to expel within 15 days the last British oil technicians left in Iran, it was reliably reported.

The switch in tactics is said to be based on Mossadegh's belief that Prime Minister Attlee would not make any further concessions with Iran while fighting the election against the Conservatives. The Conservative party, led by Winston Churchill, has advocated a tougher policy with Iran.

The Iranian cabinet has scheduled a meeting for tomorrow to decide what to do with the ultimatum. Mossadegh had tried to relay it to Britain via W. Averell Harriman in Washington, Harriman refused a few days ago to send it on.

Bevan Assails Labor Party's Executive

London, Sept. 21. (Reuters)—Aneurin Bevan, firebrand of the Labor party, today was the centre of the first stormy blowing out of the campaign for Britain's Oct. 25 general election.

Bevan's pamphlet published today, assailed the Labor party's national executive, including its trade union members, and claimed that world events have proved the Bevanite contention that the government was wrong in its defence budgetting. Bevan says the executive has betrayed the whole British economy.

Bevan's pamphlet was scheduled for publication before the election date was announced but it threw into sharp focus the potential split in Labor lines.

Today, the voice of the powerful trade unions whose confidence Bevan has been trying to undermined a rallying call to the party.

Sir William Lawther, president of the 800,000-strong national union of mineworkers, one of the most influential bodies in the 8,000,000-member Trades Union Congress, told a reporter:

"Nothing said by any section of opinion, however important it may regard itself, will deter my single mindedness, with my colleagues, from massing themselves solidly behind the Labor government."

Some Labor members predict the timing of Bevan's publication may antagonize party members who are sympathetic to Bevan. There will be a strong effort to unite the party during the next month.

Sorensen Head of Restaurateurs, Denies Meal Prices Are Excessive

Kingston, Ont., Sept. 21. (CP)—Clarence L. Sorensen, president of the Canadian Restaurant Association, yesterday denied that restaurants are "raiding" their patrons' pocketbooks.

The charge was made in Ottawa, Wednesday by L. F. Burrows, secretary of the Canadian Horticultural Council, who said in a statement that restaurants were charging "fantastic" prices for home-grown fruits and vegetables.

Mr. Burrows said the high prices were "unjustified" in view of Canadian products and "damaging the entire fruit and vegetable industry."

Mr. Sorensen, now on a goodwill tour in connection with his association duties, said the charges made by Mr. Burrows were "exaggerated and misleading". Answering his accusations point by point, Mr. Sorensen said that there is no seasonal variation in prices because of the labor costs involved. "We serve canned fruit dishes; in summer you have to pay some one to peel and core the fresh fruit. It all evens up."

Referring to the charge that ingredients of an apple pie selling for $1.20 amounted to only 10 cents, Mr. Sorensen said that apple pies cost even 14 cents for the apples and 15 cents for the crust. "But many restaurants buy that same pie from bakeries and it costs them 25 cents."

As for Mr. Burrows' statement that restaurants were charging "fantastic" prices for fresh peas and potatoes which cost less than two cents a pound, Mr. Sorensen said: "We buy potatoes by the case; four cents a pound in each case; to which must be added cost of wastage, overhead and labor.

"Wholesale food prices are up two to five times over their prewar levels and labor costs have doubled or tripled. Restaurant prices at top are no more than twice what they were before the war. And we have people think we're making a killing."

Exports of British Cars to Canada Slump Sharply

London, Sept. 21 (CP) — Exports of British automobiles to Canada slumped sharply last month, trade figures show. The August total was 548 compared with 1,876 in July, 5,482 in June and 7,613 in August, 1950. British manufacturers attributed the slump to Canadian restrictions on installment buying.

Despite the drop in automobile exports, board of trade figures for August showed a total export of £226,200,000 — more than £4,000,000 higher than in July or about two per cent above the average for the second quarter of this year. Exports to North America were £800,000 below July's figure of £27,200,000.

Help the Blind To Help Themselves

It is a rare privilege to be able to bring some measure of light to a life darkened by blindness, as Mr. George Wallace, Chairman of the Advisory Board for Hastings County pointed out in his annual appeal for funds to carry on the work of helping the blind help themselves. In Belleville there are 42 blind persons registered, and a total of 123 in the county.

If you are able to read this, the Institute asks you to help those who cannot by providing the means to teach a sightless man to see his hands and ears to "see" for him; to bring to an elderly woman the comforting words of her favorite author by means of a Talking Book; to show a mother how she can cook and sew, and play with her children, although she is blind and deaf.

The home teacher who is herself blind, instructs adults in home adjustments, handicrafts, embossed reading, typing, and other useful occupations.

A radio service is provided with sets loaned, repairs and batteries kept in order; embossed books for reading, and recorded books with the Talking Book. Space is limited and cannot serve the constant demand for them.

The Canadian Institute for the Blind provides work for a number of people, who not only train and place workers in suitable occupations.

Think for a moment what it means to be blind, then give with generous hearts, according to your own sight to those less fortunate. Contributions may be sent to Mr. H. J. Fuke, manager of Canadian Bank of Commerce in the city.

Gen. Anderson, US Bomber Chief, Visits Trenton

Trenton (Special) — One of the U.S. Air Force's top generals, stopped off here this week for a lecture to the National Defence Staff College at Kingston yesterday.

Major-General Samuel E. Anderson, commanding general of the 8th. U.S.A.F., dropped in at the Trenton Air Station late Thursday. He was aboard a big C-54 transport with staff officers and crew members.

The general flew in from Fort Worth, Texas, as an exchange lecturer from the U.S. He was conducted to and from Kingston in a lighter R.C.A.F. commuter.

Describes Bombing

At R.M.C., General Anderson outlined the purpose of strategic air command and the effects of heavy bombers in modern warfare. He illustrated some remarks describing the newest strato-jet B-47 medium bomber in the 600 m.p.h. class and how it fits into the striking force picture. His command controls the heaviest bombers in the world and if necessary could convey the atom bomb to enemy targets. His message did not touch atomic warfare, but he answered questions on the subject to a gathering afterwards.

General Anderson was filling in for Brigadier Lindsay, chief of the S.A.C. who was scheduled to arrive here last week-end but was unable to make the trip.

Liked Canada

The general and his staff agreed on one point: that their stay in Canada was too short.

Presence of green grass between the runways came as a surprise to the visitors who have been accustomed to parched yellow turf in the hotter climate.

Also on hand to meet the general and his aides were: Air Vice-Marshal C. R. Slemon, officer commanding, training command headquarters, and Air Commodore W. W. Brown, chief staff officer, training command.

They bade the visitors farewell on the tarmac before they left.

Included in the general's party were: Capt. L. R. Young, Capt. R. S. Anderson, and Capt. Max Sasko, T/Sgt. D. Daniels, T/Sgt. J. R. Hudson, S/Sgt. C. D. Harris, M/Sgt. B. McClure and Cpl. C. M. Dixon.

Councillors Visit New County Home

Members of Hastings County council holding their September session this week-end took time out today to visit the new county old people's home on Trent Road.

The morning session of council was adjourned early to allow the members to visit the nine home in a body at the invitation of committee chairman Lee Grills, reeve of Elzevir.

In inviting the members to visit the new home, Reeve Grills at the same time invited any criticism which councillors may find warranted. Although construction of the home is now nearly completed no definite date has yet been set for the opening.

18 Rail Unions Approach C.N.R. For Wage Hike By Fall

Montreal, Sept. 21 —(CP) Frank H. Hall, chairman of the general conference committee representing 18 international railway unions, today announced the unions have approached Canadian railways for consideration of wage increases because of the increasing cost-of-living.

"In view of the fact that last year's arbitration settlement has been in effect for only seven months, a request for a specific amount of increase has been represented. It was anticipated the railways would give sympathetic consideration to the matter as being a common problem, and that there would be discussions between them and the unions on the subject in the near future."

He said the last increase for the majority of railway workers was effective Sept. 1, 1950, under the arbitration award of Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock. It amounted to seven cents an hour.

Mr. Hall added that "this was the actual amount reglected by the unions on June 15, 1949, but during the interval and the prolonged negotiations the amount then fell short by 3.2 cents of maintaining the 1948 wage cost-of-living relationship. . . .

Mussolini's Body Not Wanted By Family

Rome, Sept. 21 (AP)—Italo Formichella, lawyer for Rachele Mussolini, widow of Dictator Mussolini, said today the Duce's body has not been returned to the family because they live in fear and are afraid of the dead."

The lawyer issued the statement in denying reports published in the newspaper Momento Sera Sept. 14 that Mussolini's body was to be returned to the family for burial in his hometown cemetery at Predappio.

The whereabouts of Mussolini's body remains a mystery. After he was slain by partisans at the war's end, his body was buried in a Milan cemetery but it was stolen and taken to a monastery at Pavia. The government later recovered the body and it was buried in a secret place.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 21 (CP) —Industrials weakened steadily each day in early afternoon stock market dealings. Prices slipped slightly at the opening, hesitated, and then turned steadily lower.

Activity continued strong with selected base metal and western oil issues figuring largely in the turnover. Volume for the first three hours was 2,461,000 shares. Industrials, especially market leaders, also were active.

Only banks found enough support to show gains. This trend for fractional advances. Constructions held firm while utilities, agriculturals, foods, liquors, textiles and miscellaneous industrials showed little trend.

Western oils weakened. Midcontinent traded more than 300,000 shares for penny gains. Calnorth, Kroy and Pacific Petroleum also bucked the trend.

Base metals were mixed and senior golds turned downward.

The exchange's 1 p.m. indices showed industrials down 2.58 at 356.50, golds down .47 at 84.12, base metals down .13 at 155.43 and western oils down .97 at 119.06.

British Troops Well-Clothed For Korean Winter

With Commonwealth Forces in Korea, Sept. 21 (Reuters)—British troops should meet Korea's fierce winter more comfortably this year. Top-priority supplies of new winter clothing were being distributed today on a month ahead of schedule.

Last year, British troops suffered severe frostbite casualties through inferior winter clothing. Troops were without vital sleeping bags until January, an officer disclosed today.

Fifteen thousand heavy blankets were being distributed by army quartermasters. Assembled at commonwealth distribution points were sleeping bags, new-ly-developed frostproof boots, fleecy underclothing and other protective clothing.

Protective outer clothing consists of fleecy woollen vests and elastic-bottomed, pajama-type trousers over long woollen underpants.

Over this the soldier will have a parka, then a new wind-proof jacket with hood and windproof trousers.

He may also wear one of two types of outer coats, the weight, light or heavy varying with the soldiers' duty.

The commonwealth soldier will also wear wool-lined, waterproof trigger-mitts with white cloth mittens over them.

The new British boot is of a canvas-type material, worn over two pairs of socks. There are high rubber boots for mud and water.

Canada's 25th Brigade, which will serve with the Commonwealth forces, will have its own issue of winter clothing, developed in the Canadian north-land and tested over a number of years. An army spokesman at Ottawa said the Canadian winter issue is recognized among the world as that the P.P.C.L.I. who wore it in Korea last winter had no clothing problems.

'Big Chief' Neal Now 'Honest Injun'

Genial Ross Neal, Reeve of Deseronto, has a new name to go under when he attends county council. As of yesterday Reeve Neal expects to be known as "Big Chief" Neal of Deseronto.

It all comes about as result of a sidelight at Thursday afternoon's council session when Reeve Neal was escorted into the council chambers dressed in the regalia of an "honest Injun" Indian Chief.

After saying his respects to Warden Harry Coulter, Chief Neal took his accustomed seat in the council chambers. A few moments later one of the councillors suggested the war feathers be removed as they were distracting attention from council business. The feathered headdress and bead covered tunic were borrowed by Reeve Neal for the occasion.

Takes Less Work To Earn Price Of Milk, Butter

Toronto—Despite the increase in price of butter and milk it takes less working hours to buy these products today than it did in 1939, the National Dairy Council said this week.

In figures prepared from Dominion Bureau of Statistics tables the Council says that in 1939 the average worker had to work for 15.6 minutes to buy a quart of milk. Today 10.1 minutes' work will buy a quart. During this period overall food prices have risen 138.4 per cent. Milk prices have gone up by 75.7 per cent.

For butter the figures showed that in 1939 it required 41.2 minutes' work to buy one pound. On June 1 this year it required 35.3 minutes of working time.

No Indication King's Treatment Needs Operation

London, Sept. 21. (CP)—A Buckingham Palace spokesman said today there has been no indication that the King's treatment for a lung ailment requires an operation.

The spokesman said that Princess Elizabeth is completing last-minute plans for her trip to Canada and there is "nothing to suggest any change" in her plans.

Elizabeth and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, said Tuesday for Canada.

The Queen, now back at the palace after her vacation in Scotland, drove to nearby Clarence House today to visit Princess Elizabeth.

The King, suffering from an undisclosed lung ailment, was visited by his doctors today for the fourth time in 48 hours.

A crowd of several hundred persons outside Buckingham Palace saw Sir John Weir, the King's chief physician, and three associates enter the gate shortly before noon.

It was reported in court circles that the treatment prescribed so far for the ailing monarch consists mainly of rest.

Except to say that the ailment has led to "structural changes" in one lung, doctors have given no hint of what it is.

Destroyer Huron Welcomed Home After Duty Tour in Korean Waters

Halifax, Sept. 21 — (CP) — Eastern Canada welcomed home her second Korean sea fighter today when the destroyer Huron sailed into Halifax harbor to a clamorous greeting. Cmdr. E. T. G. Madgwick of Halifax sailed the warship from her home port here Jan. 22 for a six-month tour of duty in Korean waters.

Also arriving was the cruiser Ontario, which accompanied Huron from the west coast, the destroyer's first stop on the way home. Both ships will remain here a few days before leaving for a rendezvous in mid-Atlantic with the Empress of France, carrying Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip, to Canada.

Helicopters from the naval air base at nearby Shearwater met the warships outside the harbor and hung about the masts until they tied up at naval dockyard.

Then, a navy band banged out "Hearts of Oak" amid whistles and horns, and the cries of wives and sweethearts.

The destroyer Nootka was welcomed home from Korea exactly one month ago.

Cmdr. Madgwick spoke proudly of his crew, most of whom have "well-deserved" short leaves coming. "First class under all conditions", he said.

One trophy the Huron brought back from Korea is a turtle, beautifully mounted on a shield, and presented by the Cayuga when they were neighbors a few early this year. The Cayugans thought the east coast warship was a little slow getting there so inscribed on the plaque is "to our relief the Huron hurriedly outside" — Cayugans. "The Order of the Turtle."

Man Captured Being Held For Burglary

Windsor, Sept. 21—(CP)—One man was captured and a second arrested with possible wounds Thursday night when they were interrupted in what police at nearby Riverside believe may have been an extortion attempt.

John Timko, 26, of Windsor, is being held on a housebreaking charge. His companion is still at large.

Valco Adamov of Riverside, told police he returned home and surprised two men in the house. He said he fired one blast from his shotgun but wasn't sure if either man was struck by the pellets.

A search of the house by deputy chief Bryce Monaghan turned up a length of rope and a heavy belt which had been left behind by the intruders. Chief Monaghan expressed the opinion that the men intended to tie Adamov up and force him to give them money.

Gaitskell Says Another Fighter Coming Along

New York, Sept. 21—(Reuters) Hugh Gaitskell, Britain's chancellor of the Exchequer, said today the future happiness and peace and security of the world depend more upon Anglo-American understanding than anything else.

Gaitskell spoke on "the impact of rearmament on Britain's economy" at a luncheon of the Foreign Policy Association.

He said that Britain's three-year defence program includes nearly £6,000,000,000 for equipment.

On Britain's new aircraft production, Gaitskell said "there is yet another fine fighter coming along—the Swift—from the same stable that produced the Spitfire. "Our experts believe that at this moment we 'have the edge' on any country in the world in new fighters."

Estranged Wife Of Accused Takes Stand

Brantford, Sept. 21 — (CP) — Mrs. Crown at noon today completed its case against Donald Devereux, 23, charged with the fatal stabbing June 16 of Mrs. Violet Thomson.

Mrs. Josephine Devereux, estranged wife of the accused, was the first defence witness called by J. J. Robitaille, defence counsel. She testified that Mrs. Thomson "wouldn't leave Donald alone."

She said she had met Devereux in Toronto June 14 and he had asked her at that time if he might live with her again. She said she had agreed to resume cohabitation and arranged to meet her husband again June 16.

Early that day, Devereux was arrested after Mrs. Thomson's body was found in Devereux's truck, parked in front of the home of Mrs. Thomson's estranged husband.

THERE ARE STILL OPPORTUNITIES

One of the axioms of the late Adolf Hitler was that if a lie is big enough and is repeated often enough, a good many people will, in the end, accept it as a fact. One of the lies that has been repeated by certain politicians in this country so often that is accepted as a fact by many people, particularly younger people, is that Canada is no longer a land of opportunity. Every once in a while, however, something turns up to prove that Canada is very much a land of opportunity and that opportunities are available at every hand for the fellow who is on the look-out for them.

In 1907, a 33-year-old Englishman immigrated to this country. His name was William H. Wright. When he landed in Canada, he was, to use his own phrase, "practically broke." He worked for a time at the trade he had learned in England, butchering.

Later, he decided to go prospecting in northern Ontario. Within a few years, he had discovered claims which made him worth a considerable sum of money. Although too old to be conscripted when the First World War broke out, he enlisted as a private and fought with the Canadian army until the cessation of hostilities.

Afterwards, he went back to his prospecting in northern Ontario. He continued to find valuable mining claims. Some of these he sold. In others, he retained an interest. As the years rolled by, William H. Wright's money kept rolling up faster than he could spend it or give it away — he did give away large sums at various times. A few years ago, Mr. Wright's income before taxes was estimated at $2,000,000 annually. He was reputed to be one of the wealthiest men in the British Commonwealth.

Mr. Wright provided the capital which was used to purchase the Toronto Globe, and later, the Mail and Empire, which were amalgamated into the Globe and Mail. The Globe and Mail interests have since acquired ownership of the Telegram, formerly the Evening Telegram.

For the last two decades, Mr. Wright spent most of his time at his home in Barrie, where he has also devoted largely to horse breeding. Some of his thoroughbred horses. Mr. Wright's philanthropies were numerous and lavish, but not generally known to the public, as they were usually made anonymously.

It is well known in Kirkland Lake, where several of the gold mines which Mr. Wright controlled are located, that he had donated to the community both its large modern arena and its hospital. The hospital must have cost several hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Mr. Wright died at his Barrie home early Thursday, at the age of 75. As stated previously, he was rated as one of the wealthiest men in the British Commonwealth; he was certainly worth more than two or three millions of dollars.

The career of William H. Wright proves that Canada still provides opportunities for those who will go out and seek them. When the penniless immigrant can become a multi-millionaire, surely there is a fair chance for the rest of us to get by comfortably, without "changing the system" and embarking upon some socialistic adventure such as that which the people of Great Britain launched in 1945 and from which, by all reports, they are still suffering severely.

HORSES COSTLIEST ATHLETES

Not long ago, it was announced that Canadian football had reached a stage where the high salary undertakings to pay one outstanding slinger of forward passes $20,000 for his services during the current season. National Hockey League stars are reported to receive, on the average, less than $10,000 a season. Baseball players are paid somewhat more than hockey players.

But human athletes have a long way to go to approach the kind of money that is paid for race horses.

Down in California not long ago, a four-year-old thoroughbred named Tom Fool, a foreign. It was then disclosed that his owner had him insured for $250,000 with Lloyds of London, the world-famous insurance company.

The insurance firm paid the claim, then summoned a team of expensive veterinary help in the world to treat the equine patient. The horse recovered. The insurance company has retained ownership of him on the ground that he's worth a lot more than a quarter of a million dollars.

RECORD CROP OF WHEAT

Reports from the West indicate that the Canadian wheat crop this year will be about 379,000,000 bushels, provided weather conditions remain favorable.

The worst of the frost danger is past, and the combines are already rolling across large parts of Manitoba and Alberta. Within a few days, harvesting will be under way in Saskatchewan.

The estimate of 379,000,000 bushels, made by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, is the largest in the country's history.

RICH WITHOUT MONEY

How to be rich without money?
I'm sure I've discovered the way
Just do the little you can do before the chance dies with the day.
It's all in that "Do unto others" as you would be done by,"
and then
The love of the friendships that follow will make you the richest of men.

You needn't be brilliant or clever, and surely you needn't be strong.
If it's something that's right to do, do it; but don't when you know it is wrong.

Be lenient ever with others.
O'erlook many faults you
you may see.
Excuse and forgive them their follies, but strict with yourself you must be.

Don't be embittered by failure;
keep hatred and rage from your speech.
Try to live as the good Lord intended and the Master was sent here to teach.
Serve God and your country and freedom; try always the truth to uphold.
And you will be richer than many whose fortune in money is told.

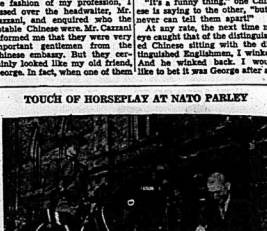
THE PACKSAK

By GREGORY CLARK



A distinguished Englishman caught my eye, I could scarcely forbear a wink, thinking it was George, playing one of his little tricks.

One of the best cartoons the New Yorker ever published was one of two Chinese standing idly on a main intersection in Hong Kong, watching the passing scene. Along come two Americans. One is a little short fat Yank, with heavy horn-rimmed specs, a garish sport shirt and typical American footgear, sizes. The other was a tall gaunt American, with sunglasses, an Adam's apple like a golf ball and a face like a turkey's breastbone.

"It's a funny thing," one Chinese is saying to the other, "but I never can tell them apart!"

At any rate, the next time my eye caught that of the distinguished Chinese sitting with the distinguished Englishman, I winked. And he winked back. I would like to bet it was Georgs after all.

London Canucks May Hit Jackpot With Scots Song

By MURIEL NARAYAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London — (CP) — A ballad of Aberdeen may mark the turning point in the fortunes of former Canadian newspaper man Bill Webb and his English wife Mary.

Although they had never visited the city, Bill and Mary wrote a song called "The Northern Lights of Auld Aberdeen," now in the hands of publishers. They say it has attracted attention in Scotland and hope Scots-Canadians will get a chance to hear it, too.

The theme is the "Merry Dancers in the Sky," Aberdeen's nickname for the Northern Lights or Aurora Borealis. Every young Aberdonian has thrilled to bedtime stories of the "Merry Dancers" which light the sky above the northern seaport.

Bill, former Saskatoon Star-Phoenix newspaper man got the idea from listening to a homesick Scot in London. He supplied the words and Mary the "music for the song that has already been sung over the BBC by Robert Wilson, well-known Scots tenor. Now on a North American tour, Wilson has promised to add the song before Canadian audiences.

Aberdeen's local grocers and Scottish newspapers have received letters commending the tune and calling it "typically Aberdeen." This has given Mary and Bill a much-needed lift. Bill has been partially paralyzed for three years following a stroke. Writing songs is one of the things which keeps him cheerfully determined to keep his mind sufficiently to return to Canada.

He hopes to show Mary Canada's prairies, but first he's getting from memories of the Northern Lights in Canada's north, from folklore stories of Aberdeen, that I got the words for "Northern Lights," he said. Mary composed the tune.

The Webbs, who live in London's West Kensington district, have composed 22 pieces of music of many different types. Two of them, "Sunshine Pie Songs" and "Twilight Tapestries."

The latter is a contention for place which has been praised by Queen Mother Mary and King Frederick of Denmark.

"The Pin Song" is a light two-step with wording based on the old superstition about picking up a pin and being lucky all day. This was dedicated to Bill's wife Mary's brother — Randolph Turpin, Britain's latest boxing sensation.

Finds Gold Mine In Back Yard

Victoria, B.C. — (CP) — H. B. Cox, 65, retired post office worker, has been developing a gold mine in the back yard here for the last 19 years.

Tales of rock with bits of the shiny, precious metal and the findings of a mineral survey on his property spirited Mr. Cox to action.

He opened a shaft 15 feet deep and found a rich strike. "I struck it he can' sink his shaft deeper," "I would say the rock would yield over a 3½-mile branch line to Little Somethorpe.

Willshire people called it the ghost train because, says Malmesbury Councillor H. V. Bonner, "it ran nowhere and met nothing."

Before its demise, the service had two season-ticket holders. One bought a motorcycle, and then there was one. So the authorities, despite protests by local people, decided to withdraw the service.

"I'm sorry she's gone," said driver Benjamin Hill. "She was a matey little train."

Magistrate Rules Out Statement Given by Accused

Peterborough, Sept. 21. (CP)—The preliminary hearing of Mrs. Lillian Thompson, 35-year-old mother of five children, on a charge of murdering her husband August 25, was adjourned Thursday to Monday after Crown Prosecutor Counsel T. J. Carley, K.C.

Earlier, Magistrate W. R. Philp ruled inadmissible a statement Mrs. Thompson allegedly gave Coroner Dr. Herbert Young the night of the slaying. Dr. Young had testified that she had not been warned she would be charged.

Witnesses at previous sessions of the hearing have testified that Thompson and Mrs. Carney said that he and his wife had been quarreling. William Jamieson, a neighbor, said Mrs. Thompson came to his door later and said: "I've shot him!"

Mr. Carley said Thursday that the accused woman's words could not be taken for intent. "It could have been an innocent happening, one devoid of any criminality," he said.

WHICH METHOD OF TREATMENT FOR HERNIA?

An executive of a large industrial insurance company who had coronary thrombosis three years ago and made a good recovery but was dubious about undergoing operation for a hernia. In an examination of the company's records over a period of years he found that there had been 22 per cent of recurrences after hernia operations. His company was one of four or five insurance companies that send patients who are bad risks for operations to physicians who give the injection treatment. So the executive had injection treatment for himself and is cured of his hernia.

When I say cured I mean to imply that the ambulant, office, injection treatment is as likely to cure as surgery is, and the hernia (rupture, breach) is as likely to remain after operation as it is after injection treatment.

Don't let any operator deceive you about that.

Last new readers misunderstan', this injection treatment is not applicable in every case of rupture. Only examination by the physician will determine whether it offers as good a chance of cure as radical operation — provided, of course, the physician is abreast of progress in the profession.

Doctors who still lay back their fingers and tell patients or customers that the injection treatment is "dangerous," "no good," or has been tried out and found wanting, had better wake up and get with it. Their ostrich act the public is too well informed about these new fangled methods to take such advice without salt. At the meeting of the International Association of Surgeons in Atlantic City two years ago a leading operator stated it was no longer in good taste to claim or imply that hernia operation gives 100 per cent cures.

The truth is that the hernia or rupture recurs in from 5 to 20 per cent of cases following operation. In 754 hernia operations in a Metropolitan hospital there were 15 per cent recurrences. In 25 hernia-operations on members of the London Metropolitan Police force, 20.2 per cent had recurrences in the five year period following operation. In 1483 hernia operations in a large New York hospital there were about 30 per cent of recurrences.

In 1000 cases of hernia treated by the injection method there were 15 per cent of recurrences in cases of small direct and concurrent inguinal (groin) hernia —recurrent, that is, after previous operation; 10 per cent of recurrences in small indirect inguinal hernias. Injection treatment is not suitable for large hernias, direct or indirect, nor for industrial hernias in patients compelled to do heavy manual labor.

Operation for hernia has its death rate. In 20,000 cases treated by the injection method, no death has occurred.

Operation necessities hospitalization of complete rest for a matter of weeks. Injection treatment does not keep the patient from ordinary work or play.

Over ready operators trying to discourage patients from choosing injection treatment sometimes argue that if the patient has to have the operation later the scar or fibrous tissue produced by the injections will make the operation more difficult. That may be true—and vice versa. So what?

Physicians who prefer caution to intuition will find six chapters on injection treatment in Watson's Hernia, outstanding text book (Mosby) now in its third edition in English. How any physician can read or study such a book and still harp that injection treatment is "no good," is more than I can comprehend, but, as Barnum implied—

TODAY'S TALK

GETTING TO KNOW

I read in my books about this tree and that, about every bird, this formation of rock, and I learn about its history, and some of these I read about I find in names—some of them as long as the object itself. But what remains, when I have finished my review, and you may handle them, is their actual discovery! The discovering of them all is not told in the book.

You have to know a tree, flower, or bird, you must see it in its habitat. You must pierce your self into each and keep digging for the knowledge that others may have missed. What do I care for the botanical Latin name of a beautiful fern that spreads its wonder before my eyes as I pass it in a moss-covered path? I can create my own history of it and give it a name out of the library, or dictionary, of my heart!

We don't get to know people by reading about them, or visiting them at their homes, or being with them for a spell. We get to know them when they are off parade, unaspecting, and unaware of our presence. We get to know them in sorrow, disappointment and failure. Then it is that we come to grips with them and are revealed to us only at such times as we can feel, see, and understand.

W. Robertson Nicoll, who was the famous editor of the British Weekly, was asked by his meeting with George Glasing and George Gissing, and listening to them talk. It was his time that Glasing was going through a trying experience in his life, but not a word was said about it. It was at such a meeting, the great editor learned that men came to know each other.

Your easy read book after book about the remarkable thing of nature, but you never get to know it fully know its wonders until you get a tent, or have a cabin in the woods, as Thoreau did, and come face to face with nature and in full communion with it. There it is that you learn its language.

The soldier in training or in battle gets to know his buddy beside him. There is nothing false about their relationship. There is the instinct of understanding between them.

MONEY HAS ITS LIMITS

When Simon the Sorcerer tried to buy from the apostle Peter the gift of the Holy Spirit, Peter's answer was, "Thy silver perish with thee, because thou has thought to obtain the gift of God with money."

There are some things money will not buy; Almost everyone is willing to admit this, but very few people realize the extent to what they are saying when they make the admission. Deep down in their hearts they believe that if they had a sufficiently large bank account they could buy everything they want and achieve anything they want to achieve.

And perhaps they are right—for their desires may not be very elevated. Their ideals of achievement may be low. If all they want are good clothes and the gayest kinds of pleasures, then they can buy such things with money. They can buy liquor with money, and drugs and good food and the satisfying of many of their appetites. But none of these things will bring happiness, and the possession of many of these things constitutes a real achievement.

George Washington Carver, the Negro scientist, refused an industrial retainer of $100,000 a year and chose instead to remain a college professor at a few thousand dollars a year salary. Robert E. Lee turned down a fortune rather than allow his name to be used to advertise a lottery. "My name," he said, "is not for sale."

There are some things—and some persons—which money cannot buy.

Hastings County to Combine Offices of Clerk, Treasurer; Bailey's Resignation Received

Hastings county will combine the offices of its clerk and treasurer, it was decided by council members at their September session which convened Thursday for a two-day meeting. Previously the offices of clerk and treasurer have been filled by separate men.

The resignation of county treasurer Ross Bailey, effective December 31, was accepted by council, this being followed by a recommendation from the finance committee that the two offices be combined. Councillors went into caucus to discuss the matter and later concurred in the finance committee recommendation.

Erie S. Denyes is the present county clerk. The appointment for the combined office will be made before the end of the current session.

The caucus meeting for discussion of the office of the clerk and treasurer took up most of the afternoon on Thursday, the balance of the time being taken mostly by reports of the various committee heads.

Province To Help

Verney Heath, chairman of the Roads and Bridges committee told of the recent meeting with Highways Minister George Doucett at which Mr. Doucett announced the department would take over the 5th concession of Sidney as a development road, paying 100 per cent of the cost of construction. The width of the road would be built this year, he said.

It would be up to the county, however, to purchase whatever extra width is necessary for right of way and it was expected that surveys would soon be on the job to survey the road.

The Sidney township reeve, Lee Grills, said he appreciated the efforts of the roads committee. It had been felt for years that the 5th concession was not suitable for the traffic it carried. The decision to turn it into a development road would save the county money and give a better road.

While on the road question, Reeve Theodore Tryon of Rawdon stated he felt that this would be an opportune time to again approach the highways department regarding the Foxboro-Madoc county road, now a connecting link between two highways.

Reeve Clarke T. Rollins wanted to know if any action had been taken with respect to placing warning lights at the Ivanhoe crossing, which he said had claimed two lives within the last year. He was told that the matter would be brought up later in the session.

Figures Cited

The matter was again opened for discussion Friday morning when the probable cost to the county was gone into. Warden Coulter cited figures for a similar warning signal at the Shannonville gravel crossing. He said the county would be expected to pay one half the cost of installation and take care of maintenance costs.

Reeve Rollins expressed the opinion the county had no alternative but to do something about the Ivanhoe crossing. "There had been several accidents, traffic was increasing and the cost should be no obstacle," he said.

Reeve Jack Kincaid introduced a motion asking for the county roads committee to take immediate action in recommending to the Board of Transport Commissioners that a signal of the latest type be installed at Ivanhoe. The motion carried.

In introducing the motion Reeve Kincaid observed that highway signs indicating road-side tables were placed 1,000 feet ahead. Signs indicating railway crossings were placed only 300 feet away. "Apparently more importance is given to stomachs than to lives," he said. "It is just something to think about."

Reeve Harold Wells of Stirling inquired respecting regulations about placing highway signs. He said the municipality, together with Frankford and Trenton, was desirous of erecting a sign at West Huntingdon directing motorists to the alternate route to Trenton.

Jack Kincaid, reeve of Madoc, wanted to know why white centre lines on the Foxboro-Madoc road had not been continued to Madoc instead of stopping at West Huntingdon. Mr. J. Heath replied that north of West Huntingdon last year's lines were still visible. Reeve Sprackett of Tudor claimed the centre lines were essential, especially during foggy nights and suggested they be continued on to Madoc.

The recommendation will go out from Hastings county council to the Ontario Department of Highways at Ottawa asking for a bridge and causeway between Deseronto and Prince Edward County.

This was decided after Reeve Stone Neal of Deseronto reported to council the provincial department of highways was prepared to pay 80 per cent of the cost of a causeway across the bay at this point, the council of Hastings and Prince Edward to pay the balance. Construction of a bridge across the channel would be a federal responsibility.

Mr. Neal said a delegation from the two counties had waited on Mr. Doucett and had received the promise that the province would pay 80 per cent of the cost of the causeway. Cost of the causeway was estimated at $168,000, of which $134,400 would be paid by the province. The bridge would cost another $70,000, this to be paid by Ottawa.

Big Proposition

"This is a big proposition," Mr. Neal continued, "but the Glenora Ferry is sadly overcrowded and unable to handle the traffic. Because depth of the water at this point makes a permanent crossing out of the question and the department is willing to proceed with the Deseronto bridge."

Traffic is so heavy on the Glenora ferry crossing that cars have had to wait as much as three hours to get across he said.

"A bridge at Deseronto would be a great benefit to Hastings," he went on. "Traffic would be directed through the county."

Reeve Lee Grills, as chairman of the county home committee, reported the new county home is progressing favourably despite the fact they had run into trouble with the plumbing contract. Some confusion had resulted but there had been little delay. The matter was now in the hands of the general contractor, he said.

He referred to the weeds growing in front of the new county home and admitted that he was not proud of them. However, the ground had not been levelled and was covered with humps six feet high, making it impossible to mow them with a mower. This had been tried, but the mower was broken on two occasions.

Scythes Purchased

The county had even bought scythes, but no one could be found to use them to cut the weeds. One Avondale resident who objected strongly to the weeds had promised to locate men to use the scythes, but the men did not appear.

Roads into the new home had been debated, owing to the high price asked by contractors tendering for the job. However, new prices were to be asked, he said.

Again referring to the difficulty experienced at the home with local plumbing sub-contractor, Mr. Grills made it plain there had been no pressure brought to bear on the general contractor to use local labor. However, through a request from Belleville and out of fairness to the city, it had been asked if consideration could be given to local labor and local sub-contractors.

Edwards Speaks

Zone Forester W. E. Edwards addressed councillors regarding their farm woodlot competition, noting there had been 19 entries. Judging would be completed by the end of October. Purpose of the competition was to encourage better management of woodlots, he said.

Council concurred in a resolution from Leeds and Grenville county asking for an amendment in the assessment act to enable assessment of forest land as waste land in the same area. Under the present system woodlot owners were being penalized through taxation, it was claimed.

Councillors also concurred in a resolution from the same county protesting against the 10 per cent sales tax on fire fighting equipment.

Endorse Resolution.

Endorsation was given to a Grey county resolution calling for larger capital grants to hospitals.

The poor operating service being given by private telephone systems in Hastings townships came up for discussion during the Friday morning session when a communication from the Ontario Hydro was read indicating that special telephone committees had been set up to assist private rural telephone systems.

The matter was first discussed during the June session of council when a recommendation was forwarded to the Ontario Hydro asking that something be done to improve service.

Claims Not the Answer

Following reading of the communication Reeve Rollins wanted to know if the intention was to have private phone companies make representation for assistance. He declared that this was not the answer to the problem in North Hastings. "Our intention was to get improvement through the co-operation of the Hydro," he said.

"As things stood at present it was impossible to talk by phone to North Hastings," he said. This applied for any private system north of Bancroft.

Reeve Irwin McCoy of Marmora township noted there had been developments in radio telephone with one such system being in operation in the Kingston area. "Cost per mile was much less than for a wire system," he said.

Service "Terrible"

Reeve Theodore Tryon of Bancroft agreed that the telephone service north of this village was "terrible."

"I can't think of any stronger adjective in the English language, and I don't object," he said.

He suggested there should be some flexible legislation passed whereby duplication of a public service monopoly could be made by the municipality where good service was not being given.

Reeve Harold Wells of Stirling pointed out it was unnecessary to go north of Bancroft to find poor telephone service. He said it applied even in South Hastings where private lines operated. He felt that now the telephone commission had been set up everything would eventually work out, but he expected the solution would be to have some big firm take over private lines.

Reeve Bill Davis said the Bell system was willing to take over private companies in the north but would not do so unless the Bancroft system could also be purchased. "Much of the trouble could be overcome by proper transpositions on lines and with proper equipment," he said.

Ask For Debenture

A delegation from the Centre Hastings High School Board was present asking the county to underwrite debentures amounting to $40,000 to pay off the school district deficit which had accumulated in three years of operation.

As chairman of the High School Board, Dr. S. Eagleson told council that at the formation of the district it had been expected it could operate with a mill rate of from 2 1-2 to five mills. However, they had run into difficulties at the start with unexpected repairs, increased teachers salaries and in having their transportation grant reduced. The municipalities concerned would be assessed for the deficit which would be paid off in five years.

A by-law for the county to sell the required debentures was scheduled for tabling before the end of the session.

RECORD OUTLAY

Washington, Sept. 21. (AP)—American business is making a record outlay for new plants and equipment in the last half of 1951. A joint survey by the commerce department and the securities and exchange commission indicates capital expenditures of $13,400,000,000 in the last half of this year. This would push the total for 1951 to $24,800,000,000 compared with $18,600,000,000 last year.

LEAPS TO SAFETY

Star City, Ark., Sept. 21—(AP)—A crop-dusting pilot yesterday leaped to safety—without a parachute—just before his plane crashed into an unoccupied school building and burst into flames. William Hembree, 22, escaped with only minor bruises when the plane hit a tree and he jumped as it winged over.

RED P.O.W. WELL UP IN FRONT

A captured North Korean soldier rides on the hood of a jeep where his two U.N. captors can keep their eyes on him as well as the shell-gutted road ahead. The prisoner was taken by U.N. forces during the recent offensive on the East-Central Korean front. Lieut.-General James A. Van Fleet said that the North Koreans lost twenty men to every U.N. soldier put out of action in the four weeks of the Allied advance in this sector. — Central Press Canadian.

Women Control Spending 80 P.C. National Income

Los Angeles, Sept. 21—(AP)—Think this a man's world? Then take a look at this.

It comes from Lillian L. Joseph, New York actress and wife of Home Life Insurance Co., who spoke yesterday before the National Association of Life Underwriters' convention.

"Women," said she, "constitute about 43 per cent of the stockholders who own the corporations of America.

"They own 65 per cent of the accounts held in mutual savings banks.

"They hold title to 40 per cent of the 30,000,000 homes in the United States.

"Women pay 80 per cent of all inheritance taxes and 40 per cent of all property taxes.

"They directly control the spending of 80 per cent of the national income." That leaves, Mrs. Joseph pointed out, 20 per cents for the men to spend for themselves.

London, Sept. 21 —(Reuters) — Worlds Press News, British Press trade magazine, has accused Czechoslovakia of writing "the blackest page of journalism in modern times" by jailing William N. Oatis, Associated Press correspondent.

The Press Weekly said yesterday that evidence for and against the Czech government's prosecution of Oatis on spy charges showed that his only "crime" was doing his job as a newspaper man. Oatis was sentenced to 10 years.

HOLD ROCK FIGHT

Berlin, Sept. 21 (AP)—West Berliners, engaged in a rock fight with communist East Berlin residents along the sector border, were dispersed last night by red police firing warning shots in the air. An estimated 2,000 persons were reported involved.

WEDDINGS

SHONIKER—SPENCER

Tall white standards of bronze chrysanthemums and white gladioli adorned the chapel of the R.C.A.F. Station at Trenton, on Saturday, September 17, at 11 a.m. for the marriage of Lois Pearl Spencer, daughter of Mrs. Ferne Morton Spencer, to Gerard T. Shoniker, of Trenton, son of Mrs. William Shoniker and the late Mr. Shoniker. The Rev. Father O'Donnell officiated.

Miss Peg Lavelle rendered the traditional wedding music and Mrs. Ethel Smith Lawrence, was soloist.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Flying Officer Eugene Spencer, was charmingly attired in a bridal gown of white lace over satin of ballerina length, fashioned with lace reinforcing featuring a winged collar, long sleeves pointed over the wrists; the overskirt falling in points over skirt. Her fingertip veil was held by a ruffled halo of lace and pearls and she carried a cascade bouquet of white gardenias, Hester Reed daisies and trail-ivy.

Mr. Stanley Morton, of Belleville, was matron of honor, wearing a gown of turquoise lace over taffeta with matching bolero, matching Juliet cap and gloves. She carried a cascade bouquet of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums tied with copper-colored satin ribbon. Nursing Sister Therese Shoniker, of Moncton, N.B., was bridesmaid, gowned in copper colored lace over taffeta with matching bolero and Juliet cap and gloves. Her flowers were yellow and bronze 'mums with large bow of turquoise ribbon.

Mr. Gerald Shoniker, of Kingston, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, while Mr. Clair Spencer, of Toronto, brother of the bride, was an usher.

The reception was held at the Maple Inn, Bloomfield, where the bride's mother, wearing navy crepe with draped bolero and lace yoke with red velvet hat, white gloves and corsage of white gardenias, assisted by the bridegroom's mother in black crepe with satin trim, black accessories and corsage of red roses, received the guests.

For the wedding trip to Grand Bend, Detroit and Rochester, N.Y., the bride chose a tailleur with navy gabardine ensemble with coral feather hat, black accessories and corsage of white feathered carnations. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Shoniker will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Rochester, N.Y., London, Toronto, Oshawa and Kingston.

Previous to her marriage the bride was entertained at a personal shower by Mrs. Ellen MacMillan, of Queen Street, Trenton; at a kitchen shower by Mrs. Stanley Morton, of Belleville; and on Friday last, Mrs. Ferne Spencer, mother of the bride, entertained at a trousseau tea in her daughter's honor.

Multi-colored gladioli in graceful baskets were used for decoration. The tea table was covered with a handmade lace cloth and centred with a silver flower holder and candelabra.

Those assisting were, Mrs. William Shoniker, Mrs. M. B. Spencer, of Rochester, both mothers of the bride; Mrs. Ellen MacMillan, Miss Therese Shoniker and Mrs. Stanley Morton.

McCLUSKEY—BOYLE

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, was the scene of a lovely fall wedding on Saturday, September 15, at 9 a.m., when the Very Rev. Dean Garvin, pastor of the Church, united in marriage Barbara Joan Boyle, of Ottawa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James V. Boyle, of Belleville, to Lawrence Urban McCluskey, of Ottawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Francis McCluskey, of Edmonton, P.E.I., before a background of multi-colored autumn flowers, asters and dahlias.

Miss Mary Fluney provided the wedding music, and Mr. Robert J. Fluney, as soloist, sang during the Nuptial Mass "Ave Maria", "Panis Angelicus" and "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her floor-length gown of white slipper satin fashioned with molded bodice, sweetheart neckline, and long sheath-like skirts which fell in soft points over the wrists. The bouffant skirt featured a centre panel from which three tiers of satin extended to the back forming a graduated, white frills of matching satin swept upward at the sides from the panel's lower front. Her full length veil of tulle illusion, edged with Chantilly lace, was held in place by a matching Chantilly lace bandeau. She carried a cascade bouquet of Johanna Hill roses, white pom poms and stephanotis.

Miss Mary Agnes Wilkinson, of Belleville, Miss Virginia Deacon, of Toronto, were bridesmaids gowned in copper brown satin and lace, fashioned in lace and in forest green with matching French blue accessories. Both gowns were fashioned on similar lines with molded bodices, rounded necklines and long tight-fitting sleeves ending in V-points over the hand. Both were completed with matching satin and lace and carried hand bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums dispersed with braided bronze, green and gold satin ribbons.

Mr. Jack Lander, of Ottawa, attended the bridegroom, and the ushers were, Messrs. Ted Boyle, of Montreal, and Dougal Boyle, of Belleville, brothers of the bride, and Mr. Kenneth McIntyre, of Toronto.

At the wedding reception-breakfast which was held at the home of the bride's parents, which was tastefully decorated with basket of pink and white asters, in pastel-tinted gladioli blooms, snapdragons, and pink and white carnations, the bride's mother received the numerous guests, wearing a floor-length gown of powder silk faille with yoke of matching nylon lace, grey hat, white accessories, and corsage of Talisman roses.

The bride's table was beautifully appointed with three-tiered wedding cake topped with pastel flowers, draped with white and tulle surrounded the base, while silver candelabra with ivory tapers with white appliqued cloth carried out the nuptial effect.

For the wedding trip to Montreal, Quebec City and Edmundston, New Brunswick, the bride chose a brown wool crepe dress with bolero, green velour hat, green accessories, Australian mink stole with corsage of Johanna Hill roses. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. McCluskey will reside in Ottawa.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toledo, Ohio, Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa and Edmundston, N.B.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was the honored guest at several showers: a miscellaneous shower at the home of Miss Mary Agnes Wilkinson, Church Street; a crystal shower at the home of Mrs. Terence Dolan, Campbell Street, held by friends of the bride's mother, and also at a party at the home of Mrs. Wilfred LaPorte, Corbyville, when a presentation was made to the bride.

CORNELL—KENT

Gladioli and ferns formed the background in St. Thomas' Chapel, Belleville, on Saturday, September 15, at 7 o'clock for the double ring ceremony, when Archdeacon the Venerable Arthur Smith, united in marriage Carol Noreen Kemp, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kemp, to Harold Raymond Cornell, of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cornell.

Mrs. Marilyn Conkie, of Toronto, sister of the bridegroom, sang before the ceremony, "Love You Truly", and "O Promise Me" and during the signing of the register, "The Lord's Prayer".

The bride was given in effective grey gabardine suit with navy accessories and corsage of red roses; Miss Nellie Jean McKenna, of Belleville, was the only attendant, wearing a navy blue gabardine suit with grey accessories and corsage of pink roses.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her floor-length gown of white slipper satin fashioned with molded bodice, sweetheart neckline, and long sheath-like skirts which fell in soft points over the wrists. The bouffant skirt featured a centre panel from which three tiers of satin extended to the back forming a graduated, white frills of matching satin swept upward at the sides from the panel's lower front. Her full length veil of tulle illusion, edged with Chantilly lace, was held in place by a matching Chantilly lace bandeau. She carried a cascade bouquet of Johanna Hill roses, white pom poms and stephanotis.

Mr. Kenneth Cornell, of Toronto, attended the bridegroom.

Following the reception at the Golden Acres Inn, Kingston Road, the guests returned to the bride's home, where the gifts were displayed, after which the young couple left for Niagara Falls, the bride travelling in a navy dress with wine colored accessories. Upon their return they will reside in Toronto.

For the reception, the bride's mother wore a navy petit point crepe gown with grey accessories and corsage of pink roses, and the bridegroom's mother, a grey gabardine ensemble with corsage of red roses.

Guests were present from Toronto, Niagara Falls and Peterborough.

The tea table was appropriately appointed for the occasion with a lovely ecru, handmade Quaker lace cloth and centred with an exquisite arrangement of peach-colored Piccardy gladioli, Talisman roses, bronze spray-'mums and autumn tinted California grasses, flanked by two branched silver candelabra with yellow tapers.

Mr., Mrs. E. George Celebrate 46th Wedding Anniversary

Forty-six years ago yesterday in St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville, Harriet Arnold and Thomas E. George plighted their troth before Archdeacon, the Venerable Dr. Beamish, rector of the church at that time, and in commemoration of that memorable event, Mr. and Mrs. George quietly celebrated their anniversary at their home on Burnham Street.

For many years, Mr. George was engaged in the barber trade on Front Street, but is now living retired. He was also keenly interested in sailing, being the starter of the boat races both at Victoria Park and at Massassaga. However, sailing has now given place to the raising of Plymouth Rock and Rhode Island Red chickens of which he has a fine flock.

Mrs. George is interested in knitting and in crocheting when not busy keeping her home immaculate and providing tempting meals.

They have three children, all living; two daughters, Mrs. George, of Toronto and Richard E. George of Belleville, and one daughter, Mrs. Cornell, living at home.

The citizens of the city extend to Mr. and Mrs. George their sincere congratulations with wishes for many more years of happiness together.

Children of Mary Elects Executive

The initial meeting of the Children of Mary was held in St. Michael's High School on Tuesday evening last with a good number of sodalists in attendance.

Miss Patricia O'Grady, president, welcomed the girls and outlined the work of the sodality to them. The meeting was honored with the presence of Very Reverend Dean Garvin who made various interesting suggestions towards the work of the sodality for the coming year.

Reverend Sister Mary Lenore, moderator of the sodality, spoke to the girls and expressed her wish for a successful year.

New Executive

The new executive for the 1951-52 year was drawn up as follows: Miss Patricia O'Grady, president; vice president, Miss Catherine Meagher; Miss Vivian Cannon, secretary, and Miss Joan McGuire, treasurer.

The girls were divided into groups to discuss among themselves plans for the year. Many worthwhile ideas were brought forth, Plans were begun for making mission altar linens, visiting the sick in the hospital and having swimming and bowling parties.

Arrangements were made to have a pot luck supper at the October meeting.

A social program followed, highlighted by a radio quiz. The prize winners were: Cleiua Trudeau, Zita Moher, Lillian Bruyea and Ethel Jodoin.

Following a sing-song and refreshments, the meeting was adjourned.

Mohammed Ali To Address Women's Canadian Club

His Excellency Mohammed Ali, High Commissioner for Pakistan, who will address the Women's Canadian Club, Monday evening in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on the subject, "Some Pakistan Problems", is a fluent speaker, thoroughly conversant with his subject.

In 1937 he entered political life, being elected a member of the Bengal Legislative Assembly and in 1941 became president of the Bengal District School Board, later becoming parliamentary secretary to the Prime Minister of Bengal. In 1946 he entered the Cabinet assuming the post of Minister of Finance, and in 1948 was appointed as Pakistan's first ambassador to Burma, and the following year came to Canada as High Commissioner for his country.

His Excellency is an outstanding personality and in great demand as a speaker both in Canada and in the United States of America.

YoungPeople's Group Enjoys Corn Roast

The first Autumn meeting of the Foxboro Young People proved most successful. At 8.30 p.m., two tractors hitched to two rubber-tired wagons appeared at the front of the Foxboro United Church. Some 40 or more young people piled into the fresh hay on the wagons and proceeded on a memorable ride through back roads, across fields, down lanes and even through barnyards. Any conceivable place a tractor could go seemed the approved route. No trifle of nineteenth century Indians on the warpath could have made more noise than the delighted group with their shouting and singing.

The wagons finally came to rest on the banks of the Moira River, on a half acre of flat, smooth rock. Here a huge bonfire was built and the youthful group feasted on boiled ears of corn rolled in fresh butter. The sound of the adjacent river rapids and the brightness of a harvest full moon added considerably to the campfire scene.

After a corn-roast, a short meeting was held followed by a sing-song. The young people present represented Carmel, Marsh Hill, Holloway and Foxboro. Rev. and Mrs. Harold Giffin were part of the happy crowd.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON OF THE WEEK

Compelled to Live Together

By ROY L. SMITH

The peoples of this world will have to learn to live together, or they will kill one another still. The world has grown so small that we are forever tramping on one another's toes, and it takes a vast amount of the grace of God to live together on terms so close.

Still Just One World

Regardless of what we think about political isolationism we are living in one world for the very good reason that there is no other way we can live.

Radio and television have developed to the point that they lay the happenings of all the world before us every hour of the day. A riot cannot occur in Panama that does not become breakfast conversation in Toronto, London, Delhi and Pittsburgh alike. A lynching cannot take place inside the United States that does not set fires around the world.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for September 23: "Living Together In The World," Isaiah 65:17-25; Acts 17:16-17, Romans 10:12; Revelating 21: 1-5.

World War II made it inescapably plain that the most powerful nations depend upon the smallest ones. Out through the narrow gates of Monrovia, Liberia, the United States drew more than a billion dollars worth of rare metals — strategic war materials — from the Belgian Congo.

Trading—Living Together

A world full of people trading with one another must learn to live together. Any man taking an inventory of his average breakfast and morning newspaper will discover that he has drawn upon the ends of the earth.

Western industrialists who seek profits by selling to eastern markets can hardly escape the implication that their profits involve them in moral and spiritual obligations not easily dismissed.

The postwar pinch has made it inescapably plain that this world cannot go on indefinitely. There is no section of this earth which did not feel the effects of the war, and no people escaped its desolation. The living standards of half the globe's population have taken a nose dive, and the well fed workers of the western hemisphere cannot remain forever isolated from the hunger and want that stalks the rest of the earth.

Labor and management together, profiting by trade, must accept responsibility for the conditions of life in those areas with which they trade.

Blood Always Drips Red

A chaplain serving on the Korean front, ministering to men in the hospitals who came from half a dozen nations has made a simple discovery. Using the phrase of a Methodist bishop who served in the First World War, he found that "Whether the wounded are Turks, French, British, Korean, or American— whether they are black, white yellow or brown— the blood always drips red."

There is a basic humanity which is common to all men; there are certain fundamental desires which spring up within all human hearts such as love of country love of family the thirst for friendships, a desire for something higher than things, and a respect for courage.

Among all men there is a deep-seated hunger for God—a concern about the life that is to follow death, a feeling that some divine power is at work in this world.

Takes Religion to do It

There will never be peace in this world, among the nations of the earth, until there is a commonly accepted scale of values. Once that the universal worth of human personality can be established we will have begun the creation of the kingdom of God on earth.

Political theories, economic interests psychological approaches and balances of power are not enough.

Nothing less than a religious fellowship which binds men together as members of one family of God will ever create the ties which will be strong enough to hold our world together.

All Day Quilting

The Supply department are having an all-day quilting at the church hall next Wednesday.

The October meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Frank Jeffs with Miss Ruth Linn and Mrs. Ross Jeffs to prepare the program.

Mrs. Gordon Linn, supply-secretary, reported $54 from the sale of articles for quilts, and thanked all who had assisted in any way.

Mrs. Frank Jeffs introduced "From Lakes to Northern Lights" Mission Board, also "The Home Mission Digest". The first chapter "A new day for Home Missions" told of the blending of three denominations in June 1925, so there would be no waste of missionary resources. The land served includes fisher folk, miners, lumbermen and folks of other industries, and all of the 14 million people in Canada. Home workers are constantly weaving Christian culture into pioneer life.

Five Objectives

The five objectives of Home Missions comprise the sharing with every citizen the privilege of public worship and Christian fellowship. In mihisters on every frontier, strengthens the people's faith; tries to unite the population into one of real brotherhood and lastly it aims to make Canada Christian.

Mrs. Carleton Potts sang "The Voice of My King" and Mrs. Blake Sharp read an item from the Temperance Advocate re individual decisions.

Mrs. Roy Thrasher gave the history of "Brighten the Corner Where You Are", which was written by Mrs. Ina Daley Ogden. This lady also wrote 58 other hymns which are published in "Songs for Service".

The group sang "Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing", "Since Jesus Came Into My Heart", and "He Lifted Me", and Mrs. Thrasher read a story about each hymn.

Mrs. Will Potts conducted the devotional on stewardship and gave a paper based on "Prayer and Thankfulness". She said "each one has had personal experiences of God's guidance and" she closed with "The First Miracle Jesus Performed".

Miss Ruth Linn sang "Take Time to Be Holy", and Mrs. Ross Jeffs read the Bible lesson.

An interesting letter from Mrs. Millicent Howse, of Africa, was brought to the meeting by the new Life member, Mrs. Bonsteel, and read by Mrs. Percy MacMullen. Gifts of thread, pencils, crayons, pictures, notebooks, seeds, scraps, ribbon, and chintz-bags would be greatly appreciated.

Mrs. Charley Bonsteel closed the meeting.

GILEAD WMS

The September meeting of the Gilead WMS was held at the home of Mrs. Wilfred Clare.

A letter of thanks was read by the president from the Overseas Relief committee for a bale sent them.

The program was on "The Church of the Frontiers," with responsive readings by Mrs. Hubel, Mrs. McCullough, Mrs. Balcangeol and Mrs. Bertrand. Musical selections were given by Mrs. G. Livingston and Wanda Swan.

After the closing hymn, refreshments were served by the hostess and a social half-hour enjoyed.

On Tuesday evening, the September meeting of the Ivanhoe W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Harold Reid. The president presided.

Business was discussed and plans were made for the W.M.S. rally to be held in Beulah United Church, October 12. The roll call showed an attendance of 13 members and one visitor present.

Mrs. Arthur Wood took charge of the program and used Dorcas money $7-8-9, as call to worship. Psalm 72 was used in responsive reading.

Mrs. B. J. Beckel and Mrs. C. Mitz gave readings on "Canada and Home Missions". Doris V. Tweidly gave a paper on "Christian Stewardship", in which the gifts of thought, work, time and of inspiration were linked together, showing how one may inspire another to follow Christ.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and a social time spent.

A vote of thanks was extended to the hostess by Mrs. Arthur Wood, for her kind hospitality.

TABERNACLE UNITED CHURCH W.M.S.

The Evening Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society of Tabernacle Church, held their September meeting at the home of Mrs. K. Matthews.

Miss Morton gave a good account of the Presbyterial held at Deseronto recently. This was followed by a letter of thanks from the Overseas Relief Fund.

The members are looking forward to the new theme for study period which will be most interesting, "From Lakes to Northern Lights." Visitors will be welcome.

Cupid Having Difficult Times In Quebec Areas

Quebec, Sept. 18—(CP)— Dan Cupid is having a tough time in Quebec's northwestern frontier areas.

It is one of the problems faced by the Quebec government.

Colonization societies say young settlers and the sons of successful settlers are discouraged because so few girls are willing to share the task of raising a family in the new farming territories of Quebec.

They estimate there are three young men eligible for marriage for every girl in the settlement villages. In most cases, the girls would rather marry city youths than young men setting up homes on new land.

A spokeman for the federation of 17 Roman Catholic diocesan societies recruiting and encouraging pioneers says a possible solution is to encourage young women to serve as domestics in the homes of doctors, government agronomists and other officials in northwestern Quebec.

Possibly one of the basic difficulties is that a settler is still looked upon as a pauper in Quebec because of colonization programs organized for unemployed during depression years.

Profitably Serving

Actually, 30 per cent are people able to finance their own establishment. People who have seen settlers' farms know many now are profitably serving a growing market in the region's booming mining towns.

The government is ready to spend millions on land settlement and religious organizations devoted to the social welfare of settlers.

It has boosted its health services in colonization districts by maintaining nurses — essential where no doctors are available to assist births.

Teachers are still scarce but every effort is made to provide "adequate education to children."

The government's approach to opening up new lands has changed drastically since 1887 when settlement was started to offset the movement of farmers to the cities.

Hit-and-miss tactics of early days now are avoided because lots are classified by farm experts long before a new settler arrives.

Agronomists describe Abitibi soil as rich and able to yield for a long time. Settlers are advised to concentrate on dairy farming because feed grains and hay grow best. Because of cold weather vegetables, except potatoes, grow with difficulty.

Big Australian Insurance Firm Revitalizes Land Formerly Dead

By LOUIS L. LECK

Sydney, Australia. (CP)—Australia's biggest co-operative life insurance company, the Australian Mutual Provident, is backing with hard cash its belief that it can turn a "desert" into productive farm land.

It has taken up 500,000 acres of the Ninety Mile Desert which stretches from South Australia into Victoria, and is negotiating with the Victoria state government for another half-million acres.

The A.M.P. plans to roll "a farm a fortnight" off the desert production line and in the process, perhaps, prove that scientific discoveries can again push further into the future the point at which world food production will be able to meet the demand of expanding world population.

The desert is becoming farm land because scientists discovered that all it needed were "trace" quantities of phosphate, zinc and copper.

The area the A.M.P. is turning into farms is not actual desert. It has an average rainfall of 17 to 22 inches and the soil is absorptive, allowing none of the rain to escape. Plenty of water for stock can be secured by shallow bores.

But the area in the past has grown nothing but sparse cover and stock have never thrived on it.

Australian scientists in 1930 began to investigate "coast disease" which was causing heavy stock losses in some coastal areas. Its severity varied from year to year, from district to district. Cattle died, or became sterile or dropped sickly, stunted calves. Sheep lost condition, their wool became brittle, dry and wiry, their lambs few and sickly.

Copper Was Needed

Researchers studying the failure of plant life to flourish in areas where "coast disease" was prevalent, discovered that experimental plants improved with the addition of "trace" quantities of copper.

Hard research revealed that in these areas there were insufficient amounts of phosphorus and copper for healthy plant life, and insufficient copper and cobalt for animals.

D. C. Riceman showed that the addition of phosphate zinc and copper to the desert soil made it fertile.

Once they were added, plant life thrived, stock grew healthy as they grazed over the land and returned to it the elements which both fed and fertilized the plants needed.

More important still, the needed copper and zinc cost only about seven shillings an acre to add to the land while the use of phosphate—in the form of superphosphate—is standard agricultural practice in Australia.

The A.M.P., with enormous funds requiring investment, became interested in these discoveries, and after careful investigation decided to embark on the project of making farms from a desert.

Already it has created 10 or 15 farms of 1,000 or 1,200 acres where paddocks are thicks with clovers, lucerne and varied pasture, and where fat and healthy ewes are raising fine lambs.

The A.M.P. is using mass production methods. Tractors draw disc plows which carve out roots and chew up debris at the rate of 11 acres an hour.

Then and then cultivated, fertilized and revitalized by chemical "shots", fenced, and bores dug for stock water—all at the rate of 30,000 acres a year.

INDUSTRY AT STANDSTILL

Sydney, N.S., Sept. 21 (CP)—Sydney's big steel industry remained at a standstill today while company and union officials battled over a wage agreement.

It was a case of move and counter-move in the wage dispute between the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation and its 4,700 employees, members of local 1064, United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL).

The men used the weapon of departmental wildcat walkouts and the company countered with suspensions. Production was interrupted completely for the second time last night when workers in the key open hearth department staged a sitdown strike. Today's shift followed suit.

Committee Asks High School Area be Set up

Picton — Recommendation was made to Prince Edward County Council yesterday that a high school area be set up, comprising Picton, Bloomfield, Sophiasburg, North Marysburg, South Marysburg and those parts of Hallowell now served by Picton Collegiate. This recommendation was contained in a report given by A. F. Brown, IPS, on behalf of a committee previously appointed to study secondary schooling in the county.

The committee report stated that in the long run the whole county, except Ameliasburg township, should be one area. Ameliasburg has joined the Belleville district. Certain economies could be affected by all secondary schools using the special facilities of individual schools, it was stated.

The survey gave statistics concerning all secondary schools in the county and pointed out that Picton Collegiate is greatly in need of more accommodation. If new accommodation is required it would take three years to plan and build, it was stated.

Council decided to have further matters in connection with the proposal studied before any action is taken.

Enrolment Up

Picton — The enrolment at Picton Collegiate up to the present is 342, an increase of eight above the total enrolment last year, Principal R. L. Perkin reported today. It is expected to increase as the canning season ends. The increase is particularly marked in Grade IX. There are 122 new students enrolled as compared to 107 last year and 85 the previous year. Buses serving rural areas are largely responsible. All rooms are jammed and the principal states that with a large enrolment in prospect next year, additional accommodation is essential.

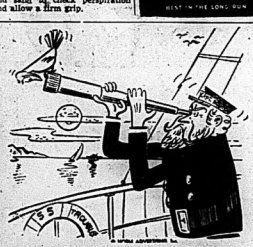
Twenty - two ships carrying food and vital raw materials were tied up.



London's other shipping dispute, a refusal by 4,500 tugmen to work overtime, was expected to end tomorrow.

The tugmen, who are claiming more pay, have been hampering the movement of shipping along the River Thames since Monday.

At Manchester, 21 ships lay idle as 2,500 dock workers continued their two-day stoppage in protest against the suspension of 29 colleagues for refusing to work overtime.

British Buy 200,000 Tons Of Fuel Oil

London, Sept. 21—(CP) — The Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, its oil supplies blocked by the dispute with Iran, has bought 200,000 tons of fuel oil from Rumania for delivery before the end of the year, company spokesman said today.

The oil which will cost a little over £1,000,000 will be shipped from Costanza, on the Black Sea, in Anglo-Iranian tankers and chartered vessels to Middle Eastern ports.

The oil will be used by ships in the Middle East.

The AIOC spokesman said payment is being made in sterling. Romania's price for the fuel oil is "reasonable and competitive," he added.

The company's main operation in Iran has been stopped as a result of a dispute between the British and Iranian governments over the future ownership and control of the $1,400,000,000 industry.

Parties Trek Toward Wreckage Of Two Planes

Vancouver, Sept. 21—(CP)— Two search parties, one in Alaska, the other on Vancouver Island, today trekked toward the wreckage of two planes.

The Alaska wreck may be that of a Canadian Pacific Airlines Korean airlift plane which vanished July 21 with 38 persons aboard.

A foreman at a construction camp near Seward on the Kenai peninsula reported to Elmendorf air force base at Anchorage yesterday he had sighted the wreckage of a DC-3 or DC-4 at the 1,000-foot level in the Kenai mountains. The missing airlift plane was a DC-4.

The wreck scene is about 500 miles beyond Cape Spencer in the Alaska panhandle, the spot from which the missing plane's pilot, Capt. Victor Fox of Vancouver, had reported on a routine radio check.

The Kenai peninsula juts into the Pacific from the south coast of Alaska proper. It is about 80 miles west of the intended course of the C.P.A. plane, which was headed from Vancouver to Anchorage on the first leg of a flight to Tokyo.

The foreman spotted the wreckage through field glasses. He then flew over the area in a plane but the weather closed in.

The forecast was for bad weather in the area for the next 48 hours so a U.S. air force ground party from Anchorage last night began to walk in.

It will take them two or three days to reach the site because of the rough terrain.

The missing plane carried a Canadian crew of seven, including two stewardesses, two Canadian Navy men and 29 American military personnel.

Meanwhile, an R.C.A.F. ground party started up a northern Vancouver island mountain toward the wreck of an American bomber.

The wreckage may be that of a U.S. Navy Neptune lost in that area in November, 1949, or of another U.S. Navy plane which disappeared last December. The first plane carried nine men, the latter 11.

The ground party was not expected to reach the scene until late tonight.

Sudbury Youth Killed in Crash

Sudbury, Sept. 21 (AP) — A Sudbury youth was killed and six persons were injured Wednesday night when his automobile struck a parked car and rolled over into the path of another vehicle 18 miles east of here.

Victor Legace, 21, died in the crash. His companions, Ernest Bertrand, 18, and Kenneth Milton, 19, both of Sudbury, are in critical condition in hospital with head injuries and broken bones.

Three girls from Warren, 40 miles east of here, Verna and Ina Robichaud, 16 and 14, and Annette Thibault, 14, were less seriously injured. They were riding with Marcel Tremblay, 18, of Sturgeon Falls, driver of the car which struck the overturned Legace auto.

An unidentified passenger in the Legace car also was injured.

GOLD TEST

The mineral touchstone has been used to test the purity of gold and gold alloys for more than 2,000 years.

Here's why a further quarter of a billion dollars is being invested by Aluminum Company of Canada in

"OPERATION ALUMINUM"

Kitimat

Peribonka

Aluminum is being put to so many uses these days that Canada's aluminum industry, begun at Shawinigan Falls in 1900, and already grown to giant size, is embarked on another vast expansion program.

More dams, powerhouses, smelting facilities in Quebec . . . a whole new operation in British Columbia . . . these great forward strides will further step up Canada's aluminum capacity to a total of more than half a million tons a year.

IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

Today the names "Peribonka" and "Kitimat" mean nothing to most Canadians. Right now they head blueprints — blueprints of work in the planning stage, of work in progress with thousands of men already on the job.

Project as planned calls for expenditure in the first stage of $200 million; the final stage when completed will increase this to $550 million. First stage to be completed 1954.

KITIMAT SMELTER
Capacity one billion pounds of aluminum a year.

Lake, above Nechako River Dam, 500 square miles in area.

Kemano powerhouse, to be built ¼ mile inside mountain. Eventual capacity 2,000,000 h.p.

"Shawinigan", "Shipshaw" and "Arvida" were new names, too, many years ago. Today they are living reminders to Canadians — and to the world — that Alcan has grown, developing along this country's resources so that now it produces a quarter of the world's aluminum supply.

On the Peribonka River in Quebec, Alcan is harnessing two cataracts — Chute-du-Diable and Chute-à-la-Savanne. These will provide hydro-electric power for a big addition to aluminum output and additional power resources for the Saguenay District.

Meanwhile, up coast 400 miles from Vancouver, a whole new aluminum operation is planned. Where now stands the tiny Indian village of Kitimat, a whole new town will be built; here Alcan will construct a huge smelter. At Kemano, 50 miles away, Alcan will build a powerhouse inside a mountain; a ten-mile tunnel through this mountain will carry water from a chain of lakes down a 2,600 foot drop to develop an eventual 2,000,000 h.p. capacity.

This "Operation Aluminum" means jobs for thousands of Canadians. It means additional millions of dollars coming into this country from abroad, for much of this aluminum will be exported.

It means additional low-cost aluminum for Canada's own use — metal which a thousand plants throughout the country use to fashion everything from utensils and toys to airplanes and bridges.

"Operation Aluminum" is a big thing for Canadians and for the free democratic world. It means a further line of defence against aggression. And it means a busier, more prosperous country in which to live and work.

Canadian Congress of Labor To Launch Big Wage Drive To Fight Rising Living Costs

Vancouver, Sept. 21 (CP) — The Canadian Congress of Labor has pulled the trigger on a wage drive among its 350,000 members to meet rising costs.

The C.C.L. taking this action at its annual convention yesterday, lined up with the 500,000-member Trades and Labor Congress of Canada in giving affiliated unions the lead towards seeking living-cost wage hoists.

The T.L.C. step was taken at Halifax last week. It closely paralleled that of the congress here, which promised support to its unions in looking for "substantial" pay costs.

The C.C.L. went further than the rival congress in deciding to set up regional committees to work with the unions and with a national wage co-ordinating committee of the congress itself in laying down wage policy.

Besides going along with the other congress on the wage question, the C.C.L. made an attempt yesterday to head a breach opened up between the congresses at the Halifax session of the older and bigger T.L.C.

It came out solidly for organic — absolute — unity of all branches of Canadian labor, a step directly opposite to that of the T.L.C. which adopted a policy declaration moving it away from the degree of partial co-operation now existing between the two central labor bodies in Canada.

Unification Planned

The Canadian Congress of Labor leadership has had such a unification plank for several years, but yesterday's resolution was the first time a C.C.L. convention has gone on record in such definite terms.

It called for "one unified central labor body," saying that is the only way for organized labor to be fully effective in advancing the interests of the workers. It ordered the C.C.L. executive to initiate plans to bring about organic unity with the other groups.

Chiefly, these other bodies are the "Big Four" of 90,000 member Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor, largely concentrated in Quebec, and the independent Railroad Brotherhoods, which have 40,000 members in Canada. For the last six months there has been a joint national committee of the four groups, working on common solutions to joint problems.

The C.C.L. decision at Halifax indicated a withdrawal of that congress from the committee, but C.C.L. President A. R. Mosher, chief advocate of complete labor unity in Canada, said he is not disheartened by the Halifax action.

Much In Common

He told the convention "there are so many things we have in common that we should forget about the few things on which we differ and unite on the many things about which we agree."

Aside from the unity questions, the 79-year-old Mosher, founder and president of the C.C.L. since its inception 11 years ago, got an endorsement and a rebuff from the convention Thursday.

He was endorsed at the 60-odd delegates, beating down a small minority of left-wingers, continued Mosher and his right to exercise the right to expel unions considered to be dominated by communists.

He took a licking from the delegates when he tried to get through a resolution that would have empowered him or secretary-treasurer Pat Conroy to stop any C.C.L.-chartered union from going on strike. These local unions—between 175 and 200 of them—have been set up by the congress itself, as distinct from the bigger national and international unions.

FULL SCALE PROGRAM

Dorval, Que., Sept. 21 (CP) — Sept. 21 (CP) — The smallest municipality in the Greater Toronto area has a full-scale civil defence program. Some 200 residents of Swansea have volunteered as air raid wardens and 85 for First Aid units, including 30 persons who have already completed advance training in First Aid.

Wm. H. Wright Buried Saturday In Barrie, Ont.

Barrie, Ont., Sept. 21 (CP)—William H. Wright, 75, founder of the Toronto Globe and Mail, will be buried tomorrow in Barrie Union cemetery after a simple service in a funeral home here.

Pall bearers will include George McCullagh, publisher of the Toronto morning newspaper the millionaire miner magnate founded in 1936 by merging the Globe and the Mail and Empire.

Mr. Wright was probably best known as co-discoverer of the Wright-Hargreaves gold mine at Kirkland Lake, one of Ontario's richest mines. He poured much of his wealth into a horse-breeding establishment out of which came some of the finest horses on the Canadian turf.

His many gifts to charitable causes included $100,000 to a hospital at Kirkland Lake and the $192,000 to a hospital here and $50,000 to the Canadian Red Cross immediately after the outbreak of the Second World War.

His last years were spent quietly, almost in seclusion, in a big house on a hill here. For some years he had suffered from a bronchial condition, but only during the last week was he confined to bed. He died at 11 a.m. yesterday.

ONCE PENNILESS, WM. H. WRIGHT DIED A MULTI-MILLIONAIRE

Horatio Alger himself might blink twice at the story of William H. Wright, above, 75-year-old mining magnate, who died recently from a bronchial condition at his home in Barrie, Ont. Born penniless in Lincolnshire, Eng., he migrated to Canada in 1907 where he rose to become multimillionaire mine owner, horse-breeder and proprietor of Toronto's flourishing morning newspaper, the Globe and Mail.—Central Press Canadian.

Wright, owner of one of Dominion's finest racehorse breeding farms, is seen here at Barrie home with some of his horses. Vice-president of Lake Shore Mines, Ltd., and of Wright-Hargreaves gold mine, he was once a butcher's apprentice in England, where he was born. — Central Press Canadian.

Teachers Want Escalator Clause In Contracts

Toronto, Sept. 21 (CP)—Toronto's 900 secondary school teachers decided Thursday night to ask the board of education for an escalator clause in their new rangements. They proposed that each teacher receive an additional $3 a month during the school year for each one-point rise in the cost-of-living index above 170.

The decision was made at the annual meeting of Toronto District of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation.

Ontario municipalities that now have escalator clauses for teachers are Leaside, Hamilton, Kitchener, Weston, Forest Hill, Scarboro East York, Township, Etobicoke and Newmarket.

Seven Killed As Plane Crashes In Newfoundland

Buchans, NfId., Sept. 20—(CP) — Normandy planes owned by the Buchans Mining Company crashed in landing at South Pond Wednesday killing all seven aboard the board.

The wreckage was discovered Wednesday afternoon by a search plane after the Norseman, on a routine flight to carry supplies to a prospecting party, had been reported overdue.

Dead are:

Pilot Tom Mattinen of Sudbury; Dr. Clarence Leet, geologist of the company; Ralph Barnes of Buchans, George Pike of Badger and Harold Kean of Pigeon Hill, company employees; and Douglas Derry of Botwood. Canadian Pacific Airways whose hometowns were not immediately available.

Edward Martin, company assistant manager, said no word had been received from the Norseman since it left Wednesday morning on the flight to South Pond where a geological party was working.

Carl Fisher, who piloted the Bowater's Pulp and Paper Mills' plane which found the wreck at noon, said he received an account of the crash from two members of the survey camp who watched it at a distance of four miles.

The plane circled the camp and was on its final approach to the lake when it suddenly dived to the earth and caught fire," Fisher said. There was no apparent reason for the crash.

"There was nothing in the wreck that could be salvaged," he said. "The bodies were burned to ashes."

Mr. Martin said the bodies would not be brought back here until civil aviation authorities had examined the wreck scene.

THROWN OUT OF CAR

Toronto, Sept. 21 (CP) — Mrs. Ida M. Lawrence, 74, died on Thursday, shortly after she had been thrown out of her automobile in an accident here.

Mrs. Lawrence was the widow of a United Church minister, Rev. George Lawrence, and was well known in New Liskeard, Coldwater, Clarkson and East York where her husband held charges.

She was thrown from her car when it was struck broadside by another auto.

Tobacco Strike Is Settled

Quebec, Sept. 21—(CP)— Labor Minister Barrette announced Thursday settlement of a strike of 3,000 Quebec province tobacco workers.

The announcement followed a meeting between representatives of tobacco manufacturers and of the International Tobacco Workers' Union (A.F.L.-T.L.C.).

Details of settlement of the strike called early in the month for wage increases were not revealed immediately.

In Montreal Thursday night, a union spokesman said simultaneous meetings will be held Monday morning in the three cities affected by the strike—Montreal, Granby, Quebec and Hamilton.

Union membership then will decide whether or not "to accept terms which have not yet been revealed immediately."

Death Will Not Affect Operation Of Newspaper

Toronto, Sept. 21 (CP) —The Globe and Mail issued the following statement today:

"Although the late William H. Wright was the founder of the Globe and Mail, his passing will not affect the operation of the newspaper. Its policy will remain unchanged.

"George McCullagh, the president publisher, has held the controlling interest in the Globe Printing Co., which publishes the Globe and Mail, since 1942.

"Mr. Wright's estate is the only other shareholder."

Lost U.S. Plane Believed Found On Mountain Side

Campbell River, B.C., Sept. 121 (CP) — Identity of a United States bomber, one of two which disappeared in coastal flights may be made known today.

A search party reached the wreckage yesterday on Mount McKnight after a hazardous climb to the 4,400-foot level.

The wreckage was located on the southwest side of the heavily wooded mountain, some 300 feet below the crest. It's supposed the plane had hit the mountain at a direct angle. The tail section was intact, but the rest of the plane was a jumbled mass of wreckage.

The search party is expected to return here tomorrow but definite identification of the plane may not be disclosed until Lt.-Cmdr. G. Grey of the U.S. Coast Guard, reports to his headquarters in Seattle.

Two U.S. navy Neptune patrol bombers disappeared in the Campbell River area. One was lost with its nine-man crew three years ago. The other, with 11 aboard, vanished last December.

HAVE RAW MATERIALS

Moscow, Sept. 21—(AP)—Alexander Nesmeyanov, president of the Russian Academy of Sciences, said yesterday in an article in Pravda that the Soviet Union now has every raw material it needs inside its own frontiers.

Passenger Plane Guides Trainer Back to Base

Trenton, Ont., Sept. 21 (CP) — A Trans-Canada Air Lines passenger plane guided an RCAF Harvard trainer back onto its course last night, after the lost plane lost its way in darkness over Drumbo on a flight from London, Ont., to the air station here.

The Harvard took off from London at 9:15 p.m. Forty-five minutes later the pilot radioed that he was off course and lost. The control tower at Malton, 18 miles northwest of Toronto, diverted a Toronto-bound airliner flying from Chicago to the area where the air force plane was thought to be.

The airliner established radio contact with the Harvard and a few minutes later the crew sighted the trainer.

The Harvard followed the passenger plane until it passed over the Toronto area. Then it got back on course and came on to Trenton.

The names of the pilots involved were not released.

Forest Fires Take New Toll Along West Coast

Vancouver, Sept. 11 (CP) — Mountain-climbing forest fires today took new toll in the British Columbia area.

No communities were in danger but the flames kept a new path of destruction across the woodlands.

The story was different in the little town of Forks, Wash., in the Olympic Mountains of that state where a fire raged into the logging settlement, forcing evacuation of most of the 1,120 residents.

A shift in the wind helped firefighters, but not before two sawmills, two big logging truck garages and 15 houses were destroyed.

In B. C. a new fire exploded as two sweeping flames spread across 2,000 acres of timberlands in the Lund Ranger district, 75 miles north of Vancouver.

After whipping across logging operations of the Northern Timber Company, destroying camp installations and large quantities of felled timber, the flames swept up a nearby mountain. They raged out of control early today.

All Nanaimo on Vancouver Island and Squamish, 30 miles north of here on the mainland, the situation was improved.

A change in the wind swept the flames away from settlements, where earlier more than 600 residents faced evacuation.

The Nanaimo fire, which roared to the top of Mount Benson, was reported in "good shape" by forestry men.

BUTCHER HEIFER IN FIELD

Unionville, Sept. 21 (CP) — Someone crept into the pasture of farmer Colin Hood Wednesday and butchered and quartered one of his finest beef cattle. A two-year-old heifer, valued at $175, was picked out of a herd of 11 and cut up without first being stunned. The front and hind quarters were removed.

Red Koreans Try Fake Surrender; Get Hot Welcome

East-Central Front, Korea, Sept. 21—(AP)— Two-hundred Korean communists offered to surrender to the allies today and a warm welcome was prepared.

When the surrender offer turned out to be a hoax, the welcome got really hot. Allied artillery opened fire and planes strafed and bombed the reds.

At least 30 reds were killed by artillery alone.

The fake offer was delivered by one north Korean soldier who walked into U.N. lines north of Yanggu at 5 a.m. today. He said his battalion wanted to surrender.

He was sent back to tell the others they could come over to allied lines unharmed if followed a certain route. They were to fly a white weapon overhead.

At 10 a.m., 150 red infantrymen began moving south. Another 50 started a little later. From the air, all appeared unarmed.

U.N. troops watched warily. Allied artillery tracked them without firing. Observers watched from a hill and planes circled overhead.

When the reds reached a point near the allied lines, they turned off the road and started to file in leading toward a mountain ridge — a clear violation of their pledge.

As the reds hit the trail, all the guns of one allied division cut loose.

The reds who were not killed or wounded tried to escape in the mountain foliage. Planes took up the attack with strafing dives.

The red peace appeal from an allied patrol. U.N. officers said the war is clear indication that they intended treachery, since they had been told to leave their arms behind.

Story of Party Told to Court By Witness

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Sept. 21—(CP)—The story of a party which ended in a staging was told here yesterday at the trial of Waqo Krawiec, 24, accused of murdering 29-year-old Jonas Norkus.

Speaking through an interpreter, Miller Bozic, once a German lawyer and now an immigrant laborer, told the court how he had attended a party on July 31 at a railway section house at remote Aquwa, 120 miles north of here.

He said Norkus had been attended by Norkus, Krawiec, Krawiec's wife and Mrs. Adele Vinslovas, 25-year-old wife of a railway section foreman. The five started with drinks of Canada wine, he said.

Krawiec said that Krawiec and Norkus began to argue and then to push each other around. Krawiec grabbed Norkus and pushed him out the front door of the section house, hitting him in the face 10 times or more.

Bozic said he left at this point but returned in time to see Norkus come from the living room of the house, holding his hands over his chest.

"He pushed past me," continued Bozic, "reached the back porch and fell on his back."

Norkus was found stabbed to death on the porch of the section house on the morning of July 32.

Bozic said he had later entered the section house where he found Mrs. Vinslovas lying on a single cot.

He said she asked him not to tell police that Krawiec killed Norkus. Tell the police he killed himself."

Owner Turns Over Metal Business To 200 Employees

Chicago, Sept. 21 (AP) —Louis Ludwig Narowetz, 59, is turning over his $2,500,000 sheet-metal business to his 200 employees. Within five years, by his plan, they will own the company.

Narowetz said he has turned over 46 percent of the company's stock to nine executives of the firm who serve as a board of governors. He said he will make the balance of the stock available to employees in a bonus and dividend plan.

"They've earned it," Narowetz said. "I never would have got anywhere without their help."

Election Campaign Gets Off To Fast Start as Churchill, Attlee Make Opening Moves

London, Sept. 21. (AP)—Party strategists toiled over policy statements today in an attempt to hammer out platforms for the Oct. 25 elections before the weekend.

Prime Minister Attlee makes his first campaign speech tomorrow at a Scottish Labor party conference. At about the same time, Winston Churchill and his Conservative aides will hold their first formal campaign session to complete the party's manifesto. Most of it has been drafted by R. A. Butler, who was education minister in Churchill's wartime coalition cabinet and now is one of the Tory brain trust.

The Labor manifesto probably will be given its finishing touches at a party national executive committee meeting Monday.

The election campaign was already in vigorous progress with newspaper editorials assailing battle cries.

But the sharpest attack came from the Labor party secretary, Morgan Phillips, who charged that yesterday's quick upsurge in the stock market proved big business was throwing its vast financial resources to end Labor's socialist rule.

Values of stocks increased by millions of pounds in city trading. Companies that would benefit from denationalization or renationalization policies after six years of rule shared heaviest in the buying advance.

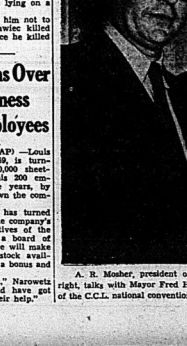
Gambling Legal

A proposed dividend may never go into effect if Labor is beaten, and textile, brewing and industrial shares led in the buying.

Brokers quickly laid odds of four to six that the Conservatives will win. Such gambling is legal in Britain.

Phillips immediately showered Labor-party units, trade-union members of parliament and Labor candidates with postal cards charging that the boom tipped the Tory party's hand.

He said it showed that "their by big-business interests of the vast financial resources backed city (financial district) of London—will be fully extended in an all-out effort to defeat the Labor government.



"We have always known the Tories are the party of big business. This sudden boom on the stock exchange makes it quite clear which way the pressure from big business is going," the postal memos said.

Rules of Literature

Conservative headquarters in London began shipping out bales of literature to be distributed to voters.

The Tories chalked up an early advantage. Although the Labor government called the turn on the polling day, the Conservative party's booking agents moved quicker and had meeting halls throughout the country reserved ahead of Labor party representatives.

Trolling For Trout, Catches Monster Bass

While trolling for trout in a motorboat on McCauley Lake, near Medzwezik, Ont., Nicholas Zajowski, above, of Brantford, Ont., landed small mouth bass which weighed in at nine pounds, two ounces. The 23-inch "monster" may well prove to be world record. — Central Press Canadian.

Labor is out to convince British's 34,000,000 voters they should give Labor something decidedly more than the six-vote edge they have maintained since the February 1950 election.

It was understood that Churchill, nearing his 77th birthday, would not stump the country as he did in 1945. Instead, he would make only brief trips during the camp to provincial big cities.

Labor, with an effective majority of six votes, now has 313 seats in the 625-seat Commons. The Conservatives have 297, the Liberals 9, Independents 1, and the Irish Nationalists 2. Three seats are vacant.

FORMER WIFE IN WILL

Pittsfield, Mass., Sept. 21—(AP) One-half of the $361,361 estate of Sinclair Lewis, famed author of "Babbitt" and "Main Street", was left to his former wife, columnist Dorothy Thompson Kopf, in trust for their son Michael, the writer's will showed yesterday. Lewis died Jan. 10, in Rome.

TIN PRODUCTION UP

The Hague, Sept. 21—(AP) — World production of tin last year reached 167,000 tons, compared with 162,000 tons in 1949 and 151,500 in 1948, the United Nations Review, issued by the International Tin Study Group here, reported yesterday.

THIS MR. ICARUS

By Harry Meldrum Moore

"Brad," she asked. "Will you—will you marry me?"

"Will—I—what?" he gasped. Then he was on his feet, and thinking of running away. "Me marry you? But—but, Doris, what about Jimmy? Jimmy Hastings?"

"I don't love Jimmy, Brad, I love you. I've loved you Brad ever since I first saw you at the Roberts—"

"But—but, Doris," Lance said, keeping the desk between them, "you surely can't mean what you say—you can't be serious—"

"I am serious, Brad," she said. "I never was more serious about anything in my life."

"Look Doris," Lance said quietly. "Let's get this thing straight I can't marry you, and since I can't, I won't marry anyone else. I want you to go to your father, tell him just what you've told me. Tell him I sent you to get his advice, and when he gives it to you, Doris, you must take it—you must do what he tells you. Really, Doris you must."

For a long time Doris Parker's eyes never left him, then she stood up.

"Very well, Brad," she sighed, "I'll speak to father."

CHAPTER XXXIII

Lance Bradley didn't have another word with Doris Parker until the middle of the following week. Not that she wasn't at her desk in the back office every day, or that she didn't direct her five o'clock Saturday afternoon children's radio program at the town hall. No, not at all. But he managed to keep out of her way. For well he knew what her father would tell her.

But one morning she stepped into his office, closed the door behind her, and flashed a diamond ring on her finger.

"Jimmy?" he guessed, coming around from behind his desk.

"Yes, Brad," she said, but she didn't seem too happy about it. "Aren't you going to congratulate me?"

"Why, yes—yes, Doris," he said dreamily. Then he gallantly took her hand and kissed it. "I know you're going to be very, very happy, Doris. You couldn't have done better. Jimmy is a swell chap."

That evening Lance read the Hastings-Parker engagement notice on Doris' page in The Ensign. Sometime later he left his apartment and was standing on the sidewalk in front of his office. Jimmy and Doris spoke to him as they went by in the direction of the theatre. Then Milly Brooks and Goldie Webster came along, the birthday watch he had given Goldie, so conspicuous on his wrist. They, too, were theatre bound. And he noted how happy they all seemed to be.

He stood and smiled after them. Everything was turning out as he would have it turn out. Doris and Jimmy would marry, and when he came of age Goldie would be asking Milly to share his fortunes with him. And it pleased him to think that in his small way he had brought happiness into the lives of these people.

And looking back, now, he knew that he had nothing to regret.

Without saying one word Johnston Parker had shown him that he, Lance, could not hope to raise himself above the social level to which he had been born. And although he loved Doris Parker as perhaps no man had ever loved a woman, he willingly bowed to the inevitable, and without holding malicious thoughts against any one. The Parkers knew now just exactly where to locate him in the social scale, and though they might never disclose his secret, the fact remained that as long as there was a Parker in Emerton, there would always be the chance that others would come to know that he was of lowly birth.

As near as he could make out, Lance figured that he was about thirty years of age now, an age when most men are at their physical best. But insofar as he was concerned, he knew that he was anything but physically fit. The spirit of Lance Bradley was still alive, but its habitation for the past thirty years was beginning to show the wear and tear of highly-geared living—a mere shell of itself. For he had lived his life as if it was something that was everlasting, something that would never wear out. Now he knew better, but it was too late to do anything about it—that is, if he cared to do anything about it.

Lance knew that he didn't have to look into a mirror to see how he had changed. His whitened hair, his drawn face, his stooped shoulders, the fact that he couldn't eat everything that he would like to eat, that his sleep at times had to be forced by opiates, gave him the answer. However, he was not afraid to die. Death was something that he had grown familiar with in the great war. Death was not something that just came to few men. His own paper told him daily of comrades of that war who were dropping off without warning. So with his life's bin drained to the bottom, his reserves gone, he was prepared to go. Into his hands a kind fate had entrusted a vast sum of money, and he could report that due to the wise counselling of Johnston Parker not one cent of that money had been misspent, that every dollar of it had been wisely invested in doing good and in buying happiness for others.

So with no one to confide in now and with no one to share his confidences since Dad Roberts had left him, it was touch and go with Lance Bradley, for there were time when he would have been better for some sound advice. Truth to tell, this Icarus was indeed floundering off course.

Dr. Brown had advised him to take a good long holiday. But he didn't wish to take a holiday, he didn't want to go away from the very thing in which his heart and soul was all wrapped up. He did not want to take a rest—what would he do while resting? Nothing. And what was there in doing nothing for one who had always been so active? If he was to die, and he knew he would die, why not die with his boots on. That was the way his buddies had passed on in the war.

No, he would not go away from his business or take a holiday. He would remain on the job and give all he had as long as he could stand up. And then, knowing that Goldie Webster and every man and woman on his pay roll would be well taken care of in the years to come, that Johnston Parker held the key to open the door into a future for them that was entirely theirs to better, that he had completed his job in helping to make Emerton a better place for all, he was ready to answer the final summons, come when it might.

Officer Ryan came up the street and stopped for a chat.

"Everything's pretty quiet around here again, Brad," he said. "Looks as if you have everything pretty well cleaned up."

"Yeah," Lance agreed. "Yeah, I guess it's all cleaned up. Everything's under control—at last."

As Officer Ryan remembered next day, Lance Bradley spoke in the tones of a tired old man; a tired old man who had completed his task, and was going home—to stay.

After Ryan left him, Lance Bradley turned the corner. For a few minutes he stood and talked with Jackson at the garage, former home of The Ensign print shop. Then he was in front of the darkened house which had been his home so long. He tore himself away from there, went down a side street and stopped. The name "Brown Paving" had been removed from the window of a small frame building and the yard behind was no longer cluttered up with paving and road-building machinery.

Returning to The Ensign building, he let himself in and he began a slow tour of the plant, switching on lights as he went from department to department, switching them off as he returned, but not until after he had spent some thoughtful minutes at the door of Doris Parker's office.

After a while he was in his apartment again. He felt quite warm after his exertions in the rather mild October evening, and he opened a window. Jimmy Hastings, after taking Doris home from the show, was soon whistling his way up the stairs. He came into Lance's apartment, picked up a book from the table and chose a comfortable chair.

"How was the picture, Jimmy?" Lance asked, raising his eyes from that day's copy of The Ensign.

"Top hole, old boy," Jimmy said, "mushy-mushy, y'know, but that's jolly well what the women fall for. Bye the bye, old man, this Omar Khayam must be a great favorite of yours—you've got this book jolly well marked up."

"Yes," Lance admitted. "I like him even if he was an atheist. Where will you find anything prettier than this? 'I sometimes think that never blows so red the rose as where some buried Caesar bled; that every hyacinth the garden wears dropt in her lap from some once lovely head.' And any time you think you are so important, Jimmy, that the world can't get along without you, just remember this one: 'And fear not lest Existence, closing your account and mine, should know the like no more; the eternal Saki from the bowl has poured millions of bubbles like us, and will pour.' And just to show the futility of it all, 'Ah, make the most of what we yet may spend, before we, too, into the dust descend; dust unto dust, and under dust to lie, sans wine, sans song, sans singer and—sans end."

"Pretty, very pretty, old chap," Jimmy ventured, "but too jolly deep for me." He closed the book and put it back in the row on the table, glanced at his watch and on his feet. "Well, cheerio, old boy, I'll be seeing you in the a.m. I hope."

"Good-night, Jimmy," he said, and then in an undertone—an undertone of premonition, "Be good to Doris always, won't you, Jimmy."

His eleven o'clock news-cast over, Jimmy came down the stairs, shouted "good night", in passing and proceeded downstairs. Lance turned off his radio and went to the window to shut it. As he reached up, he broke into a sweat. The same stabbing pains that had struck him down at the boxing bout some weeks before had struck again. He fought his way to the table, upset books to the floor as he felt for the vial, the tablets that Dr. Brown had told him to use only when necessary. Grabbing a handful, he staggered into the bathroom, filled a glass, swallowed the tablets and drank. Then he dragged his way back, holding onto the wall as he did, to drop across his bed. For a few minutes he writhed in the utmost agony. . .then he felt no more pain.

Shortly after six next morning Caretaker Grooms came up the stairs on his rounds of duty, wondered at the light in his boss's apartment and quietly opened the door. He tip-toed to the bed, took a look at the figure lying prone across it, and then grabbed the telephone to call Dr. Brown.

It seemed no time until the doctor, bag in hand, came rushing up the stairs. He raced to the man on the bed, ran his hand over his face and felt his pulse. "Damn"! he exploded. Then he used his stethescope. "Tell Goldie his Dad has gone," he ordered the caretaker.

After Grooms left the apartment, Dr. Brown picked up the empty vial from the bathroom floor, and while returning the books to the table, he found a newspaper clipping that had fallen from one of them. The clipping contained an account of the death of the famous author, Jack London, with these words underlined: "On the floor were two empty vials, on the table a pad with figures on it—a calculation of a lethal dose of morphine."

Dr. Brown rolled the clipping into a ball and flushed it down the toilet. The empty vial he took with him. Then he was on the telephone—to tell Johnston Parker that he was needed at the Lance Bradley apartment at once.

CHAPTER XXXIV

"It is our most painful duty to announce this morning that Lance Bradley, owner of CEDE, and publisher of The Daily Ensign, was found dead in his apartment in The Ensign building just a few hours ago. It might be recalled that Mr. Bradley suffered from a heart seizure some time ago and spent several days in hospital. Complete details of Mr. Bradley's death, a story of his most interesting life, the particulars regarding his funeral, will be found in this afternoon's edition of The Ensign."

Little Benny's Note Book

I was walking along with Shorty Judge, and a lady came out of the flower shop with a big bunch of flowers wrapped in fancy paper, and me and Shorty both smelt out loud when she went passed on account of the swell smell, and I said, Oh boy, if just that one buntch Smells that swell, imagine how good all the flowers inside the shop must smell together.

And we looked in, and the flower man was bizzy waiting on another lady, and Shorty said, Oh boy, let's go in and smell around, and if he stops being bizzy we can quick walk out again as if we got in the wrong place by mistake.

Suppose we dont get out quick enough? I said, and Shorty said, Okay, we'll ask him for some kind he hasn't got, and then we can walk out independent.

And we went in and started to smell the diffrent kinds, some smelling pritty good and some not any, and Shorty said, None of them smells as good as what that lady had.

Maybe we haven't got to her kind yet, I said, and we kept on trying, and all of a suddin the other lady went out, and the flower man said, Yes, boys, well?

Meening what kind did we want, and I said, Have you got that kind that dont need any water?

I've got some cactus, that needs very little water, the flower man said, and I said, This kind never needs any at all.

You must meen artificial flowers, the flower man said, and Shorty said, Have you got any?

No I haven't, the flower man said, and Shorty said, That's the kind we want.

And we quick walked out, and I said, Hay, I bet it wasn't that lady's flowers that smelt so grate. I bet it was partly the lady, I said.

Which it probably was.

SUMMER WAITRESS IS HEROINE IN RESCUE AT RESORT CAMP

16-year-old Gloria Gerner, of Toronto, saves three tourists from drowning at Harlowe, north of Napanee, Ont.

1. Toronto Sea Ranger Gloria Gerner, 16, was working for the summer as a waitress at Happy Landing Camp, about 40 miles north of Napanee. On a mid-July day she was setting a table in the lodge for lunch when she heard a scream coming from nearby Lake Kashawackamac. Rushing to the window, she saw three people clinging to an overturned rowboat some distance out in the lake.

2. Quickly putting down her dishes, the girl ran out, raced to the small dock and leaped into the water. Being fully dressed, it was no easy matter to swim out to the stranded, exhausted trio. But Gloria made it. Calmly she told all of them that everything was going to be all right. Then, telling two of them to hold on to the craft, she swam into shore with the first woman.

3. The gallant 16-year-old girl made three separate, gruelling trips to the overturned boat . . . but each swim was successful . . . and finally all were safely ashore. To young Gloria Gerner goes the praise of every Canadian citizen who hears about her deed. We are proud to add our sincere tribute to her courage through the presentation of The Dow Award.

Tar Heel Sets Four World Marks In Pace Classic

By FRITZ HOWELL

Delaware, O., Sept. 21 (AP)—Tar Heel, son of Billy Direct's most illustrious sons, was spread all over harness racing's record books today.

The streamlined black colt, owned by the W. N. Reynolds estate of Winston-Salem, N.C., set four world records yesterday as he whipped 13 of the nation's standout three-year-old pacers to take the sixth annual $66,280.55, "Little Brown Jug" in straight heats.

Some 35,000 fans, crowding the fence around the Delaware County Fair's half-mile track, were stunned when Tar Heel came home in 2.01 in the first heat—the fastest trip ever made by a three-year-old over a half-mile track.

But that was just the beginning. In the next heat reinsman Del Cameron brought Tar Heel under the wire in two minutes flat, erasing the world mark he had set up only two hours before.

The combined two-heat time eclipsed the world record of 4:04 4-5 set by Knight Dream in 1948; and also bettered the all-age pacing record for two heats of 4:01 1-4 hung up in 1940 by Dusty Hanover.

Tar Heel picked up $33,140.27 for his two-mile stint, boosting his 1950 winnings to $63,637.21—the greatest "take" any three-year-old side-wheeler has ever amassed.

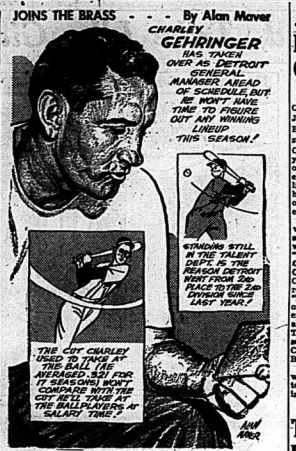
Textile Union Cause of Split Among Laborites

Vancouver, Sept. 21 (CP) — A struggle for power within the Textile Workers' Union of America (C.I.O.-C.I.O.) has touched off a split among the leadership of the 350,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor, it was learned here.

Major development is that C. H. Millard, of Toronto, Canadian chief of the United Steel Workers of America and 6 congress vice-president, is walking out of the congress executive. He won't run for the vice-presidency, in the annual elections at the C.C.L. convention.



The walkout of Millard, whose union is Canada's biggest with about 60,000 members, stems from a decision of the 14-man C.C.L. executive to back Sam Baron, deposed Canadian chief of the textile union, for the spot on the executive committee that Baron has held for several years.

Baron was kicked out of his top Canadian job recently by Emil Rieve, International T.W.U.A. president, for failing to go along with Rieve in a purge of another member of Rieve's executive. Baron now is an organizer with the union at Hamilton, still holding his C.C.L. executive post.

The textile group of delegates held a caucus here Wednesday night — with Baron's supporters staying away — and decided to nominate for Baron's CCL post J. Harold D'Aoust of Nashua, N.H., whom Rieve put in as Baron's successor as Canadian chief.

Meanwhile the CCL executive had met and decided to give its support to Baron. Millard was the major dissenter, and it was reported he walked out of the executive meeting as Baron put up his case.

Frick Is Elected Baseball Head After Warren Giles Withdraws Name

Chicago, Sept. 21 (AP)—Ford Frick, with a dramatic assist of sorts from sportsmanship from Warren Giles today is baseball's new commissioner.

Giles late last night threw his full support behind the National League president to break a deadlock of club owners and swing sports biggest job to the grey-haired lean, 56-year-old Frick.

Frick was given a seven-year contract at an annual salary of $65,000, about $25,000 more than he received as head of the senior circuit.

Frick is baseball's third commissioner. He succeeds A. B. (Happy) Chandler, who resigned last July 15 after the club owners had refused to vote him a new contract.

Until Giles, the courtly, white-haired president of the Cincinnati Reds made his unparalleled gesture, the 16 major league magnates had wrangled almost 11 hours in a vain attempt to get the required majority of 12 votes.

Giles Withdraws

After Giles appeared before the owners and withdrew his name, the following vote was 14-2 for Frick. Then the Cincinnati executive made a motion that a final ballot be taken and that it be unanimous.

That is how Frick—climaxing a varied career running from newspaperman, assistant English professor and radio commentator to the National League presidency in 1934—gotlead the full 16 votes.

Giles and Frick became the main candidates in a New York screening session last month that sliced the list from 11 to five names. Some 40 nominees had been considered when the search first began last Dec. 11, after the owners' explosive action in voting against renewal of Chandler's contract. Chandler bowed to pressure and resigned, effective last July 15.

John Hayman New President Quinte COSSA

At the annual meeting of the COSSA (Bay of Quinte Section) John Hayman of Albert College Belleville was elected president, succeeding Greg Clark of Picton, C.I. For the first time in over 20 years, a new secretary also took office, Mr. T. E. Moffat the perennial holder of that position relinquishing the post owing to ill health, Mr. Hamilton, principal of Tweed High School was elected to fill the vacancy.

Ten schools of the district were represented and rugby schedules were drawn up—there will be five teams in the senior "B" section, Picton C.I., Trenton C.I., OSD, St. Michael's H.S., Campbellford H.S., and Albert College. Belleville C.I. will represent the district in the senior "A" series, and play a schedule of inter-district games with Peterborough C.I. and Oshawa C.I., as well as exhibition games. Three teams entered the junior series—OSD, BCI and Albert College. Mr. Homer Townsend of BCI is the rugby convenor.

A girls' volleyball tournament will be staged during the fall term and Miss Redfern of BCI is convening this activity.

Three Generations In Law Firm

Montreal — (CP) — A Montreal law firm composed of three generations of the one family are waiting for a fourth generation member before making any claims to fame.

Benjamin Benoit, 83, founder, heads the organization which includes his son, Hector, and his grandson Jean Boulanger.

Although an authorization is believed to be the only one of its kind in Canada, the grandfather said he is "still young" and is waiting for the fourth generation to appear in the firm.

The company was founded in 1894 and the grandfather has been practising for the last 57 years. Hector, his son, joined him in 1935. Prior to assisting his father he was a stenographer of the superior court here, and later a Hansard stenographer.

Jean Boulanger, the third member, is a son of Benjamin's daughter, and came into the company last year after a distinguished record at the University of Montreal Law School.

"We'll really cheer when there are four of the same family, in succession. Until then, we're making no grandiose claims," Benjamin Benoit said.

SEARCH SWITCHES

Midland, Sept. 21 (CP)—The search for two Collingwood men missing since Sunday aboard a 19 foot sloop swung Thursday to the eastern end of Georgian Bay after a rubber life jacket and a red gasoline can were found on Christian Island in this area.

Thomas Fudge, 74 and John Komph, 29, set out in their sloop Spray on a 45-mile trip between Collingwood and Owen Sound.

Great Lakes Change Constantly Although Unobserved by Laymen

Toronto — (CP) — Changes are taking place continually, although generally unobserved, in the waters and also beneath the surface of the Great Lakes. The moon, atmospheric pressure, precipitation and evaporation, run-off and man himself are all instrumental in these changes.

They were described to the American Shore and Beach Conservation Association by Charles A. Price, of the hydrographic service of the Canadian Department of Mines and Technical Surveys.

One of the most curious of the phenomena is the seiche. A seiche is caused by areas of unbalanced atmospheric pressure over the surface of the lake which, in turn, cause a variance from normal of the height of the water.

They are more or less continuous and bring changes in the water level varying from six inches — in a normal seiche — to five feet in a major one. The great rises in the water level don't occur often on Lake Erie or Ontario but are more familiar on Lake Superior.

A detailed account of a Lake Ontario seiche was printed in the Toronto Mirror of Oct. 3, 1843. It occurred at Cobourg and was observed by several persons.

The whole lake seemed to be going bodily away. In a few minutes nearly a third part of the inner harbor was left bare when, suddenly, the tide turned again and came as rapidly back, filling the harbor at least two feet higher than it ever was before.

Another force affecting the lakes is the gradual tilting of the earth's crust. As a result — through a long period of years — the water is gradually encroaching on the southwesterly shores of the lakes.

Lesko Assaulted Liska at Work Claim of Crown

Windsor, Sept. 21 (CP) —Evidence of rankling enmity between Mike Lesko and the man who is charged with his murder, George Liska, was introduced Thursday as the Liska murder trial went into its third day.

Crown evidence was given that Lesko had assaulted Liska at work a few days before the June 8 shooting and that Liska had remained away from his job for several days. This was just prior to the actual slaying.

An attempt by the Crown to enter statements, allegedly made by Liska to police shortly after his admittance to hospital, was protested by defence counsel. An adjournment was ordered today.

Collins Homers Yanks Into Half-Game Lead; Tribe Idle; Giants Slip

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

ONE DOWN — SIX TO GO

A mid-game explosion that accounted for nine runs dashed the Redmen hopes in Brockville last night after they seemingly had the game tucked away with a four-run lead in the second. "Cuffer" Neakes took the defeat rap after pitching for only one-third of an inning after Billy Strahan blew up in the fifth. Willie Fordham with a superlative spot of hurling relieved the "Cuffer" and shut the Brockies out hitless and runless for the remainder of the game.

The Memos clustered eight of their eleven hits in the disastrous fifth and sixth innings when they garnered all their runs. The Reds made a valiant comeback in their half of the sixth driving home three runs off as many clouts to pull up within hitting distance, but Lefty Hayes stifled 'em for the rest of the route and that was that.

That's only one, with six to go. Tonight is another ball game and the wily Andy Herscheck will likely toss the venerable but potent "Smoky" Smith at our side in an effort to not only make it two in a row, but beat the pesky Redmen in their own hunting grounds. Outside of free beer for ten years, all-out income tax exemption, a home in Florida and a half-share in Fort Knox there is nothing the dynamic Andy would like better than to scalp the Redmen, but good — at the Fair Grounds tonight. Should be a right nifty tussle.

HAIL THE CHAMPS!

Glen Roys, blasting Howe-Hagerman pitching for six runs and aided and abetted by costly foemen errors won the city title and the W. J. (Bill) Ott Trophy last night, taking the finals series in three straight games. The Howe-Hags were shorthanded during the series due to Goyer, Fitzpatrick and "Red" Carson being absent with the Redmen baseball team. But they made it mighty interesting for the new champions at that, and on occasions nearly turned defeat into victory. However it's all over and the Glens are worthy champions.

DADDY OF ALL UMPS

The death of Bill Klem, "the Old Arbitrator" brings to light many stories told of events in his colorful career. Klem was more than just another umpire. He was the best. Fiery John McGraw, on-the-diamond an arch-enemy, said so even if they fought like a pair of Kilkenny cats. Everybody said so, and to make it unanimous Klem said so.

His famous expression, "I never missed one in my life" was born of a flare-up between he and McGraw. He uttered it in defiance of the famous Giant manager, (they were the best of friends in 'civvies').

It occurred when the Giants lost a close one to the Cubs as a result of a Klem decision. Part of the scoreboard was in fair territory and part of it in foul territory. The paint line designing the foul line stopped at the bottom of the scoreboard and continued atop it. And a Cub batter hit one where no line was marked.

"Fair ball," bellowed the Foghorn, unhesitatingly.

McGraw turned purple with rage. The Old Arbitrator was a picture of composure heedless of the blistering remarks of the Giant manager. But the park superintendent obeying McGraw's orders, examined the score board until he found the dent where the ball had struck. It was in fair territory —by no more than an inch.

The Old Arbitrator never twitched a muscle. "Naturally, it was fair," he roared at McGraw, "I never missed one in my life." Thus was a legend born.

Klem feared nobody. Not even Judge Kenesaw Landis. When the Ole Judge hauled him on the carpet to discuss the charge that Klem had been betting on the ponies, the Arbitrator never quailed.

"I've been betting them for nigh on thirty years, judge," he roared, "and I've always paid off one hundred cents on the dollar."

A further intriguing aspect of the match is that the stripe-hooded Zebra must unmask and reveal his identiay if he is beaten.

Eighth-Inning Four-Bagger Snatches Game Out of Fire From Chicago by 5-4 Score

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Thanks to Joe Collins timely home run, New York Yankees take one half game American League lead in Fenway Park today for their vital dog-eat-dog series with Boston Red Sox.

Cleveland, idle yesterday, gets its big chance to storm into first place while the Yanks and Red Sox wrestle. The Indians play three games with Detroit, a team they have beaten 16 out of 17 times this season.

Collins' blew off Chicago's Saul Rogovin with two on base in the eighth inning saved the Yanks from dropping out of the lead. Instead they opened up a half game edge on the Indians by a 5-4 victory over White Sox.

The part-time first baseman also saved the game with a dazzling backhand grab of Eddie Robinson's smash in the ninth inning.

Rogovin had the Yanks eating out of his hand through the middle innings, retiring 12 straight batters from the second to seventh innings. He took a 3-2 edge into the eighth.

Phil Rizzuto's single broke the spell after Johnny Mize flied out, Mickey Mantle walked. Collins' blast into the right field seats cost Rogovin his eighth loss.

Johnny Sain, the $50,000 waiver buy from the Boston Braves, failed to survive the first inning. The Yanks had to use five pitchers with Bobby Hogue, another former Brave, getting the win.

Eight of their nine remaining games are with Boston.

Cleveland, with six to play including five with Detroit, will shoot Bobby Feller at the Tigers Lefty Ted Gray in the opener of their three game series at Briggs Stadium.

Brooks Increase Lead

While the American League threatens to grind down to the final day, the National has loosened up a bit. Brooklyn widened its lead to 4 1-2 games by shading St. Louis 4-3, while the second-place New York Giants lost to Cincinnati 3-1.

Carl Erskine snapped Cliff Chambers' six-game win streak with an eight-hitter for his 16th victory. Gil Hodges' 39th homer helped him home.

When the final standings are tabulated, Brooklyn's feat of taking 18 of 22 from St. Louis probably will have been decisive.

The Giants suffered a staggering blow to their faint hopes when the Reds routed Jim Hearn in a three-run eighth inning. The defeat left the Giants six games behind Brooklyn in the loss column.

Kenny Raffensberger chalked up his 15th win at Hearn's expense. The Reds had 12 hits to four for New York and left 15 on base. Ewell Blackwell finished up for Raffensberger.

Satchel Paige struck out five in a three-inning relief chore to give St. Louis Browns a 4-3 edge over Washington in the only night game. He fanned the last four men in the game. Cliff Mapes' homer in the first was one of the 13 Brownie hits off Don Johnson and Tom Ferrick.

With only four games scheduled half the major league teams were idle yesterday.

TiCats-Larks, Argos-Ottawa Form Grid Fare

(By The Canadian Press)

George Stockwell, the genial and efficient trainer of Toronto Argonauts, thinks the scullers have finally shaken off the sluggishness which, armchair quarterbacks believe, is one of the reasons for their poor performances this season.

They also admit injuries have hit hard at the 1950 dominion champs. At any rate, despite the fact that the double-blue squad is far from sound, Stockwell predicts that the club will rise to its last year's form tomorrow against Ottawa Rough Riders in Toronto and win by at least 15 points.

"I'll bet on 15 points," said Stockwell, "but I think it's 17."

The Argo-Rough Rider scramble is one of four games scheduled for this weekend—in which all eight of Canada's major football teams will take part. Two games will take place in the east, two in the west.

For the other eastern game, Hamilton's Tiger-Cats, unbeaten in four straight Big Four games, will travel to Montreal for a Sunday game against the Alouettes, who are tied with Argos for third place with one win.

Leaders Not Affected

Saturday in the west Calgary Stampeders go to Edmonton to take on the Eskimos, leaders in the western Interprovincial Union, and Saskatchewan Roughriders move to Winnipeg to play the Blue Bombers.

The outcome of the games in both the east and west will not affect the league leaders. Tiger-Cats have a four-point lead over Ottawa in the Big Four and Eskimos are six points ahead of Saskatchewan and the Blue Bombers, who are tied for second place in the western conference.

All four of the senior intercollegiate teams will go into action in exhibition games during the weekend.

Sarnia Imperials of the Ontario Rugby Football Union meet McGil Redmen in Montreal and Queen's will engage McMaster University of the O. R. F. U. at Hamilton.

University of Toronto Blues take on the Ontario Agricultural College intermediates at Guelph and the University of Western Ontario Mustangs clash with Windsor Royals of the O. R. F. U. at London.

No O. R. F. U. games are scheduled for this weekend.

Petes, Vancouver For Mann Cup

Peterborough, Ont., Sept. 21—(CP)— Peterborough Petes fly west tomorrow in search of the Mann Cup and the Canadian Senior Lacrosse championship.

Winners of the Ontario Lacrosse Association's Senior A League finals last Saturday, Petes will battle for the Mann Cup against Vancouver Combines in a best-of-seven series. The first game is scheduled for Monday in the west coast city.

Bolstered by a number of top Ontario lacrosse players and one from British Columbia, the Petes led the OLA most of this season and took the best-of-seven final from Mimico Mounties four games to one.

The feeling in the Petes' camp is that they'll defeat the westerners, but only after a stiff battle.

Memos Mid-Game Offensive Turns Defeat Into Victory

Brockville Memos, exploding with a mid-game nine-run offensive defeated the Belleville Redmen 9-7 in the first game of the best-of-seven Central Ontario Baseball League finals in Brockville last night.

The blasting of eight Memo pitchers to the showers in the second inning and until the fifth when the Memos tied the count, erupting in the sixth to score five and win the game. The Reds surged back with three in their half but were stymied from there in.

The second game is scheduled for the Fair Ground here tonight with the third in Brockville tomorrow afternoon at 2.30.

Good Start

The Reds took a substantial four run lead in the second inning on singles by Carson and Reeves and home runs by Jones and "Shrimpy" Gilmour, Dean's drive was perhaps the best hit ball of the extra-base hitting display, clearing the centre field fence by plenty. Gilmour's blow was a clothesline drive between the centre and right fielders.

Brockville bounced back in the bottom of the fifth with a quartet to tie the game up again. Stelmack and Hayes popped out but singles before "Buzzy" Weaver lifted a fly ball that just cleared the centre field fence by a couple of feet for a homer. "Red" Coleman drew a base on balls and advanced on Galen's ground out. Kaspchuk beat out a hit to short and advanced all the way to third on a bad throw to first, Coleman scoring on the play and Galen settled long enough to retire Pierce and Ashley to end the frame.

The game was held up for several moments while Pat Wilson and Jack Hughes, two Memo managers harranguing with base umpire Jimmy Nicholls, Brockville about the play that sent Kaspchuk to third and scored Coleman. Finally, after consulting Nicholls, plate umpire, he sent Kaspchuk back to third.

Lead in Sixth

Belleville bounced into the lead again in the top of the sixth. After Munroe popped out, Goyer singled and Carson doubled. Dean then passed intentionally to fill the bases. Don Gilmour executed a perfect squeeze with Dean down the first base line to score Goyer and he beat it out for a hit. Reeves walked to force Carson across and Strahan's walk, after Pat Gilmour had forced Dean at the plate, scored Reeves another run.

The lead was short lived however as the homesters pounded Strahan and reliever Noakes for five runs off four hits to put them two runs up. Hayes home run after Stelmach's single drove Strahan from the box and Noakes brought on the usually reliable "Chuffer." Weaver promptly fired with a triple and scored the tying run on Coleman's fly ball. Galen doubled and Kaspchuk's single was passed intentionally to set up a force play. Noakes also passed Pierce and was pulled for Willy Fordham. Ashley bounced down two, however, third strike short that Carson picked up. In hurrying his throw to second he threw the ball into centre field and Fitzpatrick with two runs crossing the dish. Skodis filed out but the damage had been done.

Both teams went down in order in the last inning and a half when the contest was called on account of darkness.

"Buzzy" Weaver pounded out a homer, triple and single for the winners while Joey Stelmach picked up three clean singles. Hunter "Lefty" Jim Hayes helped his own cause considerable with a home run and a timely single.

Carson pounded out a double and single and Goyer a pair of one-baggers for Belleville. Dean and Pat Gilmour each had a four bagger. The Redmen collected seven of their eight hits in their run scoring frames while Brockville got eight of 11 in their two big stanzas.

Waterloo Junior 'In School Hockey' For Canadiens

Montreal, Sept. 21 —(CP) Coach Sammy Pollock of Montreal Canadiens juniors said Thursday that Ron Ingram, Canadiens' Ontario player, has worked out with the junior Canadiens squad "but we are not using him; he's going to play school hockey."

Pollock was commenting on a Waterloo, Ont., story which said the Junior A Hurricanes of that city had filed a protest with the Ontario Hockey Association over Ingram's signing by Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

The Hurricanes said Atwell is in the reserve list of the Boston Bruins of the NHL which sponsors the Hurricanes, and that Waterloo got Atwell in an OHA draft draw from the Nobleton club of lower junior rank.

The Montreal Canadien juniors are sponsored by the NHL Canadiens, and Pollock handles the junior team.

Victory Dinner Is Cancelled

Toronto, Sept. 21 (CP) — A civic victory banquet to honor the Toronto Maple Leafs hockey team, 1951 Stanley Cup winners has been cancelled out of respect for ex-premier Bill Bartlie, missing nearly a month on a far-north aerial fishing trip. The dinner had been scheduled for Sept. 28.

Managing director Conn Smythe said Thursday the Leafs are going to their training camp at St. Catharines under an conditions.

"Little hope is held for the safety of Bartlie. Also, since last season, we have lost through death our chief scout, Squib Walker and J. P. Bickell, a director of the Maple Leaf Gardens who as first president played a major part in raising funds to erect the building."

Another unsettling factor was the election of forward Howie Meeker as Progressive Conservative member of parliament for Waterloo South.

"We don't know how much hockey Meeker will play. For instance, he'll be away for the opening of the House of Commons Oct. 9. He was in to see me today and told me he wanted to be fair to his constituents. I told him he could have off as much time as he needed." .

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 21 (AP) —The grim where Willie Pep trains is a little place on the second floor of a decrepit building, once the Hartford arena but now mostly taken over by a carpet outfit. At the head of the stairs a sign, crudely pencilled on rough cardboard, points to an office where tickets for next week's Pep vs. Sandy Saddler fight are on sale. The sign itself is a bare, dingy place with dirty windows and the ring canvas spread on the board floor. The spectators stand around the walls, whose peeling paint gives the whole place a scabrous look. The hushed conspiratorial tones that large Lou Viscusi, Pep's manager, used in talking to visiting writers seemed quite in keeping with the surroundings.

Rough and Ready

"You remember the last time they fought," said Lou, "Willie kept saying he wanted it to be a nice clean fight. That was furthermost thing from his mind now. The first time that guy gets out of line, he'll throw the book at him." . . . It is a well-known fact that there's an affection loat between Pep and Saddler. . . . They've fought for the featherweight championship three times. . . . Each time the title changed hands. And each time it was a rugged, lively debate-provoking battle. . . . It is part of publicity, of course, to convey the idea that they'll be engaging in a bitter grudge fight at the Polo Grounds next Wednesday.

Further Evidence

In the bare cubicle that serves as a dressing room, Pep was kidding along with Dave Natdiello while the commission physician went through a routine examination. . . . His face became serious when someone asked about Saddler's motive. . . . Pep, who "resigned" the title sitting in his corner claims his dislocated shoulder resulted from Sandy's wrestling instead of boxing. . . . "I always expect a rough fight from that kid," Willie replied when asked about how to fight. He doesn't have any style. All he knows is how to go in and get you. Last time he just bulled me all the time. . . . Why, he didn't even train with a boxer, just a couple of rough fellows." . . . Pep paused reflectively, then added: "But that was the last time. I don't know what he'll do this time."

Year, Year!

Nardiello straightened and noted that Willie was 29 years old Wednesday. . . . "He's in fine condition, considering his age and everything," said the Doc. "Physically he's still young". . . . Willie grinned and commented: "When I was fighting Corky Gonzales in New Orleans a couple weeks ago, I heard a guy at the ringside shout: "Corky, get that old man! I almost stopped fighting to get a look at him."

Sport in Brief

The nameless Syracuse entry in the American Hockey League is not playgrounds.

Twenty-two turned out for the first scrimmage Thursday in a four-week training camp that began at Lindsay Wednesday.

Coach Frank Beisler, however, had only this to say following today's 90-minute workout: "The boys looked good."

Back in Syracuse, meanwhile, a contest is being held to find a name for the new team.

Big Bob Gain, 250-pound middle with Ottawa Rough Riders who is well up on Big Four football scoring with his convert and placement kicking. Thursday laughed off a reported offer from Cleveland Browns.

Already popular with Ottawa fans because of his kicking and tackling ability, the All-American tackle with University of Kentucky in 1950 and 1951 had to say:

"Uncle Sam (Draft) Willing, I intend to play football in Ottawa as long as the folks up here want me. The Rough Riders football, and it would take an offer in six figures to even make me give the matter a second thought."

The Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission said Thursday it would recognize the winner of Monday night's Harold Johnson-Archie Moore bout as logical contender for Joey Maxim's light heavyweight title.

New York Rangers Thursday announced a deal by which they acquired Paul Ronty, 23-year-old centre, from Boston Bruins in exchange for defenseman Gus Kyle and the rights to forward Pentti Lund. An undisclosed amount of cash was involved.

The Toronto-born Ronty played the full 70 games for Bruins last season and had a record of 18 goals and 13 assists. Rangers hope to use him as foundation for a line with rookie Wally Hergesheimer and Gaye Stewart.

St. Louis Flyers Start Training

North Bay, Sept. 21 (CP)—St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey League have started pre-season training here under coach Mitchell's direction.

The farm team of Chicago Black Hawks of the National League has been strengthened by obtaining Harry Taylor and Glen Sonmor from Cleveland Barons. Red Almas, regular netminder will be challenged for the goal job by Phil Hughes, who played sensationally for Toronto St. Michael's in the Ontario Hockey Association major series last season.

Royals Need One To Clinch Governor Trophy

Syracuse, N.Y., Sept. 21 (AP) —Montreal's Royals today put a game away from their fifth International League Governors' Cup championship.

The Royals defeated Syracuse Chiefs 7-1 last night to take a 3-to-1 advantage in the best-of-seven finals.

Veterans Bert Haas blasted a pair of home runs as the ranpaging Royals got 14 hits off loser pitcher Bob Keegan and Gene Costello. Chris Van Cuyk, towering southpaw, went the route for Montreal and scattered eight hits.

A walk and George Byam's double produced the first run for the Royals in the second inning. A homer by Haas in the fourth gave them a 2-0 lead.

Syracuse scored a lone marker in the fourth and Montreal came back with a run in the sixth. Gene Markland's sixth-inning single with, no one on pulled the Chiefs to within a 3-2 deficit. A four run cluster in the eighth inning, featured by Haas' second homer with two aboard, sewed up the verdict for Montreal.

Royals will send Hampton Coleman to the mound tonight in an effort to qualify for the Junior World Series against the winner of the American Association playoffs. Syracuse will counter with Jack Griffore.

London Juniors Win OBA Title

Welland, Sept. 21 (CP) — London Lou Ball Juniors Thursday night swamped Welland Canadians 14-3 to win the best-of-three junior A Ontario Baseball Association second round playoffs in two straight games.

The Londoners won last Saturday 6-0 in London.

The visitors crowded all their runs in two big innings Thursday night, in the third they scored three and in the fourth they racked up an even dozen. The Black Hawks was a nightmare to the home team since the visitors managed only four hits, but with four errors and four walks and total reached double figures.

SLIGHTLY IMPROVED

Oakville, Ont., Sept. 20—(CP) —The condition of Cpl. John Sheffield of the Oakville provincial police detachment was improved today, hospital authorities said.

Sheffield was shot in the back with his own revolver last week following a family argument.

His daughter Doreen, 16, charged with the shooting, was remanded Wednesday for two weeks and released on $1,500 bail put up by a friend of the family.

Defeat Howe-Hagermans 7-2, Sweep Series in Three Games

Glen Roys are the city senior softball champions for 1951. They won the title Thursday night when they bashed out five hits, one a two-run homer, which, coupled with two Plumber errors sent six Glens dashing across the plate.

Howe and Hagerman counted a pair of tallies in their half of the initial heat off one hit and two Glen Roy bobbles, and the scoring ended there and then until the fifth when the Plumbers shoved across another pair of markers off three hits and a walk to come within striking distance.

The Glen's Wannamaker came through with a homer in the top of the ninth to make the score 7-3 and it ended that way.

Muffled Chance in Ninth

Howe and Hagerman had a fine chance to score in the top of the ninth when they loaded the bags with one out off two walks and a single as Halloran, Glen hurler progressed to form. Jack Wardaugh went down, flying out to right field with the runners holding, and Halloran settled down to force Widge Adams to pop to first and Locke to ground out on an infield jap.

Marly Halloran gave up but six hits for the winners while the Plumbers to three clouts until the eighth when they banged out a pair and clinged another in the ninth. He walked four, two of them in the ninth and struck out a pair.

Pitchers Go Route

Al Adams went the route for the Howe-Hags and was nicked for ten hits over the nine-innings parade. He gave up five in the disastrous first innings but settled down to scatter an equal number over the remaining eight chukkers, he walked but one and whiffed two. Al led the losers at the plate getting three of the six hits off Halloran.

Two Homers For Glens

Wanamaker and Hunter honored for the Glens, Wanamaker's coming in the first with one man aboard, Hunter hit for the circuit in the eight with two out and the sacks unpopulated. Keith Baldwin, Johnny Rousky and Doug Sword came through with a pair of singles each with Mallory and Halloran accounting for the remaining clouts.

Howe and Hagerman pitcher Lum Carson was tossed out of the game by umpire D. Pointer after being warned by the official while coaching along the first base line following a fly ejection order. Carson rusher toward the plate and, it is alleged, attacked the umpire. A report of the incident was later forwarded in writing to the league executive.

AT THE CAPITOL — Roman Gladiator —As portrayed by star Henri Vidal in Jules Levey's stirring dramatic spectacle, "Fabiola," this daring athlete has an important part in the colorful Roman revels which motivate the story, based on a famous novel by Nicholas Cardinal Wiseman. The picture now at the Capitol Theatre, today and Saturday, is a United Artists release. Michele Morgan and Michel Simon are co-starred with Vidal. On the same program chapter one "Roar of the Iron Horse." Continuous show Saturday from 1.00 p.m.

THREE HELD FOR MURDER

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 20 — (AP) — Three unremorseful, beer-drinking boys were held for murder today in the hammer slaying of nurse Pauline Campbell.

They and another teen-age youth also admitted slugging another nurse here Sept. 11. But the fourth youth was not connected with the killing.

The attacks had terrorized this university town.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Bidder

There is logic behind every sound bid in bridge. Also behind every sound response. That goes for the responses to a simple overcall (non-jump defensive bid.)

A simple overcall of one in a suit promises five tricks if that suit is in trump; two high cards among them; one of which is a sure tjck; and a suit that is at least biddable.

In answer to a simple overcall, do not respond (1) in no-trump with less than five high cards, or (2) by a takeout to your suit with less-than a simple overcall hand of your own.

The reasons are: At no-trump, you need seven or more high cards; at a takeout, your partner's tricks dwindle when his suit is not trump. So, only an assist is sound with as few as three tricks.

You see, when partner bids a simple overcall of one in a suit, he says he has five tricks. But he also says those five tricks are promised only if his suit is the final trump.

An assist keeps partner's suit as the trump. So the five tricks he has promised are not bupalred by your response. In fact, his five tricks are safer because of the additional trumps in your hand.

So, even if you have only three tricks, you and your partner have a total of eight tricks at his trump suit. Only when you do not have an assist will his five tricks lose their value.

South starts with an opening bid of one diamond. Your west partner wicks in a simple overcall of one heart. Decide your response with this east hand:

♠9 5 2
♥K 8 4 2
♣A J 10 9

You have not enough high cards for a no-trump response. Because partner has shown no more than two high cards and you have only two. Nor have you a simple overcall of your own for a takeout.

But you can assist his heart suit. You have enough to raise him in his suit. You could bid two hearts. It makes sense.

Says Draft Horse Will Make Comeback

Regina — (CP) — Some people may think the horse has had its day — except for racing and butchers' meat — but not Hardy Salter of Calgary.

A breeder of Percherons, a heavy draft type, Salter says he'd "just as soon eat my brother or my relatives as eat horse meat."

"A horse is a man's friend," he says.

And he thinks people who believe the draft horse is headed for extinction via meat-packing plants are badly off-base.

Ordinary draft horses, well-broken to harness, brought good prices at horse sales this spring—so good that horse-packing plants had to raise their prices.

Sales at Stettler and Lacombe, Alta. — usually the biggest in the west — were cancelled for lack of animals.

Mr. Salter said work horses are coming back into demand. The Maritime Provinces have banned the use of caterpillar tractors in tree-cutting because the machines crush young trees.

"A horse can get in and out between the trees without breaking them down," Salter says. Handy on Farm

He doesn't think the horse will regain its old place on the prairies as the main source of power. But he says there is a use on every farm for three horses — a draft team and a dual-purpose horse for riding and winter driving. Horses can do innumerable farm chores much cheaper than tractors.

Mr. Salter admits interest in heavy horses has dropped best he says he doesn't like the suggestion of some cattle breeders that prize money for horse classes at prairie fairs be turned over to cattle classes.

"When best cattle were selling at a cent a pound during the depression and you could get $1,000 anywhere for a good horse, we didn't suggest that the prize money for cattle be turned over to us.

"They didn't ask us—horse breeders if we were through.

"I'm not through by a long ways."

Basenji Hounds From Far Congo Make Debut Here

Victoria — (CP) — Lotus Bud of the Congo, Joss of Glenairly and Magidon of Kenya and Congo have three things in common.

They're dogs — rare Basenji hunting hounds; they can trace their ancestry back to the days of Egypt's Pharaohs; and they can't bark.

The three dogs, believed to be the only ones of their breed to be brought to Victoria and some of the few on the North American Continent, are owned by Mrs. Sheila Anderson of this city.

Mrs. Anderson brought them from England after the first of the breed was exported to England from their native Belgian Congo.

Although they can't bark, the dogs are used by natives of the Congo to track down big game—elephants, gorillas and other wild beasts.

These excellent pets, which can whine and growl with the best of dogs, are considered top show dogs in the hound class.

Mrs. Anderson hopes to breed them, but Basenjis have only one litter of pups a year. Litters are generally between five and seven pups.

Another feature of these sturdy little dogs that few other canines possess is there is no "doggy odor" about them.

They're also expensive.

Woman Admits Writing 3 Love Letters to Accused

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Sept. 22—(CP) — Pretty Mrs. Adele Vinslovas said yesterday that she wrote three letters to Wasyl Krawiec, now on trial for murder, saying that she loved him.

She testified as a Crown witness at Krawiec's trial on a charge of murdering 26-year-old Jonas Norkus, a railway section worker at Agawa, 130 miles north of here.

Norkus was found the court she wrote the letters "only for fun." All three were read to the jury.

Later the 25-year-old wife of a railway section foreman described a party the night of July 21 at the section house.

Attending the party, she said, were herself, Norkus, Krawiec, and Mr. and Mrs. Milewyl Beni, once a German lawyer, now is a laborer. All five persons drank wine and "danced, sang and told stories."

She told the court that Krawiec became annoyed when she refused to dance with him. He went into the kitchen and returned with a butcher knife which he stuck under his belt.

Soon after, said Mrs. Vinslovas she went upstairs because her baby young children began to cry. Then she came down she saw Norkus holding his hands to his chest and moving across the room toward the kitchen.

Later, she said, she found Norkus lying on the back porch dead.

"Wasyl took me by the hand and he kicked the hand of Norkus" said the witness. "Then with a rifle in one hand and a knife in the other he threatened to kill her if she told police he killed the section worker.

The trial is continuing.

BRITISH ASKED TO RE-OPEN IRAN OIL TALKS

Mossadegh Drops Talk of Ultimatums

Tehran, Sept. 22—(AP)—Using a mysterious bit of backdoor diplomacy, Premier Mohammed Mossadegh has asked Britain to reopen stalled oil talks and has dropped his threat of an ultimatum.

Authoritative Iranian sources disclosed today that a high court official handed an unsigned note containing Mossadegh's proposals for a third round of talks to British Ambassador Sir Francis Shepherd Thursday night.

(In London, a foreign office spokesman said Iran's new communication adds nothing towards giving any promise of settlement of the dispute over oil nationalization. The spokesman said the new message leaves its position unchanged and provides no basis for the resumption of negotiations. Iran is being informed to that effect, the spokesman added.)

Mossadegh dropped his announced plan to deliver his ultimatum demanding British evacuation in 15 days because of the approaching election in Britain and Iranian officials said.

Busy With Election

Iranian officials said Mossadegh realized Prime Minister Attlee and Foreign Secretary Bevin could not submit to any ultimatum while campaigning against Winston Churchill. If Churchill has led the opposition party in forming a government with charges of being weak in dealing with Iran's nationalization of Anglo-Iranian Oil Company properties.

The Shah had been taking the lead in moves to get Mossadegh to withdraw the ultimatum. One source said that there is even a possibility Iran would be willing to send a delegation to London to negotiate the oil issue.

There is a strong feeling high in political circles here, however, that Atlee will stall any further action on the deficits of Iranian oil until after the Oct. 25 election.

Ouster Threatened

Mossadegh had sent the ultimatum threatening ouster of the 350 British technicians remaining at the Abadan refinery if Britain refused to agree to submit to W. Averell Harriman, President Truman's diplomatic assistant. Harriman who got the two countries together last month, was said to be now in London, saying it would split Britain and Iran further if they refused to hear talks to Mossadegh.

Rejection of the ultimatum note were kept secret.

But informed sources said its tone was more moderate than the ultimatum Mossadegh handed Harriman to relay last week.

Harriman has proposed the two-point plan for settling the ...ing dip "competent" ...nagement and the nationalization of all fields and refinery, compensating Britain for the take-over based on what it would cost to handle oil transportation and

Three Killed, 10 Injured in Series Of Gas Blasts in Rochester Suburb

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 22 — (AP)—Three persons were known dead and 10 were injured in a series of gas blasts that destroyed at least 20 homes in the fashionable suburb of Brighton Friday.

The coroner's office said it had no reports of anyone missing.

The blast claimed the lives of two children directly. One person died of a heart attack, apparently brought on by the excitement.

More than 2,000 homes in the eight-block blast area were vacated on police orders. All householders within a two-mile radius of the blast also were told to get out.

Most homes were so completely demolished that it is impossible to tell if anyone had been trapped in them.

The bodies of two children, removed from the wreckage of one home, were burned beyond recognition, but were believed to be Mary Ann, 8, and William, 4, children of William J. Maas, head of a construction firm.

Mrs. Louise Meyer, 77, was fatally stricken with a heart attack while she was being removed from her home.

World Tension Spotlighting Fayid, In Suez Canal Area; Egypt Wants British Ousted

Fayid, Egypt, Sept. 22 (AP) — The North Atlantic Council's plan to set up a Middle-East defence system brought into sharp focus today this sun-baked desert strip alongside the Suez Canal.

This is a sovereign part of Egypt but is under British control, and Egypt is hostile to British military plans. The North Atlantic Council's decision at Ottawa to incorporate Turkey and Greece in the defence set-up put it in the spotlight.

Fayid is headquarters and the nerve centre of Britain's widespread middle-east army command. It could be headquarters of a talked-about new middle-east N.A.T.O. branch with British, United States and French backing.

But it is apparent that a successful execution of a new middle-east defence plan depends on the attitude of Egypt.

British troops operate a great military supply base that stretches along the 104-mile canal under terms of the Anglo-Egyptian defence alliance signed in 1936 to run 20 years.

Egypt's prime minister and foreign minister have announced they want Britain to end the treaty soon. Egypt demands that Britain clear out of the canal area immediately.

But Britain says that because of world tension they can't abandon this base and its supplies and facilities.

It is certain Britain feels the canal area would be the backbone of the middle-east N.A.T.O.

The big question is whether Egypt will go along with this.

Military leaders say there are many military factors to consider in middle-east defence:

1. The oil riches of the Persian Gulf.

2. The Suez Canal, the world's most-used ocean shortcut.

3. The "bastion" of Turkey as a strong defence position.

Any defence against Russian aggression would have to hold the line on these three.

But there are several problems to be worked out.

Although Turkey is expected to be the keystone, it hasn't reported anxious to identify itself with Europe rather than the middle east.

Egypt might be jealous of Turkey's importance. The Egyptians emerged only last century from a long and oppressive Turkish rule.

Another factor is the hatred of the Arab states for Israel.

Split in C. C. L. Leadership Causes Furor at Convention

By JOHN LESLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, Sept. 22 — (CP) — The Canadian Congress of Labor, Canada's child exposed of unity of labor, today was riven by a deep split in its top ranks.

A congress vice-president had refused to run for office as a protest against leadership methods while National Secretary-Treasurer Pat Conroy left policy-making — of the 350,000-member C.C.L. — had walked out of his job.

The two developments stirred an uproar among puzzled and angry delegates to the C.C.L. convention here yesterday and last night, serving to break up the congress' annual session with some of its business still hanging fire.

Action Jolts Meeting

Resignation of the red-haired Conroy, looked on as the mastermind of the C.C.L. victory for years and crown prince to 70-year-old President A. R. Mosher, jolted the convention to its heels.

It came only shortly after C. H. Millard of Toronto, Canadian chief of the 80,000-member United Steel Workers of America —Canada's biggest union — had pulled out of his vice-presidency in a policy split with C.C.L. leaders.

Millard participants in the biggest rift in years in a major Canadian labor group were in the camps in a series of intricate manoeuverings over control of power during the weeklong convention here.

Millard came out on top, and Conroy promptly announced that his resignation to a stunned convention. Mosher refused to accept it, told him to come back, but up until the time it ended, Conroy was insisting his departure was final.

His resignation, if he stays with it, would leave the congress without its keystone official.

Conroy, 48, a Scottish-born and self-taught coal miner who holds a sharp intellect, a dominant platform personality and a biting wit, has often been a thorn in opponents. He has been frequently mentioned as a possibility for federal minister of Labor.

Developing for Week

The events leading up to the blowoff had been developing all week, mostly in conventional hotel rooms as the opponents lined up delegate strength for yesterday's showdown officers' election.

In the background was the resignment of Millard's steel workers union, against some conditions in the congress, notably the fact that it has not had what it considers an adequate representation on the C.C.L.'s 14-man executive committee.

However, the immediate fight was pegged on the declared majority of the executive—led by Conroy—to support the re-election to the executive committee of Sam Baron of Hamilton, who recently was deposed by his international office as Canadian director of the Textile Workers' Union of America. Baron was involved in an internal union scrap with his international president, Emil Rieve of New York.

Baron had unsuccessfully to get the executive to go along with the idea of dropping textile-union representatives from the executive for the time being and putting in one of his own men instead.

As a protest at the executive's turndown, he declined to run for re-election as vice-presidency, which he could have carried easily. However, he did run two executive committee, and they elected him. He is a former Hamilton boy of Toronto, his assistant national director, and Ben Baskin, also from the Toronto office.

Baron Squeezed Out

Baskin beat out Baron in a run-off vote last night—squeezing Baron off the executive—and it was right after the vote announcement that Conroy, speaking quietly but obviously seething with anger, said the convention he was quitting.

"In this fight," Conroy said, "I chose to support Sam Baron. I have taken this vote as a test of my leadership of the Congress and my judgment. I feel I no longer have the confidence of the Congress. I am therefore tendering my resignation effective at once."

Then he walked out of the convention platform, leaving behind a vainly banged for order.

Conroy and Mosher in first to get the floor, and he said he was sure the convention didn't like it with the secretary - treasurer's idea that he had been repudiated. Mosher said Conroy's term this afternoon had been re-elected to office by a 532-53 vote against a write-in candidate.

President Mosher, clearly taking charge, got the meeting under control. He said a number of delegates had told him they had been misled.

"If you want my resignation, too, you can have it right now," Mosher told the convention.

Eventually, the Congress got together a delegation to go see Conroy and try to get him to change his mind. It came back with four later and reported failure.

Right after that, the convention decided to adjourn, having nearly finished such major business as a declaration of forty policy resolutions, a dozen other resolutions. Delegates left the convention hall talking only of the Conroy move.

The question of Conroy's resignation was left in the hands of the executive council—a 40-man body representing major C.C.L. unions. Meanwhile, the smaller executive committee was to meet today to which Conroy was expected the committee would try to persuade Conroy to change his mind.

ELIZABETH, DUKE MAY CROSS SEA IN R.C.A.F. PLANE

King's Illness Changes Royal Visit Plans

Ottawa, Sept. 22. (AP)—The R.C.A.F. is prepared to fly Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh to Canada but whether its big C5 royal-visit transport plane is to be used has not yet been decided.

Their Royal Highnesses had planned to sail for Canada next week aboard the Empress of France, arriving at Quebec City, October 1.

Their plans were changed yesterday when it was announced the King was to undergo a lung operation. The announcement said they now "hope to fly on a later day" so as to arrive at Quebec in time to begin the tour's originally scheduled.

Plane Readied

When it was announced the sea voyage was off, the R.C.A.F. was asked whether its special transport plane is available and ready to make the return trip to London. It replied affirmatively.

The plane had already been assigned to fly the royal couple on various parts of their journey across Canada.

The flight across the Atlantic, however, could also be made in a Trans-Canada Airlines plane or by British Overseas Airways.

Shortly after the landing announcement that the King was to undergo an operation, Prime Minister St. Laurent issued a statement:

"The Canadian government and, I am sure, all the Canadian people will be relieved and pleased to be assured that the condition of the King's health is considered not serious by the doctors. Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh to abandon their plans for their visit to Canada.

May Bypass Quebec

"All Canadians will hope the treatment His Majesty is to undergo at this time will have brought about such benefit that details that Princess Elizabeth will not have occasion to feel concern anxiety about the King's health during her stay with us in Canada."

The Canadian Government, Vincount Alexander, last night sent a message to the King saying "all your loyal subjects in Canada pray and pray that Your Majesty will soon be restored to health."

An R.C.A.F. official said if the royal couple cross the Atlantic in the City Class liner Empress of France they will fly from Quebec City and land at Montreal's larger Dorval airport.

From there a twin-engined plane could fly them back to Quebec to keep the royal tour operating as planned.

DIED OF FRIGHT

Whitesburg, Ky., Sept. 22 (AP) —Magistrate J. B. Addington said yesterday that Bradley Breeding died of fright when a man with a "frightening" Constable Jim Clifford, dead last Saturday night. He said a coroner's jury reported that Combs, 55, apparently died of fright when a number of shots were fired in his direction. He was not hit.

King George 'Soon' To Undergo Lung Operation

Surgery Theatre Set Up In Buckingham Palace

London, Sept. 22 (CP) —Five of the King's doctors decided this again this morning but did not perform the operation which is to be carried out "soon" on his lung.

The doctors stayed more than three hours, some of them supervising the arrangement of apparatus in a Buckingham Palace room which is being turned into a surgery theatre.

Thousands of anxious Britons gathered outside the palace, awaiting news that the doctors had operated on the 55-year-old monarch.

At mid-day, the court correspondent of the British Press Association confirmed that no operation was performed during morning hours.

There was no confirmation that the plan that the King be being operated on today, but medical equipment has arrived and all of the rooms has been turned into an operating theatre.

Expressions of sympathy and concern reached the palace from the Commonwealth, the United States and western European nations.

Congregations at churches of all denominations throughout Britain will offer prayers tomorrow for the restoration of King George VI.

All the ailing monarch's engagements for the next few weeks have been cancelled, including the opening of the new parliament on Nov. 6.

The surgical theatre in the palace was hastily equipped for the 56-year-old monarch.

Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh quickly cancelled their plan to leave on the Empress of France next Tuesday for a tour of Canada and a visit to Washington.

A palace spokesman said, however, that the Royal couple "hoped" to fly to Canada later in time to follow their planned itinerary, which begins in Quebec Oct. 2.

Princess Margaret was to fly to London today from Balmoral Castle, Royal highland home in Scottish home.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, ordered special prayers for the King to be said tomorrow in the churches of the Church of England, of which the King is the temporal head.

London newspapers expressed confidence and sympathy to the King and his family.

The King has been in poor health since 1949 and has came down with influenza. A medical bulletin issued Thursday night reported "structural changes" in one of his lungs.

There was speculation that X-rays and bronchoscopic examinations would be made to show what is wrong and that doctors merely planned an exploratory operation to find out.

May Drain Matter

Some private doctors, however, thought the surgeons hoped to drain off inflammatory matter accumulated in one lung.

They speculated the King's attacks of lung inflammation have scarred and narrowed his bronchial tubes—a development that could be described as a structural change.

With the narrowing or obstruction of one of the tubes the natural drainage would stop and inflammatory matter would accumulate in the lung andbecoming general health.

Sometimes doctors can deal with such situations by using a bronchoscope, an instrument inserted through the mouth and into the tubes.

When bronchoscopic treatment fails, surgery may be resorted to.

Surgery may be more dangerous for the King than for most people, because of his history of circulating, disease.

He was operated on March 12, 1949, to relieve a blood clot in his leg.

Rally to Monarch

The British people rallied to their monarch in his ordeal. Small crowds clustered outside the palace yesterday watching the arrival of a stream of doctors and ambulances carrying equipment for the operating theatre. Throughout the world of the King's immense devotion to duty. Some messages poured over-work for his condition.

The Times of London says his advisors should bear in mind that British law allows a council of state to be created to perform some of the sovereign's duties.

"There . . . overhangs the King the constitutional responsibilities that beset a sovereign at the dissolution of one parliament and the election of another and the possibility of a change of government," The Times says.

British elects a new parliament Oct. 25, A number of regal ceremonies attend such an election.

In Paris, the Duke of Windsor, who abdicated the throne in order to marry the love of his life, he had no statement to make.

He went back to London tomorrow to attend a Publishers' Association dinner. But it was learned yesterday he will not visit the King, the Duke's secretary said.

History's Biggest Jet Battle Fought High Over 'Mig Alley'

U.S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Sept. 22. (AP)—Nearly 130 United States and communist jet warplanes today fought for 25 minutes high over "MIG Alley" in northwest Korea in what may have been history's biggest jet fight.

U.S. pilots reported they damaged three red MIG-15s.

The battle raged from 37,000 feet down to 20,000 feet.

Allied pilots said they lost, Allied fighter-bombers Saturday hurled another attack at the highest peak of "Communist Bridge".

United Nations' planes roared through clear skies and thunderheads commencing today in their dive bombers.

The first action was reported from the central front, where Allied tanks Friday smashed almost to Pyongyang in an armored raid through the old red "iron triangle", Pyongyang, northern tip of the triangle, is 29 miles north of the 38th parallel.

U.N. officers estimated the reds lost nearly 1,000 men killed or wounded in the action.

They said that only one of the four tank-tipped forces on the raid ran into trouble. It had to fight out of a curtain of antitank, mortar, artillery and small-arms fire.

The western front was relatively quiet.

Allied night fighters, prowling the Korean skies Friday night and Saturday morning, destroyed 14 communist vehicles. United States Fifth Air Force jets said they also destroyed or damaged at least 430 vehicles 50 rail cars and three locomotives.

Talk of a gigantic red offensive in the west has died down around Eighth Army headquarters in their bunkers.

Shawinigan Falls, Que., Sept. 22 (CP) — Quebec Provincial Police captured Antonio Houle, 43, of nearby St. Flore, in the woods near his shack early today.

Police say Houle fired a shotgun blast into a group of teen-agers here last night, killing one and wounding four.

The 26-year-old junk dealer is reported to have gone berserk and fired the blast after an argument with the group.

Police say Houle hid in the woods near his St. Flore shack, three miles from the industrial centre of Shawinigan Falls, after the shooting.

Flushed from Woods

When the accused was flushed from a group of trees he offered no resistance and police recovered the shotgun and a bag of ammunition on the ground a short distance from the shack.

Struck down by the shotgun blast as he stepped out of a St. Flore restaurant, was Robert Barbeau 16.

In hospital and not expected to survive is Georges Lavallee, 17. The other youths wounded are suffering from minor injuries.

Last night, a cordon of policemen closed in on the shack where Houle, a bachelor, lives alone.

Searchlights played on the dingy shack as police waited for daylight and for reinforcements from Montreal before pushing cautiously forward. The Montreal officers were armed with bullet-proof vests and tear-gas.

Others struck by shotgun pellets are Carmel Bournival, 15; Gabriel Harvey, 13, and Barbeau's 15-year-old brother, Gerard. Houle suffered a pierced lip and a broken tooth.

Tragedy Follows Argument

Police reconstructed the crime this way.

The man went berserk after an argument with the group, among whose parents live near Houle's shack. The argument is said to have been over a number of dogs owned by the junk dealer.

"There was no immediate reason for the present whereabouts of the two dogs.

Witness said that, following the initial argument, Houle rode away on a motorcycle but returned in a short time with a shotgun.

He paced up and down in front of the restaurant. When Barbeau came out to confront Houle, a shotgun blast boomed. Barbeau and Legault, son of restaurant owner Aurele Legault, collapsed on the porch.

Barbeau received the full blast in the chest. Legault was hit in the chest and face.

The picture portrays bird and insect life in a manner charming and beautiful. Business Chances for Athletes Now Better Than Ever Before, Dick Groom Tells Ad Men.

Business opportunities were available to athletes today which were unimagined a few years ago, declared Richard "Dick" Groom, former Hamilton hockey and football star, who is now in the insurance executive, during an address he made to members of the Belleville Sales and Advertising Club at their September meeting, held Friday night at the Quinte Hotel.

When he last played football five years ago, said Mr. Groom, his team's total budget was $80,— 000. Today, he emphasized, the budget of any "big time" football club in Canada was approximately $350,000.

"Salaries paid to players ranged as high as $30,000 for the season, and average from $5,000 to $10,000 this year," he said. By contrast, he added that the pay for the season when he had played for a Canadian championship team had been $150.

Other Advantages

"But the salaries which they received for playing," Mr. Groom said, "were by no means the only advantages which were nowadays available to competent athletes."

Many business and industrial executives were interested in football teams and similar organizations were making available to athletes business opportunities of a type that athletes rarely received in times past.

"These jobs today," said Mr. Groom, "not only pay good salaries, but often lead to advancement into executive positions. Of course, business concern do not reward their future executives to continue indefinitely with sport. It is a wise athlete who will quit at the right time and devote all his time to business."

Want to Sell

Referring to football players as salesmanship, Mr. Groom said, "Nearly all the football players today, it seems from those I meet, want to be salesmen. Some are doing extremely well, making from $8,000 to $10,000 a year, but some who have tried it find they are not suited to it."

Mr. Groom spoke on the importation of American stars by Canadian football teams. Mr. Groom said the "American influence" had done a great deal of good to the Canadian game.

The American influence, he said, was building better playing fields and drawing bigger gates. Nearly all the coaches of Canadian teams, he said, had been "Americanized," with the result that the major teams were getting their players from the colleges, the high school and the junior leagues.

Participation in professional sport, Mr. Groom said he believed was beneficial to any young man who had the ability, provided he doesn't stay at it too long."

Get Good Training

The training which an athlete received in self-discipline, he said, could be of great value during his post-athletic career. The ability to do one's best in the face of difficult circumstances he described as one asset of football, he said.

Mr. Groom was introduced by Bud Gill. Mr. Gill said that Mr. Groom had played for the Hamilton Tiger hockey team in 1945, 1946, and 1947. He had been captain of the Hamilton Tigers football team in 1946, a member of the all-star Canadian football team in Canada in both 1945 and 1946.

A vote of thanks to Mr. Groom for his address was moved by Charles Phillips. Booster prizes were won by Jack Bond, Guests and Benny Parsons.

Charles Lundy was chairman. George Campbell welcomed the guests, and Bill Riley the new members. Byran Humphries made a presentation to Bill Stovin, the past president of the club.

Musical entertainment was provided by the Quintones, a quintet composed of Gerry Grant, Alf. Evans, Dalton Kaye and Dick Brettingham.

Cats may have nine lives but a certain part Persian in the city has less hair today that it had yesterday. The hair-losing incident caused no little excitement early today at a North Front St. residence, and brought firemen on the run.

It all happened when the lady of the house decided to catch up on the laundry. She dumped in clothes, water and soap and then started the washing machine. The pet Persian walked beneath the machine, right beside the revolving shaft and was promptly jerked out of its complacency.

Suddenly terrified yowls filled the air as the cat bounced around in the washing machine. The housewife took one look, stopped the machine and called the fire department.

The Persian is going to be all right, firemen reported. The net result was the loss of some hair and a sore tail.

'Noes' Outweigh Affirmative Vote In Australia

Sydney, Australia, Sept. 22, — (AP) — The "No" votes against outlawing the communist party outweighed "Yes" votes in early returns in today's Australian referendum.

With approximately 40 per cent count of the vote counted, the results stood: 902,000 no and 900,- 000 yes, with the noes ahead in four of the six states. The strong indication was that the proposed law would be rejected and so as to permit outlawing the communists would be required both in the over-all vote and by states. In addition to a majority vote, a referendum must change must win approval of four states.

Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies' coalition government wants parliament to have that power, contending that outlawing of the party will help toward industrial peace, included production and a higher standard of living.

The opposition Labor party and the communists are against it. Observers generally believed the outcome will be close.

sales. Iran wants control over drilling, refining and sales.

Informed sources said Mossadegh's latest proposal was driven to Britain in such a manner that he could disavow the whole transaction if it backfires.

Same Proposals

These sources said the note contained the same proposals for limited sale of oil to Britain and compensation for seized property as were contained in the prime minister's letter to Harriman last week. The only difference, it was reported, was that it did not contain the 15-day time limit for reopening the talks or ousting British technicians from Abadan.

One source close to Mossadegh said he is still going ahead with plans to withdraw the residence permits of Britons at Abadan, unless British supplies "dovetail" to the note within seven days.

The latest manoeuvre was executed in a devious manner. Diplomatic custom dictates official notes to be handed to a foreign ambassador by the foreign minister. In this case, it was learned authoritatively, a high ranking official handed over the unsigned communication in English and Persian on a plain sheet of paper without the usual official heading of the foreign office or the premier's office. Although the note dropped all talk of any ultimatum, Mossadegh reportedly has not withdrawn the threat of a seven-day time limit to Britain through a third person.

GAINS OFFICIAL STATUS

Singapore, Sept. 22 — (AP) — Britain's dollar-counted Singapore gained official city status today amid the pomp of Empire and the clashing colors of its mingled races. Before this rubber-and-tin-rich city of more than 1,000,000 persons had been classed as a "town."

Huronia Research Uncovers Record of Courage and Zeal

By FREDERICK NELSON
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Midland, Ont., Sept. 22—(CP) —A record of missionary courage and engineering skill 300 years ago is coming to light under the trowel and whisk of a Canadian archeologist.

For the last four years, Wilfrid W. Jury, curator of the museum of Indian archeology at the University of Western Ontario, has probed the ruins of Fort Ste. Marie 1 — once the most isolated outpost in France's North American empire — for details on the early history of the New World.

Among his discoveries are the first canal locks and water piping known in North America.

Fort Ste. Marie 1 was the fort from which Jesuit missionaries carried Christianity to the Indians. Five were tortured and slain. They became saints of the Roman Catholic Church.

Careful Work

The record in the earth has been patiently dug out and sifted by Jury. With him works his wife, tabulating, sorting and recording the finds.

The quiet, grey-haired archeologist plies his whisk and trowel by what is regarded by Catholics of Canada and the United States as "hallowed ground."

On the hill above the valley where he works rise the twin spires of the Martyrs' Shrine, erected in commemoration of the five Jesuit martyrs who lost their lives in the service of their faith.

Jury's digging has uncovered the first Christian cemetery in Ontario. He exhumed, examined and re-interred the bones of the first Christian buried there.

With them he identified the remains of Donne Jacobus Douart, the only Frenchman left buried there when the fort was abandoned.

A concrete plaque now marks Douart's grave, surmounted by a tall cross. Wooden crosses mark the graves of the Indians.

It was in this cemetery that the tortured body of Saint Jean de Brebeuf was first buried when it was recovered after the Iroquois left the ruins of the nearby friendly Indian village of St. Louis.

The body was removed long before Jury began his excavations and, wrapped in oil silks, taken back to Quebec by the Jesuit fathers.

Arrived in 1639

The Jesuits came to this area on Georgian Bay 75 miles north west of Toronto in 1630 on a mission to the Huron Indians. They built a fortified settlement covering about two acres of ground, and named it Fort St. Marie.

The menace of hostile Iroquois Indians became so great 10 years later that the remaining missionaries left the area and Indians burned the fort behind them.

Jury's explorations have revealed the outlines of the fort and its buildings.

It was a major fortress at its time, protected by a palisade and moat and on three sides by an inland lake. The lake now has receded far from its old waterline.

The foundations of building after building have been uncovered and examined. Some of them are in what Jury terms a "remarkable state" of preservation. They have given invaluable information on the lives and habits of the priests and soldiers of France who lived there, and of Indians served by the hospital.

Butts of Logs Found

The rotted butts of the palisade logs have been uncovered, and even the pole logs of Algonquian tepees in the Indian compound south of the fort.

Jury found vehicle sections of an old sequedect, axe marks still evident on the sides of the hewn trough. The system piped water into the enclosure from springs in the hills.

He found that the water was used for other purposes, too. For its help anit a set of canal locks, freight canoes and barges were raised from the level of the lake right into the centre of the fort.

Work is going forward now to store the fort and its buildings as a reminder of Canada's earliest days.

France's empire in America is no more, but the new Fort Ste. Marie rising at Midland is intended as reminder of its faith, skill and courage.

GARDEN CULTURE Scotts
by Harold C. Bryant C.S.J.

CENTIFOLUM LILIES

These magnificent hybrids are sensationally beautiful flowers that come in a wide range of colors from creamy white to fuschia pink and soft yellow.

An open but protected spot is desirable. Light shade is preferable to full sun. A ground cover that provides shade around the roots and conserves moisture is ideal.

In planting lilies provide holes large enough to accomodate the bulb and roots without crowding. Allow at least a foot between the bulbs and surround with sharp sand and loam. Give a light mulch after the ground freezes. Do not allow the plants to form seed, pods. Early fall planting gives best results.

More than likely they will meet some of their old school friends, who too are all worked up. The teachers, most of whom have marched with the children after the grand march, are thrown by the spectators as the children pass by, can look on with satisfaction, for it is a fitting way to end a school year. Above all, it is a time when the people of the canton can come together with their children in such a way that everybody is young once more, and exclaim, "dies ist ja wunderbar."

RARE TWINS

Twins are rare among Canada's Indians. These seven-week-old girls are daughters of Chief Nishinabee and his wife of the Black Chippawa tribe of the Lowbush territory north of Cochrane, Ont. The girls, Apahish, left, and Little Fawn, were photographed when their parents were attending the Northern Ontario Exhibition at Schumacher. — (CP Photo.)

THE CHILDREN'S FESTIVAL

(Article 38)

St. Gallen, Switzerland — (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — If you were to ask any school child in St. Gallen what the most exciting day this year was, he or she would in all likelihood reply, "Das Kinderfest, natuerlich." It is this day that occupies such an important part in the life of every child, and indeed in the life of everyone in St. Gallen, that for weeks no one can think of anything else, and for a week after everyone remarks how smoothly everything went off. As the day approaches, preparations reach a fever pitch, and the weather reports are awaited with great anxiety for it would never do to hold the festivities if there was any sign of rain. So sure must they be, that this year it was postponed no less than three times.

Since the school year was almost at an end, I was afraid that I would miss everything and that I would not be able to see it at all. But I was interested in weather reports as did everybody else. In the end we were well rewarded for there came a period of perfect weather; not a cloud in the sky and not too warm. I can only say that it was a success from every point of view and as for me it was a highlight in my stay in St. Gallen.

Gather Early in Day

All the children assemble at their respective schools between seven and eight in the morning. This may seem early, but then the Swiss like to get up really early. The girls are all dressed in white, products of the textile industry that I have already mentioned, and the boys in white shirts and blue pants. At shortly after eight they all move off for a parade through the city before going to the Kinderfestplatz where celebrations are held for the rest of the day.

Most of the route of the parade is lined with teachers, which have been erected for the occasion and which are erected to the spectators. Of course all businesses are closed of their own free will, for who would want to miss the parade. First come the little children of grade one, and for them it is their first time, so that their excitement knows no bounds. The girls form the two outside rows and the boys the two inside. Each girl wears a wreath on her head, or carries a bouquet of flowers in her hands. On the outside of the file are long streamers of leaves, held by each girl with a long ribbon. Of course when a line is made up entirely of girls or boys they are not linked but are allowed to remain together. The entire parade is liberally mixed with bands, both brass and accordion, for which the Swiss have a great liking. In fact, most of these accordion bands are composed of only students.

Display Presented

After an hour the parade is over but no one goes home since festivities have just begun. Everyone follows the children to the Platz where for the rest of the day the children go through their paces. There is a stage built on the side of a slope so that everyone can see, and here are presented a variety of dances, gymnastic displays and singing. To the accompaniment of an orchestra the girls go through their interpretations of Viennese waltzes or Spanish dances, all under the watchful eye of the instructress, who is perhaps as more nervous than the girls, who rather seem to enjoy everything immensely, in spite of the fact that now and again someone makes a wrong turn, and hurries to cover it up before too much damage is done.

At noon the traditional dinner of "Bratwurst und Buerli" is served to the children right on the grounds. It is rather difficult to translate what this is into English, but perhaps the best I can come is to say it is fried sausage and rolls. This dinner has been a part of the festival as long as anyone can remember, and this year no less than ten thousand were prepared, and because of the weather no less than 4,000 gallons of cider, 5,000 gallons of black tea, and 1,200 gallons of beer were consumed by children and spectators alike, (the beer, I presume, entirely by the spectators).

After dinner the performances continue until the middle of the afternoon, when the prizes are awarded, and the younger children, by this time, worry from so much excitement, line up for the march back to their assembly place. The older students continue until 6.30 with their celebrations, when they, too, retire. Everyone is assured that tomorrow will be a day of relaxation for the teachers, some of whom were probably at one time in the parade themselves, declare the following day free from studies. The whole day is brought to a glorious close with a dance in the large municipal hall.

This Kinderfest of St. Gallen is only in part a manifestation of the local textile industry, for it is a time when the parents can celebrate as well as the children, and sit back in the evening and let their thoughts wander back to the time when they, too, took part, and how excited they were about it.

JAPAN IN BUSINESS AGAIN

The signing of the Japanese peace treaty at San Francisco, which has the effect of re-admitting the Nippon-ese into the company of civilized nations, is already causing worry in Washington, London and other world capitals, according to the highly authoritative New York Times news service.

Although the Japanese failed badly in their effort to become world conquerors, they are still, as they always have been, great workers. Furthermore, Japanese wage rates are only about one-third of the British wage, which is still lower than the levels prevailing in Canada and the United States.

Economists and exporters in Great Britain are already casting anxious eyes toward Japan, from which Japanese cottons and other goods are reported to be moving into far eastern markets in increasing quantities. Even Britishers personally realize they cannot for long escape from the impact of Japanese competition, especially in China and other countries relatively close to Japan.

American authorities are equally worried, although for different reasons. About 45 per cent of Japan's pre-war exports went to China. China is now Communist, and the United States doesn't recognize the government, or the China. The Americans do not wish to prevent Japan's every, but they are unwilling to see Japanese skills and economic exports being used to build up a Communistic ter of infinity.

Before the war, the British met the invasion of Japanese goods-into British colonies with tariffs, quotas and licences, but the present British government is reluctant to employ such devices. Japan, like Britain herself, must to export or exist, and many of the goods Japan produces for export are not only badly needed in the Orient, but are not available in Britain for the time being.

Another factor which helps to complicate the situation is that neither the British nor the Americans wish to antagonize the Japanese unnecessarily; both are looking toward Japan for help in dealing with Russia.

If Japanese competition is going to provide some headaches for manufacturers in all countries which permit imports from Japan, it may accomplish another purpose—it may help reduce the cost of living in some respects by forcing some people to pull their prices down somewhat.

In normal times, Japan is a heavy purchaser of Canadian lumber, wheat and other commodities. When Japanese production hits its stride again, Canada will scarcely be able to refuse to buy from a good customer.

ARE RESTAURATEURS PROFITEERS?

In a statement which he issued a few days ago, L. F. Burrows, secretary of the Canadian Horticultural Council, charged that Canadian restaurants are "raiding their patrons' pocketbooks with fantastic prices for homegrown fruits and vegetables."

Mr. Burrows added that the "excessive" prices charged by both hotels and restaurants are curbing consumption at a time when fruits and vegetables are in peak production.

Early McIntosh and Melba apples, said Mr. Burrows, are selling at from $2 to $2.25 a bushel, "or about one cent per apple." In an Ottawa hotel, he said, he found these apples, variable of apples offered for dessert at 15 cents apiece. One large chain restaurant, he said, was selling one slice of sold to the restaurant for less than 10 cents.

While peaches were selling on the Toronto market for 65 cents per six-quart basket, peach pie was offered for sale in downtown Toronto restaurants at 35 cents per cut. The latter were from six to eight peaches in a pie. An Ottawa restaurant was offering peaches and cream at 25 cents a dish. Ontario farmers are selling peaches for $2.30 a bushel, Mr. Burrows said, and were having difficulty in disposing of them because of an unusually heavy crop.

Taking Canadian-grown fruits and vegetables collectively, Mr. Burrows estimated that the prices at which hotel dining rooms and restaurants sell them to the public range from 200 per cent. to 1,400 per cent of what the farmer is paid for them. The farmers' profit, according to estimates made by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, was about one cent for each dollar of sales.

If Mr. Burrows knows what he is talking about, the restaurateurs are profiteering at a terrific rate. However, as anyone who has ever operated any business knows, there is a big difference between gross income and net profit. While Mr. Burrows is probably sincere enough in his contention that restaurant prices are too high, it would be interesting to hear what some of the restaurateurs have to say in rebuttal.

THE LITTLE DAHLIAS

The dahlias are in bloom once more,
And some grow straight and tall
And some, grown nearer to the floor
Are much like children small.

Some proudly wondrous blooms display—
Of dinner plates the size
The small ones seem as bright and gay
As children's twinkling eyes.

Some judges, by the strictest test
Which rules perfection here,
May hold the massive blossoms best
Of all the growing year.

But I, who am not moved at all
By rare and costly stock,
Love more the shining blossoms small
The children of the Sock.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Sept. 22nd., 1921.

The committee, to look into matters with regards to the proposed esplanade along the Moira River from the lower bridge to the upper bridge, met at the Chamber of Commerce last night with the following present: Mayor Geo. A. Reid, W. B. Deacon, Charles Whalen, Ald. J. D. MacMillan, City Engineer Charles Mott, Manager of the Board of Commerce A. J. O. Herity, John D. O'Flynn, George A. Simmons, R. J. Wray and W. N. Belair. There was little to report from the meeting as the committee has not the plans in readiness for an announcement. A blue print of the proposed road was shown the committee which was most interesting here.

Sir Wilfred Laurier and his government were overwhelmingly defeated in the Dominion elections yesterday. According to a summary today the Hon. Robert Borden will have a majority of 45 on the elections already held. This included the Nationalists of Quebec, so without them he will have a working majority. Eight of Sir Wilfrid's ministers were defeated and but four of them survived the battle of ballots. Sir Wilfrid was elected in two constituencies, Quebec East and Soulanges, but the following were defeated: Hon. G. F. Graham, Hon. Mackenzie King, Hon. William Pugsley, Hon. Sidney Fisher, Hon. W. S. Fielding, Hon. Sir Frederick Borden, Hon. William Templeman and Hon. Jacques Bureau. Reciprocity with the United States was the main issue of the election campaign; the issue was the cause of the Laurier Government's defeat. In West Hastings L. Gus Porter was elected by a majority of 1891. Dr. Ketcheson elected W. B. Northrup with a majority of 201. This seat was a gain for the Conservatives.

Talk about town is now concerned with city civic affairs next year. A large number of citizens want ex-Mayor A. T. Johnson to fill the office again and a petition is being circulated asking him to run for office.

British Stage Exhibit of Colors For Fall, Winter

London. (CP)—The British colour council recently staged an exhibition depicting hour-by-hour occasions in the day of a woman's life.

For the morning shopping the motif was inspired by the familiar symbol of London street life—the costermonger's barrow with its pyramid of colorful fruits. Aster pink, a pastel shade, was introduced; crimson leaf, a rich autumnal color; aconite yellow and lemon green (a variation of foliage green) and a sophisticated coley (cabbage) leaf shade.

With correctly selected accessories, brightness can be brought into dressing that women wearing these colors.

Glade green and autumn crocus were suggested for the matinee or concert and for the cocktail hour, colors might be worn with ensembles such as Rutland green, sweet lavender, chestnut pink and crimson leaf with matching or contrasting accessories.

For dinner, sophisticated styles suggested were red wine and sports velvet, while nightshade violet and autumn crocus were regarded as dignified colors for all ages.

For gala occasions there was rayon jersey in chartreuse yellow and nocturnal pink; moss crepe in Venetian pink; sweet lavender taffeta, crimson leaf and black brocade.

Travelling Shows Plan to Display Women's Styles

Montreal. — (CP) —Packaged fashion shows for women's organizations are the latest feature of this city's leading experts in this field.

Creators of this enterprise, Mrs. Clary (Dorothy) Booth and Miss Jora Monahan say the ideas were forced on them by the number of requests they received from women's clubs for help in arranging fashion shows.

Entitled "Fashion Et Cetera" the business will make available clothes, accessories, the musical accompaniment, and the skilled models. If desired the commentator and the backstage work will also be part of the package.

The shows will be kept up-to-date with new clothes to fit every season. A complete performance will run from 45 minutes to an hour, but several hours notice is to run for a shorter time are also planned for women's groups with fewer members.

Manufacturers and designers are pleased with the scheme for they believe their clothes and accessories will be shown to advantage under the professional guidance of the experts.

Mrs. Booth and Miss Monahan are well-known in fashion work as outstanding co-ordinators.

Afifi Pasha and His 'Desert Pearl'

By SIDNEY CLARE
(In Christian Science Monitor)

Cairo.—Within sight of the pyramids an Egyptian pasha has set about to prove that Egypt can send can bring rich profits to his country. His experiment, a 300-acre farm that he has named—the English equivalent—is an impressive success and is effecting something of an agricultural revolution in Egypt. Another hundred or more men of means have followed his example.

Ten years ago Afifi Pasha's Desert Pearl was as arid an area as could be found on earth. Not the slightest living thing grew on it. The Egyptian government had a branch canal to it and taxes have already repaid all costs five-fold. The land is taxed at 15 cents an acre the first year. He now pays three dollars an acre and may soon have to pay five, but he is not complaining. His plot, now one-third under cultivation, put him in the black in 1920.

For additional water the pasha has tapped the desert by means of artesian wells. At forty meters' depth there is a seemingly inexhaustible underground river of water from the far-distant Congo, as geologists firmly believe.

Experiments are on a large scale in many directions. Among many others are oranges, grapefruit, kumquats, pineapples from Hawaiian seed, tomatoes, grapes, peanuts, almonds, pecans, and colossal watermelons, sweet, almost American Dixie Queens, but there is also much incredible and fantastic fruit "and" that they are literally unmarketable. Nobody wants to cart them home.

An odd specialty is loufa, a vegetable sponge that America now imports from Japan but may soon import from Egypt. Afifi Pasha's quality is a special type of eucalyptus whose leaves produce Geranium oil, a product, also, with essence of geranium, the pasha produces in his own distillery, which he has erected.

A poultry farm of Rhode Island reds and Plymouth Rock pigeon is growing 2,000 pairs of pigeons, a cattle ranch with a hundred head of cattle and another hundred of camouse, or water buffaloes, carp ponds producing 10,-000 tai carp a year for his help —these are but a few of the pasha's specialties.

The pasha is frank to admit that sheep is a factor in his success. He has 100 well-fed workers' families who are paid a cent a day, but his paternalism furnishes —in addition to free quarters and free medical and dental care.

"Electric lighter!" I queried.

"No need of that," he said. "Arabs always go to bed with the sun and get up with it."

Hafez Afifi Pasha, to give his full name and title, is one of the least-known great industrialists of the world. He is president of the board chairman of many of Egypt's largest enterprises, including the mammoth cotton mill at Mehalla el-Kobra, largest in the world, and a model of paternalistic practice. Twice he has served as Egypt's ambassador at the Court of St. James. He has published a book entitled "Egypt of Yesterday and Today" and is also the author of "Islam in every-day life."

By directing this private enterprise on weekends.

The pasha is himself of fellah, or peasant, stock, a self-made man in the American pattern. His father, which is to say, an "engineered" one, is far more than a hobby. It could be developed into a private experiment station. It is his answer to the challenge of Egypt's problems.

Even more important to the nation as a whole, this Desert Pearl farm is proving the fact that the people of peasant poverty in Egypt. For decades it has been the fashion for the rich Egyptian landowners to treat their workers like beasts of burden, and they, in turn, their bodies and spirits would bear. They have lived in the big cities and spent much of their rewarded labor of the fellaheen to keep them in cash and fine clothes, in jewels and furs and French perfumes. The fellaheen have taken it supinely, as the East has always done. But Afifi Pasha walks and talks with his several hundred men as with equals. They are persons, like himself, and he treats them as such.

In his case Fortie's words have proved their universal aptness. "How far that little candle throws his beams! The naughty world of feudal farming is changing in Egypt and the light of Afifi Pasha's example is undeniably speeding the change.

Newly-Published Book Recalls History of Canadian Y.M.C.A.

(By The Canadian Press)

The Y.M.C.A. in Canada celebrates its 100th birthday in 1951, says Mr. Courtney G. Ross, a Nova Scotian-born sociologist, has written its history in a 317-page book entitled simply "The Y.M.C.A. in Canada" (Ryerson).

In it he traces the development of the "Y" from the establishment of the first Canadian association at Montreal in 1851. It was an offshoot of the organization founded in England in 1844 to provide for youths caught up in the throes of the industrial revolution and, more particularly, the industrial period, the boom of the early 20th century, the First World War, the depression, the Second World War and the post-war years.

He shows it growing from scattered prayer-meeting groups, through a period when it set up libraries and put on cultural evenings for lonely young men in growing cities, through a later era when it developed into a big gymnasia and sponsored teas and dances, down to the present in which Dr. Ross sees some of its former energy running out.

Other agencies have taken over some of the activities it pioneered, including the provision of entertainment and, to a large extent, religious activities have been taken over by community chests.

But Dr. Ross says he is not confused in some of its aims and rules (one question is whether it is "undenominational" or whether its approach is a "Protestant agency" or admit to membership persons of other faiths) lacking provision for research and unable to bring youth into its management strongly enough.

"The Y.M.C.A. is now located in fine buildings in prominently few others can be occupied. Growing recreational and welfare agencies call for the expansion of some application services. The possibilities of the extension of new lines of work in universities, schools, or even the armed forces, also call for a fresh discovery of its clear, therefore, that if the association is to retain its aggressive leadership it must discover new and challenging tasks."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Boulogne, which is known to two generations of Canadians, is in a condition that deserves every Canadian's sympathy and any other kindness that might occur to us. What happened to Boulogne in the years of most tragic circumstances of modern warfare. It was, of course, one of the escape hatches for the Allied armies. Boulogne suffered the full force of the air attack. Boulogne supposed it had escaped the worst of war, the British and American air forces came over on the way to the front every evening, stuffing out of the lovely old city, the idea being to convince the Germans as to where we were about to make a landing, and to create the impression that it was on the historic shores of Calais-Boulogne-Dunkirk that the invasion was to be attempted.

Modern war calls for the utmost use of the art of deception. Ingenious Boulogne was to be the victim of such deception. The entire port area, the main streets of Boulogne, were torn to pieces by shell-fire. A few tawdry red brick modern functional buildings were added to the ruin. It is not Boulogne at all. It is something new in the world.

THE ANTIDOTE TO FEAR

Eight or ten years ago I had a dozen little epileptic seizures, attacks of Sickne-Adams disease, hypoglycemia, Madiera's disease or whatever. Out of it I grew, when everything was fine and dandy consciousness would lapse. A few seconds later I'd get up and, so far as I could determine, have everything under control. Several mal doctors examined me from time to time in the course of whatever it was that caused these blackouts. I mention above some of the intuitive ideas they had about it.

The very first seizure occurred one morning right after my regular morning constitutional, and there was no lapse of consciousness that time, just a tremendous vertigo lasting, I believe, half a minute, during which time I lay on the floor. The legs outspread so I wouldn't fall off the floor of the world. Then I got up and went about my other episodes were preceded momentarily with an aura of fear, sometimes of feeling, unpleasant, but only a second or so in duration before I passed out.

Just once this aura came as I was scrambling eggs for myself for breakfast, in the kitchen. My first wife, poor lady, had passed away a few months before and in the next instant I was dropping to the floor and nothing saved the heavy refrigerator several inches off its base. I came up in nothing flat and had nothing noteworthy to show for it—being the world's champion sleeper, I was always alert for clues. But I recall this particular one amongst the half dozen because I was sure that I had left a distinct impression: I felt at the moment that "This is how it feels coming out of this one."

It wasn't particularly enjoyable. On the other hand it wasn't dreadful either. I believe it was as lifelike—I mean as effortless a duration of dying as one is likely to experience and live to tell about it.

If you find anything morbid about it is because your education has been neglected. You should endeavor to learn more about life, practical things, biology, physiology, growth, development, maturity and degeneration, physical degeneration. With the intelligent view of these vital processes your attitude towards life will be changed. There will be less squeamish, more philosophical, absence of fear, state of mind.

Knowledge is the antidote to fear.

The woman who has experienced natural childbirth as expounded by Dr. Grantly Dick Read (Childbirth Without Fear, Harper), will agree that proper understanding makes the "ordeal" a blessed event.

Any one who has experienced dental surgery under local dental surgery under local anesthesia as employed by the skilled dentist can no longer have any fear of dental treatment.

One with sufficient intelligence to know that light travels faster than sound can hardly be frightened by lightning.

Strength for the Day

A WORLD SHAKING EXPERIENCE

Under the date of May 23, 1738, John Wesley made this entry in his journal: "In the evening I went very unwillingly to a society (Moravian) at Aldersgate Street, where one was reading Luther's Preface to the Epistle to the Romans. About a quarter before nine, while he was describing the change that God works in the heart through faith in Christ, I felt my heart strangely warmed. I felt that I did trust in Christ, Christ alone, for my salvation; and an assurance was given me that He had taken away my sin, even mine, and saved me from the law of sin and death."

This is one of the outstanding statements in the history of Christian faith. On that May evening there was begun in England an evangelical movement which later crossed the ocean to America and which has spread to the ends of the earth. Wesley's influence has been felt in almost every branch of the Christian Church and has touched every grade of society. He was one of history's great saints, and his spiritual achievements—and a life-span which took in most of the eighteenth century—proved successful and fruitful beyond all almost unbelievable degree.

Such an event as religion save hear religion; and heart religion never have until these cold words of fire are "strangely warmed."

Clerk Erle S. Denyes Named By Hastings County Council To Become Clerk-Treasurer

County Clerk Erle S. Denyes was named by acclamation on Friday to fill the newly-made office of clerk-treasurer, his duties to commence on January 1, 1952.

The combined office of clerk-treasurer was made possible by the resignation of Treasurer Ross Bailey, who is to become comptroller at the Belleville General Hospital. Mr. Bailey will continue as county treasurer until the end of the year.

Following the appointment of Mr. Denyes as clerk-treasurer, Reeve Jack Kincaid of Madoc village stated that history had been made in the county in that it was the first time in Hastings' 103-year history that the two offices had been filled by one man.

Get $10 Monthly

Jail employees at the county court house will receive an extra $10 per month cost of living bonus, it was decided by councillors on the last day of their two-day session. A recent order in council municipalities were given permission to pay a maximum cost of living month cost of living bonus to such employees. Jail employees at Belleville have been receiving $15 per month cost of living bonus.

These sums of increased cost of living bonus for the jail employees had been brought up earlier but were tabled to permit Sheriff T. Solmes to address council.

Sheriff Solmes pointed out that jail employees were not receiving too much money now that the county had been given permission to increase the cost of living bonus he trusted they would give the matter every consideration.

Mr. Solmes also spoke to councillors regarding the selection of men to serve on jury duty, asking that more care be given to determine that men whose names were submitted were living in the county. He pointed out that school teachers were not exempt from jury duty as they had been. Given Cost Figures

Cost figures with respect to the new Hastings County Home were given by Chairman Lee Grills, reeve of Sidney township. He said the total cost of the new home would be within the estimate. While no date for the opening of the home had been made he said there would be an official opening some time after Oct. 15th.

Several suggestions for names for the new home had been received, he said. However, nothing was anticipated except Hastings County Home.

Several of the councillors paid tribute to chairman Grills for looking after construction of the new building. Mr Grills disclaimed the credit, saying that committee members in office before him were also deserving of credit.

Salary "Adjusted"

The salary of the county engineer was adjusted with councillors ratifying a recommendation that came from the roads and bridges committee. The question of an assistant engineer was discussed briefly while one council member felt a second technical man was not needed, but that a good maintenance man was needed to work under the engineer.

On recommendation from Reeve Ross Neal of Deseronto, councillors voted to ask that the assesment act be changed to allow for a reduced business assessment on businesses operating for part of a year.

Mr. Neal said the present system of tax rebates to such businesses created a problem which was difficult to provide for when estimates were struck.

Underwrite Debentures

Council passed the by-law to underwrite debentures amounting to $40,000 for the Centre Hastings High School Area, and also passed the by-law for introduction of a similar by-law to sell debentures for the village to pay the cost of a high school addition there. Reeve T. C. Graham pointed out the county could sell debentures at a more favorably interest rate than could his village. The amount of the debenture issue would be $150,000, all costs to be paid by the Centre Hastings High School district.

The by-law will be prepared for presentation at the December session of council.

The county will pay 15 per cent of the cost of replacement of a wooden bridge in Mayo township, after the work has been completed. The bridge is not long enough to be taken over under the county roads and bridges system.

Reeve Clarke T. Hollins expressed appreciation to Warden Harry Coulter for the manner in which the business of the session had been conducted. Warden Coulter thanked councillors for the co-operation he had received. Council adjourned until December 4, when it will meet for a three-day session.

Canadian Doctors Treating Wounded On Korean Front

With the Canadians in Korea, (CP) — Canadians are helping with the treatment of wounded servicemen and civilians in the hospital in the forward areas on the Korean battlefront.

A Canadian army surgical unit, commanded by Maj. Charles Egan of Kingston, Ont., has established a mobile operating room in one of the forward areas. Patients have included hundreds of civilians as well as wounded soldiers.

Working with Maj. Egan is Maj. G. Lippert of Kitchener, Ont., who performs surgery, and Capt. W. M. Crawford of Toronto, Ont., who is in charge of the blood transfusion unit.

"We have operated on soldiers of almost all the nationalities represented in the U.N. forces over here," said Maj. Egan. "Naturally, we were all set to move the unit to a more forward position and work on our own, but the small number of casualties we have suffered so far has not warranted such a move."

Can Move Quickly

Maj. Egan and his detachment have their own mobile equipment set up and ready to go. Should necessity arise, they could move quickly and carry on their work just back of the front lines.

Their surgical van is a model of Canadian ingenuity. It is equipped with cupboards for surgical equipment and anaesthetics and both hot and cold running water. The credit for much of this work goes to Maj. Ed. Hallam, of Vancouver, commander of the 191st Canadian Workshops Company. Maj. Hallam's men pitched in and made all the necessary adjustments to the vehicle.

Maj. Egan paid high tribute to the soldiers who assist him in his work, and also to the training which has fitted them to perform such fine tasks.

Among those working with the unit are, Cpl. Paul L. Furlette, Montreal, chief operating room assistant; L. Cpl. Gordon S. Hanage, Rer Deer, Alta.; Pte. John D. O'Connor, Montreal, operating room assistant; Pte. Merle A. Kirk, Kerrobert, Sask.; L. Cpl. Robert E. Notley, Dixie, Ont., Pte. James C. Trueman, Thornhill, Ont., Pte. George Ryan, Halifax; Pte. Don Schleuth, Edmonton; Pte. Ruben Lindeman, Medicine Hat, Alta.; Pte. James Betts, Montreal, Robert L. Samuels, of Montreal.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The best results are had from a good tool when it is properly used. The bidding tool in bridge is a jump bid. It is useful to a defending side or an opening bidder's side.

A jump bid is nothing but a signal. It is a cue that orders a partner to help keep the bidding alive to at least a game. Only when it is abused will such a signal refuse to do good work.

South opponent opens with one diamond. Your west partner makes a simple overcall (defensive bid) of one heart. He shows five tricks, two high cards, one sure trick, a biddable suit.

Such a bid is not encouraging. In fact, it expects you to pass. But even if partner had not bid you have enough for a simple overcall of your own with this easy hand:

♠A Q 9 8 6 2

So you should respond to your partner's one heart simple overcall with a bid of one spade. Which is a takeout to your own suit without a jump. It is not a signal that forces partner to bid.

A takeout in answer to an opening bid is forcing for one round. But a takeout in answer to a simple overcall is not forcing. It says: "If my suit is trump, I have a hand as good as yours at your trump."

Such a takeout of a simple overcall is not encouraging. In fact, it expects your partner to pass. How could you force him to bid? By jumping your bid.

By jumping your bid you would say: "Partner, with what you have told me, I can see enough to reasonably assure a game in something. So do not stop short of game."

It is better to give in than to receive what you get if you don't. Subtle Sex

Recent Bride Given Many Lovely Gifts

An enjoyable evening was recently spent at the home of Miss Nellie-Jean McKendry, John Street, in honor of Mrs. Harold Cornell, (nee Carol Kemp), bride of last Saturday.

The evening was spent in playing various games with prizes for all. Afterwards the bride was presented with a numerous array of lovely gifts from her young friends, for which Carol most graciously thanked her friends and appreciation for their well wishes.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

A previous shower was held in the bride-to-be's honor in Toronto, at the home of the bridegroom, at which time, she was also the recipient of many beautiful gifts.

WEDDINGS

ACKERMAN—PERO

The marriage of Mertie Jean May Pero, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Pero of Moscow, to Harold Robinson Ackerman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Ackerman of Bath, Ont., took place in the Bath United Church with Rev. G. Murray officiating at the Saturday noon ceremony.

Miss L. Fluke was organist and Mr. Howard Bell of Moscow, was soloist.

In a gown of white slipper satin and Chantilly lace designed with a Queen Anne collar topping the fitted bodice, long sleeves and a bouffant peplum at the waist, the bride was given in marriage by her father. Her veil was fingertip length and she carried a cascade of roses and stephanotis.

She was attended by Miss Edith Pero as maid of honor; Mrs. William Smith of Bath, as bridesmaid, and little Shirley Anne Smith was flower girl. The maid of honor wore white brocaded organza over lavender taffeta and her mitts and headdress matched her gown. The bridesmaid wore a blue taffeta gown designed with yoke of nylon net in matching shade, and mitts and headdress to tone. The flower girl wore a frock of nylon net over taffeta in a floor length style with matching bonnet and gloves. They carried nosegays of roses and baby breath.

Mr. Donald McCracken of Bath, was best man, and ushers were Erwin, Dorland, and Mr. Allan Galbraith, Belleville, ushered.

At the reception held in Napanee, the bride's mother wore a gown of fuille with lace yoke to the hips. Her accessories were of black and her corsage was of pink roses and baby breath. The groom's mother wore a gown of black silk velvet with black accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

For travelling the bride donned a suit in mulberry shade with navy velvet accessories and a corsage of white gardenias. When couple return they will live in Bath.

MARTIN—EGGLETON

At high noon on Saturday, September 15, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Eggleton, 3rd Thurlow, was beautifully arranged with tall standards of pink and white gladioli and ferns for the marriage of their daughter, Marilyn Ann, to Richard Hazlett Martin, of R.R. 1, Corbyville, son of Mr. and Mrs. David T. Martin. The Rev. H. Merrick officiated.

Mr. Garnet Sills rendered the wedding music, and the soloist, Mrs. Morley Davidson, sang "The Lord's Prayer" before the ceremony, and during the signing of the register, "Because".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charming in a bridal gown of powder blue Chantilly lace and net over taffeta, fashioned with jacket bodice buttoned down the front by tiny buttons and ending in a point at the back, featuring a Peter Pan collar and long, tight-fitting sleeves pointed over the wrists. The ankle length skirt was full, falling in graceful folds. She carried a nosegay of pink roses, pink and white 'mums and gladioli.

Miss Jean Eggleton attended the bride as maid of honor, becomingly attired in wine-colored Chantilly lace over pink taffeta with fitted bodice featuring a sweetheart neckline and full skirt. Her flowers were a nosegay similar to that of the bride.

Mr. Jack McKay, of Woodstock, attended the bridegroom.

At the reception, which was held at the bride's home, the bride's mother gowned in royal blue with corsage of pink roses, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a gown of ice blue, with corsage of pink roses, received the guests.

For the wedding trip to Wallaceburg and Detroit, Mich., the bride donned a light grey tweed suit with navy accessories and corsage of red roses. Mr. and Mrs. Martin will reside in Kingston, on their return.

Prior to her marriage and after, the bride was the honored guest at several showers: a miscellaneous shower was held at Miss Mary Kidd's cottage, Crowe River, by fellow employees of the T. Eaton Company; at the home of Mary Hamilton, where she was presented with a kitchen shower in red and white, with Misses Phyllis Walker and Mary Hamilton as hostesses, and after marriage, at the home of her parents when one hundred and fifty friends and neighbors presented her with a walnut coffee table, end table, table lamp and nut bowl, and a silver flower basket by the Bethany young people.

Regina Engages Women to Restore Broken Households

Regina. (CP)—A new group of workers made its appearance this year in the Regina welfare bureau. They are "visiting housekeepers" and their job is to restore disorganized households to normal.

These "visiting housekeepers" are mature women who have at one time managed their own homes and brought up families.

They sleep out and board in at homes where they work. If finances are limited, assistance is given to the family for their board. Their salary is $70 per month and each family helped gives as much as possible to their salary.

"They are working out very well," said Marjory A. Bernard, executive director of the welfare bureau.

"Usually they go into homes where the mother is away—either ill in the hospital or a deserted home—and take over the work of the woman in the house," she said.

"Assisting those who have become disorganized to achieve a normal way of living," has always been the motive of the welfare bureau, Miss Bernard said.

Children's Aid Society Holds Autumn Session

The first autumn meeting of the board of the Children's Aid Society was held last Tuesday afternoon with the president, Mr. F. Wilson, presiding.

In opening the meeting, Mr. Wilson paid tribute to the late Mrs. A. McFee, who had served as recording secretary for 25 years. Her long term membership and intense interest in the work was noted and the sympathy of the Board was expressed.

He also mentioned the pleasure it had given him to sign 31 adoption papers which had been completed during the summer months. The Superintendent, Mr. Lockyer, reported that there had been 30 new cases and 9 re-opened, these involved 122 children entering protective care. He cited special cases as examples of the time, patience, correspondence and travelling involved in the work. He noted the change in the ruling which requires but one year to complete adoption instead of three years.

Reference was made to the Community Chest Campaign which will bring opportunity to the public to show interest in the work of the Society.

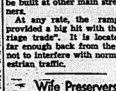
Moose Jaw Installs Baby Carriage Ramp To Aid Mothers

Moose Jaw, Sask.—(CP)—An experimental baby carriage ramp has been "officially opened" at a Main Street corner here.



The ramp is a cement runway cut through the sidewalk curb to lighten the load for Moose Jaw mothers when pushing their carriages from the sidewalk to the roadway—or vice versa.

Mayor L. H. Lawry presided at the "official opening" with J. H. Poston, city works superintendent, and the ramp contractor.

If the innovation—advocated by Mayor Lawry for two years—proves successful, more ramps will be built at other main street corners.

At any rate, the ramp has provided a big hit with the "carriage set". It is located just far enough back from the corner not to interfere with normal pedestrian traffic.

SISTERS ALL

By JEAN LOVE GALLOWAY

A barber asked the man in his chair how he wanted his hair cut. The reply shot back abruptly, "Off. Do you know any other way?" Judging from the men you see, it is evident that most of them pay no attention to hair style. They just want it cut off — When women are so anxious to have their own hair become them, you would think they would take more interest in the appearance of their husbands.

Movie stars and men in high places have haircuts which become them. This is because they can afford to go to hair stylists who insist on trimming the hair to suit the face and the personality.

Men generally, and their barbers too, set as if there is no such thing as a "hair-line." Heads come from the barber shop cut to places, with high expanses of milk grey scalp exposed to the elements. Is there anything more ghastly than an exposed scalp, except perhaps a corpse? Men fresh from the barber shop look like ugly ducklings.

Hair, whether on a woman's head, or a man's, softens the face. It has line and form to suit the individual head. Yet most men look their best when they are on the way to the barber and their worst when they get up from the chair.

Your husband may not be an Anthony Eden or a Charles Cobb, but that needn't mean he has to resemble one of the animals in Dr. Seuss' books. Take a good look at father again tonight. How is his hair style?

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her Secret's Her Own

It's never an easy thing to keep a secret.

Even when the secret's your own, and something you don't want a soul in history keeping it all to yourself usually becomes so burdensome that eventually you are driven to write to some one. But when it's somebody else's closely-guarded secret you've stumbled upon, it's a terrific strain not to betray your knowledge of it, especially if the person is someone near and dear.

From a deeply-troubled reader who is concerned for a dear relative, comes this letter:

"Some four years ago, a relative who is very near to us because she was raised by us, left us and went across the country for an indefinite stay. We heard often from her, and she assured us she had a good job, was sharing an apartment with a friend and that everything was fine.

"Two months later she wrote that she was coming home and had a surprise for us. She arrived, of course we were going to find that she had been married, but instead of a husband, she arrived with a sweet little three-months-old baby boy.

"She told us that the baby belonged to an unfortunate girl from whom she had adopted him; that it was entirely legal. We asked to see the adoption papers, as we were very much disturbed, but unable to believe that any authorized agency would give a baby out for adoption to a single girl and especially to one who just lived in a room and didn't have too much of a job. She said she had left the papers with the friend with whom she had lived.

Tried To Be Tactful

"Although both my husband and I have tried to be tactful and wise, all this has been hard for us to understand. The little boy is almost four years old now, and he is precious, but there is no getting away from it, he looks like her. Also, from things she has let slip almost unconsciously, we have come to feel that the baby is her own.

"Do you think we should ask her right out if the baby is hers and let her know we are with her all the way if this is true, and must be under great mental strain, and we want to help her straighten out her life, as she is sweet and very attractive and goes out a lot with a fine boy.

"My husband and I have been living with my elderly mother, but we have been hoping to move into our own home, and we do not feel that we should leave mother with the strain of such a situation on her. Please help us to tactfully help this girl and ourselves as well."

There is no need to point out that this letter shows a very wonderful spirit on the part of the writer and her husband. Shocking though the fact may be to the married girl with a baby is far more apt to be met with condemnation and exile from the average family than with kindness and a wish to help. It is bad for the girl in this case is not aware of the tolerance, affection and the help that are right at hand waiting for her. Or perhaps she is aware, but hesitates to appeal for them lest she hurt those who would come so promptly to her side.

Pride, no doubt, plays its own part in keeping her silent, too. Even though she may fully realize that the love and loyalty of her relatives would not be diminished by her story, she might be afraid of losing some measure, at least, of their respect for her.

For it seems pretty clear that the girl is the baby's mother. If her trip across the country was of only ten months' duration, and the baby was three months old when she brought him home, the obvious assumption is that she was pregnant when she left home and she went away for the express purpose of keeping that fact a secret.

Her relatives are quite right in their belief that the child of unmarried girl who lived in a single room and worked at a modest job could adopt a baby legally. Authorized adoption agencies are strictly regulated by law in these matters, and no one of them could possibly be induced to circumvent these regulations. Even unauthorized adoption channels are rackets, operating strictly for bribe money—and plenty of it. How, then, could a young girl dependent on the salary from a negligible job find a baby to adopt, since she could not get one legally and could not afford the kind of money it would take to get one illegally?

Baby's Mother

Without question, the "unfortunate girl" she spoke of is the mother of the baby is herself, and the adoption papers allegedly left with the friend are non-existent.

It is highly likely that the friend is also non-existent in the sense of being just another girl with whom she temporarily shared living quarters. The most probable thing is that the unmarried mother could be found shelter and care in some one of the many homes operated throughout the country, which took on responsibility for her until she could return to her family taking the baby with her.

Should these relatives question the girl directly about whether or not she is the baby's mother? I think not. Crude and transparent as her explanation is, she owes us much trouble to invent it, carry it through that I think her desire to keep her own secret should be respected. It is hard to be unable to help someone we love, at a time when we feel our help is sorely needed. But there are times—and I think this is one of them—when it is kinder, and more useful in the long run, to allow people to work out their problems in their own way.

Since there is "a fine boy" in the picture, the solution may come through him. If he wants to marry the girl, she will take him into her confidence and if he truly is a fine boy, and sincerely in love with her, he will be glad to give the baby his name. Or, the time may eventually come when the girl will turn to the relatives of her own accord.

In the meantime, the policy should be hands off.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Only one wedding cake needed to be cut at reception

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

After the late-morning church ceremony we are having a small, sit-down luncheon, for the wedding party and a few members of the immediate families. Then, in the evening, we are having the reception, for relatives and friends. Should we have two wedding cakes, one to be cut at luncheon and the other at the reception; or may we have only one cake and have that taken from the place where the luncheon is to be to the hall where the reception is to be?

S. T.

You need not have two wedding cakes. Since all those at the luncheon will be at the reception, I suggest you have only one cake, the cake to be cut at the reception. But don't have the cake cut at the luncheon taken to the reception, for this would be an unattractive "left-over" way of having the bride cut the cake", the cake she already has cut.

Attire of the men in the wedding party . . . and addressing the bride's envelope

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. The wedding is to be an evening wedding in the church, the hour seven-thirty. The bride is wearing a white wedding dress and bridal veil, and her attendants are to wear floor-length gowns. The men in the wedding party are planning to wear white business suits. Shouldn't they at least wear tuxedos?

2. The bride-to-be wishes to address her invitations to "Mr. and Mrs. ——— and family." I maintain that the outside envelope should be addressed to "Mr. and Mrs. ———" and the inside envelope to "Mr. and Mrs. ——— and family." Who is right about this?

M. L.

1. Business suits at this type of evening church wedding do indeed seem inconsistently informal. Dinner coats (tuxedos) would be more in harmony with the costumes of the bridal party . . . formal evening attire if the bride wishes to stress formality, as she apparently does.

2. Neither is right. The phrase "and family" should not be used in addressing an envelope, either the outside or the inside envelope. If one invitation is being addressed to the members of a household, the outside envelope may be addressed, as you say, to "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith." Then, on the inside envelope, for example:

Mr. and Mrs. Smith
Miss Jane Smith
Mr. Thomas Smith
Mr. Robert Smith

(Or if the children are very young, "Jane and Thomas and Robert.")

The christening fee given by the minister

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is this true or false: at a christening, it is the godfather who gives the fee to the minister?

Two of us

False. It is the child's father who gives the christening fee to the minister.

A Steal From Sherlock Holmes

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THAT is a man-bites-dog headline on this fashion story; but the hat really is John Frederic's adaptation of the Baker Street sleuth's famous deerstalker hat, a light-fingered touch from the scourge of thieves.

The model is made of beige velours in the shade which Mr. Fred brought back from Sicily and which is likened to an octopus. (Gosh, from detectives to octupuses, on one small, chic hat!) The familiar element of surprise, a la Holmes, is the lacquered quill leaping upwards as trim.

Grandma Says Latest Fashions New When She Was Young

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

"Heavens to Betsy," said grandma as she took her first look at New York's fall fashions. "They're the same things I wore, when I was a girl!"

She pointed a trembling finger toward the waist "clinchers,"—boned, and laced contraptions calculated to draw the most ample waist into line.

She eyed the ornately designed belts and noted the velvet trim on suit-coller and cuffs. Even on gloves.

"Fancy that," she said. "Just the way we used to wear them."

There were the same rustling multi-colored petticoats and full pretty skirts.

Even the hats—with ostrich plumes dripping from the crown —and shoes—with French heels and strap effects—served to convince grandma that the styles of 50 years ago have come back to haunt her.

Whether scarlet was an approved color in grandma's day is a page from another book. Certainly 1951 pretties are using it to advantage.

New York stores have windows filled with hats in pink, poppy, carmine—any red you would care to name.

Buy a red hat—the brightest you can find—put a shining clip on it, and you will be able to hold your head up in the best of fashion circles.

Last autumn's most talked-about color—orange—also is showing in dress trims and hats. However for day-to-day wear, black still holds the floor. Grey also is at the top of the list.

One half to three-quarters of an inch into the reinforced top of your stocking—that's how far your garter should bite. Never garter below this double thick section.

Tips for longer wear:

1. Soften hands with lotion before putting on nylons—then take time to roll the stocking leg down on the toe before slipping it on the foot.

2. Garter stockings while sitting down or while the knee is bent—to allow for knee action.

3. Buy two or more pairs of a shade at a time—then you'll always have an extra stocking to match into a pair.

4. Small snags sometimes can be rubbed out with a soft eraser —if you're careful.

5. Suds nylons in warm water, and with any mild soap. Squeeze —don't rub or twist. To speed drying, roll nylons briefly in a soft towel before hanging.

Bright Nights

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

WITH many evening events already slated, it looks like a bright season ahead. Ready for any and every event are beautiful evening clothes for all types, some old favorites dressed up, others very new and novel. A black taffeta bodice, very low of neck, with narrow halter strap, tops a fully gathered skirt of dark gray chiffon. A bolero, length jacket of the gunmetal gray chiffon just covers the shoulders. Black taffeta gloves complete a charming costume.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Flexible, grasptul fingers

When you awaken in the morning do your hands feel stiff and cramped? That appears to be a common trouble, among the more elderly members of your beauty class. Until the fingers limber up, one feels that they are heavy and clumsy. A physician specializing who compounds nail polish and hand cosmetics suggests gymnastics for grace; various movements of the fingers that not only make them more flexible, but which will have a beneficial effect upon the flesh, making the hands look younger because the circulation is stimulated.

Make a tight fist, drawing the fingers into the palms of the hands, folding the thumbs over them. Release fingers and thumbs, spreading them out fashfully, then relax them. Repeat six times.

There is a movement called "the swan motion". Hold the hand in front of you, palm downward. Bend the hand at the wrist, letting the fingers high, then dip them downward. They are supposed to be imitating the dive of a swan. To stretch of the imagination, we allow, but we are just handing along to you the suggestions for what they may be worth.

The five finger exercise sounds sensible enough. Place your hands on a table, use the fingers like little hammers, starting with the thumbs and back again.

Another is the hand-washing the palms, with a-massage cream and saving them together. Press the inner portions of the fingers with the thumbs. Cream the backs of the hands well, then massage the wrists to fingertips. Do circles over the nails; they are kept in better condition by lubricating, and cream helps to keep the surrounding cuticle soft so it will not cling to the nail fabric or break, forming hang nails.

The free use of nail polish has made some women careless about nail health. A brilliant gloss on poorly-cared-for nails is more artificial make up on an unhealthy-looking skin, will accent rather than hide defects. Nails that are naturally thin and break easily will respond to the creaming and friction. The pink shells get their groceries from the blood streams, and massage hurries along the food carriers, sends them about their business.

While hand lotions are helpful and should be used freely, the effect is only on the surface. Hands, like the complexion, need nourishing creams to keep them from looking old, especially if they belong to the hard-working housewife, whose hands are in hot or cold water many times a day, being robbed of the natural oils that would otherwise keep them in condition.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about FOOD . . . What's Cooking?

The word plum meant a half million dollars in early English slang. The value has since declined somewhat and a plum can now mean any of a number of choice objects.

From June to October it means a silky sweet fruit. Among the best plums are the small blue-black fruit, free-stoned, with red low flesh. This variety is commonly called fresh prunes. They do not have the beauty of the larger red and yellow fruit packed in tills, but their sweet mellow flavor is superior to that of the fancier varieties.

A plum brown betty is a baked pudding of sweet crumbs and the fruit. Stale cake crumbs are best for this dessert. Ordinary white bread crumbs will do if they are sufficiently sweetened.

This dessert is baked with the lid on until the fruit is tender. The lid is then removed and the baking continued until the betty is browned. Apples or peaches may be substituted for plums, or combined with the plums, in today's recipe.

Plum Brown Betty—Serves 5-6

3 cups dark blue plums
3 tablespoons butter or vegetable fat
1-2 cup sugar
1-4 teaspoon salt
1 cup cake crumbs or soft white bread crumbs
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1-2 teaspoon cinnamon
1-3 cup heavy cream
1 tablespoon sugar
Nutmeg

Remove the seeds from the plums and cut into quarters.

Cream the butter until soft. Mix the butter with the 1-2 cup of sugar and salt, blending well. Add the crumbs, lemon rind and cinnamon, mixing well.

Grease a casserole or baking dish fitted with lid.

Arrange the plums on the bottom of the dish. Spread the crumb mixture over the plums.

Bake covered at 350 degrees for a half hour.

Remove the cover and continue baking until the crumbs are lightly browned, about 20 minutes longer.

When ready to serve beat the cream until thick. Mix in the 1 tablespoon sugar.

Spoon the whipped cream over the brown betty in the serving dishes. Sprinkle the whipped cream very lightly with nutmeg.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

GOOD AND NOT SO GOOD!

The "better mouse trap" adage held good from a sports point of view here last night. Over 2,500 fans trooped into Memorial Arena to watch the town's wrestling finals and up at the Fair Grounds 1,500 baseball fans saw the Redmen succumb to a late innings Brockville offensive and lose their second straight OBHL finals tussle.

Give Joe Public the kind of sports fare he likes and there'll be little trouble at the box office. Of course you can chalk up an added to the weather man for last night's record breaking attendances.

In the arena, Manager Walter Gerow and his staff were busier than the proverbial one-armed collection taker with the hives, as an all-time record crowd pushed past the turnstiles to see the hated duo of Fred Atkins and the "Zebra," meet their pet nemesis in the persons of Timothy Geoffagren and his bulldozer pal, Yukon Eric.

At the Fair Grounds, President Jack Carson and Treasurer Drury Denyes, of the Belleville Baseball Association, beamed happily for most this season as a record crowd of 1,500 had the entrance gates clicking like story teeth at a non-agenarian convention.

But in the meantime our Redmen were not doing so well on the diamond. They trailed for six innings, tied the score, then succumbed to the Brockville eighth and ninth innings blasts that showed ten pesky Monies over the plate.

Fitzpatrick went well for seven innings, holding the Brocks to five clouts, but he blew in the eighth and ninth before Fordham went in to put out the fire. Maybe the pressure-that-he had better cut these play-off games to five-innings affairs.

However the Reds are in Brockville this afternoon, where they will likely face the redoubtable "Smoky" Smith. Andy Herschack has been saving for the home-town folks. We'll see!

ALL-STAR GAME OCTOBER 9th

With the annual N.H.L. All-Star classic scheduled for October 9th in Toronto—just three weeks away—numerous critics are being taken out of mothballs for the big event. Chosen by scribes and sports-writers in six N.H.L. cities, Sawchuk, Gadsby, Kelly, Schmidt, Lindsay and Howe will "man" the first team, which will be coached by Toronto's Joe Primeau by virtue of his Maple Leafs winning the Stanley Cup.

As handler of the rushers-up, Dick Irvin of Montreal will "tote" the second team, composed of Rayner, Thomson, Kelly, Reibel and Abel. Hockey's Mickey Mouse will add a new twist this year, to stir up interest in a game which has been lacking in the U.S., Joe Primeau will round out his team with the pick of the players in four American cities while Irvin will augment his squad with pucksters from Canadian clubs.

CLEANERS-TORONTO TODAY

This afternoon the Cleaner Combines meet the Toronto Family Credit Jewellers in the second game of their interprovincial Senior Ontario-Quebec finals. The third game if necessary will be played in Cobourg, according to Convener Harry Knott.

Winners of the round will meet the Hamilton-Stratford series winners for the A.A.U. championship shortly since there are no Northern Ontario contestants.

According to reports from Toronto the Cleaners stand an excellent chance of copping this afternoon's tilt. Up there 'tis said the Cruikas suffered a slight attack of stage fright or somethin' similar and could not get untracked until the last innings. When they did they hoisted the Toronto ace hurler to the showers and staged a comeback that nearly put them within dinging distance of the Toronto outfit.

They're fully confident they can turn the tables on the Queen City crew this afternoon and force the series to its third tussle. Game at 2.

DiMaggio Paces 5-1 Victory; Feller Blows 5-0 Tribe Lead As Senators Chalk 7-6 Win

By JOHN CHANDLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The New York Yankees, gunning for their third straight American League pennant, sported a one and one-half game lead Saturday over the Cleveland Indians —their largest margin since Aug. 1.

With the schedule rapidly running out, Casey Stengel's Bronx Bombers belted the Red Sox at Boston yesterday, 5-1, while the Indians were fumbling a game to the Tigers in Detroit, 7-6.

The same four clubs hook up Saturday and Sunday, when the final week of the hectic season begins.

For the Yankees, the "magic number" is six. New York has eight games remaining—seven of them with the Red Sox. If the Yankees can win six, Cleveland could—cop all five of its remaining contests, but still would wind up in second place. The Red Sox are five games back, hanging on the mathematical edge of elimination.

Rookie Loses

Meanwhile in the National League, the Brooklyn Dodgers were clubbed by the Philadelphia Phillies at Ebbets Field, 9-6, as Robin Roberts hung up his 21st victory of the year. It was a new low for the front-running Dodgers four games ahead of the idle New York Giants.

Brooklyn has nine more games to play, the Giants seven. The hums can clinch the flag with five victories, even if the Giants win all seven.

Stengel calls on Ed Lopat to face Boston's Mel Parnell in a battle of lefthanders Saturday. Lopat hit the 20-win mark for the first time in his career Monday when he beat Cleveland with three hits. He's 20-8 for the year, and 3-1 against Boston. Parnell, stylish Boston ace with a 17-10 mark, is 2-1 against New York this season. He has a heartbreaking 10-5 edge over the Yanks in season play.

Al Lopez, the Cleveland manager, will fire Bob Lemon (17-13) against Detroit's Bob Cain (11-12), in the second game of their series.

DiMag Clears Up

Joe DiMaggio, back in the cleanup spot for the Yankees, lined a single to centre in the first inning today to score Yogi Berra and New York was out in front to stay. Four singles gave New York its second tally in the fourth.

Bob Feller, seeking his 22rd victory here a 2-0 lead to Detroit. Catcher Frank House hit his first major league homer to win the game in the sixth.

With Willie Jones banging a grand-slam homer in the first inning at Brooklyn, the Phillies ended the four-game winning streak of rookie Clem Labine who at one was knocked from the box for the first time in five major league starts.

Another rookie, young Jackie Collum, got up from Rochester —tossed a brilliant two-hitter for the Cardinals against the Chicago Cubs at St. Louis, for a 6-0 shutout. No other games were scheduled in either league.

Figures Explain Why Tiger Cats Lead Big Four

Toronto, Sept. 22 (CP) —The figures tell why Hamilton Tiger-Cats lead the Big Four football race with four victories and no defeats.

So far this season the team Carl Voyles assembled for his sophomore term as a Canadian football coach has picked more ground-gaining punch and offered a stouter defence than its three rivals.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press from official Big Four concert reports that with combined air and ground the Hamilton team gained 1,793 yards in its four starts for an average of 448 a game. Opponents decked the Hamilton line for a scanty 924 yards—an average of 231.

Larks Next

Montreal Alouettes, tied for third place in the standings with Toronto Argonauts, ranked next to the Tiger-Cats in offensive power. The Montrealers gained 1,240 yards for an average of 310—picking up 316 rushing and 924 passing. They matched the Hamilton team in first downs with 66. But opponents Ottawa Rough Riders gained 1,158 yards, for a 289.5 average, and picked up 54 first downs against Alouettes.

The Argos rank close behind the Alouettes by ground-gaining with a total of 1,300 for a 300 average. They picked up 731 yards rushing and 569 on passes. They made 52 first downs. Opponents gained 1,475 yards against the 1950 champion, a 369 average. They got 60 first downs. The Argos lost 23 yards from scrimmage and 200 from penalties.

From the yardage standpoint, the second-place Toronto Rough Riders have the weakest attack and defence in the union. They gained 1,071 yards, a 268 average while opponents made 1,849 for a 462 average against them. They made 59 first downs while opponents picked up 85. They lost 45 yards from scrimmage and 165 in penalties. Their total yardage gain was made up of 462 rushing and 609 passing.

Royals Take League Title From Syracuse

(By The Associated Press)

Montreal Royals, having wrapped up all the team honors in the International League, returned home from Syracuse Saturday to wait for the American Association to decide their opponent in the Little World Series.

The American Association representative will be either St. Paul or Milwaukee. Milwaukee holds a 2-1 edge in their best-of-seven series. The first three games of the Little World Series will be played in Montreal, Wednesday.

The Royals, after winning the pennant handily, wrapped up their fifth Governors' Cup championship with just about as much ease. They whipped Syracuse Chiefs 18-9 Friday night for their fourth victory. In five games.

Connecting with 15 hits off six Syracuse hurlers, the Royals ran up the highest score in the history of the Frank Shaughnessy playoffs.

Second baseman Walt Fiala connected with four blows, including two for the Royals' seven-run eighth inning. He topped off the big frame with a three-run homer for a total of five runs batted in.

Veteran Bert Hass also drove in four runs to raise his total for the last three games of the series to 12.

The Chiefs sent six hurlers to the mound in an effort to put the skids on with Jack Griffore, who went out in the second, being charged with the defeat.

Hayman Wants Dunlap for Larks; Argos Say No

Montreal, Sept. 22—(CP)—Lew Hayman, coach of Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four, said today negotiations are still in the talking stage as far as acquiring Jake Dunlap is concerned.

Dunlap, middle wing for Ottawa Rough Riders, has been reported willing to join the Alouettes providing he can be released by his club. General manager Hayman was free to join the larks.

Hayman said decision may be reached early next week.

He said it was a practice of the Big Four clubs to release a player until each member club had voted on the matter. However, added Hayman, we haven't reached that point yet.

Toronto, Sept. 22—(CP)—Bob Moran, president of the Toronto Argonaut football club said today that Jake Dunlap, middle wing for the Ottawa Rough Riders, cannot play for Montreal Alouettes unless the executive of the Big Four Rugby Football Union.

He said that a Big Four by-law states categorically that a player who plays for one Big Four team in the course of a season cannot be released to another team in the league until the following year. A meeting would be necessary to waive this by-law and release Dunlap to Montreal, he said.

Black-Hawks Lose to Wings In Exhibition

Sudbury, Ont., Sept. 22 (CP)—The champion Detroit Red Wings got off to a good start on the 1951-52 season here last night by blanking Chicago Black Hawks 3-0 in an exhibition game that was described as the first pre-season meeting in history between two National Hockey League clubs.

In spite of a heavy fog that blanked the ice for most of the game, Terry Sawchuk turned the Hawks at bay to ring up his third consecutive shutout in as many exhibition games this season. Terry handled 23 shots compared with the 43 the Wings got against Harry Lumley in the Chicago goal.

The Wings opened the scoring at 5:43 of the second period when Tony Leswick pushed the puck in from the crease on passes from rookie Lou Jankowski and Red Kelly.

In the third period Fred Glover back-handed a relay from Metro Prystai past Lumley at 3:26, and at 18:22—rookie Larry Wilson got the third one on a break-away with Leswick.

Missing from the Chicago lineup were defencemen Jack Stewart and Clare Martin and forwards Doug Bentley and Max Mc Mahon, who were injured in a workout at North Bay on Thursday, while Bentley and McMahon will be out for practice before the game. Stewart will be released to another team games until coach Eddie Goodfellow is certain that his injured ankle is fully healed.

Tribe Looked Bad Against Tigers, 'Not Out Yet' Says Hopeful Lopez

Detroit, Sept. 22. (AP)—Manager Al Lopez, brooding but still unbowed, should have a canvas cover over the Briggs Stadium scoreboard today when his Cleveland Indians again engage the frisky Detroit Tigers.

The first-place New York Yankees, now leading the tribe by a game and a half, seemingly put the whammy on their chief foes by long-distance as well as personal touch.

Cleveland, apparently given a sharp case of jitters watching the scoreboard blink out the tale of New York's 5-1 win over Boston, played a bit on the schoolboy side in losing to Detroit 7-6 yesterday.

There can hardly be any other explanation for a 22-game winner like Bob Feller blowing a 5-0 lead than that the Indians had one eye on the Yankee-Red Sox score and the other, a bit hazy, on the offerings of reliefer Freddy Hutchinson, a whale of a pitcher yesterday. Hutchinson allowed only two hits in seven and two-third innings.

The Indians now have only five games left, against eight for the Yanks. Cleveland has lost three more games than New York. Another loss to Detroit today probably would cook Cleveland's goose for keeps.

"If the ball didn't stick in the webbing of Bobby Avila's glove in the second inning, we'd have had a ball game," moaned Lopez. Instead, George Kell is safe at first and Detroit makes three runs.

But that didn't explain an error in the same inning by shortstop Ray Boone which produced one Detroit run and set up another in the three-run spurt which tied the score at 5-all.

And then there was a three-player fielding-lapse on a pop to short right by Vic Wertz which led to another Tiger run in the fifth.

"Oh well," said Lopez to nobody in particular, "we're not out of it yet. Those Yankees still have seven games left against the Red Sox, a mighty tough assignment."

It was only Detroit's second win against 16 defeats facing Cleveland this season.

Brockville Explodes In Late Innings To Take Second Straight Victory

Reds Tie Score in 6th Inning But Fitzpatrick Fades in 8th As Memos Crash Out 6 Runs

The Brockville Memos, exploding for ten runs in the eighth and ninth innings, took the second game of the COBL finals here last night defeating the Redmen by a 15-7 score before a crowd of 1,200.

Fighting hard the Reds tied the count at five-all in the sixth after trailing 5-3 but the Memos roared back in the eighth with six and the ninth with four to grab the victory.

The third game of the series is being played in Brockville this afternoon with the fourth scheduled for the Fair Grounds here on Monday night.

The Reds took a one run lead in the bottom of the first frame for the only time in the game. Don Gilmour, who played an excellent game at first base, rattled a line drive down the first base line for a double and scored on Vern Goyer's triple to centre.

Brockville jumped into the lead in the top of the third on three unearned runs as Stelmach reached first on an infield error and advanced on Giffen's sacrifice. Weaver grounded out but Coleman walked, Galen singled and Kasepchuk doubled before Pierce popped out to Goyer to end the frame.

Strahan walked in the bottom half and moved to second on Fitzpatrick's single. Don Gilmour sacrificed and Goyer banged out another triple to tie the game up. He was left stranded however when Dean and Pat Gilmour grounded out.

Regain Lead

The Memos gained the lead again with a pair in the fourth on two walks and a like number of hits but the Redmen battled back with a pair in their sixth to deadlock the count again. Fitzpatrick's double drove in Reeves, who had walked and Strahan who singled.

Neither team plated in the seventh but the Reds came apart at the seams in the eighth and before the dust had clearerd, Brockville had wrapped the game up. Kasepchuk singled and advanced on Pierce's ground out. Ashley singled to right with Kasepchuk holding third. Skodis tried to squeeze Kasepchuk in with a bunt to Fitzpatrick and succeeded when Dean dropped the throw. Then four successive singles, wrapped around a pair of errors by the homesters, sent five more runs plateward. Kasepchuk, who had started the frame ended it by grounding out.

Add Four In Ninth

Not satisfied with that, they added a quartet in the ninth just for good measure. Pierce, Ashley and Skodis singled, leading off in the frame, to fill the sacks. Willie Fordham replaced Fitzpatrick on the slab with the latter moving to second base, Goyer to left field, Soules to right field and Strahan being removed from the game.

Willie was greeted by a wrong field single by Stelmach, scoring one and leaving the bases full. Giffen forced an out at the plate with his grounder but a run scored when Soules dropped a very easy fly ball. Coleman's fly ball scored another and Giffen scored the fourth while Fitzpatrick and Gilmour were running Weaver down between first and second.

The Redmen plated one each in the eighth and ninth but rallies were nipped each inning as Strahan and Gilmour were nipped trying to take an extra base on their hits.

Kasepchuk led the visitors with a double and two singles while Weaver, Galen, Ashley, Stelmach and Giffen each picked up two hits.

Big Vern Goyer collected two triples and a single, Fitzpatrick and Don Gilmour a double and single each, and Strahan a pair of singles in two official appearances for the Redmen.

NAMED BASEBALL CZAR FOR 7-YEAR TERM

FORD FRICK

A search that began last Dec. 11 in Florida when 16 big ball club owners in U.S. refused to give Happy Chandler a new contract, ended recently in Chicago when Ford Frick, president of the National League, was unanimously chosen as new commissioner of baseball. Frick, the third commissioner in the history of the game, has long been identified with baseball, first as a newspaperman and since 1943 as president of the National League. Term will be for seven years at an annual salary of $65,000.—Central Press Canadian

This weekend the Bay of Quinte juvenile league gets under way. Three teams are entered for its first year of operation, and include Napanee Collegiate, Wellington Consolidated School and the Belleville juveniles. Mr. Doig who has had some considerable experience in coaching minor squads in Scotland has volunteered his services to coach the Belleville entry while Lionel Blaker has consented to serve on the committee to run the club.

The Bay of Quinte Football Association has announced the following September schedule:

Sat. Sept. 22, Napanee at Belleville.

Wed. Sept. 26, Wellington at Napanee.

Sat. Sept. 2?, Belleville at Wellington.

Sat. Oct. 6, Belleville at Napanee.

Sat. Oct. 13, Wellington at Belleville.

Sat. Oct. 20, Napanee at Wellington.

The first-named club is home team in each case. Frank Follwell, M.P. has donated a trophy for the league.

This afternoon Batawa takes on Kingston United in Batawa in the first leg of the semi-final round of the Ontario Intermediate championship competition. The return game will be played at Kingston next Saturday.

By their defeat of Belleville last Wednesday, Picton Gunners earned the right to meet Batawa in the final of the Belleville Charity Cup.

Two games are called for this afternoon in the Trenton Challenge Cup. In a first-round match Trenton and Belleville hook up at Bain Memorial Park for the right to meet Batawa in the semi-finals while Picton and 6 RD play off their semi-final round in Picton.

DANCING TONIGHT at CLUB COMMODORE

Y's Men Club Hosts to Peewee Baseball Team

The Y's Men sponsored pee wee baseball team were guests of the Y's Men Club at the Y.M.C.A. last night. The coach, Y's man Ted Wooding and the team members received the appreciation of the club for the fine performance of the summer. N. A. "Pete" Beach, student counsellor at Albert College was the speaker. He was introduced by Tom Hutchinson and spoke informally on sportsmanship and the Olympic games. He drew on many examples to show that at these games the finest sportsmen in the world come together and that good sportsmanship carries over to good character in everyday living.

He believed there were three things which a coach looked for in every athlete—hard work, courage and loyalty. He used as an illustration the record of Jim Thorpe one of the greatest Olympic competitors of all time. In the Stockholm games in 1912 Thorpe won 10 events in two days and was acclaimed in his own United States and throughout the world. A few weeks later the Olympic Committee found that he had been ineligible because of previous participation in sports for which he had been paid. He returned his trophies to second place winners, each one of whom returned them to him as the best athlete of the day.

Courage of this sort was not easy to find but illustrated the character and sportsmanship of Olympic competitors, Mr. Beach said.

Quoted Competitor

The speaker referred to the courage of another competitor Eric Ledell the Scotch sprinter chosen for the 100 and 200 metres on the British team. Because his trials were to take place on Sunday he refused to compete. He offered to run in the relay and with only 2 to 3 months to practise the 400 metre he succeeded with the same courage that enabled him to say, "no" to Sunday competition. A theological student, Ledell went to China as a medical missionary and died from exposure to the disease he had gone to relieve. Incidently, he remarked that Mrs. Ledell was now connected with church secretarial work in Toronto.

Percy Williams of Vancouver, Canada's only double Olympic winner showed courage, Mr. Beach continued, when in the trials he threw away his chance for competition by the toss of a coin and congratulated his opponent. Williams came back the next year to outclass the best in the United States and the world.

Mr. Beach reminded the members of the baseball team that winning or losing was not so important. The friendship formed in competition was the thing that lasted through life.

George Wonnacott expressed thanks to the speaker. Mac Moffatt was chairman of the meeting.

Insecticides and Wildlife

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

Every now and then we hear stories of the widespread havoc that is wrought among wildlife by the use of insecticides over extended areas of acreage. Naturally, every sportsman and conservationist hears these reports with not a little alarm.

Damage to wildlife because of the dusting or spraying of crops is a serious matter. We have little enough wildlife nowadays, goodness knows, without destroying what we have through the wholesale agency of insecticides.

One report I heard came from New York State. It stated that fields which border a certain lake had been treated liberally with insecticide. The insects thus poisoned fell into the lake and were promptly taken by the fish. Result - - - hundreds of dead fish drifting on the surface of the lake.

I can't vouch for the reliability of this report. I didn't see the fields being treated and I didn't see the dead fish. I merely have the story second or third-hand.

Found Dead Birds

But this I did see. Shortly after World War II, when chemicals once again became available to the public, a certain golf course was sprayed with a new type of weed killer. This work was done by the regular maintenance crew under the direction of the greenskeeper.

The next day I played golf on this course. On the fairways of the eighteen holes I counted 21 dead starling and kingbirds. There may have been more dead birds in the rough grass along the borders of these fairways. About that I can't say. Also I can't say that these birds died from the effects of the weed killer. All I know is that one day the course was poisoned and the next day the dead birds were there.

With all these rumors and reports, it is only fair to hear from the men on the other side of the fence - - - the men whose business it is to spread insecticides. This is what one of the men has to say about the alleged and actual damage to wildlife.

This man is co-owner of one of the country's largest aerial dusting and spraying companies. Moreover, he is an outdoor writer whose name is familiar to the readers of the outdoor magazines. He is a conservationist and a thoroughgoing sportsman and I know that he can back up his statements.

For the past five years he has spent hundreds of hours in the field, directing the activities of his aircraft and keeping track of what goes on. His work has been carried on in eight states rather regularly and now and then in several others.

Offered Rewards

He, personally, has seen no ill effects among wildlife in general or even upon occasional individuals. Moreover, he has offered substantial rewards to anyone who will bring in any form of wildlife (other than insects, of course) which might conceivably be sick, dead, or otherwise affected by dusting or spraying.

In better than five years not a single one of these rewards has been claimed.

It stands to reason that a man who spends as much time in the outdoors as he does is bound to turn up some pretty fancy shooting for himself. On one of his favorite farms, where he finds excellent quail shooting every year, he tells of a certain covey that lives beside a cotton field. This particular field was poisoned from May until mid-September using seven different types of insecticides.

The covey of quail was observed to be feeding through this cotton field every day. Not a sick bird was found and the covey was intact and in good condition when the shooting season arrived.

The Mississippi Game and Fish Commission heard of this, so some of their biologists brought several pairs of pen-reared quail to a cotton plantation during the poisoning season. Instead of liberating the birds, they were placed in pens in the various fields under treatment and kept there during dusting and spraying operations. Not a bird was harmed in the least.

These instances can be accounted for by the fact that applications of insecticides are in such minute quantities. Aldrin, reputed to be one of the deadliest of the organic insecticides, is applied at the rate of only four ounces per acres for insect control.

Thus, a bird or an animal simply has not the stomach capacity to allow it to eat enough natural food to carry with it a harmful or lethal dose.

To be sure, a domestic animal now and again would be killed by a heavy dosage of one of the older poisons, such as calcium arsenate. These poisons require heavier application, usually at the rate of ten pounds per acre. The newer "organics," however, require no such overloading with the result that they are effective against insects and nothing else.

Fish Affected

With fish, the organic insecticides must be handled with care. Toxaphene is one of the deadliest fish poisons known. In the Mississippi Delta many thousands of fish have been killed by the unwise use of this poison.

The drift of the dust in the wind or the run-off of heavy rains will carry it to the waters where it does much damage as the stuff is deadly to fish in such minute quantities as one part to one million parts of water. Thus, care must be exercised when using it.

Boiling it all down, it comes to this. The indiscriminate use of poisons definitely is a potential threat to the welfare of our wildlife. In the hands of those who are untrained in such matters it is possible for active insecticides to do a great deal of damage.

Witness the golf course mentioned earlier.

However, these same poisons, if applied under the direction of men whose business it is to handle them wisely, can and do exert insect control without adverse effects on any other form of wild-life.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Energetic Bill Fry, who guides the destinies of the Ontario Rugby Football Union Intermediate series, came out with news Friday about the way two of his clubs have added strength.

Frank Gnup, who came from the United States to coach at Hamilton and played last season with Toronto Argos, has taken over as coach of the Peterborough entry.

The Orillia team has added three former senior players to its roster—Gordon Pegry of Regina Roughriders, Susie Turner of North Bay who used to play with Toronto Balmy Beach and Jim Honey, former Winnipeg Blue Bomber.

Mc Master University of Hamilton are putting the P. D. Rose Memorial Trophy on the line today against the University of Ottawa in the second annual clash between the two eight-oared boat crews of Ottawa.

McMaster won the trophy in the inaugural race last year when they battled a bitter cold wind and rough course to finish three lengths in front of the Ottawa crew with a time of 19 minutes and 42 seconds.

Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League captured the Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. Chamber of Commerce trophy by defeating Indianapolis Capitals 10-1 to take the fall training camp exhibition series in three straight games.

The N.H.L. champions won the first two games 7-0 and 5-0.

Bob Masterson, coach of the Varsity Blues in the Intercollegiate senior league, ran his 41-man squad through series of defensive plays at Varsity stadium Friday in preparation for today's exhibition game in Guelph with Ontario Agricultural College Intermediates.

He said he was keeping his fingers crossed until the O.A.C. game was over. Last year the Blues romped to an easy victory over the Aggies but picked up four major injuries in the game

Villainy Reaches Trails-End Tim, Yukon Pin Atkins, Zebra

By Geo. H. Carver
(Sports Editor)

Justice finally triumphed over villainy. Might bowed to right in the final forrum. "Crime" doesn't pay but an all-time attendance record of 2,310 howling fans did last night at Memorial Arena to see the hated duo of Fred Atkins and the hooded monstrosity the "Zebra" bite the dust.

They massed and mobbed about the ring as the triumphant hams—pardon—hands of Yukon Eric the Alaskan bulldozer that walks like a man, and Timothy Geohagen, as nate a spalpeen as iver buzzed a colleen, were hoisted aloft in victory.

The "Zebra" lay supine on the mat, sent to whatever phase of dreamland admits blubberous behemoths, the victim of the Geohagen "Irish Sleeper" while Atkins staggered around the ring trying to dodge the bull-like rushes of the Yukonian mastiff.

Reign Ended

That ended the reign of villainy started by Atkins some weeks ago when he teamed with Lee "The Leer" Henning; later with the Masked Marvel, a misnomer if ever there was one; then in a last desperate effort enlisted the services of the ponderous pear-shape, "the Zebra."

It was as neat a sixsome as you would wish to see. Atkins and the Hood hobnobbing in one corner; Timothy and the Yuke whispering in another and Referees Bunny Dunlop and Cliff Fox snapping their necks at opposite corners like a fan at a tennis match, wondering when the fireworks would start.

The "heavies" won the first fall, even if they got the worst of the punishment. Generally the boys seemed willing to mix it but occasionally they drifted apart in pairs, breaking to race across the ring to aid a pal in distress. For instance at one time the Yuke who was calling the signals, forward passed Timmy into the blubber front line where he was stopped on the line of scrimmage.

Atkins faded and passed a solid right to Timmy's jaw that wasn't there and it landed flush on the Zebra's button.

They came out of a huddle and Timmy was tossed for a loss back to the one yard stripe in front of the first line of pewsters. The Hood charged the Alaskan from the front. Atkins "snuck" up in the rear and the two strummed on the Fairbanks Yuke until he wheezed "Aloa."

This Was Different

But, ah, villainy couldn't prosper. The second fall saw the David-Goliath duo mass-attack the heavies. They spread-eagled the Stripe in the ropes, tucked him in nicely and Timmy got in some neat dummy-bucking practice which the Yuke interspersed with nifty if not gaudy slashes to the jaw.

Then the Eric recalled an old Alaskan nursery trick. They again "roped" the Hood, picked up Atkins and used him as a battering ram to smite the Hood amidships until the wind whooshed out of him like jet propulsion.

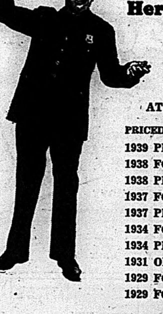
The crowd moaned as Eric and Tim faded under a blubber sortie. The Yuke went temporarily out of circulation and the two ganged the Irisher. Atkins let go a mighty smash at the Geohagen jaw, but the estimable Tim seeing a cigaret butt on the canvas, stooped to retrieve it and the Atkins fist again smashed on the Hood's jaw knocking him half way through the ropes.

Then the Yuke took over. He playfully grabbed first the Hood then Atkins by the hair and flung them willy-nilly about the ring. Timmy joined in the toss-the-caber trials and Eric pinned Atkins flatter than a reporter's wallet to win the fall. And 4,000 tonsils came up to recharge batteries as the crowd howled approval.

Came the third fall and the rafters creaked with the roars as Geohagen finally put the Zebra bye-bye with Eric chasing a staggering Atkins all over the ring. 'Twas good clean fun.

Pat Flanagan won over Sonny Kurgis in an action-packed semi-final while Lou Sjoberg defeated Tommy O'Toole in the preliminary.

It was the final wrestling show of the season.



Tennis Notes

Last Sunday Point Anne copped the Corby Trophy by winning the best-of-three match final of the league playoff series by two straight games against Batawa. That concluded the competitive vents for this season's schedule.

During the league season Quinte laid claim to the Canada Cement Trophy and Holloway Street led the field in the intermediate loop to take the Bata trophy.

All three trophies with crests for both league championship teams will be presented at the Bay of Quinte Tennis League dance to be held at the Club Cedars next Friday. The venue for this dance had to be changed at the last minute as it was found the Batawa Recreation Hall was unavailable that night. Tickets for this dance priced at $1 per person are on sale from all club representatives and a good time seems assured for all who attend.

The presentation of trophies is called for 10 p.m.

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 21 (AP) — Madge Kennedy, star of spicy bedroom farces on the stage and screen in the '20s, today assailed French bathing suits and singled out meaning plays.

Miss Kennedy, still glamorous as a matron, is starting her third career in show business. She was Samuel Goldwyn's first star and a comedy favorite on Broadway. Now, 28 years after her last picture, she is making her talking picture debut in "The Marrying Kind."

"We discussed how manners and morals have changed over the years and she clucked her tongue at the Bikini bathing suits which some gals wear.

"Goodness knows, I spent a large part of my career unclothed," she laughed. "But I was always very proper. In the bedroom farces I played in, I was required to appear in negligees and nightgowns (never pyjamas in those days!) even though I was completely covered. I believe such outfits were sexier than the French bathing suits of today.

"After all, it's what you suggest, not what you show, that is sexy. Adornment is more suggestive than bare skin."

Miss Kennedy said the theatre was more fun when it had such bedroom comedies as she appeared in.

"The shows I appeared in had double meaning," she admitted, "but they were good clean fun. The audience had a good time and they could take the meaning any way they wanted. We never had any censorship troubles, except in Boston, where one or two lines might be cut out.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Sunday, September 23

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—It is well to turn at times from workaday matters to things of spiritual beauty which are always a guaranty for better understanding of our true selves, our real needs. And Sunday is the time.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—No aspects to urge us to do unnecessary work but never should we delay or shirk urgent, essential duties. Today stresses prayer, restful recreation, good deeds where time permits.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—You active, restless folks need days like this to catch your breath, take stock of other than temporal benefits. We all are better in every way after a rest, prayer and wholesome diversion.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Personal interests, family, useful social affairs highly favored. Business and work activities, excepting those of emergency, may have to wait for gains. Attend your church.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Saturn, Sun, Jupiter stress restraint, especially in money, business transactions. Honor this day as Sunday should be with good deeds, family associations and of course prayer. Have good fun.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Your Mercury nil in influence suggests rest from mental work, all unnecessary doings and business that can, should, wait till tomorrow. However, do your share for war needs. Recreate, too.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra) — Some of yesterday's fine Venus rays still linger, can be beneficial for worthy matters today. Where time and duties permit enjoy day with family, good friends. And do go to church.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Yours Mars' and Saturn's positions urge calmness, clear vision if day's schedule is demanding, possibly irritating. You are at your best when composed, cheerful. After church, enjoy diversion.

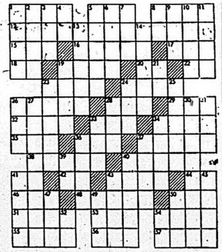
November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius) — Jupiter, Saturn warn against errors, needless restlessness; be on guard, and avoid money and other business matters not in order now. Think of your soul; enjoy a pleasant hobby.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)— Advice to Scorpio and Sagittarius can be beneficial today. Your Saturn's aspect stresses patience, a cheerful attitude and no hasty decisions. Indulge healthy recreation.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius) — Straining at the bridle to rush hither and yon, to make changes in things generally (pointless, perhaps)? Well, don't Rather contain yourself sensibly; enjoy family at church, good fun.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)— Mild, pleasant rays in your immediate sector. May not be an exciting day, which is all to the good, but it can be an interesting, healthful, spiritually beneficial time.

YOU BORN TODAY: Venus your natal planet; intuition and justice your strong points; friendly to all. You judge the character and talents of the person above his earthly possessions. Are fond of the truth, dependable, and powerful in defense of those unjustly treated, the underprivileged. Usually well liked and sought after for advice, sympathy. Be careful that your genial, kindly nature is not imposed upon by unscrupulous or hypocritical ones. Always refer to your innate sound judgment, and pray daily.



Birthdate: Wm. Archer, author, critic; Chas. W. Hutson, author; Marcus Baker, famed geologist; Wm. H. McGuffey, writer school books.

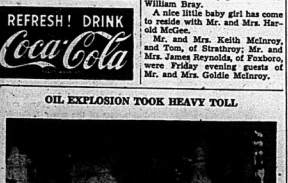
NOVA SCOTIANS FIND WHALE INTERESTING, BUT ODOROUS



Coming off second best in a collision with an ocean liner, this whale was washed up on Nova Scotian shores near Yarmouth. The ship, the S.S. Yarmouth, came to a dead stop, backed up, then proceeded on its way. The whale's body, on the shore, was a spectacle of interest to the inhabitants for a few days, then they found it wiser to give it plenty of air space until authorities could tow it, and its odor, far out to sea. — Central Press Canadian.

Whales, sea turtles and porpoises are plentiful off Nova Scotia's coast this year and, following them, have come sharks, often very close to shore. This baby turtle decided to give up the roving sea life and settle down on shore at Yarmouth. He weighs only 100 pounds now, but when fully grown he'll tip the scales at 500 pounds or more. — Central Press Canadian.

OIL EXPLOSION TOOK HEAVY TOLL

Twelve persons were known to be dead and 50 injured. Ten of these were in critical condition, and the death toll was expected to rise. Most of the victims were members of a night crew engaged in cleaning one of the plant's "cracking" units. — Central Press Canadian.

A large crowd of people attended the Orange Sermon held in St. Mark's Anglican Church, on Sunday afternoon. The service was conducted by Rev. Canon J. R. Brownlie and decoration of graves took place at Mt. Nebo.

INSURANCE MORTGAGE LOANS

THIS MR. ICARUS

By Harry Meldrum Moore

That startling radio announcement stating that Lance Bradley had passed from these scenes, completely stunned the people of Emerton and surrounding district that October morning. And pretty soon in the home, in the office, on the streets, people were passing the word along: "Brad is dead!"

"Yes, Brad was dead. Lance Bradley was no more.

And in his passing, he left much too little about himself to those who had to write the story of his interesting life and activities for the readers of his newspaper.

For details of the place, the year of his birth, the name of his parents, his early years, Editor Bill Jennings to whom the managing editor assigned the writing of the all-important story, to Reporters Artis and Holland who had been asked to help him, had little to go on.

But other facts were revealed by Johnston Parker as to his arrival in Emerton, penniless, ten years before, his unofficial adoption by the Roberts, his service overseas and his return to Emerton.

These facts, together with a review of his work on the Weekly Ensign, his initial investment in the gold mine, and his founding of the daily newspaper and radio station were reviewed in the official story, along with a review of his beneficiences.

"From then on," Jennings continued, "you know what Lance Bradley and Dad Roberts have done for the town of Emerton. But you will never realize all Lance Bradley did. No one will ever know that. You are aware, however, that he was absolutely fearless in fighting for what he considered to be essential and to the benefit of all.

"Lance Bradley's benevolence was unostentatious. Yet it was most cleverly planned. His fine financial contributions to the Emerton churches, regardless of creed or denomination; the money he spent on crippled children, the under-privileged, the poor—one could go on and on.

"But that was Brad—our Chief. To spend and keep on spending for the happiness of others; to spend as little on himself. Nowhere in Emerton will you see his name in wood or stone or metal but in the GWVA Hall, the remodelled Salvation Army Barracks, the new residence for its officer in charge; the cenotaph in the park, the playgrounds equipment for the children, the community Christmas tree and the treats for the children and hampers of food for the needy, the new baseball diamond and covered stands and fenced property, and last, but not least The Ensign building with its costly printing plant and its modern radio station; you will find living monuments to his memory. And if that isn't enough, quite recently he turned over the Roberts home and the thousands of dollars which had been willed to him by the late weekly publisher, to the First Baptist Church, the residence to be used as a home for the pastor, the money to be applied to wipe out any debt on the church, the balance to purchase a much-needed organ and for any other purposes the board of managers may see fit.

"Yes, that was Brad all over. Sailor, soldier, publisher, fearless champion for all that was good and decent and honest. His like may never pass this way again.

"Lance Bradley lived dangerously. He lived a life of high adventure, of strenuous activity. He packed more into his thirty years on earth than few other men could ever hope to pack into lives twice as long. He gave of himself unselfishly, devotedly—to the ruination of his health. A lover of clean sport, he took great pride in the achievements of his adopted son, Goldie Webster, and it is to Goldie's credit that he took his father's advice and grew up before being when he was still unharmed and unspoiled by it.

"Our father's association with the late Charles "Dad" Roberts in the publishing business was not unlike that of a fond father and a dutiful son. They were inseparables. Indeed Brad often referred, laughingly to Mr. Roberts as Dad Daedelus, while he was son Icarus. But this Icarus was never to leave his father and go off course on flights of his own and with possibly disastrous results.

"Brad never married. As far as it is known, he had neither kith nor kin. Shortly before he launched this newspaper, he adopted Goldie Webster, a town boy, provided him with a home and gave him an opportunity to learn the newspaper business. Since the deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Roberts, Brad had made his home in an apartment in The Ensign building. It was in his apartment, in his bed, that Brad was found dead this morning by Caretaker Grooms who became suspicious when he found his apartment lights on. Dr. Brown, who was called, reported that death was due to a heart seizure, the same type of illness which hospitalized the unfortunate man a few weeks ago.

"Lance Bradley's body now lies in state in the G.W.V.A. Hall under guard posted by his fellow veterans. Tomorrow afternoon he will be given a military funeral. The bearers, the band, the firing party, the bugler, even the gun carriage upon which his flag-draped casket will be drawn, will be supplied by the 45th City Battalion under command of Col. Baker. Local and district veterans, as well as members of the town council, town officials, police and fire brigades, Salvation Army and band, the clergymen of the various churches, the citizens, the school children, are expected to attend. The march off is set for two o'clock sharp. The band will play Chopin's 'Funeral March'. Interment will be made in the First Baptist Cemetery, beside the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Roberts. The Rev. Baker will conduct the last rites, after which the bugler will sound Last Post; the firing party will give the customary three volley salute to the dead.

"In acceding to the oft-repeated wishes of our late Chief, The Ensign will appear as usual on the day of his burial. Radio Station CEDE will also operate uninterruptedly. Reporters Artis and Holland will represent this paper and radio station at the funeral.

"And now in parting and, on behalf of every man and woman employed by The Ensign, CEDE, and for the countless friends of a truly great man, a true citizen, we say farewell to you, Brad, in the words of George L. Catton, eminent writer.—

"The brush, the chisel, and the pen,
The tools of art, since first the world began,
Could pay no greater tribute to the dead:
'Here lies a man.'"

Lance Bradley was buried on Thursday afternoon, October 8. The following evening, at Johnston Parker's request, the employees of the newspaper and radio station, gathered in The Ensign business office for the reading of the last will and testament of the late publisher.

And they were startled to be informed that the entire estate including building, plant, of both newspaper and office and radio station, and a large sum of money, had been left to them under the trusteeship of four men: Nelson Sparling, treasurer; Hal. Gordon, managing editor; Sandy McLeod, mechanical superintendent, and Johnston Parker, lawyer. That in the event of the death of any or all of these men, their successors must be selected from the staff of employees by vote. At a subsequent meeting, Mr. Sparling was named managing director.

Jimmy Hastings made it known there and then that he was prepared to purchase the radio station if and when it was for sale.

And under the new set-up, the employee-owned Emerton Daily Ensign and Radio Station CEDE continues to operate to this day. The business has prospered. It successfully weathered the years of depression which were brought to an end by a Second World War. The staff was reduced by enlistment of those of compulsory military age, but peace brought them back to the fold, and there followed a period of good times again. And despite the rising costs of publishing a newspaper, The Ensign continues to rate high as a newspaper, as a public servant.

Mrs. Hastings lived to see the completion of her hospital wing. After that, Jimmy and Dot married and they live in the big house now. But they still go to work daily in The Ensign building. Jimmy has spent a fortune cleaning up the slum areas of the town, he has been in and out of council several times, and some day the citizens hope to make him mayor. There have been few changes in the personnel of the combined business of newspaper and radio station. Goldie Webster and Milly Brooks married shortly before the Second World War. Goldie was out of the highly respected married woman. . . . .

Communists Will Support Labor In Certain Cases

Moscow, Sept. 21. (AP)—Pravda, official newspaper of the communist party, said today communists in Britain will support Labor party candidates in areas where the communists have no candidates.

Pravda, however, said it looked upon the Labor party program for the forthcoming election as a "pale" one. The Soviet press has been saying up to now that Prime Minister Attlee's government is no different in policies from the Conservatives and that it follows dictates of the United States.

A communist party official in London, asked for comment on this dispatch, confirmed that communists will support Labor candidates in districts in which the reds have no candidates in the October 25 election. This was the first announcement in London of the communist intention.

Labor party officials reflected annoyance. Labor headquarters made no comment, however.

Surgeons Perform Major Operation On King's Lung

Waiting Throngs Find Medical Bulletins Hopeful

London, Sept. 24 —(CP)— The King's doctors fought to safeguard his life today after cutting out all or part of his ailing lung.

Palace sources said it was anxiety continued this afternoon but "we are pleased at the moment because things have gone as well as can be expected."

A palace spokesman said the 55-year-old monarch appeared in good spirits. But it seemed likely that he would dote frequently on the first day after surgery.

The Queen saw her husband this morning, then spent the tense hours reading over scores of telegrams and letters of sympathy arriving from throughout the world, Princess Margaret was with her.

Restful Night

A morning medical bulletin said the King "has had a restful night. His Majesty's condition this morning continues to be as satisfactory as can be expected."

In Buckingham Palace source had reported that the King "rested well" during the night at the King's bedside.

Handwritten with soft lead pencil, the bulletin was posted on a board attached to the fence in front of Buckingham Palace.

The waiting crowd found its terms reassuring:

"Thank God for that!" one woman shouted.

"We're so glad for the Queen," said another.

A tall police inspector read the bulletin aloud to the heads of the jostling throng. People then lifted up and filed slowly past for a first-hand look.

No Turn For Worse

Persons familiar with the wording of official Royal announcements said the terse statement indicated there has been no turn for the worse in the King's condition is still serious. They found no evidence of any immediate new concern.

The Queen spent the night in a room near the roval family's flat in the Royal Lodge at Sandringham. Mother Mary, kept in touch by telephone from her residence at Marlborough House.

The Duke of Windsor, whose abdication in 1936 made his brother King, hurried to London from Paris.

There was still no change, however, in the status of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh to leave next week for Canada.

But the lanky 6 foot 3 lineman to marry Darke Weber, 23, a slim, shapely fashion model.

Just to add to it, he met her at a bachelor club party, with all his bachelor pals around to give him strength.

Marie and Sudbury areas and the north end of Michigan. This rain area is moving steadily eastward and will pass and the forecast area by about dawn Tuesday.

Northern Ontario remained steady during the night but will clear late this afternoon.

Mother, Three Children Drown In Keating Channel

Toronto, Sept. 24 (CP) — A 40-year-old mother drove an automobile into Lake Ontario yesterday, carrying herself and her three children to death.

Drowned were Mrs. Eleanor Stuart, wife of Joseph T. Stuart, and their three children: Ethel 9, Susan 8, and Joseph seven months.

Witnesses said they saw the four door sedan drive slowly along the lake front in Toronto's East End, turn toward the water and nose in. Within three minutes it disappeared beneath the surface.

The witnesses said they saw people in the car scrambling from the front seat to the back but none of the car doors opened as the auto plunged into the lake.

"The car just drove right over the water's edge," said Harry Hogg, a witness. "There seemed to be no attempt to stop. It just rolled out and sank gradually. I saw no one attempt to get out of the car."

Neighbors said Mrs. Stuart had not seemed herself since the birth of the baby seven months ago.

'Red' Dean Leads Special Service For the King

London, Sept. 24 — (AP) British "red" dean, Dr. Hewlett Johnson, led a special service for the King in historic Canterbury Cathedral yesterday.

The dean, who often visits behind the iron curtain and has supported many communist projects, usually leaves the service to a subordinate.

Special prayers were said in all British churches — Anglican, Catholic and non-conformist—for the King's recovery from a lung operation.

At Liverpool Cathedral the National Anthem — "God Save the King" — was recited in prayer.

The Queen and her daughters attended a special service Sunday morning in the private chapel of Balmoral Castle, Scottish residence of the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Chiefs of Britain's political parties laid aside their differences to express their disappointment that the public's hope that 33,000 people came to see the master detective's sitting room. It was part of a Festival of Britain exhibition organized by Marylebone, the London borough in which he lived.

The organizers, while happy at the success of their venture, are considerably disappointed that the publicity failed to uncover clues to what became of Holmes and his friend, Dr. Watson.

Many are sure that Holmes is still alive, though he would be getting on to 100.

Their belief was heightened a few days ago when a letter received by the Times said the famous pair had decided to visit the exhibition and were arriving at Victoria that day.

An anxious party gathered at the London station—but the aesthetic figure in a deerstalker cap was nowhere to be seen. The theory is that Holmes at the last moment learned the true nature of the exhibition and refused to attend. Ever faithful Watson, his followers argued, was given it to the preposterous theory that Holmes was merely a character of fiction, invented by one Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, author of books quite unlike Dr. Watson's celebrated memoirs.

Some of the elderly visitors claimed personal recollections of Holmes. Another said Holmes had solved a case for her sister, details of which were still too painful to be revealed.

The organizers, who had difficulty in assembling Holmes' personal belongings, freely admitted the reconstructed room contained nothing they had positively identified as belonging to Holmes.

Of a gold snuff-box, with a great amethyst in the centre of the lid, which Holmes described as a present from the reigning King of Bohemia," the catalogue said: "there is no evidence to show that the snuff box exhibited is not the one presented to Holmes."

Canadian-Born Jewel Thief Admits Burglary

New York, Sept. 24—(CP)—A Canadian-born jewel thief who described himself to police as "the best burglar in North America" has admitted last week's daring theft of $65,000 in gems from the Waldorf-Astoria hotel.

Police identified the thief as Joseph Lovello, 31, who gave his birthplace as Vancouver and said he was the husband of Joseph Lovello, 35, a Manhattan house painter, as the alleged receiver of the jewels.

Ireland, in custody on another larceny charge, made his admission Saturday, but the police announcement said.

Lovello, questioned, police said, that he received the jewels and still has them in his possession.

Police said Ireland is a drug addict and "a very good sneak thief" known to "the trade" as one of the nation's most successful burglars.

Ireland, they said, taking about $300,000 worth of jewels in New York City thefts since last January.

Police said that Ireland told them of a theft at the General Brock Hotel, Niagara Falls, Ont., in 1947 when he said he had a key to the hotel safe deposit rooms, taking about $800 to $900 in cash and jewelry from each of 15 or 20 safes.

Contained $20,000

In the fifth room, he told police, he found a man asleep and saw that the man's wallet was hidden under the pillow and pillowcase on the side of the bed nearest the wall. Using a razor to slit the pillowcase, he slid his hand into the case and took the wallet which contained $20,000. He also took $100,000 in jewelry from the room including a gold statuette of a bare-breasted lady with diamonds, rubies and sapphires. Police said the room was occupied by a well-known Canadian horseman, but did not divulge his name.

The cash and jewels in the Waldorf-Astoria were taken from a showcase in the hotel's lobby last Tuesday. The jewelry belonged to the Roy W. Johnston Co.

Ireland, out on $500 bail, was arrested Friday by police who found carrying "a suspicious key" in a Park Avenue jewelry shop.

Detectives took a cell in the Manhattan city prison and questioned him for 16 hours about the Waldorf-Astoria theft.

Police said Ireland told them that he received the key in connection with a key made to fit a matching lock. He told police he noted the location of the matching lock while responding one in a camera store, stole it and had the key fashioned.

Canada Trade Deficit With US Sharply Higher

Ottawa, Sept. 24 — (CP) — Canada's purchase from the United States jumped by more than $500,000,000 to a record $1,705,000,000 in the first seven months of 1951, the Bureau of Statistics reported.

This sharp climb from $1,175,000,000 in the first seven months of 1950 outpaced a smaller $250,000,000 gain in sales, pushing Canada's deficit in trade with her southern neighbor to $373,000,000 —about four times greater than the $87,500,000 deficit in the same period last year.

Canada's exports to the U. S. in the seven-month period increased to $1,331,000,000 from $1,087,000,000.

Part of the big boost in the American deficit was apparently due to a continuing hunger by a booming Canadian industry for American raw and finished materials, principally iron and steel products and textile materials, including cotton.

But part was apparently also due to the fact that the general level of Canada's export prices had not climbed as high as those for the goods she imported. For example, the Bureau reported that in July prices of Canada's exports increased 13 per cent from 1950, but prices of imports climbed 18.5 per cent.

Bevan Rebels Offer to Heal Split With Labor Govt. As Election Campaign Starts

London, Sept. 24. (CP)—The Labor Party's beleaguered forces, split over the inroads the rearmament program has made on its socialization program, appeared ready to present a united front against the Conservatives in the October 25 election.

Fiery Aneurin Bevan, who stamped out of his post as Labor Health Minister over the cuts of rearmament, offered to make peace with Prime Minister Attlee yesterday.

In an article in the leftist Sunday Reynolds News, he said he and his supporters will "work for the election of a Labor and not all the power we possess."

Bevan, two other government officials and a sizeable group of Labor's left wing contend the orthodox leadership of the party has been too close to the United States' foreign-policy line. They say the drum-of-fire backing for a true Socialist state has been clouded by the expense of rearmament.

Although the Bevan group never quit the Labor party, there was doubt as to its stand in the crucial election. Loss of even a few percentage points of support would doom Attlee's administration and almost ensure the election the favored Conservatives.

But Bevan's statement was clear.

"Now that the general election is upon us there can be no doubt their people as to the duty of all members of the Labor movement, Socialists, Trade Unionists and co-operators alike.

"It is to work for the defeat of the Tories with all the power we possess."

He urged:

"Return the Labor government with a clear backlash by a record large enough to enable it to apply its own principles to the problems that crowd upon Britain and the world."

Leaders Stoke up Fire

Bevan's move was expected to play a big role in today's session of the Labor party executive.

The weekend also saw Attlee and conservative leader Winston Churchill stoke up the fire for the campaign.

Pro-Churchill supporter, Capt. Richard Stanley, told a political meeting in his Somerset constituency Churchill as prime minister would arrange a personal meeting with President Truman in order to ease world tensions.

Attlee had proposed such a meeting himself in February, 1950.

Stanley said the wartime prime minister also has a "friendly" relationship with Stalin "and one of the first things he will do when he is prime minister will be, I am sure, to go and meet Stalin again in order to ease the tension between the top men in the two countries, as well as between the peoples."

Iran to Oust British Oil Men Unless Contracts Signed Soon; No Solution to Deadlock Near

Tehran, Sept. 24 (AP) — An Iranian government official said today that British technicians in the oil refinery at Abadan will be expelled in a week or 10 days unless they sign individual contracts to work for the nationalized Iranian Oil Company.

The announcement was made by Ali Shayegan, member of the parliamentary oil board.

He said the decision was taken in a three-hour session of the board with Premier Mohammed Mossadegh this morning.

"We will make no further overtures to the British government or Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. Any temporary board of directors of the national Iranian Oil Company — which has been cut away from the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company under Iran's nationalization law — would set a definite time limit.

(A dispatch from Abadan said Jamie Cunningham, superintendent of communications for A.I.O.C. has already left for neighboring Kuwait. His residence permit was withdrawn yesterday.)

The decision today was taken after Britain rebuffed an Iranian government "feeler" for renewal of oil talks.

No Hope for Settlement

The British foreign office reflected in the press that it contained no hope for a settlement.

Talks broke down when the British delegation made their British technicians would never work under individual contracts with the Iranian firm.

A spokesman for the British embassy said today the national Iranian company has banned Britishers in Abadan from using their food stores and restaurants.

The Iranian government apparently will use this weapon to drive out those who refuse to sign contracts.

"This is the third Iranian ultimatum," he said. "It is to sign individual contracts or leave Iran. British technicians refused the Attlee offer and the nationalized company did not force their ouster.

There is little doubt, however, that Mossadegh means business now. The premier has said it is impossible for the nationalized oil company to hire other foreign technicians or sell to private oil firms as long as the Britons are in Abadan.

U.N. COMMAND REJECTS KAESONG AS TALKS SITE

Deemed too Dangerous For Future Negotiations

Tokyo, Sept. 24 (AP) — The United Nations' Far East command today told the communists that Kaesong is unsuitable as a site for any future Korean armistice negotiations.

Allied liaison officers gave these reasons in a note handed to red liaison officers at Kaesong:

1. Kaesong is too close to the main red supply line, under attack by Allied planes.

2. Red and allied ground forces are in constant manoeuvre around the Kaesong industrial zone.

3. Uncontrolled partisan groups, responsible to neither command, are active in the area and could take action at any time which would again cause a break-up of talks.

Old-Age Pensions for Needy Persons From 65 to 69 Called For in Resolution

Ontario Legislature Opens Special Autumn Session

Toronto, Sept. 24 — (CP) — The Ontario legislature, which opened its special fall session today, was told that it will be called on to pass old-age pensions legislation "of far-reaching effect for our people."

Lieutenant Governor Ray Lawson, reading a 300-word Speech from the Throne to open the session, said the legislation, if approved, would extend pensions to needy persons from 65 to 69 years of age.

The government hoped that the plan would begin next Jan. 1, under the federal-provincial agreement reached last December to extend pensions to the 65-69 age group.

The Throne Speech noted that "with deep regret" the King's illness.

"In the heavy duties of his high office he has given of himself unsparingly. We all pray that he may be completely restored to health and be long spared to reign over his people, who hold him in the deepest respect and affection."

Extend Health Services

The Speech, outlining the federal-provincial discussions leading to the pensions agreement, said the government would also introduce legislation to extend "certain health services to old people." These are for the relieving assistance, and to all needy blind persons who are 21 years of age.

The speech said under terms of the agreement with the federal government, the federal and provincial governments will each pay half of the cost of the new means test pensions. The federal government also plans to pay pensions to all over 70, regardless of their means.

Election Not Mentioned

The Speech made no mention of a question which has been in the minds of the legislators—whether a fall election will be called this year.

"This special session," it said "has been called for the purpose of considering legislation which if approved will enable my government to enter into appropriate agreements with the government of Canada under which the province will participate in making financial assistance available, as recommended in three agreements, to those of our citizens who come within the age group of 65 to 69 years."

Police were summoned to the rooming-house at 9:30 a.m. by a telephone operator and reported that when they arrived the body of Mr. Burton was lying face down on the floor. He had been shot in the head.

Mr. Burton had no relatives in Brantford and was believed to have come here from Northern Ontario.

Accused Takes Witness Stand To Tell Story

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Sept. 24 (CP)—Handsome Wasyl Krawec, 24-year-old immigrant charged with murdering Jonas Norkus, 29, a railway section worker, took the witness stand Saturday as the first witness in his own defence.

He told the court he could not recall some of the events of the wild party July 31 which ended in the stabbing of Norkus. The railway section workers' body was found on the morning of July 22 lying in a pool of blood on the porch of a railway section house at Aweres, 130 miles north of here.

Earlier witnesses, testifying for the Crown, have given their versions of the events of the evening which led to the fatal stabbing.

Mrs. Adele Vinalovas, pretty 25-year-old wife of a railway section foreman, told the court Friday that the party was attended by five persons, herself; Krawiec, Norkus, and Mr. and Mrs. Milevoji Bozic.

Final Rejection Of Proposal Seems Assured

Sydney, Sept. 24—(AP)— The majority against giving the Australian government power to outlaw the Communist party was slightly increased today, but final rejection of the proposal seemed assured.

With about 770,000 votes still to be counted, there was an over-all majority against the proposed constitutional amendment of 107,409.

The vote now stands at 1,976,361 for the 2,083,770 against.

The Conservative cabinet plans to meet tomorrow to discuss other methods of combatting communism.

It had asked the electorate for power to dissolve the communist party and remove communists from key position in government and industry.

Forecast Russia Will Explode Hydrogen Bomb

London, Sept. 24 (Reuters) — Forecast that Russia will explode a new-type hydrogen bomb in July, 1952, will be published here in the October edition of the Intelligence Digest, a news letter circulated to private subscribers.

The digest, edited by Kenneth De Courcy, claims to have contacts behind the iron curtain who are secretly hostile to the Soviet regime.

In January, 1949, the digest forecast that the Russians would explode their first atom bomb in the summer of 1949. President Truman later announced that an atomic explosion had taken place in Russia.

According to the report prepared for next month's issue the new hydrogen bomb will be triggered by an atom bomb. The method, the report claims, has been developed by Prof. Bruno Pontecorvo, British atom scientist who disappeared with his whole family last year and is believed to be in Russia.

Senator Fraser, O.G. Alyea Quit Trenton Parks Board

Trenton (Special) —Chairman Senator W. A. Fraser and Secretary O. G. "Buster" Alyea resigned from the Trenton Parks Board over the weekend.

Senator Fraser submitted his resignation to Secretary Alyea. It said: "Dear Mr. Alyea: I herewith tender my resignation as chairman of the parks board and would ask you to place same before the members of the board at your next m sting. Signed Yours faithfully, W. A. Fraser."

O. G. Alyea directed his letter of resignation to O. W. Larry, clerk-treasurer of Trenton. It read: "Dear Sir: Please accept this as my resignation from the parks board.

"In all fairness to myself before returning the books, etc., of the board, it would be better to have the town auditor check them over.

"This will save both time and recrimination. Signed — Yours truly, O. G. Alyea."

Surprise Expressed

People in official office were surprised at both heads quitting. The board will now have to call a special meeting to elect both a chairman and a secretary-treasurer.

Former members of the parks board are: Mayor Kenneth J. Couch, Grant Rathbun, Mrs. C. V. Wilkins, Helen Sutcliffe and Mrs. Aletha Redick.

Senator Fraser and Mr. Alyea assumed office Sept. 8th, 1949. Since then many, many changes and improvements have been spent on improvement of the parks in the town.

In particular, Senator Fraser Park was built out of the ruins of what was one time a dump at the mouth of the river. Today, Senator Fraser Park is the most spot unparalleled among the waterfront towns in Southern Ontario. The park has received favorable comment from United States visitors and is one of the town's real tourist attractions. The new cement docking facilities at the eastern border of the park, according to the Chamber of Commerce, was responsible for the increase in the number of pleasure boats stopping on their way up the Trent canal system.

At the same time the parks board beautified Hanna Park and planted several thousands of trees at Mount Pelion.

In a second letter to the town clerk and treasurer dated Sept. 20th, 1951, Mr. Alyea said: "Dear Sir: Herewith please find copy of resolution passed last night by the parks board.

"Be it resolved that the parks board return the bus terminal property to the town of Trenton, thereby releasing themselves from any further responsibility concerning this property.

"This is for your information and necessary action. Signed — O. G. Alyea, Secretary-Treasurer Trenton Parks Board."

At a meeting of council last week, Mr. Alyea asked council for a written agreement stating which body has control over the bus terminal site.

At present the parks board has jurisdiction over the land. Mayor Kenneth J. Couch stated: "We have no desire to change the existing arrangement."

Wants Situation Cleared

Mr. Alyea said that he wanted to have the situation cleared up because he did not wish to be involved in another incident similar to the one which occurred over the Kinmen carnival.

Grant Rathbun, owner of Rathbun Bus Lines, has leased the terminal property to erect a modern terminal. Mr. Alyea stated that he had been in conference with Mr. Rathbun on three occasions and his proposals were continually changing. "The latest one," he said, "was that we give it to him to run free. Well, we are not giving anything to anybody to hold in perpetuity while the parks board is over to us and it is nothing but a rat trap."

Councillor Burtt observed: "If the property belongs to the town and we have turned it over to the parks board, we should wait for a letter from the board before deciding."

Replied Mr. Alyea: "That is what I am here for. I will boss it. I do not back up on my statement about little Hitlers. I merely want that portion of the town safe for the future."

Provincial Constable W. H. Miller investigated.

Trenton Legion's Drumhead Service Is Held at Senator Fraser Park

Trenton (Special) —Amid the beautiful surroundings of Senator Fraser Park, 10 branches of District "F" of the Canadian Legion observed the Legion's annual drumhead service here yesterday.

More than 500 Legionnaires and a large crowd of citizens followed their heads and prayed for the early recovery of the King. Warm weather prevailed through-out the parade and service in the park.

Near the end of the worship period, veteran Leo Fleshi of Colborne suddenly died and was carried to a car by Boy Scouts and Legion comrades. He was admitted to the C.G.M. Memorial Hospital and released after a check-up.

Although the turnout was impressive, that in the northern counties kept many more at home.

The service was conducted by Capt. Rev. A. S. McConnell, MBE, chaplain Canadian Legion, Trenton. Lines of commemoration were recited by WO John Silver, MBE, CD.

The address was given by T. A. M. Hunter, provincial president of the Canadian Legion, while District Commander J. D. Burnet delivered a message.

Mayor Kenneth J. Couch welcomed the visitors on behalf of the town. The Legion welcome was extended by W. R. Crowe-john, president of the Trenton branch.

The parade lined up at Dufferin School grounds and marched to the cenotaph. The parade marshal was given by Commander J. D. Burnet.

In the parade were bands from the RCAF Station, Trenton, No. 1 Regair Depot and Trenton Lions Club. Music for the service was by RCAF Training Command Band under P/O C. Hunt.

W/O. John Silver, M.B.E. C.D., was parade marshal and R.S.M.E. Abney, R.C.A.F., was parade marshal of the color party.

After a wreath was placed on the cenotaph Last Post and Reveille was sounded by trumpetery of the R.C.A.F. massed trumpet band.

Car Crash Hurts Janet McLean, North Hastings

Miss Janet McLean, of Detlor, North Hastings, suffered back injuries and six other passengers in a Bancroft-Belleville bus, owned by Stapley's Bus Lines, were shaken up on Saturday afternoon when the bus went out of control on the wet pavement, skidded off the road and turned on its side in the ditch. The accident occurred three miles north of the city on No. 14 Highway.

Driver of the bus, C. Barrazar, of Lake St. Peter, said he had turned out with the intention of passing a motorcycle. Due to the approach of a southbound car, he was forced to apply his brakes. The bus skidded around on the highway and went into the ditch, turning on its side. The right rear of the bus was slightly damaged and several windows were broken out.

Besides back injuries, Miss McLean suffered facial cuts and is expected to remain in hospital for some days.

Enjoys Partridge For Dinner Ahead of Season

Some people go to a lot of trouble to get partridge, but a city resident was able to have the fine fare for dinner Sunday without violating any game laws by using a gun.

This man visited his summer cottage at Salmon Lake over the weekend and when he entered his boathouse noticed a broken pane. Inside glass was strewn all over the floor and among the fragments was the body of a partridge. It had been dead only a short time, and later the breast formed a nice side dish for dinner.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 24 — (CP) — Stock market prices continued mixed and trendless today in early afternoon dealings, with selective buying in base metals and western oils. The rapid pace of past sessions eased as volume for the first three hours reached 2,043,000 shares.

Utilities, constructions, liquors and miscellaneous industrials held firm. Papers weakened sharply.

Base metals turned mixed after a first hour climb to a record high. Consolidated Smeltners and Noranda posted the best gains. United Asbestos climbed steeply in active trading. Canalar, Golden Manitou, Mindamar and Quebec Manitou showed penny gains. Falconbridge, Quemont, Sherritt Gordon, Minda-Scotia and Mackenzie eased.

Western oils were irregular. Model Oil, Long Island Petroleum, Calmont and East Crest climbed in heavy dealings. Mid-Continent dipped in active trading.

Senior golds weakened. Giant Yellowknife, Lake Shore, Siscoe and Wright-Hargreaves showed declines up to 25 cents. Malartic and Tech Hughes strengthened. Juniors and prospects showed little trend.

LANTERNS AND FLARES AT EXCAVATION BEING EXTINGUISHED

Mischievous boys in the Catherine Street area are extinguishing lanterns and flares placed at sewer excavations for the protection of pedestrians and motorists. Over the weekend police investigated a report that the lights had been extinguished and found that boys had been tampering with the warning lanterns and flares.

Son Changes Story About 'Heiress' Mother Dying of Overdieting

Detroit, Sept. 24 — (AP) The collegian son of a blonde socially-prominent Detroit woman changed his story today about his mother being an "heiress" who died of the effects of overdieting.

Mrs. Marian Peck Miles died late Saturday night at her 31-room Georgian mansion in fashionable Grosse Pointe Farms. She was 53.

Her son, Butler, 21, told newspaper men his mother had inherited about two-thirds of a $147,000,000 estate left in 1925 by her father, whom he identified as "Canadian financier Francis G. Peck."

He also reported that the pernicious anemia, from which she died, was caused by overdieting against her doctors' orders.

But today, after no trace had been found of any Canadian fortune left to Mrs. Miles, the son said the facts had been miscon-strued.

"Just call it a case of mistaken identity. She was not closely enough related to the man (Peck) to inherit any of his money," he said.

As to the amount of his mother's wealth, young Miles declared:

"I doubt that she had much of anything."

The son's belated statements helped to clear an air of mystery that had surrounded the case since Mrs. Miles' condition became serious weeks ago.

Persons represented as doctors and nurses in the home had verified young Miles' original story. His father, Detroit architect Francis Allen Miles, was reported in seclusion today.

Young Miles said today that death was caused by purpuruic anemia — a weakening of the blood vessels. But he said the doctors had changed their original story that the anemia was caused by overdieting. The doctors were not available for comment.

A death certificate reporting the cause of death has not yet been filed.

Mrs. Miles was also said to have been educated at an Ursuline Convent near Ottawa and participated in Canadian war relief projects during the last war. But she was not listed in Canadian Red Cross records of wartime aides.

Also there is no Ursuline Convent near Ottawa.

It was originally stated that burial would be at the "family homestead at Woodview near Ottawa." This morning it was announced burial would be in Detroit.

U.N. COMMAND

Called Off Talks

The reds called off the talks on August—23, charging an allied plane tried to "murder" the communist cease-fire delegation with a bomb.

"It is regrettable," the allies said that the reds didn't accept the original suggestion of Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme allied commander, that the negotiations be held aboard the Danish hospital ship Jutlandia.

Ridgway proposed some other, more incident-proof site for the conference in a note to the communists Sept. 6. He since has made clear that he wants better working conditions established for negotiators before he agrees to resumption of the conference

Liaison Officers Meet

U.N. and red liaison officers met in Kaesong Monday morning to set up arrangements under which talks, if resumed, could make the most rapid progress possible.

About six months later the reds sent the allies a memorandum, contents of which were not disclosed by allied headquarters.

The reds were reminded that Gen. Ridgway suggested Sept. 6 that a new site for the talks be chosen.

The allied liaison team said, "from the viewpoint of the military aviator, the Kaesong neutral zone is but a few minutes removed from the most important military line of supply in your rear area. Thousands of aircraft sorties are directed against this line of supply. The likelihood of an accidental occurrence involving Kaesong is obvious."

Agincourt, Sept. 24 — (CP) — Maplewood Orchards of this town, northeast of Toronto, defeated Sudbury Mine-Mills 12-0, here Saturday to win the Ontario Women's Softball Union intermediate A championship in two straight games. Orchards won the first game 11-2 the previous Saturday in Sudbury.

Last year the Maplewoods defeated Englehart to win the intermediate B title.

BANCROFT

Rebuilt, Redecorated Gospel Hall Re-opened

Bancroft.—Rebuilt and redecorated after a disastrous fire last February, the Bancroft Gospel Hall will be officially opened on Sunday with three services. Three days before the building was to have been opened in February, a $15,000 fire started in or near the furnace room and swept through the interior of the church.

Immediately after the fire, the work of rebuilding began, with the bracing of the weakened superstructure, while burned and charred sections were replaced. Now the interior gleams with shining birch veneer panels matched with natural birch furniture on a new tile floor.

Finest Gospel Hall

Located on North Hastings Street, the Bancroft Gospel Hall is probably the largest Protestant church in North Hastings and church officials proudly state that visitors class it as one of the finest Gospel Halls on the continent of North America. Although its cost was approximately $30,-000 this does not represent the true value of the building as many hours of volunteer labor by men and trucks are not included in the figure.

The church is a frame structure with a stone front, with outside dimensions of 40 by 70 feet. The seating capacity of the main floor is 300, with additional room for 100 in the balcony and another 200 in the basement. When required a sound system connected the basement with the main floor.

Opening services will be conducted by W. Belch of Belleville, Ray Fox, of Trenton, and Evangelist Fred W. Nugent of London, Ontario.

The builder of both the original and the re-built hall was George Easton of Bancroft, with William Watson, of Belleville as architect.

REDS BUY GRANITE

Stockholm, Sept. 24 — (Reuters) — Six thousand tons of Swedish granite ordered by Hitler in 1940 for victory monuments have been sold to Soviet Russia for about 1,000,000 crowns (about $196,000). Hitler refused delivery in 1943 when the war turned against him. It is believed the Russians are using the granite for decorating new stations on Moscow's subway.

Election Deemed Drawing Near But Frost Mum

Toronto, Sept. 24 (CP) — What may be the last session of Ontario's 23rd. Legislature opened today.

Old age pension legislation is the only business scheduled for the brief session, but some observers are predicting that Premier Frost will top it off by calling an election, probably for some time in November.

The premier himself has given no hint of his intentions on that score. He has stated that the session will be devoted solely to passing legislation extending pensions to needy persons in Ontario between 65 and 69 years of age.

An estimated 41,500 persons in that age group in the province are eligible to receive pensions under an agreement by which the federal and provincial governments will share the cost 50-50.

Ottawa passed enabling legislation last June. The Ontario legislature, in a session expected to last no longer than a week, is expected to implement its part of the agreement.

Chief change in pension legislation is the payment of a maximum of $40 a month to persons between 65 and 69 who can show need and who earn no more than $240 a year. Any income above $240 would be deducted from the pension.

Welfare Minister Goodfellow, who is expected to pilot the legislation, has announced that the government plans other changes in pension legislation.

A SLIGHT INCONGRUITY

One of the chief doctrines of the British Labor party is the nationalization of industry. As soon as they were elected to power at the close of the Second World War, the Laborites proceeded to put their preachings into practice. Coal-mining, steel-making and transportation were taken over by the state, as well as some less important industries.

Canadians are familiar with the arguments advanced in favor of the nationalization of industry through listening to and reading speeches made by members of the C.C.F., which is a sort of spiritual offspring of the British Labor party. "Socialization of the means of production," the C.C.F.ers call it. To some extent, the C.C.F. has carried its socializing plans into execution in Saskatchewan, the one province in which the party is in power.

The idea of "socializing the means of production" has, in recent years, spread far afield. Among even some of those countries that the western nations are accustomed to label "backward," the idea has taken root and seems to be thriving.

One of the countries is Iran. The Iranians have been trying to "nationalize" the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company. Anglo-Iranian is a very large oil-producing concern. It supplies, amongst other customers, the British navy. In fact, the British navy is said to be dependent upon oil supplied by Anglo-Iranian. Another complicating factor is that one of the chief shareholders in Anglo-Iranian, if not the chief shareholder, is the British government.

Since the British Laborites are staunch proponents of the nationalization of industry in Britain, it might be expected that they would also be in favor of other governments proceeding to nationalize industry. But such is not the case. The British government has fought bitterly against the efforts of the Iranians to nationalize Anglo-Iranian.

The British have applied all sorts of economic and other pressures to induce the Iranians to change their minds about nationalizing Anglo-Iranian. The Iranians, angered at losing the revenue which ceased when Anglo-Iranian suspended operations, are talking of boycotting the purchase of good imported from Britain.

Out of the welter of conflicting reports which come from London and Tehran, the capital of Iran, one puzzling fact emerges with startling clarity. It is this: the British Laborite government is strongly opposed to the nationalization of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

It is all very confusing to a mere layman. Do the British Laborites believe that the nationalization of industry is right and proper in Britain, but wrong and improper in Iran?

CANADIAN INDUSTRY GROWS

The recent announcement of the Ford Motor Company of Canada that it plans to spend $14,000,000 in expanding the manufacturing facilities of its Australian subsidiary is another indication that Canadian industry has gone past the adolescent stage and is now rapidly reaching maturity.

Not so many years ago, the Ford Motor Company of Canada was merely a subsidiary of the parent company on the American side of the Detroit River. Now, Canadian Ford is treated as Canadian-controlled.

The Ford Company's reason for expanding its productive facilities in Australia is to enable the company to continue making large sales in Australia. These sales had been made difficult in recent years by Australia's dollar exchange shortage.

Unable to sell as many Canadian-made cars in Australia, Canadian Ford will now make more in Australia and collect Australian funds in payment. A part of these funds will be returned to Canada as dividends.

MAN-CATCHING PERFUMES

(Wall Street Journal)

Teen-age daughters are a baffling mystery to a middle-aged man and very frequently a source of frustration. It seems incomprehensible that a well-brought-up girl would load her dressing table with a row of colored bottles before she starts applying such horrendous titles as Catch Your Man Tonight, Romance Unbelievable, Ecstacy of the Full Moon, He'll Drop Like a Ripe Plum When He Smells It.

We are no authority on young love, but we respectfully suggest to the homes and schools of America that they teach young ladies the man-catching power of such perfumes as frying onions, baked beans, bread pudding with plenty of raisins and corned beef and cabbage.

HONORS

I would not wear them on my coat,
I'd rather keep them in my heart;
I never want a friend to note
That from him I've been set apart.

I can be proud of them alone,
But still I hope 'twill never be
That any honor I have known
Has made too proud a man of me.

Heart keep them hidden! There were some
That proofs of friendship must remain;
And there's tomorrow soon to come
When I must face my tasks again.

THE PACKSAD

By GREGORY CLARK

There is the sort of person who can't eat a meal without getting food all over the outside of his or her mouth. Last night, I was at a big dinner table with one of these, but it was amusing to observe him.

His wife and two teen age children were in large attendance. He has broken his French roll and buttered it before, sure enough, he has left a large crumb dangling from the corner of his mouth, which waggled and moved conspicuously as he chattered jovially. I caught his wife making faces at him, as the two children glared at their plates. By the time the crumb had fallen off, he was into the soup and after finding a cream soup, he at once had a drop, as you would say about a bob tub, around his mouth.

This lasted until he happened to give a casual wipe to the outside mouth with his napkin: but a moment later, he had a cauliflower on his chin. You might call people like this have small Napoleonic complexes, but with difficulty. But they have large, ample apertures, usually. You would put him down as a slob, probably been subjected to constant criticism and complaint ever since childhood, they would have developed some consciousness of their habit. But once a month, always a crumber, apparently. This man's wife and children spent a most unhappy dinner hour.

After dinner, when we went into the living room, this crumber got me over into a corner, quietly, and said:

"Excuse me, old boy, but you've got a gob of gravy on your chin."

Gates Must Be Kept Open Says Pearson

Ottawa, Sept. 24. (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson said Friday night the "gates of the North Atlantic community must not be kept open," even toward those who would urge conflict.

The west, he said, must not seal itself off from Russia in case the day might come—distant though it might be—when the Soviet would put forward a real desire for peace appeal.

In one of a series of CBC broadcasts in connection with the North Atlantic Council meetings which ended here Thursday, Mr. Pearson said:

"The gates of the North Atlantic community must be kept open. I am convinced, even toward those who now would destroy it. The menace of Soviet military power is so great that we cannot slacken in the work of building collective defences.

"That feeling underlay all our talk at our council meeting. We agreed also that we should be wary of false peace gestures intended to weaken and divide us. On the other hand, we were equally convinced that we should never reject any genuine move for 'peace,' that we should test each move by the deeds that follow it; that we must not seal ourselves off from the Soviet Union and its satellites since, ultimately, our way of life may even succeed in penetrating the isolation in which the Russian people have been placed by their government."

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

High and Happy

Little story today about a young couple and a small blond baby who Got Away From It All in a bird cage up with the eagles. This is our regular monthly salute to those people who just like to be happy.

Bill and Eli Randall and Jan, the baby, have had a pretty fine summer all by themselves atop a mountain. This week they are heading back to what we laughingly call civilization— motor cars, indoor plumbing and the rest—but they're leaving behind a little hunk of their hearts in the darndest place you ever saw in your life.

Their last May home for the Randalls has been a kind of glass box perched on the roof of the world. In a space 14-feet square, Bruce built, by hand, a wedding acquaintance with Pan-American airline pilots, Bill, Eli and Jan have been discovered by hundreds of people and like it.

The glass house is a lookout station of the B.C. Forest Service on the bald fifty summit of Mount Brock, 6,000 feet, in Salt Spring Island, currently my adopted home. Like a lot of other people, Bill has been filling in the summer hours, long out for forest fires, with that wonderful but vital occupation and about as pleasant a way to make a living as I know.

It was Bill's second summer in this unlikely spot. The first year he was the whole show. This year they consisted of an occasional blue grouse and a bear, who, Bill says, once, "Found a kind of life I'd never known in city life." Bill says now, that's it, I thought, if it worked for one it would work for three."

Seems to it has worked too. I never met a girl so disenchanted about going back to modern conveniences as Bill's attractive and sun-toasted partner.

With a View

As a homesite, the 3,230 foot summit of Mount Brock is probably unique in the world.

Bill has built a wondrous Chic Sale out back of the lookout. It is made of peeled logs and slung in some intricate fashion between two tall fir trees so that you go up a ladder into a shelter of sweet-smelling boughs. Royalty never mounted a throne with such a view.

From this seat you look out over the whole jewel chain of the Gulf Islands.

Lifting your eyes over Galiano Island, you may see clear across the Gulf of Georgia to the Fraser River Empire. At night when the stars seem close enough to grab, Bill and Eli cut out a narrow porch that goes around their square, glass castle and contemplate the twinkling, scattered lights of Vancouver, Bellingham, Seattle, Victoria and Nanaimo.

From a woman's point of view the lookout leaves much to be desired. For one thing, it's cold, the blinds must never be drawn. On hot days it is a little like living in a goldfish bowl and yet it is scarce, too. The nearest supply is a small lake a thousand feet straight down.

The single square room has a large brass bed known as an Osborne Fire-Finder in its middle (works like a sun-sight for pin-pointing fires so that you much that can be done to make the place "homey." Also—and this no man will ever understand—the room is so small that it requires more housework than a full-sized bungalow.

But right now Bill wouldn't trade this bird cage for the choicest ranch house in the suburbs.

"There's something about living in blue jeans and T-shirts and every man for himself basis of the city that just gets in your blood," Eli says. "Us going to Wednesday's special, for instance, to see a real bath tub again. But I know I'll never look forward again to days as serene and uncomplicated as those up here."

A Busy Life

The Randalls are always asked if it's a lonely life. They haven't found it that way.

Bill is kept busy making out hourly reports to the radio hook-up that links all the fire-watchers in the province. Eli has those long shores that a small and busy baby demand. At night they pack in their binoculars for sit up their personal cloud. Some well-meaning friend sent them a telescope, but it's no new puzzles but after a week of that Bill claimed to be seeing the Frankenstein monster and gave it up.

Their only worry has been a matter of conscience.

"In a way, it's escape," Bill admits. "I find it hard to look too young to want that as a permanent thing. Sometimes it seems a little selfish to shut out all the challenges that are waiting in the city. It's a comfortable thing, but I think you can find the perfect way of life and still feel a little guilty about it!"

So this week the little glass house is being boarded up for the winter and the young Randalls are going back to where life is real, hectic and fast.

I spotted 12 fires and had the time of our life," Bill says, and who could ask for more?

Royal Couple In Kapuskasing For 18 Hours

Kapuskasing, Sept. 24. (CP)—The message chattered on the teletype—"Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh will spend 18 hours in Kapuskasing October 8."

First . . . stunned silence. Then . . . pandemonium.

In a word, this bustling pulp-and-paper town hacked out of the bush 90 miles north of Cochrane is agog. Society—what there is of it—is atwitter. In fact, it's pathetic.

Nothing as big ever happened here before.

Citizens of other Northern Ontario towns are greener than their own. Maybe Maple Creek can impersonate the acting of Charlie Chaplin. Under-sung Kapuskasing, which entered the contest himself and ended up in twelfth place, has the circumstances and would love to teach a number of lessons which we might ponder. The first is that judges of any kind are often wrong. If you were swallowing the pronouncements of so-called "authorities" you were going to be in for a good rigging. These judges have clay feet, and sooner or later we all find it out to our chagrin and financial loss.

The second is that Chaplin's place as twelfth on the list of contestants is manifestly unjust, but tears and desolation.

The vacant seats created by those who refused to sign this Treaty speak more eloquently than words about that beautiful hall. Driving away in their big cars, they speed from one to the other's mansion, condoning each other's lack of principle.

In this human world no peace treaty can be perfect. Sincere efforts and honest compromise, as individuals have to, so as to gain the highest spiritual welfare for all concerned. Benjamin Franklin once wrote that there never could be a good war or a bad peace. The wars of these last World Wars has come to the doorstep of every land in the world.

Let us hope and pray that the signing of this treaty between defeated Japan and the forty-eight nations that signed, and who strive through the organization of the United Nations to outlaw all war, may result finally in a universal peace among all nations, making this a "co-operative and happier world in which to live.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THAT JAPANESE PEACE

Undoubtedly that Peace Treaty signing at San Francisco will stand out as one of the most remarkable historic happenings in all the story of mankind. I watched it on my home before the TV. As I listened to the inspiring address of John Foster Dulles, I kept thinking of those lines of Gray's "Elegy"—"the paths of glory lead but to the grave".

I thought of the once boasted words of the Japanese military men who so brutally attacked nation after nation, and then I thought of the once great Empire now stripped to a mere fraction of what it once was. I also thought of the mighty conquests of MacArthur, General of the Army and a statesman, who taught a nation how peace and good will are the only basis on which to build a nation, and I wondered at the absence of this great man.

There were no smiles upon the faces of the defeated who stepped up to sign their names to this remarkable treaty. You could read from their faces that they had learned the great lesson that war never pays—it leaves nothing but tears and desolation.

The vacant seats created by those who refused to sign this Treaty speak more eloquently than words about that beautiful hall. Driving away in their big cars, they speed from one to the other's mansion, condoning each other's lack of principle.

In this human world no peace treaty can be perfect. Sincere efforts and honest compromise, as individuals have to, so as to gain the highest spiritual welfare for all concerned. Benjamin Franklin once wrote that there never could be a good war or a bad peace. The wars of these last World Wars has come to the doorstep of every land in the world.

Let us hope and pray that the signing of this treaty between defeated Japan and the forty-eight nations that signed, and who strive through the organization of the United Nations to outlaw all war, may result finally in a universal peace among all nations, making this a "co-operative and happier world in which to live.

—HOW MANY CALORIES IN THAT SPARE TIRE?

It may be interesting to know that a calory is a unit of heat, the amount of heat required to raise the temperature of a gram (about one-fourth of a teaspoonful) of water from zero to one degree Centigrade or from 32 degrees Fahrenheit (the freezing temperature, equivalent to zero of the Centigrade thermometer) to about 33.8 degrees Fahrenheit.

It may be interesting to know how many calories one gets in a gram of each of the kinds or types of food material required for human nutrition:

A gram of protein yields . . . . . 4 calories
A gram of carbohydrate yields . . . . . 4 calories
A gram of fat yields . . . . . 9.4 calories

Other elements which are quite as necessary in the everyday diet as these energy producing, building and repair materials, minerals, vitamins, bulk and roughage (wood fibre, cellulose, bulk) have no caloric value. Protein, carbohydrate called nitrogenous material because nitrogen is its chief constituent, is the kind of food required for building, growth and repair. We get it in lean meat, white of egg, fish, fowl, the cheese or curd part of milk, in dried beans, in green or dried peas, in wheat and in nuts.

An adult who takes the pressure of his body's tuberculosis for an hour or two a day requires a minimum of 75 grams (about 2 1-3 ounces) of protein daily to maintain good nutrition. But a man who consumes 150 grams, and as long as a good portion of it is of animal origin (milk, cheese, eggs, lean meat), it doesn't matter whether it costs 49c or $2.16 a pound.

Carbohydrate, otherwise called sugar and starch, is quick burning fuel—for immediate energy. Slurry-up stuff, is another. Called the—finely split pine kindlings attached to the long, seasoned and the long, cold winter in horse-car days in Canandaigua. Gram for gram or ounce for ounce, plain cornstarch or potato starch yields as many calories and as much quick energy in an emergency as the fanciest and most expensive sugar a gullible customer can buy—and a powerful lot of g.c.'s who patronize trick pediatricians buy refined sugar right along, in the naive belief that they get something exclusive for their undernourished children. I'm thankful that when I was a kid on Chapel Street the idea hadn't occurred to some nit-wit hokum even if there had been trick specialists in those days.

A moderately active adult requires about 13 ounces (400 grams) of carbohydrate a day, and one who does honest work may require two or three times as much to maintain good nutrition. After all, 400 grams would yield only 1,600 calories.

We'll consider in a talk to follow what becomes of the excess carbohydrate in the case of the individual who (1) habitually overeats or (2) indulges in prolific gorges or sprees of candy, fudge, cake or sundae guzzling.

Physiologists estimate that 75 grams (2 1-2 ounces) of fat is the daily requirement of a normal adult, which would yield 700 calories.

Besides protein, fat and carbohydrate, one other substance taken in limited quantity may yield calories the body can use for production of heat or muscular energy, work: It is alcohol (ethyl alcohol, pure grain alcohol).

A gram of alcohol yields approximately (all these calorie values are approximate, not exact)-7 calories.

Alcohol is not a food in the proper sense of the word; for it is not needed for purposes of growth, repair and work or function of the muscles or the vital functions. To a limited extent it can be burned in the body and the small amount oxidized, burned or consumed used in place of food fuel. To this extent alcohol spares body fat—that is, the body fat that is taken in a glass of beer or wine or a cocktail or highball instead of alcohol to supply some of the immediate energy requirements and keeps the body fat reserve intact. Also-all: If you want to prevent or get rid of an accumulation of body fat, don't drink. It's a bad, better practice, not temperance nor "moderation" but total abstinence.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Red Blood Vitamin

Is it possible to get enough green stuff and fruit and to work any of the miracles attributed to this vitamin? (O.W.)

Certainly. Perhaps not in the crystalline form but one can get plenty of it by eating a reasonable amount of raw liver daily. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for pamphlet on the Red Blood Vitamin. As I have explained here several times it's necessary to distinguish between (another vitamin or vitamin-like factor) along with B-12 in order to get the full effect of B-12.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

YOU CAN'T CHANGE THE UNCHANGEABLE

Some years ago a motion picture magazine offered prizes for those who could most perfectly impersonate the acting of Charlie Chaplin. Under-sung Kapuskasing entered the contest himself and ended up in twelfth place. The circumstances would seem to teach a number of lessons which we might ponder. The first is that judges of any kind are often wrong. If you were swallowing the pronouncements of so-called "authorities" you were going to be in for a good rigging. These judges have clay feet, and sooner or later we all find it out to our chagrin and financial loss.

The second is that Chaplin's place as twelfth on the list seems to indicate is that we all change with the passing of time, and that is not a bit. Maybe the Chaplin who took part in the contest wasn't quite like the Chaplin who had created his sublicences some years before. In fact he was sure he wasn't. He had changed. Maybe he had improved, but maybe he hadn't. My guess is that he hadn't.

Life is unpredictable. Change is inevitable. "Get these two facts well in mind and it will save you a lot of bumps. There are some things in this life we poor mortals can't win against, and one of these is time. Stop complaining. But-whatever you do, be skeptical of the infallibility of those men who pose as authorities in any field. Remember that "the gods have clay feet."

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

SURGEONS

The 55-year-old King spent the critical night under the eyes of doctors and nurses. Watchers were understood to include five of the eight doctors who took part in the two-hour operation yesterday morning. Dr. Clement Price-Thomas, who performed the actual lung resection, did not remain in the palace.

Lung Resection

Lung resection is the term used for surgical removal of the whole lung or part of it. It has not been indicated how extensive the operation was or which lung was affected.

Medical authorities are in general agreement that the first four or five days after the operation is the crucial period.

As the Sovereign fought his lonely battle for life, a little group of Britons kept a prayerful vigil outside the gates of Buckingham Palace.

They were joined after daybreak by persons on their way to work who stopped to ask "How is he?" very much like old friends asking after a neighbor.

Others, set for a longer wait in hopes of a new medical bulletin on the King's condition, parked their cars near the palace or sat quietly around the nearby monument to Queen Victoria.

Good wishes poured in from all parts of the Empire. Most British newspapers ran editorials expressing hopes for a speedy recovery.

Opinions vary on how long recovery may take, but most authorities hold out for from seven to ten weeks.

The King's illness overshadowed political campaigning for the general election set for Oct. 25. Political quarters, however, gave little credence to suggestions that the election might be postponed.

They pointed out that Prime Minister Attlee, who set the date, did so after consulting the King.

Council of State Talked

There were indications that a council of state might be set up to take over the King's duties if his recovery were to lose momentum.

Members would probably include Queen Elizabeth, Princess Margaret, the Duke of Gloucester and the Princess Royal. The latter two are the King's brother and sister.

When Princess Elizabeth leaves for her projected visit to Canada and the United States, her place on the council would probably be taken by the Princess Royal's son, the Earl of Harewood. A palace spokesman said the tour will be made unless the King takes a sudden turn for the worse.

According to parliamentary authorities, the council could summon the leader of the winning party in the election and ask him to form a new government. This is one of the King's functions.

According to London medical quarters, post-operative difficulties in lung resections can come from two directions: haemorrhage and infection. Doctors handling such cases normally use penicillin or an aureomycin type drug to battle germs. They usually give sedatives to relieve pain.

Doctors in attendance on the King besides Price-Thomas, were Dr. R. Macbray, widely-known specialist in tuberculosis; Sir Thomas Dunhill, sergeant - surgeon to the King; Sir Horace Evans, specialist in kidney and arterial diseases; Sir Daniel Davies, distinguished physician; Dr. Geoffrey Marshall, authority on respiratory diseases; Sir Robert Young, consulting physician; and Sir John Weir, who is the family doctor of the King and his close relatives.

Foremost Authority

Price-Thomas is a middle-aged, bespectacled Welshman and one of Britain's foremost authorities on chest ailments.

Some doctors said the surgery was more dangerous for the King because of his history of circulatory troubles. There was speculation that he might go abroad to a sunnier climate to recuperate.

In March, 1940, he underwent a spinal nerve operation to improve the circulation in his right leg.

Dr. George Cordiner, the X-ray specialist whose findings led to the decision to operate, arrived at the palace at 9 a.m.

The Duke of Windsor left his American-born Duchess in Paris. She has never been accepted by the Royal Family.

The Duke, looking bronzed and fit, was grave-faced and silent as he stepped from the Paris train at Victoria Station.

Asked by reporters how long he intended to stay, he lifted his hands in a gesture indicating he did not want to be questioned.

Queen Mary was waiting for him at Marlborough House when he arrived in a Royal car to join the family vigil. A few hundred curious people greeted their former King and cheered him.

He was then presented with remembrances from the 1951 Eldorado juniors, consisting of a chromium smoking stand and diamond socks. Through completely surprised, Doug. voiced his thanks and appreciation for the kindnesses shown him, saying that he had always enjoyed working with the boys.

The remainder of the evening was spent in cards, crokinole and other games, and in a social get-together.

St. Paul's Church Observes Harvest Home Festival

Stirling.—The age old Festival of Harvest Home was observed Sunday, Sept. 16th, at St. Paul's United Church in Stirling. Rev. W. G. Fletcher, of Wooler, being the speaker. He defined fairweather mixed up with pride and shallow words as types of life unworthy of the truly grateful heart.

Mrs. William Wilkin's lovely voice was heard in the seasonable solo, "Grateful Am I, O Lord," while the choir sang, "Thou Wilt Keep The Feast of Harvest".

The church was beautifully decorated. Tall corn stalks, up to 11 feet high, provided borders and seasonable flowers were arranged by the flower convener, Mrs. William Cornett, and the decorating committee.

The pulpit and altar area contained banners of rosy red apples, pickling cucumbers, baskets of tomatoes, turnips, purple egg plant, corn, beets, potatoes, celery, melons, carrots, beans, onions, cabbage, squash, peppers and honey.

Flowers for decorating the church were kindly sent by Mrs. Harry Hulin and Mrs. Arthur Rodgers.

WEDDINGS

MONTGOMERY—ALFORD

Christ Church, Belleville, was the scene of a lovely double ring ceremony on Saturday, September 8, at 2 p.m., when the Rev. Canon J. B. Creegan united in marriage Marjorie May, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Alford, Roslin, and Allan Earl, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Montgomery, Lansdowne, Ontario. Before a background of white gladioli, asters and fern.

The wedding music was provided by Mrs. J. B. Leddingham, church organist, and the boys' choir sang "O Happy Home" and during the signing of the register, "O Perfect Love".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her floor-length gown of white Brussells lace over satin, long sleeves ending in points over the hands. Peter Pan collar embroidered with seed pearls and bugle beads. The full skirt fell into a chapel train. Her floor-length veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a coronet of seed pearls and bugle beads, and she carried a shower bouquet of Talisman roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Gerald Thompson, sister of the bride, was matron of honor wearing a floor-length gown of orchid lace over satin, matching picture hat and gloves. She carried a basket of yellow roses, Hester Reed daisies and mums.

Misses Barbara Montgomery, Ruth Cleaver, of Belleville, were flower girls, dressed in similar floor-length gowns of yellow and green net over taffeta, poke bonnets and matching gloves. They carried smaller baskets of yellow roses, Hester Reed daisies and mums.

Mr. Carson Montgomery, brother of the bridegroom, was best man and the ushers were Mr. Gerald Thompson, brother-in-law of the bride, and Mrs. Leon Montgomery, brother of the bridegroom.

The wedding reception was held at Tobe's County Gardens, where the bride's mother received the guests, gowned in navy blue crepe with navy accessories, and corsage of red Talisman roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, attired in a grey suit and grey accessories with corsage of red Talisman roses.

For her wedding trip to Ottawa, and Moosonee on James Bay, the bride donned a navy blue nylon dress, navy and white accessories and corsage of red Sweetheart roses. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Lansdowne, Brockville, Gananoque, Roslin and Belleville.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was guest of honor at several showers: a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Gerald Thompson; a kitchen shower at the home of Miss Doreen Frost, and a cup and saucer shower at the home of Miss Barbara Boyle, Trent Road.

Italian Designer Says Florentines Fashion Leaders

Venice. (AP) — French-Italian competition in the fashion field is developing into a battle of the sexes.

While nearly all famous Parisian designers are men, 90 per cent of Italy's top-bracket stylists are women.

One of them is tiny, dark-eyed, Signora Veila Bellenghi of Florence, who numbers princesses and duchesses by the score among her clients.

"Florence," said Signora Bellenghi, "is the smartest city in Italy, and if you are in style consciousness, you can pick out a Florence woman in a crowd in London or Paris or anywhere. Her trade mark is chic simplicity."

Bellenghi's version of the "Italian look" is "classic cut and for the trimming: nothing."

She believes the developing Italian fashion industry should and will specialize in smartly tailored suits and coats. The international festival of high fashion under way here shows too many elaborate, overall frocks and elaborate evening gowns, she thinks, because "we don't wear them ourselves." Extremes, she implies, should be left to Paris.

Those who do not like the new longer skirt lengths introduced in Paris have a staunch supporter in Bellenghi as well as other Italian designers. Day skirts are about 15 inches from the floor.

"The longer skirts are ugly because they cut the calf at the widest place," according to Signora Bellenghi.

Besides the former Queen of Romania, the Princess of Montenegro, Princess Margherita and Princess Gilda noblewomen, Bellenghi dresses Mrs. Myron Taylor, wife of the former U.S. representative to the Vatican.

Many United States buyers who visited the Florence showing in July, came to Signora Bellenghi's private collection.

The only American mannequin in the fashion festival, Jare Sprigge, of Los Angeles (former Powers model) shows Bellenghi's creations.

Of 11 Italian designers selected for the festival, only two—Schubert of Rome, and Ferrario of Milan,—are men.

Cannifton W.A. Holds Dinner Meeting

The September dinner meeting of Cannifton W.A. was held in the Sunday School rooms, and was in charge of Mrs. William Bleeckman, assisted by Mrs. Willis Brenton and Mrs. Douglas Brenton.

The two long tables were prettily arranged in white with vases of colorful fall flowers, and the delicious dinner served to a goodly number. Following the dinner, the president, Mrs. Ira Brenton, opened the meeting.

A discussion was held in regard to the holding of a bazaar in the near future. Curtain material has been purchased by the W.A. for curtains for the division of the different class rooms in the Sunday School. Much credit is due Mrs. J. Williams and Mrs. D. Brenton in their selection of this material, also for consenting to be responsible for the making of the same.

The program consisted of a solo "O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee", accompanied at the piano by Mrs. A. Boyd, and a reading entitled, "What is the Church?" by the president, who stated that "the greatest fellowship was to be found in it, and was both uplifting and a challenge to the W.A.'s new season of activities." The Scripture was read by Mrs. J. Williams.

The minister, the Rev. W. R. Merrick, was present as a dinner guest, but Mrs. Merrick, owing to illness was unable to be present. All wish for her a speedy recovery.

Quilting was the order of the day.

Sixty Years Happiness Enjoyed Together

Yesterday, wedding bells rang again for two of this city's well-known residents; but this time they were studded with invisible diamonds in commemoration of 60 years of wedded happiness which began in the little hamlet of Violet, near Napanee, at the home of the bride's parents, when the Rev. T. Crookshank united in marriage Helen Denyes, of Violet, to Sheiden T. Ketcheson, 2nd of Sidney.

In honor of this event, their son, A. Ritchie Ketcheson and family whisked them off to church and later to the Dutch Mill Inn, Trenton, where other relatives, including four grandchildren and two great grandchildren were waiting to receive them. After partaking of a most delicious chicken dinner, fit of which had been a complete surprise, they enjoyed a sight-seeing tour of the immediate district, returning to their home, 247 Isabel Street.

There were the good wishes extended to Mr. and Mrs. Ketcheson, and many were the beautiful cards received from friends far and near, congratulating them on their diamond anniversary, as well as lovely floral tributes of a large basket of pastel-tinted gladioli and a shower bouquet of golden chrysanthemums from Miss Gladys Lamb, and a box of delicious English chocolates from Mr. and Mrs. Oxley.

In the evening, among those who called to offer their congratulations and, to wish them God's best in the years that lie ahead were, the Rev. Duncan McTavish, pastor of Bethel church, Bridge Street United; Mrs. McPherson and daughter, Kay, and Mr. Ketcheson's brothers, Messrs. Willes, John F., Bills and Mrs. Ketcheson and nephew Harry and his wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Ketcheson are enjoying good health, and although the former is 85, yet drives his own car. His one hobby is fruit growing. Mrs. Ketcheson, who before her marriage was Miss Helen Minor, does all her own work, and is an avid reader. Music for years was her hobby, being organist at White's Church, Front of Sidney, for thirty years.

The best wishes of the citizens of the city go out to this grand couple, wishing them many more years of happiness together.

Mrs. Gault Ketcheson and her group had charge of the worship service. Mrs. Potter read the meditation taking for her theme "Thanksgiving." Mrs. Bird read the Scripture. Mrs. Row Bell sang one of Seth Parker's hymns "Jesus is My Neighbor" and told the story of how the hymn came to be written.

Mrs. Gault gave a delightful recitation, "The Denominational Garden," and then followed with an amusing encore.

After the meeting closed refreshments were served by the group in charge and enjoyed by all.

COULD NOT RUN FAST

Toronto, Sept. 24 — (CP) — It didn't take long for two suburban Etobicoke policemen to discover why a housebreaking suspect they were chasing yesterday didn't run fast. Searched at police station, James Brown, 34, discarded in addition to his suit, six pairs of women's panties, a half slip, two pairs of women's pyjamas and one strapless brassiere. Police found several hundred other similar items at his home.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Sherl's mother says thank you and So Do I!

I wonder if you can imagine what it's like to read a big pile of letters every day, almost every one of which tells a tale of woe.

It's bad enough when the tragedy is really no one's fault; just a bitter blow of fate. But it's especially depressing when it's caused, as it often is by someone's heartlessness, selfishness or downright cruelty toward another human being.

If you can imagine how it feels to read such letters, then you can imagine, also, the joy it is when the mail brings, all of a sudden, quantities of reminders that most of the people in the world, after all, are far quicker to help than they are to hurt each other.

Right now, I'm marveling at the kindness and friendliness of so many, many readers of this column as a result of my story, some weeks ago, about the little crippled boy whose parents could not afford to buy him any birthday gifts. I had letters from all over—east, west, north and south —wanting the child's address so the writers could send him something. Now I have a letter from his mother telling me all about the gifts he received. She says, in part:

Expresses Thanks

"It is hard to express in words what I want to say, but I want to thank everyone who sent such lovely gifts for my little boy's birthday. If they could have seen the pleasure they gave him, they would know how much. The thoughtfulness was appreciated. I have tried to write to the senders of every letter and package on the same day the things were received, but in case I didn't get the addresses right, will you send on some packages that got damaged in the mail? I am anxious to have this letter of thanks printed.

"There were gifts of clothes, toys, games and books. There were letters for Sherl, and birthday cards. Some people sent money with which to purchase things for him.

"Words can't express our thanks to you and all the kind people who shared in bringing Sherl so much happiness. What I can do so, I want to remember these friends in some way. In the meantime, my husband and I pray that none of you will ever have illness or injury strike your home. It is terrible.

To this grateful letter from Sherl's mother, I would add my own word of appreciation for the wonderfully generous response to Sherl's story. I know it took time and trouble it means to get a package ready and take it to the post office. Every one of us who buys these days that to try and crowd one more thing into our given twenty-four hours sometimes seems just too much, and I have been amazed at the number of people who were willing to go to such trouble for perfect strangers.

Human Kindness

Thank you all more than I can say. You not only brought great happiness to a troubled child, but you gave me a big lift by your warm and quick demonstration of human kindness. It was a joy to read the letters you wrote me asking for the boy's address. Some of them must have been written the minute you laid down the paper, they came so fast.

I wish I could quote at length from them, for many were very touching in their eagerness to help. One came from a reader who described herself as "an old lady 80 years old who cannot get around very well but who would like to do that little thing for the boy" (sending him a birthday card). Another said: "I am only 17 years old, but I am working, so I can afford to send the child some useful gifts. The story of these people really made me stop and think how lucky I am. I would love to help them." And from still another: "Thank you so much for taking me ... to make this boy happy." ... Those are just a few samples. Any wonder I feel my readers are pretty grand people?

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about FOOD ... What's Cooking?

The Ethiopians still use salt as money.

Shake of salt are presented in large cash transactions. If change is to be given, the salt is crumbled into smaller pieces.

It is impossible to always specify the exact proportion of salt in a recipe. There are certain foods such as onions and tomatoes which seem to need extra quantities of salt to bring out their natural flavors.

Home grown field tomatoes always seem to beg for more salt. In certain country sections, it is not unusual to see children eating tomatoes doused with salt, just like they would eat apples or other fruit.

Be generous with both salt and pepper when making baked stuffed tomatoes. Although today's recipe calls for leftover chicken, any leftover meat or even canned meat or fish may be substituted. If the so-called "beefsteak" variety of tomatoes are available, these are perfect for stuffing. Select tomatoes, however, which are quite firm or the baking may cause them to break apart.

Baked Tomatoes Stuffed with Chicken—Serves 4.

4 large firm tomatoes
Salt—pepper
Fresh bread crumbs
1-4 cup melted butter
1-4 cup finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
1 cup finely chopped chicken
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
Paprika

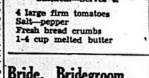
Cut a cap about 1-4 inch thick off the top of each tomato. Scoop out the insides of the tomatoes with a spoon or grapefruit knife. Do not cut too deeply or tomatoes will not be firm enough to hold stuffing. Turn the tomatoes upside down to remove excess moisture.

Sprinkle insides of tomatoes generously with salt and pepper.

Chop the pulp of the tomatoes and the tomato caps. Put the chopped tomato in a bowl with 2 tablespoons of the melted butter, the onion, green pepper, chicken and cheese. Add enough bread crumbs to make a moist mixture, firm enough to shape. This usually requires from 1 to 1 1-2 cups crumbs depending upon the moisture of the tomato pulp. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Fit the chicken mixture into the tomato shells, shaping into large mounds.

Sprinkle lightly with bread crumbs. Sprinkle with the remaining 2 tablespoons melted butter. Sprinkle with paprika.



Place the tomatoes in a shallow greased pan or a greased baking sheet. Bake at 375 degrees 20 to 30 minutes or until brown.

Following a short program they were presented with a lovely coffee table, and lamp and fancy dish on behalf of the community; also a silver flower basket from the young people.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Martin made gracious replies and invited all to come and see them in their new home in Kingston.

"Yes, but come now, Betty, you couldn't really tell."

"Oh, yes, I could. Didn't I have my family after me for a month to get Mother Parker's for them?"

"Well—I was a long time coming to it—but one day John was shopping with me. He picked up a package of Mother Parker's—read the money back guarantee printed right on the label. 'Here,' said he, 'let's try Mother Parker's—we can't lose.'"

"And are you glad you did try it?"

"I'll say I am—Mother Parker's is simply delicious—we rave about it to everybody."

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BECKMAN

Two brides-to-be, and their families, who are masters of the "gimme",technique

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am so desperate and sick over the problem of the wedding expenses of my two sons, and I do pray that, in the name of peace, you will come to my help. Both my sons are veterans, and I have worked very hard (I have a position still) to help them get started. When each son became engaged, I contributed generously toward the beautiful engagement ring, which, in each case, cost $1500. Then I help each one furnish a 4-room apartment, with very beautiful furniture indeed. Now comes the question of the expenses of the weddings, and although the families of both brides-to-be are well-to-do and I of course am not, the brides insist that my sons should pay all the wedding expenses. Of course I'd like to be able to do this, but I simply cannot. Who is really responsible for these expenses? I am ready to call in help unless I hear from you to the contrary.—M.G.

Honestly, dear lady, I think you should "call off" giving so much help to these young people of yours; being so indulgent to them that apparently you are causing more hardship to yourself than I sense you are even admitting. Don't let your too-generous "heart" run away with you! These two girls and their families are going by what you tell me, proving to be masters of the "gimme" technique, and as long as you are willing to work hard and hand out money and presents, they gladly, eagerly, accept. And surely you must have known enough about human nature to realize that when you have so cut to get whatever they can get, they aren't at all troubled about how they get it.

If you want to help in the buying of such expensive engagement rings, that's your business. If you want to help in the expensive furnishings of the two apartments, that's your business too, although of course it is not your responsibility of the parents of the brides-to-be: . . and you should have the wisdom and good, sure taste to take this fact for granted. If either of your sons or either bride-to-be suggest, even hints, anything at all about you paying for any of the wedding expenses, straighten your backbone and will power and graciously reply that it is the bride's family, not the groom's family, who plan the wedding and that you "would not feel that it is at all proper" for you to take part in the planning plans.

Children of first cousins are second cousins

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please answer this question for me. Tom and Helen are first cousins. They both have children. Are their children second cousins, or are they second cousins to Tom and Helen and third cousins to each other?

Children of first cousins are second cousins. . . therefore Tom's children and Helen's children are second cousins.

Place cards for parents' table at wedding reception

Are place cards appropriate for the head table at a wedding reception?—S. J.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Fancy Footwork

Your feet are your best friends. They carry you hither and yon, never get tired if you give them an even break, put them in comfortable casings. If the toes twinge and the soles feel as if they were running a high temperature, they are crying out for your consideration, for relief from neglect and abuse.

A sound pair of feet is indispensable for health, good posture, a snappy figure and poise. Women spend huge sums of money on their complexions, their hair, the smart dry goods with which they drape themselves. Yet few of them seek professional services when their feet aren't in form. They accept pedal ills as something given them by the hand of fate, like tiresome relatives and the bills that flow in on the first of the month.

Many of them have fixed ideas about shoes. Time and again shoe-fitters will tell customers that a larger or wider shoe would be the correct selection, but vanity prevails over common sense and discomfort and pain result. Shoes should conform to the foot type.

Nowadays manufacturers produce shoes that are both smart and hygienic. Believe it or not, but shops have them in dozens of different sizes, making possible a degree of fitting accuracy of which grandma never dreamed when she was a sweet young thing.

The line between comfort and fashion has vanished. There is no longer the ugly, gruesome thing that we once knew as the "sensible" shoe. Feminine feet can look pretty and feel well at the same time.

Time was when women had to choose between blacks and browns. Now all colors are afoot —greens, champagne, blue; even pink and orchid. With their slim, flexible leather soles, the shoes form a "glove" for the foot and are delightful light and graceful.

Individuals who are qualified to know claim that the human foot has degenerated so markedly since ancient times—those of the Greeks were strong and highly flexible—that it is rare to find a pair that is not suffering from defects of one kind or another. So lamentably have feet deteriorated that most people accede to the belief that the human foot is downright ugly. Seems a pity, but there you are.

Your feet require frequent bathing, the use of a foot powder if the flesh is sensitive. Hosiery that is at least an inch longer than your feet and correctly fitted shoes with flexible leather soles that give freedom of movement.

PREDICTS LONG FALL.

Fort Erie, Sept. 24. (CP)—Don't read the forecast, see what Jerry Adams has to say is the attitude of many who are wondering about forthcoming weather here. His predictions, friends say are 85 per cent accurate and he bases them on such things as the depth of the bark on trees and where the bullrushes are growing in the creeks. His latest prediction? A long fall.

A BIG CHANGE in styling marks dresses designed for the mature figure, for half and women's sizes. Many such dresses have skirts of the flaring crinoline type which make for a smaller looking waistline. 'Ten-Cent' Series Looms As Yanks, Dodgers Blaze Paths To Loop Titles

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

A HEARTBREAKER!

It was one of those games that kept you reaching for fags, swallowing your gum, sitting on the edge of the dugout seat, and waiting tensely for what the baseball gods would toss next. At one minute you thought the game was in the bag, if only the Joe at the plate would come through with a hit. The next saw your hopes dashed as the foemen applied the quietus. Then the situation was reversed. You grabbed the rabbit's foot in the left hip pocket, poked a pair of eyepeers in your Jews as the situation out there tightened, and exhaled with a mighty sigh as rallies were nipped at the plate or by sensational plays in the field.

The Redmen deserved a better fate in what, in our opinion, was the thriller of the current Brockville - Belleville series for the COBL title. It was a battle of batters with both teams slugging out hits, all of them clean-cut, with six clearing the left-field fence in Fulford Park for five doubles and a homer. And the issue was in doubt until the ninth when Big Bill Kasapchuk, (no wonder they gave him the City Hall and mineral and fishing rights to the St. Lawrence River the other day) climaxed a fine performance at the plate with the double that started the winning rally.

Strange as it may seem, the game was a hurling duel between Bob Stengel and Johnny Mowat despite the fact they handed out 27 clouts between them. Both walked four, "Smoky" giving up two after a bitzering cabinet with Umpire Jack Nicolls, Winston plate arbiter, and Mowat walking three in one innings, and intentionally passing a batter in another. Smith whiffed but three and Johnny none. Both bore down in the clutches limiting the opposing batters to one run in the scheduled innings with the exception of the first when the Reds opened the ball game with a pair and the third when Memco scored a brace.

Umpire Nicolls must have had an off-day at the plate while his bases confrere apparently enjoys a spot of fisticuffs around second just to relieve the monotony of calling batters out or safe. He didn't seem much perturbed when Winston Memco slammed homer No. 4 straight punch on Vern Geyer's button in the seventh. Weaver was right in one thing. That was when he beat a hasty retreat when Geyer lunged for him after making the call at second and the cute Memo walking with the ball could not tag him out.

Came the rhubarb and players of both teams stormed around the bag. However the officials looked lightly on the fray and after the game, Dynamic Andy Herschack, Memco coach, had a field day haranguing Nicolls, and "Smoky" Smith made the longest speech in his life accompanied by suitable gestures, when he stepped up and gave shock in a two-man verbal sortie on the harassed official. All this interspersed with Pat Wilson's blasts.

"Dang it, man" stormed "Smoky", "I threw a ball a foot wide of the plate. I'll swear I called it a strike".

However that's water under the bridge and tonight sees the desperate Redmen with their backs to the wall. They face elimination and the tremendous task of winning four in a row to top the COBL pennant. They were far from beaten Saturday night, and on the trek home exuded plenty of confidence.

NEW HOCKEY GROUP!

Genial Archie Miller, manager of the handsome new Brockville Memorial Arena, who was a "buck-fifteen-a-day" Joe in the days when "Art-a-Daly" were fag rations, and Kaiser Bill was trying to win a world title, anticipates a good hockey season in the river town this season. In between "Wipers" and Somme reminiscences, Archie told us the old Brockville Magedomas are being organized, or rather the name is, and the senior team will operate in a new loop. Included are the Inkerman Rockets, former starry junior squad who will make the jump to senior brackets this year and will be known as the "Canton Rockets" representing the American centre. And in the group are our old friends the Clinton Comets, Cornwall and a team from Lake Placid. The new Magedomas have secured the services of the former Cornwall goalie, Pogeyette, two Gananoque stars and other ice - land luminaries. Brockville, he said, will also ice a junior "B" team which has hopes of a grouping with squads from this district.

ANOTHER OPINION!

"Out of the game before his fist was unclenched" was Eddie Schreiber's comment on the Weaver-Geyer incident. Eddie, one of the better umpires of the Toronto Uladzel Baseball League, was in town over the weekend and said a similar incident occurred in a game in his loop. The umps didn't hesitate. The erring fist-slinger was out of the pastime before he knew it.

Brother Tommy has fully recovered from his recent appendectomy and arrived home Saturday after a two - week convalescence in Toronto. Gary is going full-gun again on the gridiron this season for St. Michaels. The fleet-footed pitch-and-catch Schreiber scored two touchdowns and four converts in his team's 33-16 win over St. Kitts recently and romped over with the only T.D. in St. Mike's setback at the hands of Cornwall at last Week.

Eddie is now located in Toronto and is back with his old love, the radio business. He and the family spent the week-end here as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ken McNaught.

Bosox Belted by Bombers 6-1 As Tigers Scalp Fading Tribe; Dodgers Retain 3-Game Lead

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York's onrushing Yankees and Brooklyn's back-pedalling Dodgers are all but mathematically certain to meet, for the fourth time in 21 years, in baseball's top classic, the World Series.

Both came close to clinching their respective championships yesterday. The Yankees increased their American League lead over Cleveland to 1 1-2 games, beating the Red Sox in the rubber game in Boston 6-1 while the revenge - minded Tigers thumped the Indians for the third straight time in Detroit 9-1.

The Dodgers snapped a two-game losing streak with a 6-3 triumph over Philadelphia Phillies to retain their one-game first-place margin in the National League over the hard-pressing New York Giants. The Polo Grounders, fighting a seemingly losing battle, again whipped Boston Braves 5-3.

Yanks Need Three

The Yankees need to win only three of their remaining six to wrap up the flag even if Cleveland wins its final seven and Boston its final eight. Two Yankee victories insure at least a tie.

Any combination of four Dodger victories and Giant defeats brings the National League pennant to Brooklyn.

Vic Raschi became the fifth American League pitcher, and the 11th in the majors, to hurl no-hit games this season with an eight-hitter over the Red Sox. It was his third straight 20-game winning season.

A single by pinch hitter Johnny Mize in the seventh gave the Giants a 4-3 lead over Warren Spahn in the fifth inning. Mize also doubled in the two-run eighth as Chuck Stobbs went down in the eighth defeat.

Virgil Trucks climaxed a last weekend for Cleveland, pitched the Tigers to their third straight win over the faltering Indians.

Trucks helped with his 13th game by collecting three hits and driving in two runs. Steve Gromek allowed a five-run sixth against loser Mike Garcia, with a three run homer.

Preacher Roe halted a panic in Brooklyn, hurling his 22nd victory against only two defeats with a six-hitter against the Phils.

Roy Campanella, who returned to action Saturday following a shoulder bout Monday, had a perfect day with four for four including his 32nd homer. His first inning homer off Bubba Church gave the Dodgers a lead they never relinquished.

Magtie Gets 22nd

Sal Maglie hurled his 22nd victory for the Giants, holding the Braves to one run despite giving up 13 hits. Bobby Thomson's triple highlighted a two-run 8th.

Murray Dickson won his 20th game for the last place Pittsburgh Pirates who swapped shutouts with Cincinnati. Dickson won the opener 3-0, with a five-hitter, Howie Fox pitched the Reds to a second game 3-0 win.

Tom Poholsky and Gerry Staley pitched St. Louis Cardinals to a 9-2 and 8-2 double win over Chicago Cubs before 18,013 fans.

Philadelphia's Athletics won their 12th doubleheader, tops in the majors with a 12-4 and 8-3 sweep over Washington Senators. Gus Zernial regained the RBI leadership from Ted Williams, 127 to 126, by driving in three mates.

A six-run seventh gave St. Louis Browns an 8-7 victory over Chicago White Sox.

Queen's, Varsity Win Exhibition Grid Games

Hamilton Sept. 24 —(CP) — McMaster University Marauders showed Saturday that they're not out of place in senior intercollegiate football company, although they dropped a 7-3 decision to Queen's University Golden Gaels in an exhibition game here.

The game proved costly for Queen's who lost quarterback Bob Griffin when he suffered a broken right wrist in the fourth quarter. The injury may keep him out of action the remainder of the season.

The narrow margin of defeat and the fact that McMaster actually outplayed the Gaels for three quarters provided some satisfaction for Marauders supporters, still somewhat miffed at the fact that their team was refused entry to the intercollegiate union this year.

Marauders, who are playing an abbreviated schedule in the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior loop instead, gave away a converted touchdown and a rouge in the second frame first half, then took command of the play.

They outplayed the Gaels by a wide margin but failed to carry the ball over for a touchdown. Four times in the last half the Marauders moved the ball deep into Queen's territory only to have their offensive bid thwarted.

Guelph, Ont., Sept. 24 (CP) — University of Toronto Blues swamped the Ontario Agricultural College intermediate team 38-0 Saturday in an exhibition football game on a rain-soaked field.

The Blues, senior intercollegiate entry, were much too strong for the Aggies who couldn't match Varsity's blocking, shocking speed and vicious tackling.

Cantor-Savoie Meet Tonight For 'Light' Title

Montreal, Sept. 24 (CP) — It's a Toronto-Montreal set-up tonight for the Canadian lightweight boxing championship, the principals being Soly Cantor of Toronto and Montreal's Armand Savoie.

The fight, a 12-round bout being held in the West-End Forum, was sanctioned by the Canadian Boxing Federation as a title scrap as L'Il Arthur King of Toronto vacated the crown when Wefu climaxed a five-run sixth against loser Mike Garcia, with a three run homer.

It will be the third encounter between the two inter-city rivals Savoie won the first bout in Toronto last spring, stopping the Toronto boy on a TKO. Cantor took the second this summer with a clean-cut decision.

Both fighters are reported in tip-top shape with Cantor a 6-5 favorite to take the verdict. Cantor scaled 137 Saturday but expects to enter the ring around 134 while Savoie will just come under the 135 pound limit.

Belleville Hawks Sign Husky Defence Player

Bob Wilson, husky son of Black Hawk chief scout of the same name, will wear a Belleville Hawks uniform this season, Belleville Hockey Association president Ken McNaught announced today.

Wilson is a promising defenseman and will fill a spot back of the junior "B" Hawks blueline.

Wilson is the second starry player to join the Belleville roster, Ted DeGray, former Oshawa forward having secured his release from the Motor City crew.

President McNaught and director Bill Cook will confer with President Bill Tobin of the Chicago Black Hawks on Wednesday with reference to securing players for both junior and senior "B" teams.

McNaught added that efforts to secure the services of Don Hogan, centre ice star who performed with the Black Hawks two seasons ago, "missed by a fraction." The popular Hogan was signed to play with a Philadelphia team, seconds, so to speak before the Belleville officials put in their bid.

Pitcher Tosses Batter Out, Drops Dead

Tokyo, Sept. 24. (AP)—A 15-year-old pitcher for a high school in Kyoto, fainted dead by a line drive tossed out the batter before dying, Kyodo News Agency reported today.

Mkenichi Okubo put one across the plate in the second inning that the young batsman—name and age withheld by authorities —smashed back to the pitcher's box.

The ball struck Okubo in the stomach, but he picked it up and tossed it to first base, beating the runner.

Then Okubo fell dead.

Yankee Bosses Feel Team is 'In', 'Not In the Clear Yet', Says Casey

Boston, Sept. 24—(AP)—When the articulate, but always humble Casey Stengel takes a deep breath and says woo-h, you're convinced his New York Yankees have clinched their third straight American League pennant.

That's the sound the always effervescent Stengel made yesterday after his Yanks pulled into a two and a half game lead by beating the Boston Red Sox, 6-1, as the wobbling second-place Cleveland Indians dropped a 7-1 decision to the Detroit Tigers.

Although Stengel's front office bosses seem assured of eventual success, their highly - successful manager does not feel entirely in the clear.

"We still have work to do, and do it well, before we're in," Casey pointed out after his club's Boston finale, which made Vic Raschi a 20-game winner for the third year in a row.

"This Fenway Park has murdered us all this year," Stengel explained. "All we've been able to do here is win two out of 11. That's an awful record. But the way I look at it now, we're OK."

Took Risky Chances

"We gambled for that win in Fenway. And we took plenty of risky chances," Stengel explained. "Under ordinary circumstances, I never would have started Raschi, who has been a soft touch for the Red Sox in Fenway. I should have gone with Bob Kuzava, who always frightens the Sox. But I was fearing the worst and I needed Bob ready for relief if it got that way.

"But fortunately I didn't need him. Now I can start him against the Athletics in our next game. And that means he will be able to go against the Red Sox next Saturday or Sunday, if needed."

With one more game to go, one with the Philadelphia Athletics and five with the Red Sox, all at home Stadium, Stengel's forces need only three wins to top and two to tie with the Indians, providing that latter would do their three remaining games.

Memos Edge Redmen 7-6 For Third Straight Victory; Do Or Die Tonight

Kasepchuk Double Paves Way For 9th Inning Tie-Breaker; Bludgeons Blast for 27 Hits

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

In a nip-and-tuck thriller that saw the score tied four times, Brockville Memos edged the Redmen 7-6 Saturday afternoon to take their third straight victory in the Central Ontario Baseball League best-of-seven finals series.

Big Bill Kasepchuk was the hero of the piece. He drove out a single and three doubles, the third paving the way for Skodis' smash in the ninth that sent the Memos' big centrefielder across the plate with the winner.

Nearly 700 people in near-perfect baseball weather, saw "Smoky" Smith and Johnny Mowat hook up in a free-hitting duel, Smith yielding 13 hits with Mowat giving up 14.

Fitz Over the Fence

Fulford Park's left-field fence, that shadowy third base was the target for the day for the bludgeons of Kasepchuk, Weaver and Dick Fitzpatrick. Three times in a row Fitz sent the ball soaring over the fence for automatic doubles, with Kasepchuk turning the trick twice and Weaver clearing it to spot that called for a home-run. Fits added a timely single for four-for-five.

Batters for both teams made merry at the expense of opposing hurlers. Besides Fitz' four clouts, Don Gilmore hit a double and single, Carson, Goyer and Paddy Gilmour drove out a pair each with Billy Strahan getting the other.

Crowding Kasepchuk's four-some was Weaver, fiery second baseman, who rapped out a homer and two singles, Pierce and Ashley got two each with Coleman, Helmach and Skodis providing the remainder.

Rhubarbs aplenty spiced the game. Umpire Josh Nicolls, Kingston was the target for verbal volleys on the part of both teams' Manager Andy Herschock and "Smoky" Smith berated the official long and loud on plate decisions as did Pat Wilson of the Reds.

Big 'Blow' in 7th

The big blow came in the seventh inning. Goyer's single had scored Fitz who had doubled and the big fielder raced for second base. The play was close and Weaver blocked Goyer on the path. Goyer charged into second and Weaver "hauled off" and laid a right hook on Goyer's jaw.

The big fellow paused on the bag until time was called then lunged for Weaver who defended the distant pastures were safer. Players clustered around second base, with the Reds calling for Weaver's ejection, but the umps refused to comply and that was that.

The game see-sawed through-out with both teams, the Redmen especially failing to come through with clutch hitting when a clout would have sewn up the game.

Doubles by Fitz and Gilmore, Goyer's single and a walk apiece for two runs greeted "Smoky" in the first innings. Memos got one back in the second, and the Reds made it 3-1 in the third off hits by Gilmore and Carson. Gilmore was trapped between third and home, but Coleman, Memos catcher, blocked the path and the first-baseman was waved home with the run.

Win It in 9th

Memos tied the score with a pair in their half of the inning, took a run lead with Weaver's record-clearing homer in the next but the Reds tied it up in the fifth on hits by Fits and Carson. Memos went ahead in the sixth and both teams counted in the seventh to make the count 6-5. The eighth was scoreless and the Reds opened the ninth with Fitz' clearing it to spot that called for a home-run. Fits added a timely single for four-for-five.

Majors Boast Eleven 20-Game Pitching Stars

New York, Sept. 24. (AP)—The major leagues today boast 11 20-game winners.

Vic Raschi of the New York Yankees became the fifth American league hurler to reach that charmed figure yesterday with a 5-1 triumph over the Boston Red Sox. Marry Dickson of the Pirates swelled the National league total to six with a 2-0 performance over Cincinnati.

The record for 20-game winners was made in 1903 when 17 hurlers copped 20 or more. That figure was equalled in 1905 and again in 1920.

The American League high of 10 was established in 1907 and duplicated in 1920. The National League high of nine was first set in 1901, reached again in 1905 and for the third time in 1916

It was the third straight 20-game season for Raschi but only the first for Dickson.

The list of 20-game winners follows with their win total in parentheses:

Bob Feller, Cleveland Indians (22).

Preacher Roe, Brooklyn Dodgers (22).

Sal Maglie, New York Giants (22).

Warren Spahn, Boston Braves (21).

Robin Roberts, Philadelphia Phils (21).

Vic Raschi, New York Yankees (20).

Ed Lopat, New York Yankees (20).

Early Wynn, Cleveland Indians (20).

Mike Garcia, Cleveland Indians (20).

Larry Jansen, New York Giants (20).

Murry Dickson, Pittsburgh Pirates (20).

New Start Gate For Race Horses

Salem, N.H., Sept. 24 (AP) — A new moving starting gate—described as the biggest innovation in thoroughbred horse racing since the totalisator betting board— will be introduced today as Rockingham Park opens a 30-day fall meeting.

Executive director Lou Smith said the device, which will be used in the first race and probably several others on the nine-race card, works like this:

The horses are led into the compartments some 60 feet before the start and then are given a walk-up start as the gate moves forward—pulled by a tractor—at four miles an hour.

Larks Halt TiCats Win-Streak, Argos Unsaddle Rough Riders

(By The Canadian Press)

It was "underdog weekend" in the Big Four Football Union, Montreal Alouettes tripping the previously-undefeated Hamilton Tiger-Cats, 17-16, and Toronto Argonauts dropping Ottawa Rough Riders 17-10.

All of which adds up to the fact that Hamilton still is in top spot with eight points while Ottawa, Toronto and Montreal come next with two victories and three losses apiece for four points.

In the western Canada union Saturday, Edmonton swamped Calgary, 30-11, to remain well in front of the pack and Saskatchewan downed Winnipeg 30-17.

In Saturday's college exhibition games, McGill smoked Sarnia 16-14 at Montreal; Queen's downed McMaster 7-3; Toronto developed Ontario Agricultural College 28-0 and Western routed Windsor 21-1.

In Edmonton, the Eskimos rolled to victory over the tail-end Stampeders before 10,000 fans to maintain their six-point, first-place lead.

The Stamps now have dropped all four of their meetings with the Edmonton squad but made a better flight of it than the score indicated. They made more first downs, outrushed the Eskimos and gained more yardage through the air.

Edmonton touchdowns were scored by Roland Miles, Rollin Prather, Tex Coulter, Harry Jennings and Jim Chambers. Coach Andy Skukun booted four converts, the other point coming on a rouge.

Al Winnipeg, playing before a crowd of 9,000 fans, the Roughriders took over second place.

Roberts Stars for Larks

Victory for the Riders, which snapped a previous losing streak, was featured by quarterback Glen Roberts who completed 16 of 25 passes for a gain of 279 yards. He also got a touchdown.

Other major scorers for the victors were Bob Pelling, Nelson Greene, Jack Nix and Jack Russell. Red Ettinger booted four converts.

For the Bombers Tom Casey, Ron Vaccher and Andy Sokol got the majors with Joe Aguirre converting.

In Montreal Sunday the Alouettes came from behind with an impressive second-half ground attack to end Hamilton's victory string before 20,133 fans.

After being outplayed and outscored by the powerful Hamilton machine in the first half and trailing 13-6, the Als found locomotion in the third quarter with halfback Gene (Choo Choo) Roberts at the throttle.

Even so, the Als were on the short end of a 16-15 count as they went into the final quarter.

Herb Trawick provided the winning points when he flattened Ralph Bertolini in the Hamilton end zone for a two-point safety touch in the fourth quarter.

Roberts harvested 15 of Montreal's, 17 points, ripping through the Hamilton line for two touchdowns. He converted both and also booted an 18-yard field goal.

The Tiger-Cats, threatening until the final gun, produced two touchdowns, two converts, a field goal and a deadline kick. Paul Gibson and Ilai Waggoner got the majors, Tex Logan the 38-yard placement and two converts and Fred Klipk the single.

A Toronto Saturday, 16,520 fans were on hand to see the dominion champion Argonauts, a shadow of their 1950 driving club earlier this season, came up with a masterful exhibition for their second victory of the year—both over the Riders.

Tough Football

It was tough, hard football all the way with the outcome in doubt up until Doug Smylie went over for his second touchdown of the day in the final quarter.

Argonauts led 6-2 at the end of the first quarter when they took advantage of a bumble by Hal Hatfield on the Ottawa 46. An Al Dekdebrun-Marvin Whaley forward brought the ball to the 14 and Doug Pyzer crossed the line around Ottawa's left side for a major. It was converted by Tom Volpe.

Bruce Cummings, who kicked two singles in the first quarter, got another for the only counter of the second session.

Tom O'Malley did some classy heaving in the third when he sent Bob Simpson, Alton Baldwin and Nobby Turner on a touchdown gallop from the Ottawa 10. Bob Gain made the convert.

O'Malley then kicked a single to give the Riders a 10-6 lead but Smylie shuffled through on the left side for a major, converted by Volpe, to give the home team a 12-10 margin.

Toronto's final major started when Bob Marshall intercepted an O'Malley pass on the Ottawa 24. Ted Toogood carried it to the Ottawa 2 on an aerial play and Smylie crossed over to wind up the scoring.

Fordham Forms New Association For Youngsters

The first meeting of the newly formed Belleville Minor Athletic Association was held in the clubroom of the YMCA on Friday night embracing boys of pee-wee, bantam, midget and juvenile age.

"The club will not be stereotyped but will embrace all fields and sections of sports," said Wilbur Fordham, who has been the main force behind the formation of the club and acted as chairman for the meeting. "Three of the outstanding aspects of the club will be to make friends, learn basic sports and to keep healthy the year round," he added.

The winter program of the club, which will be ported a month in advance, will include sleigh rides, ski hikes, skating, tobogganing, hockey training and various other events.

Once a month there will be a social evening with sport films from Toronto, material from Boxing College, and many prominent athletes and supervisors being sought.

Every one of the boys in attendance was requested to bring along two friends to the next meeting which is called for Tuesday evening at seven o'clock at the YMCA.

Refreshments donated by Aubrey Coe and Mr. and Mrs. Oupe were gratefully received by the club members.

Ancient Club Wins Golf Title

Reading, Pa., Sept. 24 (CP) — Jim Turnesa tossed away a mallet head putter for an ancient family blade held together by friction tape and the match was sold off. He's $2,400 richer today.

Turnesa, one of six brothers of golf's most famous family won the fifth annual $15,000 Reading Open golf tournament yesterday with a 72-hole total 280, four under par.

Asked how long the putter was in the family, he replied:

"I might as well admit it. It's my brother's. Gosh, I don't know."

Victims of Perfect Squeeze Plays, Tribe Feels Bunted Out of Bunting

Chicago, Sept. 24 (AP) —The Cleveland Indians ruefully suspected today they have been bunted out of the bunting.

Seldom has the squeeze play been used with such devastating effect as against the Indians in the American League stretch drive. They have lost four recent crucial games because of opponents' bunts.

In two of the three losses inflicted by the Tigers in their disastrous Detroit series last week-end, the bunt led to the Indians' downfall.

In Saturday's Detroit triumph, pitcher Bob Cain stroked a perfect bunt that put across the leading run at the time, and seemed to break Cleveland's back.

Before that, New York's Phil Rizzuto and Philadelphia's Billy Hitchcock had worked squeeze bunts which wrecked the Tribe.

Lopez Stunned

Manager Al Lopez was stunned by the bunting beating his Tribe took from the Tigers.

"Here's a club which hasn't shown any speed, much less bunting ability all season, and they tap us crazy," said Lopez. "They were all perfect bunts, and there simply is no defence against a perfect bunt, although they may make you look silly."

It was sweet revenge for the Tigers, who last year were knocked out of pennant contention as the Indians won five of the last six games played between the two teams.

Up until the brutal Tiger treatment of last weekend, the Indians had trimmed Detroit in 16 out of 17 starts this season.

What is Canada's Largest Flesh-Eater?

The Orca, or killer whale, is Canada's largest carnivorous mammal.

Strange as it may seem, it is true. This mammal is thought to live entirely on the flesh of seals and other warm blooded creatures. The diet of most other whales is comprised of certain types of tiny marine life.

Nothing is stranger than nature . . . and nothing is more enjoyable. We must all help protect it by promoting conservation within ourselves, and amongst others.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The response to a simple overtrick is a stumbling block to many bridge players. Why? Because they fail to consider the foundation of the bid to which they are responding.

An opening bid shows a minimum basis of five tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks. A simple overcall (one-jump defensive bid) shows a minimum basis of five tricks, two high cards, one sure trick.

Thus, you can see that a simple overcall is weaker than an opening bid. Not in the number of tricks. Because each shows five. But in high cards and sure tricks.

How much weaker is a simple overcall than an opening bid? By two high cards and one sure trick. To put it another way, it is half as strong in high cards and sure tricks.

So what? So a responder to a simple overcall must be careful. He cannot be as liberal as the responder to an opening bid. Not by a couple of high cards and a sure trick.

In either case, a jump response is a forcing-to-game signal. But the simple overcall shows fewer high cards and sure tricks. So the jump response to it, needs more high cards and sure tricks.

An opening bid hand combined with a simple overcall hand will usually produce a game. So, a simple overcall hand combined with an opening bid hand should produce a game.

Horse Sense reduces every bidding situation to a definite rule. Here it is: In every to a simple overcall, a jump response shows a hand as good as an opening bid.

South opponent opens with one diamond. Your west partner makes a simple overcall of one heart. Your response is: two spades with this east hand:

♠A Q 10 9 5
♥9 8 3
♣A Q 4 2

Horse Sense is bridge reduced to its least common denominator.

Injury Jinx Hits Black Hawks

North Bay, Sept. 24 — (CP) — Don Morrison and Steve Black, regulars with Chicago Black Hawks in the National Hockey League last season, have been lent to St. Louis Flyers for the 1951-52 season.

Both Black, a 24-year-old left winger from Fort William, and Morrison, 27-year-old Saskatoon-born centre, have signed contracts. They are subject to recall.

The Hawks, who have been beaten twice in exhibition games with Detroit Red Wings, are already hit by injuries.

Max McNab, a centre who comes from Wrigley, Sask., has a bad shoulder; Clare Martin, defenceman from Waterloo, Ont., is out with torn ligaments, and Bill Mosienko, veteran Winnipeg-born right winger, suffered a 10-stitch cut in last night's 5-1 defeat by Detroit.

Mortson Offers Theory on Where To Find Barilko

St. Catharines, Ont., Sept. 24 — (CP)— Gus Mortson, Toronto Maple Leafs defenceman, last night offered a theory on the possible whereabouts of teammate Bill Barilko and Dr. Henry Hodson who have been missing in Northern Ontario since Aug. 26.

Mortson, who has often prospected in the north during the off-season, says he thinks there is a chance the aircraft carrying Barilko and Dr. Hodson, a Timmins dentist, might have come down on Big Abitibi Lake, 35 miles east of Cochrane.

"It's a shallow lake and very rough most of the time," said Mortson, attending the Toronto hockey training camp here. "It figure they might have landed on it when the gasoline ran out, that the plane might have sunk and they managed to get to one of the islands. It's just a hunch, but I haven't seen anything said of search being made around that lake and I think it well worth while . . .

"They might have been following the Ontario Northland Railway Line down in the dusk. At Cochrane the C.N.R. line crosses the O.N.R. They might have got mixed up and followed the C.N.R. line east to Abitibi Lake, where they were forced to ditch, instead of continuing along the O.N.R. line."

Six, Maybe Seven Teams to Start In Senior 'A'

Stratford, Sept. 24 — (CP) — Six clubs — with a seventh possible — will have entries in this season's Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series, it was announced yesterday.

The teams which will enter are Kitchener, Hamilton, Brantford, Sarnia and Stratford. Niagara Falls is the doubtful starter.

The announcement came from a meeting of club officials conducted by D. M. Pinkey, an executive member of the Ontario Hockey Association.

Clubs will play a 50-game schedule if there are six clubs in the loop, a 42-game schedule if there are seven. Niagara Falls officials were granted a month to make a final decision.

Opening date of the senior A series will be Oct. 26, when Kitchener will play at Stratford, Sarnia at Brantford and Owen Sound at Hamilton.

The schedule will be arranged to allow four weeks for the OHA group playoffs to decide the Ontario entry in Canadian Amateur Hockey Association playdowns for the Allan Cup.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Tuesday, September 25, 1951

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Expect results from honest, earnest endeavors. Dreams may come true, ideals be realized: get busy, work, smile and you will have satisfaction.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Generous aspects; various trips sensibly executed can make headway. Government, religious, personal affairs sit in driver's seat: Drive carefully.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Look for gains generally in business, professional and personal matters. Free-lance work, writing, music, art especially favored.

June 22 to July 22—(Cancer)—Your affairs will require some extra studying, improving to come up to level of expectations for sure success. You have grit, are versatile; let's see now what will-power you possess.

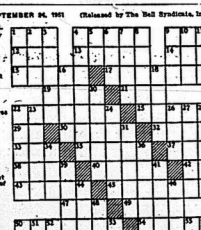
July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Mark trends in s. m. Scan the field with thoughtful eye. Then aim to make up ground and gains. Some surprise elements.

August 23 to September 22—(Virgo)—Look over possibilities carefully before starting day. Business-like procedure, sturdy confidence, and you are in. When problems are well in hand, relax.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—For a productive program, enthuse in your work, get going early after due thought. You have every reason to expect to "click" with worthy efforts. Romance favored, Smile.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Great interviews, plan for personal and business improvements. Impart advice adroitly and you will receive and deserve credit for exceeding expectations. Broaden your outlook.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Put something away for a "rainy" day, that period of pressure that can come to all. Achieve in good deeds and charity and God will bless your work and progress.



December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Note trend of business, world affairs. Your life is brought close to these without the asking. News can change your viewpoint and trend of action. Check well, decide thoughtfully.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—All may not be to your liking. What you have planned may require some conserving of money and pleasure. Won't rest on past performances, aim to increase stature, profits.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Be encouraged by favorable influences, never downed by reverses. Your talents, matters of home, loved ones, romance, marriage strongly sponsored now.

YOU BORN TODAY: Lean toward the arts, music, science, truly appreciate the better things including a fine healthy family life and loved ones, for whom you would give your life. When things are in balance about you and you are one of the usefully busy, you are a pillar of strength, kindness. Don't ever let reverses dim your ambition or fear dampen initiative. You could reach for high position, perhaps succeed as judge, teacher, professor, arbitor where leadership is needed. Your true nature abhors untruth, underhanded action. You dislike untidy surroundings. Birthdate of: Felicia Hemans, Eng. poet; Jas. A. Waldron, writer,

WHY WE SAY

TOM THUMB

... From a myth
We call a ... forget a "You Thumb" today as an allusion to F. T. Barnum's midget who made fame throughout the world. Barnum's Tom Thumb (Charles Stratton) was 40 inches tall and weighed 70 pounds. He lived to 45 years of age. Barnum named the midget Tom Thumb from a mythical character who was popular in folk tales.

58,000 Reds Killed, Wounded Since August 18

U.S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Sept. 24 (AP) — Gen. James A. Van Fleet today said his Eighth Army has killed or wounded 58,000 communist soldiers in Korea since Aug. 18.

The report covered the entire 150-mile front.

About 80 percent of the Red losses were in the bloody "battle of the hills" in eastern Korea.

The figure represents almost six red divisions.

Van Fleet said 2,600 reds were taken prisoner in the same period.

The casualty tolls of killed or wounded has been "revised-down." That is the army's term for the final estimate after all field reports and reports have been discounted for possible duplication or exaggeration.

Since the allies pushed off on limited offensives in eastern Korea they have captured enough material to equip nearly a full red division, the Eighth Army said.

Most of the red losses were incurred after the 38th parallel in the ceasefire truce talks Aug. 23.

During this period United Nations losses have been comparatively light. U.N. troops have smashed forward up to 18 miles and captured scores of important hills on the eastern front.

The allies have not lost a yard of ground in either north or south Korea.

The allied picture was not so bright in Monday's ground action. North Korean reds launched a fierce counter-attack and drove American infantrymen off the highest peak on "Heartbreak Ridge" in eastern Korea.

Canadians Net Red Prisoners After Stiff Fight

With the Canadian Brigade in Korea, Sept. 24 (Reuters) — A platoon of Canadian infantrymen out to capture Chinese prisoners for strategic reasons, recently turned a Chinese encampment into a free-for-all reminiscent of the best fireworks display back home.

That is how one officer today described the wild and the knife-faced troops who infiltrated into a Chinese position:

When they had assembled around the sleeping communists, they broke the silence with demands of "surrender."

The sleepy Chinese seemed not to understand. Then a six-foot Mongolian jumped out of his trench and told the Canadian party they were surrounded by Chinese.

With that, the fireworks started in earnest.

Both sides heaved hand grenades and Canadian Bren guns answered the Chinese automatic fire.

One grenade hit Pte. A. Antoine of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. on the mouth, but it didn't explode. Enraged, Antoine, who still carried communist shrapnel in his right arm from a previous battle, hurled it right back.

Then he went after two Chinese in a trench with his rifle.

When the dust cleared away, the platoon, led by Lieut. J. F. D. MacLean of Toronto, returned with the first batch of prisoners the brigade has taken for several weeks.

Three Men, Two Women Charged With Conspiracy

Kitchener, Sept. 24 — (CP) — Three men and two women have been charged with conspiracy in connection with an abortion allegedly performed on a Kitchener girl, 22, police are continuing questioning of about 20 other suspects.

The 21-year-old girl, who is also charged, became sick after the operation and is in St. Mary's Hospital here.

Police have arrested Peter Romanick, Richard Neil and Mrs. Jean Graf, all of Kitchener, and Clarence Kidoba of nearby Bridgeport, in addition to the girl.

Police said Mrs. Graf had been asked to help the girl before the abortion. They added that Mrs. Graf named Kidoba as the man who took the girl to the abortionist. A later search of the Romanick home uncovered instruments said to have been used in the operation, police said. In addition, they found a wallet, containing $2,170, between some newspapers on a kitchen table.

Mining Magnate Buried With Simple Funeral

Barrie, Sept. 24 (CP) — A simple funeral was held Saturday for an English immigrant who became a mining magnate and founder of the Toronto Globe and Mail.

The service for William H. Wright, co-discoverer of fabulous Wright - Hargreaves gold mine, was held in the chapel of a funeral home in Barrie. The chapel was too small for the mourners who filled corridors and ante-rooms.

Rev. T. DeWorster Wright of Trinity Church conducted the Church of England service and Rev. R. W. Lewis of Collier Street United Church gave a brief description of Mr. Wright's life and philanthropies.

He said that Mr. Wright's life had been interwoven with the growth of Ontario, first in the north, then in the south. His business interests and philanthropies touched the life of the whole province.

There were no honorary pallbearers, in keeping with Mr. Wright's wishes. Active pallbearers were George McCullagh, publisher of the Globe and Mail and a long-time friend of Mr. Wright; J. Maitland Mackintosh, Charles Burns, Harry G. Kimber and A. Harry Seguin, all of Toronto, and J. H. Rodgers, A. E. Flynn and J. R. Craig, all of Barrie.

Among the friends of Mr. Wright who came to Barrie for the service were: J. S. D. Tory, Lady Oakes, Dr. Smirle Lawson, Fred J. Crawford and Charles Hemstead, representing the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association.

Devereux Given Eight-Year Term For Manslaughter

Brantford, Sept. 24 —(CP) — Donald Devereux, 23, was sentenced to eight years in penitentiary Saturday after a supreme court jury found him guilty of a reduced charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Mrs. Violet Thompson.

The jury deliberated for more than four hours before discarding the murder charge and bringing in the manslaughter verdict.

Devereux heard the verdict and sentence with the same poker-faced calm he displayed throughout the five-day trial.

Mrs. Thompson's body was found in the cab of Devereux's truck early on the morning of June 16. She had been stabbed. The truck was parked at the rear of the home of Mrs. Thompson's estranged husband, Charles Thompson.

Devereux, testifying in his own defence, said the stabbing had occurred after he refused to stay with Mrs. Thompson on the night of June 18.

He said that he was driving Mrs. Thompson to her husband's home when they stopped briefly and got out of the truck.

"She came at me with a knife in her hand," Devereux said. "I reached out and grabbed her wrist. The next thing I knew, she was down on the ground. She was on her side, and sort of twisted. When I turned her over the knife was in her body."

Mr. Justice Kelly, in passing sentence, said to Devereux:

"When the jury brought in the verdict, I rather suspected it was for a major and you are going to give you a considerable length of time. But I'm going to reduce it to exactly half. I sentence you to be imprisoned for a term of eight years."

Not so Blind

Chicago Sept. 24 (AP) — An elderly limping man, suddenly threw away his white cane, ripped off his dark glasses and dashed down the street yesterday.

He was followed a pace by another elderly man who had been leading him.

Two younger men—police detectives—took up the chase. The detectives, started after the men after they overheard the "blind" man say to his leader: "There's two cops-come on."

The detectives said James McGolrick, 61, and Lee Hogan, 61, had been putting on the blind man act in taverns and reaping a harvest of coins from patrons.

GET OUT OF BLEACHERS

Sussex, N.B., Sept. 24, (CP) — "Now is the time for every Canadian to get out of the bleachers and take part in the game, so democracy can survive," George A. Drew, National Progressive Conservative leader, told an audience of nearly 1,000 here Friday night.

Mr. Drew, winding up a short Maritime tour, said there never was a time in history, when it was so necessary for every Canadian to take an interest in politics.

Dressed Fish Market Ruined If Live Shipments Continue

Commercial fishermen of the Bay of Quinte district were warned on Saturday that if they persist in selling live catches to United States interests, their dressed fish market would be ruined.

The warning came from provincial conservation officer Bruce Saundercock in an interview in Kingston.

Saundercock, alarmed at the increase of live fish shipments, said the fishermen would be without a market in five years if the practice continues. "The fish," he said, "are being used to stock rivers, lakes and ponds in the U. S. A."

About two-thirds of the annual catch is sold below the border in dressed form. He said that within five years the stocked waters will be able to supply sufficient fish to cut off the market.

The practice of shipping live fish — mostly bullheads — started in 1940 when a trucking firm received permission from the department of game and fisheries to transport the live fish.

Truck Waiting

One truck, with a capacity of 4,000 live fish, has been used until now to carry the cargo. Now, however, Mr. Saundercock said he has learned that there are two 10-ton trucks awaiting notice to take work.

The season for hoopnet fishing in the Quinte area opened Sept. 15 and will last until May. The conservation officer stated that persons were already canvassing fishermen to sell their catches alive to the United States.

The practice of selling live fish has been confined in the last two years to Quinte waters, most of the fish being bullheads. But, Mr. Saundercock emphasized that it might spread to scale fish and other districts. Interest is being shown in shipping live rock bass, sun fish, perch and other pan fish.

Waters stocked with bullheads and panfish in the United States will also ruin the tourist trade and guide associations in these parts of the country, he said. "A check of tourists returning to the United States showed that two-thirds returned with pan fish. If they can catch the same fish at or near home they won't come here," he asserted.

"The fishermen are cutting the ground from under them and don't seem to realize it." Should the U. S. market for dressed fish collapse they will suffer because if they had to depend on the Canadian market they would starve to weath."

He pointed out that fishermen don't usually get more money for selling fish alive but "they save time by not having to clean their catch."

About half of the bay's 200 commercial fishermen are selling fish alive, Mr. Saundercock said. "There are only a few who refuse to sell."

Tobacco Growers Protest High Tax on Cigarets

Ottawa, Sept. 24 — (CP) — A six-man delegation representing some 4,000 Ontario tobacco growers today urged Finance Minister Abbott to slice the tobacco tax drastically in order that cigarets may be cut in price from 40 to 35 cents for a package of 20 to offset a critical reduction in sales.

Francis R. Gregory of Leamington, Ont., delegation chief, told a press conference later that Mr. Abbott promised to give the request consideration but that no change could be made in the tax before the next annual budget which may be brought down in the latter part of next March or early April.

Much Smuggling

Mr. Gregory, chairman of the board of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Marketing Association of Ontario, said that huge government taxes imposed on Canadian tobacco had led to widespread smuggling into Canada of cheaper - priced American cigarets, giving rise to deep concern as to the future of the Canadian tobacco grower.

Mr. Gregory said he had reports which led him to believe that American cigaret smuggling had regular outlets in most large office buildings in major Canadian cities.

He said it was impossible for Canadian retailers to try to compete against the smuggled cigarets in the United States were selling at about 20 cents a package and domestic cigarets in Canada at 40 cents. Provincial tax in Quebec and New Brunswick bring the price there to 43 cents.

He estimated that of the 40-cent package, the government takes 25 cents in tax and declared that this was "outright discrimination against the tobacco grower."

The delegation asked Mr. Abbott to reduce federal tobacco tax by $4 a thousand cigarettes to $17.50 from $21.50.

The government, in its budget last spring, had boosted the tax from $10 to $11.50 a thousand to raise additional funds for defence purposes.

The delegation, in its brief presented to Mr. Abbott, said lower sales in May, June, July and August "indicates clearly that the imposition of additional tobacco taxation in April has demonstrated beyond all question that the taxload on tobacco is economically unsound."

Sales Drop

Cigaret sales, the delegation claimed, had dropped almost 11 per cent since last April and the point has been reached where growers may be forced to cut down their crop between 10 and 20 per cent.

While sale of tailor-made cigarets had dropped, there were indications, said Mr. Gregory, that consumption of roll-your-own tobacco had increased and that smuggling of American cigarets had reached "alarming proportions."

He had no figures, however, to indicate to what extent the drop in sales had been replaced by sales of smuggled cigarets.

Schuman Says Peace Treaty Is Impossible

Washington, Sept. 24 (AP) — Foreign Minister Robert Shuman of France, said today a German peace treaty at this time is "impossible."

"The present situation in Germany and especially the fact that this country is divided and partly occupied by Soviet forces make impossible, for the time being, the conclusion of a German peace treaty," he said in a copyrighted interview in U.S. News and World Report, a weekly news magazine.

Earlier this month Schuman attended a western big-three conference in Washington which agreed on a contractual peace, to be arranged "as rapidly as possible." He returned to Paris Saturday after attending the Atlantic treaty conference in Ottawa.

United States officials have been pushing for a German peace settlement before the end of the Winter.

Schuman in his interview did not amplify his stand on a peace treaty.

As to whether Germany should be rearmed as part of the European defence set-up, he said:

"Germany must not be rearmed, but Europe must be rearmed with German contingents; the German contingents being integrated in a European army."

WRECKED PLANE FOUND

Campbell River, B. C., Sept. 24 — (CP) — A seven-man search party confirmed by radio Friday that they had found the wreck of a United States Navy Neptune patrol bomber on the peak of Mount McCreight. The wreckage is still being examined to determine whether it was remains of a bomber which disappeared with nine men three years ago, or one with 11 aboard lost in the same vicinity last December.

Mother Killed By Young Son

Fountain Falls, Sept. 24. (CP) —Mrs. Dennis Dunn, 35, was killed in her home here Friday night when a .22-calibre rifle held by her six-year-old son, Brian, discharged accidentally.

The child was playing with a brother, Hugh, 4, and picked up the loaded weapon, which had been standing in a corner. The bullet struck Mrs Dunn, 37, of a hydro worker, in the head. She died an hour later.

Fountain Falls is 14 miles south of Cobalt.

ACQUITTED OF CHARGE

Whitby, Sept. 24. (CP)—Richard Finely, 62, of East York township and Andrew Brown, 37, of nearby West Hill, Friday night were acquitted of attempted rape.

A supreme court jury deliberated more than six hours before bringing in the acquittal. Mr. Justice Wishart Spence told the jury members that if he had been one of them, he "would have reached the same decision."

Earlier, a married woman told the court that two men tried to pull her into a car.

Premier Says Reputation of CP Well Founded

Fredericton, Sept. 22 (CP) — The reputation of The Canadian Press for "objectivity in presenting the news of the day is well founded and internationally recognized," Premier J. B. McNair said Friday.

Certainly it can be said of the member newspapers in this part of the country that this reputation is safe in their hands," he told a luncheon of newspaper men of the four Atlantic provinces, held in conjunction with CP's annual east regional meeting.

"Such a reputation is not easily come by and is, I am confident, being jealously guarded. Our citizens may well be proud of the newspapers and the co-operative news service which is sponsored by them."

Business sessions included a panel discussion on "CP service —how the members can improve it."

Premier McNair, main speaker at the luncheon given by the Fredericton Daily Gleaner, said that a trend towards monopoly in the newspaper field imposes even greater responsibility on the press.

This trend arose from the high cost of newspaper production plus competition from other quarters, resulting in a steady decline in the number of newspapers.

Britain Rejects Direct Proposal Re-open Talks

London, Sept. 22 (Reuters) Britain today rejected an Iranian direct proposal to re-open negotiations in the oil dispute. The terms were regarded still unsatisfactory, the foreign office said.

A government statement said today's proposal indicated "there is no advance" on Iran's previous proposals.

"It does not provide any basis on which negotiations could be resumed," the statement said.

The foreign office telegraphed Sir Francis Shepherd, British ambassador in Teheran, to make this standpoint clear to Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh.

Ridgway Offers To Resume Liaison Talks at Kaesong

UN 'Conditions' Anger Reds Who Break Off Conference

Tokyo, Sept. 25—(AP)— The United Nations command tonight offered to resume Panmunjon talks with communists at Kaesong tomorrow despite the communist walkout from a session today.

The offer of Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Supreme Allied Commander, was contained in a message delivered to Col. Chang Chun-San, chief red liaison officer.

Ridgway's Tokyo headquarters said the Allied commander has instructed Col. Andrew J. Kinney, senior Allied liaison officer:

"Inquire you deliver this date to communist liaison officer at Panmunjon the following message signed by you addressed to Colonel Chang, communist liaison officer.

"Despite your unilateral action in recessing the meeting today and your abrupt departure therefrom, I am prepared to meet with you tomorrow to discuss conditions mutually satisfactory for resumption of the armistice talks."

The reds walked out when Allied liaison officers insisted on discussing the conditions under which the truce talks could be resumed. The Allies earlier told the reds that screening of the two anyone saw Norkus suffer the fatal knife thrust.

Mrs. Vinslova, pretty 25-year-old wife of a section foreman, said that after Norkus died, Krawiec threatened to kill her if she told police that Krawiec had slain Norkus.

Is Believed Mad

Crown Attorney Ian Munro said in his address to the jury that evidence showed Krawiec was in a belligerent mood during the closing stages of the party and had a knife in his possession.

Krawiec's lawyer, S. Fitzgerald, argued that "at best" the jury could find the accused man guilty only of manslaughter.

"Unless you say the accused man struck the fatal blow, you cannot rea.nnably convict him of murder," he said. "Only Mrs. Vinslova could easily have dealt the fatal blow."

Crister Acting J. C. McRuer said in his charge to the jury:

"The evidence showed that Krawiec had plenty of opportunity to get away from Norkus if he had wanted to leave peaceably."

He added:

"The defence counsel's argument that Mrs. Vinslova dealt the fatal blow must be considered."

Snow Blankets Alberta, Sask.

Edmonton, Sept. 25 — (CP)—A curtain of snow moved eastward across the prairies today, keeping harvesting at a standstill.

All Alberta and white. The snow reached Regina this morning and was working its way northeastward to Manitoba tonight. It will cover Manitoba by tonight.

Four inches of snow lay on the ground at Rocky Mountain House, Alta., three inches at Red Deer, two at Calgary, one at Lethbridge and a half-inch at Edmonton.

On the eastern prairies the snow was bringing some relief from bitter cold. Brandon, east of Regina, reported a low of 34 degrees, Minn., had 33 and Winnipeg with a chilly 23 reported the coldest Sept. 25 in weather records.

The severe frost till reduce the quality of some of the grain still standing but agriculturists have said the bulk of the record crop is beyond serious damage.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Sept. 25 (CP) — Symopsis: Warm and dry weather on the prairies has spread over northern and central Ontario, bringing temperatures 10 to 15 degrees below normal, and snowflurries to the James Bay region.

A band of light rain entered southern Ontario last night. This will move eastward and will be followed by cloudy cool weather today.

A disturbance developing rapidly over Montana is expected to move eastward and bring rain to Lake Erie region Wednesday evening.

350 TECHNICIANS IN SOUTH IRAN TO BE EXPELLED

Order Not Conditional On Reopening of Talks

Tehran, Sept. 25 (Reuters) — The Iranian government today announced that all the remaining 350 British oil technicians in southern Iran will be expelled from the country.

The expulsion order is not conditional on reopening the oil talks here. Premier Mohammed Mossadegh now considers the talks have completely broken down.

After the Britons leave the country, presumably, the Iranians will try to operate the oil industry themselves.

Iranian Embassy production has been brought to a standstill by the dispute over the government's move to nationalize it. Talks between the two countries on the future of the industry have been suspended.

At one time several thousand Britons worked at the Abadan refinery and outlying oilfields. Now only 350 remain at the idle refinery.

Refuse Invitations

They have refused invitations to join the new National Iranian Oil Company, set up to operate nationalized industries. Similar invitations now will be withdrawn.

Mossadegh had threatened to expel the Britons unless the British government resumed oil talks. Today's expulsion order will be carried through even if the British do agree to enter into negotiations, government spokesmen said.

They said Mossadegh felt he could not try to get production restarted as long as the British remained in Iran.

Djamal Imami, opposition leader in the Majlis (Iranian house of representatives), today urged Mossadegh to adopt a firm line with Britain now to be ready for communist strength.

He accused Britain of playing a cunning game in Iran—"promoting the interests of the communist party to exhaust Mossadegh."

CHARGES CRUELTY

Los Angeles, Sept. 25 (AP) — Actor Mickey Rooney was pictured as a man of terrible temper in divorce proceedings filed by his third wife, Martha Vickers, who won an uncontested divorce decree today and $1,000 a month alimony, graduating down to $300 a month in 1956 and thereafter until her death or marriage.

SURRENDERS TO CHUM

Toronto, Sept. 25 —(CP)— Wanted for a 1947 manslaughter charge, Kenneth Harman, 21, surrendered Monday to an old school chum. A search warrant was issued and gave him the opportunity of making his first arrest.

Top U.S. Officials Watch Kaesong Talks With Waning Hope for Armistice Agreement

Washington, Sept. 25 — (AP)— Top-level United States military and diplomatic leaders are watching the new Kaesong truce moves today with far less hope of an cease-fire agreement than they held two months ago.

A cold appraisal of the communists' stalling tactics in past weeks has just about smothered the optimism that crept into high places after Russia's Jakob Malik proposed the truce talks.

Early today, the reds walked out on a meeting of U. N. and communist liaison officers when the top U. N. officer suggested his full counterpart be placed sufficient authority. The meeting was aimed at getting truce talking going again. Hope for a settlement then was been snuffed out entirely. Some think there is still a chance, but this hope. Is only a flickering flame in both military headquarters and the State Department.

This estimate is based on talks with persons close to the situation in both departments who are in a position to gauge the reactions to the communist moves in Korea.

When the peace talks began at Kaesong, there was considerable belief in high quarters the Chinese were sincere in wanting to get talk to the shooting in Korea. Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, and Gen. J. Lawton Collins, army chief of staff, were reported to be optimistic.

As late as Aug. 30, Bradley said in a radio talk "we Americans are anticipating an armistic in Korea."

But the reds broke off the conferences 30 days ago and followed with a series of bitter charges that the United Nations Allies had violated the Kaesong neutral zone. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's Tokyo headquarters admitted after exchange of heated notes that one B-26 plane had accidentally flown over the zone.

During the last month, the initial optimism appears to have been replaced by a more cautious wait-and-see attitude. No one is said that what the reds are trying to do.

One general officer put it this way:

"It looks like the word has come from Moscow to keep the talks going possibly as part of a new 'peace offensive' to throw us off guard."

Bradley is said to believe now that while the Chinese would like to reach a settlement and avoid a costly winter campaign, the only thing that gives hope for that best while preparing for the worst.

And so the army is going ahead with its planning for a winter campaign just as though no truce talks had collapsed entirely.

ELIZABETH, DUKE TO DECIDE TODAY ON CANADA TRIP?

British Press Opposes Leaving at Present

Ottawa, Sept. 25. (CP)—Today may tell the tale on whether Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh come to Canada this fall.

Original plans called for them to have sailed today from Liverpool in the Empress of France.

Their passage was cancelled when it was learned that the King required a major lung operation. Start October 8.

Present plans call for them to fly to Canada to fulfill the program that has been arranged for them starting October 2. However, the next week has been planned on elaborate coast-to-coast schedule would not be surprised if the Royal tour is postponed.

Many newspapers have published editorials stressing that in view of the King's grave condition Princess Elizabeth should feel duty-bound to remain in England. Canadian tour. Others suggested the tour might be somewhat limited.

Prime Minister St. Laurent yesterday had a telephone talk and later said he would be in touch again today with Mr. Attlee. It is possible a decision on the Royal tour may be arrived at.

"Very Encouraging"

Mr. St. Laurent said yesterday that the British leader gave a "very encouraging" report on the King's condition.

Mr. St. Laurent previously had called London to tell the Princess and her husband to feel under no obligation to carry out plans at this time. He stressed the Canadian people would understand if the visit has to be postponed.

Meanwhile tour officials are in a state of suspense. The R.A.C.F. has called back its big C5 transport from a trial run it was making of the route over which it was to have carried the Royal pair.

Two Fighter Planes Collide At Wallaceburg

Wallaceburg, Ont., Sept. 25 (CP) — Two fighter planes collided in mid-air five-miles east of here today, after soon taking off.

Provincial police have tentatively identified the planes as F-86 Sabre jets belonging to the Canadian Air Force.

The planes collided over the home of Mrs. Edward Burm. One fell in nearby bush, the other in de Emcester, setting it on fire. Residents of the area were warned behind it, buried itself in the earth 14 miles away.

Firemen from surrounding municipalities extinguished the barn fire and retrieved the body of one of the pilots.

The body of the other pilot was not immediately found.

The planes were believed based at Selfridge Field, Mount Clemens, Mich.

Mrs. Burm said she heard a series of loud explosions from the direction of the airport and that crashed north of her farm.

King Continuing To Gain Strength After Restful Night

Reports Said Most Hopeful Since Operation Performed

London, Sept. 25 — (AP)— A medical bulletin from Buckingham Palace this morning said the King "continues to gain strength" after a restful night.

It was the fifth and most encouraging report from the King's doctors since they performed a major operation on one of his lungs Sunday morning.

The bulletin, signed by four doctors who spent the night at the palace and the surgeon who performed the operation, said:

"After another restful night the King continues to gain strength."

News Telephoned

As soon as they agreed on the bulletin, the doctors telephoned the goods news to members of the royal family staying outside the palace.

Princess Elizabeth and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, received it at Clarence House, their London residence.

The news also went to Marlborough House, home of Queen Mother Mary. With her were the Duke of Gloucester, youngest brother of the King, and Princess Mary, the Princess Royal, his sister.

The Duke of Windsor was reached at the home of a friend where he is staying while in London.

Bulletin No. 5 was posted on a board attached to the palace fence. A crowd of nearly 1,000 lined up to read it.

The Scots Guards, en route to St. James' Palace, marched by a few minutes later with their pipes and drums silent.

The King reached the second day today of his fight for life.

Large Crowd at Palace

At noontime the crowd around Buckingham Palace was estimated at 5,000 to 10,000.

The bulletin medical expert described the morning bulletin as optimistic.

"This is a formidable operation," he said, "and exhaustion from the operation itself is the first problem.

"Naturally, the reaction of the patient immediately afterward and the way he begins to pull around from the anaesthetic, is very important.

"Therefore, if the King is gaining strength one can assume the reaction is very good and that he is on the right lines. He is not out of the woods but I should say it is an optimistic bulletin."

With well-wishers prayed and hoped for him beyond Buckingham Palace's walls, the haggard monarch fought his recovery battle through the night watched only by a few of the nurses and doctors who helped operate on his ailing lung Sunday.

Medical circles believe dawn today marked the end of the first 24 hours most crucial—post-operative phase.

Hazards Ahead

"There are hazards and anxieties still ahead," one doctor observed, "but they are not as great or as grave as those of the operation itself and the (first) 48 hours which have now been passed.

In the first crisis after the surgeon's knife finishes its work, the great danger is post-operative collapse.

BULLETIN

London, Sept. 25 (AP) — Buckingham Palace in a medical bulletin tonight said the King "has had a comfortable day and has been able to take some nourishment."

Last night's bulletin No. 4—saying the King has gained strength through his fight—produced hints of such a collapse.

But the 56-year-old King is not yet on the straight and smooth road. Medical experts claim the next Saturday and will last a day or two.

At that period, the risk of late complications—especially infection of the lung is called "secondary haemorrhage" — will once again make the going critical for the King.

The guarded bulletins from the sick room—they haven't yet indicated what disease attacked the monarch's lung—shed little light on his ailment. But their progressively-encouraging tone has cut down the fears of the British people. For the first time since the operation the palace yard was filled early today except for the tread of sentries.

Relatives Nearby

The King's immediate relatives —including the Duke of Windsor —are nearby. The Duke arrived in London from Paris without his Duchess. The trip had been arranged earlier by the man who abdicated to make room for brother in 1936. The Duchess, the former Wallis Warfield Simpson of Baltimore, Md., has never been received by the Royal Family. She stayed in Paris.

Visitors at the bedside last night included Queen Mother Mary and Princess Margaret, the 25-year-old princess presumptive, with the Duke of Edinburgh. The Queen is staying with the King.

Princess Elizabeth and her husband still plan to visit Canada and the United States next month. They decided to go by plane instead of by ship as originally intended, and are scheduled to reach Quebec City Oct. 8.

"very encouraging."

Five Doctors

Five doctors who took part in the operation passed the night in the monarch's private sick-room.

Speculation continued both among the people and doctors on the nature of the ailment. Attending doctors said it was a case of lung "resection" which indicates cutting out either all or part of a lung.

Doug. Wilkinson, National Film Board, Finds Eskimos Totally Carefree

Ottawa, Sept. 25 —(CP) — A tip to the Russians: Your propaganda machine isn't working in Canada.

Canada's 8,000 Eskimos, absorbed in whale hunting and fox trapping, don't know about Russians or trouble-making communists. They don't even know about Korea.

Like everyone else, they've been touched by the inflation whirl, but they laugh it off.

That's the way two National Film Board photographers sized up the northern situation after a 5,000-mile, 15-month trek through the Arctic.

Douglas Wilkinson, husky 31-year-old film-maker from Toronto, and his 24-year-old wife, Vivienne, came back to civilization in the Ottawa area today after a 60-degree weather—with the heat.

They couldn't get used to the "warm spell" after battling the Arctic's below-zero weather.

But they were glad to be back and plunged into a dishful of "greens," lettuce, celery, cucumbers—things they missed most in the Arctic.

"The northern jaunt to film Canada's first detailed documentary on the Eskimo's annual cycle, from a babe-in-arms to youth, marriage and old age, took the Toronto couple to Chesterfield Inlet and Southampton Island and points beyond, more than 1,000 miles north of Winnipeg.

They battled a storm that sent their canoe capsizing on their heels and fought against death when their little gas range exploded in a tent. Their Eskimo guide collapsed on the igloo floor and started moaning with his duffel cloth, a heavy blanket-like material with the Eskimo uses for making parkas and socks. Two years ago it was selling at $6 a yard—now it costs $18 a yard.

"But the Eskimo doesn't grumble," said Douglas. "He's more interested in getting enough foxes to buy all he needs. He has no savings account. He spends all he makes."

Belief Gains Strength Tour Will be Postponed

Ottawa, Sept. 25 — (CP)—Use of the RCAF's C5 plane to fly the royal couple across the Atlantic was apparently written off today as tour officials reported they are "awaiting word hourly' on whether or the visit is on or off.

One official said he was willing to bet 10-1 that the tour by Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh will be postponed indefinitely and that arrangements set to have wide currency in official circles.

By noon, Ottawa time, there had been no further transatlantic telephone conversation between Prime Ministers St. Laurent and Clement Attlee. The feeling appeared to be that Mr. Attlee would call Mr. St. Laurent when he had something definite to say.

Meanwhile London reports said the Princess has picked the date she and her husband would take if they fly over. Indications here were that it would be the RCAF's big C5 transport aircraft.

Duke of Windsor Goes to Hospital For X-ray Tests

London, Sept. 25 — (AP) — The Duke of Windsor entered a hospital today for X-ray examinations described as routine.

A spokesman for the Duke said it was one of the regular checkups the Duke has from time to time.

"His Royal Highness is in the best of health," the spokesman said.

The Duke arrived in London yesterday by plane from Paris about 24 hours after his brother, the King, underwent a major lung operation at Buckingham Palace.

The Duke arrived in London to attend a book publisher's dinner, coinciding with the publication here of his memoirs.

His publishers, Cassell and Company, announced today he had cancelled a press reception fixed for tomorrow. The statement said: "Owing to the illness of the King, the Duke of Windsor regrets that at this time of anxiety he does not think he can meet the press tomorrow."

Seven Killed in Egyptian Village In Arabian Nights Revenge Drama

Cairo Sept. 25—(AP)— Seven persons were reported shot to death in a strange Arabian Nights tale of revenge tonight.

The trouble started, the news magazine Akher Saa reported, when a village child in the Nile delta area threw a stone at a passing car.

The stone hit the camel in the eye and blinded the animal.

The owner of the camel was a village sheikh and complained to the child's father. The father refused to punish the child.

The sheikh advised that the oath could be fulfilled if the father cut down the dull edge of a knife over the child's throat. He then advised that the father sharpen the knife then buy the camel.

Both parties accepted the solution. A village council was called and the child presented his throat to the mayor's son-in-law who held the knife.

The mayor's son applied the dull side of the knife to the child's throat—then—just as he drew it across the throat—the blade, secretly bearing the jugular vein.

But the child's father had been tipped off by the machinations of his wife. He had taken a pistol with him.

When he saw his son's blood spurting, he drew his gun and went amok. He shot the mayor's son, the sheikh and others present before order was restored.

Jury Frees Man In Stabbing Case At Sault Ste. Marie

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Sept. 25 (CP)—A jury has freed Wasyl Krawiec, 24, of a murder charge arising from a stabbing during a wine-drinking party last July 21 in a whistle stop section house in the bush country 130 miles north of here.

Krawiec, a Polish-Ukrainian immigrant, was accused of killing Jonas Norkus, a fellow worker on the Algoma Central Railway, with a 10-inch butcher knife. The jury in Ontario Supreme Court last night took less than three hours to acquit him.

The investigating officer, provincial constable Orville Waito, testified that both Krawiec and Mrs. Anna Vinslova, hostess at the drinking party in the Agawa section house, told him the morning after Norkus' death that Norkus apparently took his own life.

There was no evidence that anyone saw Norkus suffer the fatal knife thrust.

Mrs. Vinslova, pretty 25-year-old wife of a section foreman, said that after Norkus died, Krawiec threatened to kill her if she told police that Krawiec had slain Norkus.

Is Believed Mad

Crown Attorney Ian Munro said in his address to the jury that evidence showed Krawiec was in a belligerent mood during the closing stages of the party and had a knife in his possession.

Krawiec's lawyer, S. Fitzgerald, argued that "at best" the jury could find the accused man guilty only of manslaughter.

"Unless you say the accused man struck the fatal blow, you cannot rea.nnably convict him of murder," he said. "Only Mrs. Vinslova could easily have dealt the fatal blow."

Crister Acting J. C. McRuer said in his charge to the jury:

"The evidence showed that Krawiec had plenty of opportunity to get away from Norkus if he had wanted to leave peaceably."

He added:

"The defence counsel's argument that Mrs. Vinslova dealt the fatal blow must be considered."

Edmonton, Sept. 25 — (CP)—A curtain of snow moved eastward across the prairies today, keeping harvesting at a standstill.

On the eastern prairies the snow was bringing some relief from bitter cold. Brandon, east of Regina, reported a low of 34 degrees, Minn., had 33 and Winnipeg with a chilly 23 reported the coldest Sept. 25 in weather records.

History of Salvation Army Outlined to Rotary Members

An officer of the Salvation Army, Major Arnold Brown, former resident of Belleville, was guest speaker at the weekly Rotary luncheon in the Quinte Hotel on Monday.

Major Brown came to Belleville from England at an early age and resided here until 16 years ago, when he became an officer in the Salvation Army. Most of his career in the Army has been spent as public relations and special efforts officer. He is an outstanding musician as well as a composer, speaker and writer.

The speaker said that he was reminded of many happy occasions in Belleville and "I was today to discharge my debt of gratitude to those who have helped me."

Major Brown reminisced at length about his experiences both prior to and after becoming a member of the Salvation Army and provoked many chuckles from an interested audience.

Outlines History

He then went on to outline the history of the Salvation Army from the time of its birth to the present day. The Salvation Army in its earliest stage had a group of women called "The Midnight Patrol," he stated, "and their duty was to scour the alleys of Toronto for inebriates and bring them to the hostel for their first sobering breakfast, awaking one morning and finding that the night's work demanded by her release immediately as she felt that association with the Salvation Army would ruin her reputation."

It was the philosophy of William Booth, founder of the organization, evolved from seeing problems of homeless in London, that has had a great deal to do with the change in attitude from criticism to sympathetic policy," he added. This philosophy was that in order to get people to listen to religion, they must have a place to stay, food to eat and clothing to wear.

Try to Help

"The Salvation Army," stated the speaker, "is a combination of social service and religious service and wherever the need exists, they try to help."

He touched briefly on the many types of work that the Army is now doing including work with the lepers of Japan, the blind of the British West Indies, the first cleanup of Devil's Island, the famous French prison and others. "Over 20,000 babies were born in 31 Salvation Army hospitals last year," he said. "We are caring for children and women with Sunset and Eventide Homes."

In conclusion he quoted Sir William Beveridge who said "Almost every social reform brought into existence has been brought about by the Salvation Army."

The speaker was introduced by Brigadier Reg. Gage and thanked by Rev. Duncan McNeish who said "We have been intensely interested, edified and educated by your address."

Rotarians were reminded of a trip to Watertown on October 17, when the Belleville Intermediate "A" football team will be the guest speaker.

May Form Club

Rotarian Harold Mott asked the members to notify him without delay, their intentions of forming a bridge club for the winter months.

A boys' camp was mentioned for next Saturday and Rotarian Walter Pierce called for volunteers to aid him in this project.

President Court Miller asked each club member to drop a line to Rotarian Irving Hefkey, who is presently recuperating from a serious operation at the private pavilion of the Toronto General Hospital.

Birthday roses were presented to Rotarians Jack McFee, Walter Pierce and Al Davis.

Guests of the club were present from Kingston, N.Y., Hamilton, Trenton and Belleville.

Talk on Alberta Given Optimists

Rev. F. R. Harback addressed the opening fall meeting of the Optimist Club on Monday evening and chose as his subject "The Province of Alberta". Recalling the early days of his youth and the time spent in the missionary field in Alberta, Rev. Harback stated that Alberta was his home but the traditional western atmosphere that had inspired so many stories and songs was fast disappearing due to the broad made by modern civilization. The speaker gave a vivid description of several Alberta cities of the political tendencies of their citizens, and in spite of all the modern inroads it still left the people with their friendly and hospitable attitude that made them envied by citizens of the east.

Mr. Harback congratulated the Optimist Club on the work they had done this year on the development of Zwick's Island and stated that they had saved the city from a black sheet of disgrace as visitors to town had always marvelled at lack of park facilities.

The speaker was introduced by Don Boyce with appreciation being expressed by Grant Badgely. Guests for the meeting included Ralph Jago and Eric Lahey, with Mac Smith presiding over the meeting.

Organizer Young Sees Labor Marching to Power With CCF; Thinks Thomson Gets Big Pay

THE CHAMPION

Ralph Sadler of Nestleton, Ont, wishes that Trouble did come in threes as the old saying goes. Trouble is the name of his colt, shown here, the champion at the fair at Lindsay. Barbara Voyce is the model.

Labor is on the march toward political power in Ontario, said Rev. Fred Young, Ontario organizer for the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, during an address which he made at the party's nominating convention for South Hastings, held in the Belleville I.O.O.F. hall, Monday night.

Before Mr. Young began his remarks, it was explained that E. R. Jolliffe, the provincial leader of the party, who was scheduled to attend the meeting, had been forced to cancel his visit to Belleville because of the opening on Monday of the special fall session of the Ontario legislature.

Ready to Swing

"Hundreds of thousands of workers in this province are ready to swing to the C.C.F.," said Mr. Young. "The workers know that they are facing a situation that has got to be beaten.

"They do not know for sure, and none of us knows for sure, when Mr. Frost is going to call his election, but we all believe that it is coming soon.

"Mr. Frost is playing a probable election, but we want labor to win, and we think that would be a big boost for the Tories here in Ontario. The workers know that very sure that the British Tories are going to win, and a Labor victory in Britain would damage the Tories and help the C.C.F. here.

Afraid of C.C.F.

Mr. Young emphasized that both the Conservatives and the Liberals were afraid of the C.C.F. in the approaching provincial election. "But some of them are afraid to admit it, that we are paid agents of Moscow," he said.

Referring to Walter Thomson, the Ontario leader of the Liberals, Mr. Young said he will not matter what may happen to him, he has already collected his salary for a year, even if he will not advance. The federal Liberal government gave him about $200,000 out of the treasury of this country for some work that he did for the Department of Trade and Commerce.

Talks "Good Deal"

"Mr. Thomson also talks a good deal about our educational system, about going back to the little red-schoolhouse. He says he is all in favor of going back to the little red school house. Apparently he doesn't want all the children of Ontario to have the advantages of specialized teaching in specialized schools.

"But what Mr. Thomson is saying is typical of both the old line parties. They both look to the past and are both living in the past."

Mr. Young charged that unemployment was growing in Ontario. He said there were particularly large numbers of unemployed in Galt, Guelph and Kitchener, which, he said, he had visited only last week.

Seem Not Worried

"Neither the Ottawa liberals nor the Queen's Park Tories seem to be worried about this unemployment," he continued. "They say it is part of some plan they have to close down non-essential industries and transfer these men to defense industries.

"But workers have not been placed with these defence industries, and these men and their families must have the necessities of life. In the meantime, these men are supposed to stand around and wait. This is free enterprise way, the ruthless way, the way that proceeds without any plan."

ARMED ROBBERY CHARGED

Toronto, Sept. 25—(CP)—Denton Brown, 32, was arrested today on a charge of armed robbery following an early-morning chase through downtown Toronto streets. Police said he and two other men earlier held up a railway express clerk.

Justice Orders Six-Month Hoist For Applications

Ottawa, Sept. 25. (CP) —Mr. Justice M. B. Archibald, chairman of the Board of Transport Commissioners, today ordered a six-month postponement in the hearing of applications by four major companies to transport gas east and west from the gas field of Alberta.

The chief commissioner told counsel for the four companies that it appears that it will be a long time before the Alberta Conservation Commission gives its decision as to what gas-exportation permits it will approve. Until that decision, there was no point in proceeding with applications before the board.

He therefore adjourned a hearing into the applications, some of which have been before the board more than a year, until next April 7. However, he held out the hope that an earlier date may be fixed, depending upon action taken by the Alberta Commission and the board's own scheduled of hearings.

Mr. Justice Archibald told counsel that if the Alberta decisions are reached sometime in November, as some of the counsel believed, then the board may sit for a hearing next December—but this depends upon the board's schedule.

Seeding of Fall Wheat General In Province

Toronto, Sept. 25—(CP)—Seeding of fall wheat is general throughout Ontario, the provincial agricultural department reported today. In many instances, a greater acreage is being sown than was originally anticipated.

Threshing is nearing completion in most sections of the province. Late-harvest cultivation is general in those areas where harvesting has been completed.

Durham county reports that barns and granaries have not been as full in years. Algoma county in northern Ontario reports oats yielding as high as 70 bushels an acre and barley up to 60 bushels an acre. At the same time, the report continues, grain is of a good quality.

Farmers in Cochrane South are again experiencing difficulty with wolves attacking their sheep and calves. At least two of the marauders, one a black Siberian measuring over seven feet in length, have been trapped recently.

Timiskaming county, with the wettest harvest season in many years, reports pastures in excellent condition. Considerable difficulty in getting in potato crops. Thunder Bay county is also concerned over the wet weather.

Council to Determine Whether Clear Title Can be Obtained On Property to Build Hall

Belleville City Council will seek a meeting with the trustee board of Bridge Street United church in the view of Alfred Armstrong whether a clear title to the property at the corner of Moira and Dundas streets can be secured thus permitting construction of a new firehall.

This was the decision Monday afternoon at council after it was suggested that the board may not be willing to give the city a clear title to the property. Some weeks ago it was understood the church was ready to give the clear title but there is now apparently some doubt on the matter.

That the tourist park property is the logical site for the proposed firehall is the contention of several members of city council who point out that unless the hall is constructed in the most strategic location the city is starting out with a handicap.

Alderman Duffy, chairman of the fire committee, claimed that unless the firehall eventually is located on the most logical point the city will be faced every-shortly with the construction of two additional firehalls.

Favored Over Other Sites

Mr. E. F. Bevis, chief of fire services in the Fire Marshal's department and Fire Chief Gerald Vance, favor the tourist park site over four other possible locations which have been investigated. Yesterday Mr. Bevis told councillors why he favored the park as a site for the firehall.

He pointed to the life and fire hazard represented by the business section of the city east of the river; to the industrial development south of the tracks and to the hospital and said it was imperative that the proposed hall be situated as close as possible to all.

He said that the tourist park was the ideal site for the firehall and said that the site at the south of the tourist park would be a poor second choice.

He said the approach to the firehall should be directly on Dundas Street and the hall should be in full view of traffic approaching from either direction. Mr. Bevis said that in case if the hall were constructed down Newberry Street at the rear of the park that the possibility of heavy snowfall blocking the road to the street should also be considered.

Mayor Potter asked about the site for the firehall.

Belleville City Council enough for 500 homes; its three-storey main banking room alone, where the public comes, takes most of its business, would accommodate a dozen homes.

The two-storey vaults below ground have 55 ton doors and are described as the first atomic-proof vaults ever built. Anyone locked in them accidentally for the night would be provided with —with ventilation, lighting and telephone.

The main banking room has the largest mural in Canada, 30 by 50 feet, in which public and symbolizing Canada's industries, carved in Hautevielle marble from France. Miss Lilias Torrance, of York Mills, Toronto suburb, spent 14 months creating it, and Peter and Louis Lyperchuk, of Credit, Ont., six months in carving it.

The bank occupies the first eight stories while the rest are rented; and bank and tenants have 2,500 employees.

The building's cafeteria serves 1,700 people in 100 minutes each weekday. Its refrigeration would be sufficient for 250 butcher shops or 19 ice rinks.

Though today was official opening day, the bank has actually operated from the building since June; so today's occasion was ceremonial and free of the upset of moving.

It commemorated not only the Bank of Nova Scotia's story, but those of other banks which joined with it during the years: Union Bank of Prince Edward Island, 1833; Bank of New Brunswick 1913; Metcalfe Bank, 1914; Bank of Ottawa, 1919.

COLLAPSES WATCHING FIRE

Bala, Sept. 25—(CP)— Charles W. Bayes, proprietor of a summer resort in this Lake Muskoka area, collapsed and died today while watching a cottage adjoining his property destroyed by fire. The cottage, valued at $8,000, belonged to William Killingham, Toronto.

FLYNN LOSES CASE

Los Angeles, Sept. 25 (AP) —Actor Errol Flynn yesterday lost out in his lengthy attempt to have his alimony to his first wife, Lili Damita, reduced. The actor asked Superior Court to give him financial relief from his $2,000 yearly payment of $23,200 for alimony and support to Miss Damita and their son, Sean, 10.

Many Prominent Officials Attend Opening of New Bank Building

Toronto, Sept. 25.—(CP)—The Bank of Nova Scotia today officially opened its new 25-storey executive office building.

For the bank, the event symbolized a success story which started in Halifax 119 years ago, and which has made it one of the "big four" Canadian banking, with 365 branches in Canada and 27 abroad.

For Canadians in general, it symbolized the growth of their country from one of pioneer colonies and territories, to a great young nation wielding the power of a half-continent.

The premiers of all 10 provinces were heard in words of congratulation, each of them by long description, and premiers Angus L. Macdonald of Nova Scotia, and Leslie Frost of Ontario, in person.

Also there were Finance Minister Douglas Abbott; Hon. J. A. B. McCurdy, Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia; Mayor Hiram McCallum of Toronto; Graham F. Towers, Governor of the Bank of Canada; Donald Gordon, President of the Canadian National Railways, who was with the bank from 1910 to 1935; Hon. C. B. McCuaig and James Y. Murdoch, vice-presidents; H. D. Bunn, chairman of the board; H. L. Enman, president; C. Sydney Frost, general manager; about 1,800 guests, and thousands of other citizens.

City traffic was diverted from the financial district for more than an hour during the outdoor ceremonies—until Mr. Frost pressed the lock and declared the building open.

Guests already inside, the crowds on the streets out of sight of the ceremonial platform, saw the proceedings on television screens.

The new building, of modern classical architecture, raises its massive though graceful 25 storeys of white limestone over one of the most valuable pieces of real estate in Canada, at the corner of Toronto's financial district, at King and Bay Streets.

It stands 322 feet above street level, goes 43 feet underground, and was some 3 1-2 years in building.

Its foundations cover nearly an acre of ground which in 1797 was a Crown grant to Capt. Daniel Cozens, who sold it for £20. It sold for $3,000 a foot as far back as 1910, and the bank bought it in 1929 at an unnamed figure.

Its floor area is 11 acres,

Obituary

HARVEY CLARE (HAPPY) KETCHESON

After a lengthy illness a former well-known resident of this district Harvey Clare (Happy) Ketcheson, died in Peterborough, Eng., hospital Saturday last. Last summer Mr. Ketcheson returned to the district of his childhood to renew old acquaintances and was taken seriously ill. For some time he was in hospital in Belleville and when well enough to travel returned to England the latter part of August.

The late Mr. Ketcheson was born at Thomasburg, 53 years ago, being the son of Mrs. Emma Ketcheson and the late Samuel Ketcheson. He was educated in the public school at Thomasburg and the High School at Tweed and enlisted in the First World War. At the end of hostilities, he remained in England and published a veterans' magazine, which is in existence at the present time and operated by himself and brother. For the past thirties, Mr. Ketcheson secured the agency for English bicycles and motorcycles, practically all the whole Dominion displaying the qualities of these bikes. On returning to England, he again entered the publication field and at the time of his death was in the commercial advertising business.

"Happy" as he was familiarly known, had the faculty of making friends quickly and holding them. He was a real gentleman, companionship and was extremely loyal. He will be missed among a wide circle of friends.

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Emma Ketcheson of Calgary, two brothers, George of England and W. L. Ketcheson of Tweed; also two sisters, Mrs. W. R. Wilson son of Calgary.

He will be buried in England.

To Build Seaway On St. Lawrence, Frost Promises

Toronto, Sept. 25. (CP)— The St. Lawrence seaway, discussed for generations, is going to be built, says Premier Leslie Frost.

He told a Progressive Conservative party dinner last night:

"It is going to be built, get the seaway, and get it shortly."

Mr. Frost's statement — which he did not amplify—was the strongest indication from any official source that Canada plans to go ahead on its own to build the great inland waterway which would open the Great Lakes to deep-sea shipping and provide power estimated at more than 2,000,000 horsepower annually.

Since a congressional committee in Washington met last July to shelve a bill which would have provided for United States action in conjunction with Canada in the project, estimated to cost more than $1,000,000,000, there have been open and private discussions in its own.

The Premier last night gave no details of how Canada plans to undertake the project alone, but he say that the cost to Ontario—vitally interested in the project's power aspects—would be about $200,000,000. "We can get it and we will do the job," he said.

He said that the questions of participation in the project, "are not here or there", and, "are friends to the south, but we are a great people ourselves and we can do the job and we will do it."

The Premier also touched on a major topic of speculation in political circles in recent months —the possibility of an Ontario election this fall. He said: "we are not coming to you with promises, but sound accomplishments."

The Progressive party petitioned of an election in November, he said: "if they keep guessing long enough, they're bound to be right eventually."

NET EARNINGS HIGHER

Montreal, Sept. 25 — (CP) — Canadian National Railways today reported net earnings for August at $406,000, compared with $3,290,000 the corresponding month last year.

Gross earnings for the same month amounted to $55,008,900, compared with $38,151,000 in August 1950, while working expenses totalled $50,929,000 against $34,871,000.

Great Industrial Expansion Possible by Completion Of Seaway Says Follwell

Possibility of a great industrial expansion for the Eastern Ontario district should the St. Lawrence seaway and power project be completed soon, is seen by Frank B. Follwell, M.P., for Hastings South.

Speaking to members of the local Kinsmen Club at their regular bi-monthly dinner meeting Monday evening, Mr. Follwell said the development of iron ore deposits in the Marmora district, together with Labrador ore and the completion of the St. Lawrence project would mean that giant smelters would be built in this area.

"It is just a thought and should be explored thoroughly," Mr. Follwell stated. "If Labrador ore is to pass through this way on a deepened St. Lawrence system, mining interests might be considered. The latter Eastern Ontario district is the place for a smelter."

Cheap Power to Help

One of the attractions which would help this about would be cheap electric power resulting from the development of the St. Lawrence power project.

Mr. Follwell spoke primarily on the proposed St. Lawrence deep waterways projects which when completed would provide a 27-foot deep channel for ocean going ships from the Atlantic to the head of the lakes.

He went into detail on costs of the project if development was joined by the United States and Canada, and also costs if the project were completed by Canada alone. "The latter was possible but would prove more costly," he said.

Foresees Great Development

Material requirements for the combined waterway and power project are not large but when considered in terms of total production did not seem so imposing. For instance, steel requirements over the project would represent but two percent of the production over a five-year period, while requirements for concrete would amount to five per cent. Fifteen thousand workmen would be employed on the project, 9,000 of them in Canada.

Great as the post war industrial development in Ontario had been, Mr. Follwell foresaw an even greater development for this district should the St. Lawrence project be completed.

In addition to the possibility of increased steel production there would be added illiterite in the production of base metals and chemicals, both of which were dependent on the use of cheap electric power.

"We are on the threshold of a great industrial expansion and the location of added industry in Eastern Ontario would mean more consumer goods, more services and more taxes that giant smelters would be built in this area.

"It is just a thought and should be explored thoroughly," Mr. Follwell stated. "If Labrador ore is to pass through this way on a deepened St. Lawrence system, mining interests might be considered. The latter Eastern Ontario district is the place for a smelter."

IS ONTARIO HUNGRY?

Is milk too expensive? Some people think that it is. One of these, apparently, is Hon. William Goodfellow, Ontario welfare minister, who was quoted in the press a short time ago as expressing the opinion that both bread and milk should be subsidized by the federal government, thus enabling "poor people to get this necessary food at reasonable prices."

Perhaps Mr. Goodfellow's duties as a member of the Ontario cabinet prevent him from getting around and seeing what is going on as freely as the average citizen.

If Mr. Goodfellow were to take a few days off from his duties at Queen's Park and go out incognito on an observation tour, like Haroun-al-Raschid used to do long ago, he might see a few things that would cause him to doubt whether the poor people of Ontario are really suffering from a lack of "necessary food."

In any typical Ontario city or town, Mr. Goodfellow would find the moving picture shows and dance halls packed with well dressed young people who do not look as if their parents could not afford to supply them with sufficient "necessary food."

If Mr. Goodfellow were to visit almost any of the beer parlors or cocktail bars — perhaps he ordinarily does not frequent such places — he would find them, especially during the evening hours, packed with patrons, who if not all well dressed at least appear to be suffering from no lack of "necessary food." A good many of them look as if they were in the habit of absorbing more calories and vitamins than they require.

If he were to make a visit to any of the stadia where baseball, football and other such games are played, Mr. Goodfellow would see thousands — in the larger centres tens of thousands — of well fed, well looking people whose demeanor would suggest that they could not care less about the price of either bread or milk. Equally prosperous-looking people may be found in large numbers at the arenas in which prize fights and wrestling matches are held.

Actually, most of the complaints about the price of such staples as bread and milk come from housewives, and only from a small minority of them. A good many of the women of Ontario, old and young alike, seem to possesses at least one fur coat; they also seem to spend freely, if not lavishly, on cosmetics and doo-dads of one kind and another.

Everyone would like to pay less for what he must buy in order that he would have more to spend on luxuries. The fact remains, however, that the inhabitants of the broad and richly-endowed province of Ontario were never better off than they are today, and not suffering from a lack of the necessities of life.

When compared with most parts of the world, Ontario is a Garden of Eden. There has not been any announcement from Ottawa that large numbers of Ontarians are applying for passports preparatory to migrating to India or China.

AUSTRALIA'S TROUBLED TOO

The French philosopher Voltaire, or some other big wheel in intellectual circles, once remarked that, however dear our friends may be to us, there is always something about their misfortunes which pleases us.

For this reason, perhaps those Canadians who think that things are not going as well as they should in this country might consider conditions in Australia and take a little comfort from the fact that some of Canada's troubles are, to a surprising degree, paralleled in those of the sister dominion beyond the seas.

There were 343,000 civil servants in Australia in 1939. There are now 611,000. In the same period, federal and state taxes (they have states in Australia instead of provinces) rose from 21 per capita to £ 89 per capita.

Also, Australia is having serious trouble building up its armed forces. In the regular army there are only 20,000 men for a population of 8,500,000. The navy is short 3,000 men and cannot put all its ships into commission. The air force has men. The reserve army seeks 50,000 men, but has only 21,000.

The corresponding figures for Canada are not at hand, but it is common knowledge that the situation here closely corresponds to that which prevails in Australia.

PUNITIVE SYSTEMS

(Ottawa Citizen)

In Formosa reckless drivers who kill people are executed by firing squad.

How unreasonable this is, compared with our more enlightened, punitive system; we charge them with manslaughter, reduce it to dangerous driving, and then forget the whole thing if they promise to have their brakes fixed.

STOP ROW

On its principal canals, Venice has been forced to station traffic police, who presumably spend their time chalking parked gondolas and pinching jay-boaters and gondoliers who go through red lighthouses.

JUST FOLKS

FAMILY GROWTH

How fast all families grow!
Each year the band increases.
Into their own homes go
The nephews and the nieces.
Some leave, and some stay near.
Then very soon it may be
We who are old will hear
The news: "Another baby."

Some niece brings up to me
With loving pride to show her,
A little girl of three—
And asks if I would know her.
Then in a few years time
That pretty child's a mother
And that, of course, means I'm
Great uncle to another.

As Christmas comes and goes
No longer are we able,
So large the family grows,
For all to share the table.
Soon there are gardens on
The which we've not invited.
There families grown from one,
By blood and love united.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It is what that sense of dawning horror you experience on seeing, looking in your rear-view mirror, one who has done you mortal injury that some-of us watch from behind to seek the slow advance of admitting the Germans back into our fellowship in arms and economic. Regardless of our political need, there are great many tens of thousands of Canadians who, by reason of our experience in two wars, can never be softened in our attitude to the Germans.

All of us know good Germans. Many of us have had personal talks of German extraction, but everyone who travels sooner or later encounters an experience of them that causes his hair to prickle. In London recently I met a man I had four of them sat at an adjoining table, wholly conversing in their language, which seem to have been made for dogmatic utterance. The four were all alike in one special particular; they had hard square foreheads, grey inscrutable eyes, and soft rolls of stomach. It was obvious they were strangers to London, and they stared about with an erect, short-necked insolence that was perhaps unconscious, as they talked. Their heavy lean mouths twisted and squirmed as they formed the peculiar sounds of their speech, but the vowel sounds, which, I am told, are very wooing to lovers of the language, were short, hard square brows, the cold eyes which, if you met them, gave the impression of looking at you nothing, imparted an incongruous expression to long and carefully calmly all about them. In a company of four you not expect one to have some semblance of ordinary humanity? But not these goddings.

does not report what Andrei Gromyko said. It says he "repeated his familiar line." That speaks of American delegates with the words "calm, coherent, unruffled, sharply logical, humorous." It speaks of the Russian and satellite delegates as "sputtering, sheepish, muttering, a bunch of interlocking mediocrities."

No one could quarrel with an individual's right to present that kind of picture of a meeting. Indeed, Mr. Roy Brown, of this paper, writing under his own name, outdid Time in its jeering, triumphant manner. That's his privilege. But to pretend to give the true picture of the news and give, instead, merely a burlesque of the news is a vicious kind of journalism.

The simple fact is this: A reader can not competently form a sound opinion by reading Time. It is given only that evidence which will support Time's idea of the significance of the news. In the case of the east-west tension he is given a picture distorted beyond all reason, and which, by no true, would blast all hope for peace. And the overwhelming odds will disagree with Time's editors.

For that reason, I see Time as one of the evils of our time. Every copy that crosses our borders the poor sap should have a sticker on its cover. It would say, "Read With Caution."

Unhappy Man

I often wonder if the men who write for Time ever read what are some of the most brilliant expose'sperences in the United States Canada over worry about the ethics of this form of journalism.

A newspaperman knows, better than most, that news is a delicate thing, easily soured, easily used to support a preconceived opinion. Many times a day we have to fit these men that the old way is the best way; that now, more than ever, we must tell the story of what happened and to let the chips fall where they may.

At least one man has thought that way. I am thinking now of Walter Lippmann, who, after meeting a Time man in a New York bar, said, "I don't think I'll write, was deeply troubled "by a terrible air of omniscience that seemed to him to mark every man woman and child on the payroll," and who, finally, said he was told Gibbs. "I know how to fix them. One of these days I'm coming out with a gun. I'm going to take my stand in the hall and, as loud as I can, I'm going to shout, 'I don't care.' Then the whole damn thing will just come tumbling down."

Govts. Consider Measures Against United States

Geneva, Sept. 25 (AP) —The United States restrictions on the import of cheese and other dairy products through an amendment to the Defence Production Act were flatly declared yesterday a violation of American commitments under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Representatives of 34 countries—Canada and The Netherlands—told the members of G.A.T.T. their governments are considering retaliatory measures against the United States.

Johann Melander, chairman of the contracting parties at the session here, told the delegates that the U.S. measure is "an infringement of the general agreement, but the executive branch of the government has not the repealed. If these efforts are not successful, action will have to be considered under article 23."

Article 23 provides for action against parties nullifying or impairing the benefits of the agreement.

The acting head of the Canadian delegation, C.M. Isbiter, said that "depending upon events in the United States, Canada may be prepared to lodge a complaint at this session and to proceed with the machinery establishin and other steps envisaged under article 23."

Isbiter said the U.S. restrictions on imports of cheese and dairy products "have serious adverse effects on Canadian producers." He said it was "difficult to find any aspect for the contention that U.S. cheese producers have difficulty since the market price today is above the support price."

Thorp, Assistant U.S. Secretary of State and head of the U.S. delegation said a bill to amend the agricultural act was before Congress and the administration hoped for early action.

Thorp said the U.S. action must not be interpreted as a basic change in United States policy. The United States support for G.A.T.T., he said, was unchanged.

The contracting parties agreed to retain the item on the agenda hoping that developments might end in Washington before the end of the session in about five weeks.

Canada-U.S. Relations Changed But Remain Good

--Pearson

New York, Sept. 25—(CP) — While Canadian-United States relations have changed in recent years they remain good, L. B. Pearson said last night.

Canada's external affairs minister said that formerly relations between Canada and the U.S. were on a bi-lateral basis—discussing problems between the two countries alone.

Now Canada is part of a coalition of which the U.S. is the leader whose power and pressures approace, he added.

Pearson, in answering questions put by members of the United Nations correspondents association, said that Canada had a radio program "united or not". The program was rebroadcast over the U.S.

The minister's comment on Canada-U.S. relations came after when a reporter asked for a statement concerning a speech Pearson had made last spring in Toronto which caused widespread comment in the U.S. and Canada.

Not Critical Says Pearson

Any interpretation of the speech as critical of the U.S. was "incorrect," Pearson said. It was to be expected that Canada would speak frankly on international problems.

Last spring, Pearson said, Canada was worried about the possibility of the extension of war in the far east.

"Now we are not so worried about it."

He said that any smaller, weaker country is always troubled with power. Canada, therefore, was preoccupied with U.S. power.

"But when things are good, have been good and will remain good."

"Peace with freedom" might be the tag to give the U.N. general assembly which opens in Paris Nov. 6, Pearson said in response to questions. The reporter asking the question noted that the 1949 assembly was called the "Peace assembly" and the one in 1950 was "the assembly of collective security."

Pearson said the western powers have tried all types of approaches to the east-west problem. What is needed now is a new attitude on the part of the soviet bloc, Pearson indicated.

THE UPPER ROOM

We are told that when the disciples of Jesus returned from the Mount of Ascension where they had witnessed the departure of their Lord from the earth, they went to an upper room to consult together and to pray.

Here they were left, left on their own. What were they going to do about it?

Everyone of us has experienced that terrifying feeling of being left on our own and confronted a situation which was both baffling and overpowering. The child left at school the first day or later at a summer camp, has a strange, lonely feeling as he sees his parents depart and realizes that he must face alone the issue of getting along with the rest of the bunch. The young man just out of college, the young bride taking charge of her home for the first time, and later of her first baby after both the nurse and her mother have left — these initial experience the lonely terror of knowing that the issue of events henceforth is up to them.

Try the upper room when you find yourself in circumstances such as these. The original disciples did this, and some days later they were filled with the power of the Holy Spirit and went forth to conquer the world. It is amazing when we take our problems to God how completely they can be solved and in what a satisfying fashion.

Try the upper room.

HAIL TO THE NEW OBSTETRICS

Obstetrics is the art of assisting women in pregnancy and childbirth, the science of midwifery. An obstetrician is a physician who practices obstetrics, or as we French say, an accoucheur.

In this column, from time to time in the past few years I have tried to inform the public about the new obstetrics, the method known as "rooming-in" "natural childbirth." How much of what I have written about it got into print is beyond my control.

For many years I have enjoyed the rancorous opposition of many physicians, many obstetricians, many hospitals and some publications under their influence, for my insistence that the place of a man is at his wife's side when their baby is being born. Always the husband is barred from it.

It seems to me that many physicians, many obstetricians and many hospitals and their trained nurses and superintendents prevent on the unreasonable fear the husband is a sweet, innocent child who must be shielded from the—aw, nuts, they cast the husband as a contemptible nincompoop that the poor guy really accepts the role as they shoo him into the monkey cage with all the other simple customers wait.

One aggressive hospital superintendent up in the north country was so incensed by my reconnendation that fathers be in the place to have a baby, if your home is fit to live in, that she jumped into the public forum to combat my irresponsible teachings. Among other things the gentle lady said that doctors and nurses in the delivery room are much too busy to have the men of husbands fainting at a critical moment, and all that sort of bosh. This was too much for me. I kicked my typewriter into the corner, stood headed straight for the bowling green.

On sober second thought—days later, it occurred to me that a husband let out of the monkey cage and admitted to the sanctity of the delivery room might possibly behave like that. But not one who has shared with his wife from the very first full interest in the welfare of their prospective child, for he will have studied everything concerning prenatal hygiene and, with his wife after all, marriage is a fifty-fifty partnership and the husband who shoves all the responsibilities, cares and (if ignorant) the worries for the period of preparation for maternity onto the shoulders of his wife is something less than a man, isn't he?

Physicians who care to learn about the new obstetrics should read the report of McIlvrde in JAMA, Mar. 3 '51, and the book on Natural Childbirth with Rooming-In (McGraw-Hill).

Prospective parents who want to give the little stranger the best break should send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope to international quack who conducts this column, for the booklet, Preparing for Maturity, and for supplementary reading get from the public library, Childbirth Without Fear, by Grantly Dick Read, (Harpers).

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Sleeping Partners

If young child sleeps with adult does the adult get the bad habits of the child? (H.A.G.)

Answer—Neither takes strength from the other, but both derive less benefit from sleep or rest because of the disturbs the other more or less.

We Hard Boiled Doctors

Perhaps you doctors should have a course in pain medicine ...I wonder if after a gastric resection you people ever let patients have no pain after operation. (F. A. C.)

Answer—On the same principle you may wonder if I now live with my second wife as well as my first wife. No, I haven't disposed of my first yet. If you can show in print that I have gotten better results after operation I'll send you a complimentary book of my own. I specialize in the Ways of Health for which many gullible customers cheerfully pay $5.

Tumors

Is fibroid tumor of the uterous dangerous? What causes tumor? (Mrs. C. B. W.)

Answer—Tumor means swelling. Fibroid tumor of the uterus is not cancer. Fibroid tumor of the uterus (womb) often produces no serious trouble. It occurs more commonly in spinsters than in married women. It is the bane of large children. If it causes much trouble it may be treated with X-ray or radium, but I'd like to be sure, first, at least to me. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for pamphlet on Tumors.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DANCING STARS

This past Summer I soothed my nerves, and bathed by mind, by sitting out many nights as late before bedtime, that I might attend a dance — and what was the dance? Stars in golden gowns dancing upon the silent water at midnight! Reflected from the canopy of the heavens, they seemed to be loaned to me, as I watched each one do its turn, bobbing upon the crystal expanse, and finally, in a wistful mood, I'd bind a water lily asleep, or some shadow of fragrant foliage.

Many nights of make away came these dancing stars, yet they seemed as intimate and friendly as they romped their joy but a few yards away. Mysterious, beguiling coves are these dancing stars, visitors from endless worlds, singing little bodies that you felt you could almost hold in your hand!

Why do men speculate upon a trip to the moon when they can walk out from some silent shore any time when the heavens are studded with their lights and note these dancing stars, these their very eyes? It is a sight to inspire,

Everyone is familiar with that little twinkler, Twinkle, twinkle little star. How I wonder what you are!" Don't we all wonder when we look upon it, or all about its mysterious nest in the firmament of space? We don't have to be a child to do the wondering. No matter what our age, we wonder at the stars.

There is little prose in nature. It's almost all poetry, and there is none to poetic heart to catch its rhythm and beauty. There is none to the quiet night with those dancing stars glittering like diamonds on a surface of velvet, but someone some awesome greater and more understanding than we, can't comprehend. God whispers and you go to your bed for the rest of the night with thoughts that are not to be put by slumber!

Why do we never experienced the sight of these dancing stars upon the surface of a body of water on a night of crystal night, then be sure to make an early appointment with the Lord of heaven here and now. And after that—Good night!

Solicitor Suggests to Council Incinerator Contract be Closed On Best Terms Possible

City council will endeavor on the best terms possible to cancel a contract signed back in 1947 to supply the city with an incinerator. The contract price was $52,575 but no action was taken to erect the incinerator. The responsibility of city officials to agree on a site.

In a letter to council City Solicitor R. A. Pringle suggested that as no action was being taken to purchase the incinerator the contract be cancelled on the best terms possible.

On recommendation of Mayor Potter council concurred with the solicitor's suggestion. The mayor said the contracting firm had been contacted some months ago with the view of determining an up-to-date price on the equipment and no answer had been received.

Committee Named

The mayor appointed a committee of Aldermen Deacon, Thomas and Countryman to investigate the sanitary fill method of garbage disposal. He said this method had been recommended to the city as being better and more economical than the operation of an incinerator.

The solicitor was instructed to prepare a by-law setting forth the city policy in sidewalk replacements whereby costs of rebuilding existing sidewalks be paid for out of the general rate, the walks to be replaced to be decided on by the engineering department.

Alderman Rollins objected stating that all sidewalks should be done under local improvements or petvat all.

In reply Alderman Thomas declared this was the method adopted under such method replacement of sidewalks could be held up for years by ratepayers who objected. When replacement was done under the general rate the matter could be controlled by council. Walks to be replaced would be decided by the works department and a budget set up each year for the work.

Up to Council

Alderman Rollins agreed the general rate principle was right for sidewalk replacements but emphasized it would be up to council to see that walks were kept in shape.

A recommendation authorizing the comptroller to call for tenders for alterations and improvements to the city engineering offices was referred to a special committee for investigation. Plans as prepared by the city engineer call for enlarging offices for the engineering staff and lowering of the ceiling in the entire office.

In an effort to cut down heating costs at the city hall an additional set of doors will be installed at the commencement of the second landing. This work will be done before winter sets in, it was decided.

Council voted a grant of not more than $150 to be spent locally in connection with the observance of Fire Prevention Week.

No Action Taken

No action was taken on a Stratford recommendation suggesting that outside contractors be licensed before being permitted to do business in a municipality. Council was informed by the Highways Department that no refund for gasoline tax could be given for gasoline burned in city commercial vehicles. It was pointed out that provincial subsidies to municipalities had been greatly increased since 1947.

Council gave its tentative approval to plans for the construction of a new grandstand at the Belleville Fairgrounds and expressed its willingness to discuss further plans, specifications and costs.

As chairman of the Belleville Agricultural Society, Alderman Rollins indicated there was no use the fair board taking further action unless council indicated whether it was agreeable to the project. According to present plans the city would be required to pay one-third of the cost of the steel, the other two-thirds to be paid by the federal and provincial governments.

Assume Some Fees

Mr. Rollins said the Agricultural Society had assumed the cost of architect's fees and other incidental costs.

Alderman Deacon said this was an opportunity for the city to express confidence in the Parks Board. He said the city should express its preparedness to proceed with the project.

Under enquiries Alderman Lunnis wanted to know if the fire committee had requested the fire chief to ask Mr. Bevis to make a report on the site for the proposed firehall.

In reply Alderman Duffy said that due to grants received by the city for fire fighting purposes, the advice of the Ontario Fire Marshal's department was always asked on such matters. "In fact I asked Mr. Bevis to come down today," Alderman Duffy observed.

Plans for placement of public lavatories in the basement of the city hall have come to a temporary standstill it was revealed following a council enquiry by Alderman Tice into the matter.

Mayor Potter said that backing up of water into the basement had resulted in no action being taken. "It looks as though nothing will be done until we can build a proper building and have it properly supervised," he said.

New School Built At Dungamon Costs $30,000

Bancroft— How much did it cost the Dungannon Township School Area to build two additional classrooms on to a two-room school, build a basement auditorium below the two new rooms, install a new heating unit for the whole building and complete the set-up with a water pressure system and lavatories?

In these days of astronomical figures for educational costs the answer is a welcome surprise.

Less than $30,000 for everything.

And it was completed on the children moved into the rooms, September 24, approximately 60 days after approval for building was obtained from the department of Education.

Everything has been built according to specifications required by the provincial building authorities. Some work remains to be done on the carpenter-in-charge, Lorne Dawy, of Bancroft, was borrowed from the job of building a new manse for St. Paul's United Church. As he has the building ready for occupancy by the time he finish his work for the church before he puts the finishing touches on the school.

Dungannon Township Council and the school area board will have a meeting place when the basement auditorium is completed. It will also be used by community organizations in the district.

This enlarged building at Lochaber will handle the pupils who formerly went to Turriff, Detlor and Bronson schools, Mrs. Gertrude Ward and teachers, Miss Hazel and Irene Liddle and Mrs. Ursula Trotter as assistants.

The school board responsible for this building are: Gordon Groves, chairman; Herbert Hawkins, secretary-treasurer; Donald Littlegroud, Manson Hawley, William Wheeler and Edward Leclear. The plans for the structure were drawn by the chairman, Gordon Groves.

Should Hoist Vets' Pensions, G.S. White Says

Bancroft — On account of the high cost of living pensions for veterans should be increased, said George S. White, M.P., for Hastings Peterborough at a meeting of Branch 181, Canadian Legion, in Bancroft Friday night. He also reiterated his opposition to the financial quiz that is now necessary for a veteran to complete before an application for a pension is considered.

"Veterans should not have to answer questions of this type," he declared. "These are the men who fought to defend our country and if it were not for the veterans we would not have a country. I oppose a means test for veterans' disability pensions."

Mr. White spoke as the member of parliament and as a member of the Maple Leaf Club of the Legion. During the past session of the House he was a member of the pensions committee.

Other speakers were Zone Commander Percy Gray of Madoc, President J. Bedore of Bancroft and Past President Arnold Gabel of Madoc.

The visitors praised the efforts of the members in obtaining a new hall. They praised all for the big feat of pyramiding a nest egg of less than $500 into a $10,000 debtless building in three and a half years. The hall is furnished, equipped to handle banquets and has a lounge that was furnished with chesterfields and easy chairs in the past 12 months.

Mrs. Gray stressed the importance of larger delegations to zone meetings and the importance of the Legion playing a more important role in sporting events.

Five veterans were received as new members. Henry Phillips and D. A. Russell were appointed chairmen of the Poppy Day and Remembrance Day committees.

Church Trustees Will Not Agree To Give Deed

Members of the board of trustees at Bridge Street United Church will not agree to give the city a quit claim deed for the former church site on Dundas Street allowing construction of a firehall on the property.

This was learned today, when six of the nine members of the board were canvassed by Mayor R. T. Potter with respect to their feelings on the matter. The six members canvassed by Mayor Potter were reported to have said they would not sign a quit claim deed. At Monday afternoon's meeting of council it was voted to have the mayor arrange a meeting of the council fire committee with the board to discuss the matter.

Location up in Air

Location of the proposed new firehall is now very much up in the air. Until some days ago council had worked on the assumption the corner park property would be available as a site for the new hall but this is now apparently not the case, and a second choice will have to be made.

A special meeting of the council fire committee is being held this afternoon to discuss a possible site but Mayor Potter stated this morning he did not think any action with respect to a building contract should be taken until the matter of a suitable site is definitely settled.

Bridge Street Church has the controlling interest in the tourist park site, it having been willed to the church for use as a park.

Marmora Orange Lodge 319 Celebrates 100th Anniversary

The centenary of Marmora L. O. L. 319 whose charter goes back to September 22, 1851, was fittingly observed in three-fold manner in Marmora town hall on Friday evening. Festivities commenced with a banquet served in the council chamber by the members of Harmony L. O. B. A. 600. Then followed a program of speeches and music with the Worshipful Master, Cecil Holland as chairman.

This opened with "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow." In his greetings the chairman mentioned the honor he felt in happening to be Worshipful Master of the lodge in the centennial year. He expressed pleasure that the Grand Master of Ontario East and two other grand lodges should grace the meeting with their presence.

Extend Congratulations

County Master Ernest Coulter of Moneymore extended his congratulations to the lodge and referred to the erection of the church, the school and the Orange Lodge in the early sections in the days of their settlement. Past Masters, Bro. Ada Bates of Harmony L. O. B. A. 600 elected mistress of that lodge at the time of the lodge properties purchased upon the value of the L. O. B. A. in Protestant circles and the "pest of womanhood expected of its members, as she extended congratulations.

County Chaplain Archie Sinclair of Tweed said he was happy to associate himself with the rejoicings of the occasion and wished the lodge prosperity in the years ahead. With Mrs. Rennie as accompanist, Mrs. A. L. Brady of Tweed delighted the gathering with her violin offerings, Schubert's "Ave Maria"—and "Cavatine" by Raff. Mrs. Schmidt, Past County Master W. J. Cottrell followed with a historical sketch of the first twenty years of the lodge's activities. It received its warrant under date of September 22nd. 1851, when at the age of 21, Thomas Campion, son of the pioneer settler, Joseph Campion, became the first master.

Varied Program

Further diversion was forthcoming as K. P. Mayhew of Stirling, to his own guitar accompaniment, rendered a couple of humorous songs. Wor. Bro., Harv. H. Beare, Deputy Grand Chaplain, followed with a speech in which he tendered congratulations.

He dwelt on the principles of the order. A vocal solo "Would God I Were The Tender Apple Blossom," was rendered by Mrs. Verna Woodcock of Stirling. Deputy Grand Master Richard Sanderson of Havelock conveyed his congratulations and sketched some of the history of the order where it had helped to maintain law and order on this continent. K. P. Mayhew having favored the gathering with another song, Worshipful Mistress Helen Holland, on behalf of Harmony L. O. B. A. voiced that lodge's congratulations. Right Wor. Bro. Fred Bateman, Grand Master of Ontario East, brought the greetings and congratulations of Grand Lodge, and in his speech referred to the assistance the order can render the Protestant churches and the assistance they can render the order in return.

Band Selection Given

Tweed Salvation Army Band then gave an instrumental selection and Capt. George Herron of that corps played the accordion accompaniment for a sacred solo which his wife rendered, and spoke a few words of congratulations. Wor. Bro. T. E. Potts, district member of the lodge, with fifty-five years of membership, as final speaker, while in the past has been very fully commended upon the future of the order called for consideration and he hoped that the Protestant youth of today would swell its ranks and become effective members.

Thanks to all who contributed to the welfare of the event as a whole were given by Past County Master, W. G. Cottrell. The program closed with the 1st verse of 'Abide With Me,' and the National Anthem. The dance which followed was one of the most successful ever sponsored by the lodge. Next year Springbrook L. O. L. 442, the neighboring lodge of which the Grand Master of Ontario East and his brothers are members, celebrates its centenary.

Tobacco Harvest 95 P.C. Complete

St. Thomas, Sept. 25 (CP) — This year's tobacco harvest in the southwestern Ontario flue-cured belt is about 95 per cent complete and growers say frost damage of two weeks ago was below a million dollars.

Early reports of damage by a ground frost ran up to $5,000,000. The estimates were later lowered to $3,000,000. Now the growers say both figures were much too high.

On some tobacco belt farms, plants stand stripped bare with the last of the kilns to be emptied this week. But in the Bayham, Houghton and Walsingham sections and other areas stretching up into Brant, Oxford, and Middlesex counties, most growers still have a few kilns to be primed.

With 90 per cent of the crop harvested, growers generally figure they have cleared expenses and turned a fair profit on their year's operations.

This year's crop is described as containing a large proportion of cigaret type tobacco. The growing season was such that leaf was generally thinner, meaning good quality leaf, but less poundage per acre.

Pakistan High Commissioner Tells of Country's Problems To Women's Canadian Club

"I come not as a stranger, but as a member of the Commonwealth of Nations," stated His Excellency Mohammed Ali, High Commissioner to Canada, as he addressed a capacity gathering at the 37th year's open meeting of the Women's Canadian Club in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church assembly rooms, Monday evening, on "Some of Pakistan's Problems."

His Excellency, who was accompanied by his charming and gracious Begum, is a fluent speaker wielding the English language with consummate dexterity, interspersed with scintillating humor. In his definition of a 'diplomat' he smilingly remarked that it had been said that "a diplomat was one who 'lies' abroad." But that as it may, diplomacy is useful and often saves one from keen embarrassment—injecting here the story of the talkative neighbor. Next door to a certain diplomat lived a lady, Mrs. Smith, known for her volubility, which at times became most trying. On this particular evening, the diplomat, who had had a streame day, desired only to rest beside his open hearth and scan the news.

That' is Diplomacy

But as usual, came the 'knock' 'knock' on the door, so he escaped into an adjoining room, leaving his wife to meet the situation. After several minutes had elapsed and everything was quiet, he called out: "Is that talking machine off in there?" and unfortunately the lady was still present, but his wife with her tact saved the day by calling back "No, she left some time ago, and we have now the charming Mrs. Smith, next door." That, Mohammed Ali said, is 'that' is diplomacy, said His Excellency.

Another story—in fact the High Commissioner was replete with humorous anecdotes—concerned customs-men on guard: this sentry found it extremely difficult to remain awake as morning approached. Gradually his head lowered and his chin rested on his rifle barrel, upon the butt of the rifle. Occasionally he forced his eyes open to see if all were peaceful and out of the corner of one eye perceived the H.C.O. inspecting the guards. Immediately his lips began a jargon mumble of unintelligible sounds, then with a loud 'amen' he lifted his head and stood erect. "That was diplomacy in action," said the speaker.

Tells of Pakistan

Speaking of Pakistan, resumed His Excellency, in serious mood, it is politically, a new part of India. India is composed of one people, while here in Canada, the country is cosmopolitan, even in spite of its linguistic differences. India possesses many languages with a population of 400,000,000, which is one-sixth of the world's population, composed of 100,000,000 Islams, 200,000,000 Hindus and ent from St. Thomas, Bath, Saskatchewan, and Belleville.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was the recipient of many lovely gifts from showers held at the Ritchie Memorial residence, and at the home of Mrs. Ruth McEachern.

The bridegroom's gift to his bride was a silver tea service; the bride's gift to her organist and soloist were earrings; and to her bridesmaid, a jewel case.

"ROYAL TOUR"

A ball gown designed to delight any woman planning a special gown for the Canadian visit of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, is this creation by Angele Delanghe of London. Called "Royal Tour" it is in green brocade starred in gold, has skirt fullness falling from a low hipline and a deep cut-top to emphasize the bustline. Shoulder straps are wide and a tiny peplum at the back gives the effect of a full train skirt escaping from the confines of jacket tails. — (CP Photo.)

Green and Pink To be Worn By Elizabeth

By MURIAL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 25. (CP)—For fashion fans who eagerly await details of the clothes that Princess Elizabeth will wear on the Royal tour of Canada, a glance at the styles worn by the Princess during the year may be useful.

No preview of her choice will be given. The Princess prefers that her clothes merely be described as she wears them.

This being so, British fashion writers are guessing at possible styles and colors. One common prophecy on colors is green and pink—perhaps a new Edinburgh green and Elizabeth rose.

The Princess has often shown a preference for those colors. Her choice for the opening of the Festival of Britain last May was a cypress-green coat tailored in silk faille. Her rose-fitting, Tudor-shaped hat was piped in moss rose to tone with the pink ribbon backing the jewelled Order of the Garter.

On one of her visits to the Duke of Edinburgh during his naval service in Malta, the Princess chose a green peasant-gingham coat over a cyclamen-pink dress.

This preference has not been confined to day wear. Attending the opening concert at the Festival Hall, part of London's south bank exhibition, Elizabeth wore a heavy satin crinoline of cyclamen decorated with sprays of artificial roses.

For a government reception last May honoring King Frederik and Queen Ingrid of Denmark, Elizabeth chose a crinoline of pale lime green Nottingham lace over tulle. Sprinkled with sequins, the gown had a ruched bodice and stole collar.

Her old favorites—blue and mauve—are not entirely deserted. She has merely added to her choice of the pastel shades that suit her delicate coloring so well. These include honey golds, champagne, beige and bronze.

Since Elizabeth traded a becoming plumpness for a slim silhouette, she has shown new poise and confidence in her choice of clothes. Favoring sleek, tailored lines, that accent height and slimness, she achieves a chic simplicity that owes nothing to buttons and bows.

St. Michael's Alumni Holds First Meeting

Last evening, St. Michael's H.S. Alumni held their first meeting of the fall season in Bridge Street High School with Robert Temple presiding, assisted by Sister Mary Leonie.

A new secretary, Miss Mary McDougall, was nominated replacing Miss Rita Chapelle, who is now teaching in Windsor. Miss Violet Graham still remains as treasurer.

A discussion, regarding a drama night in November, in which Alumni members would take part in various plays, was held, and a dinner, with guest speaker was arranged for the near future.

Tea was served following the meeting.

Stocking Grievance Goes to Government

Hull, England — (CP) — The long, short and fat women of Britain may at last get action on an old grievance.

They want stockings made in leg, as well as foot sizes, and at a national conference of women's clubs here they decided to take the matter up with Commerce concerned.

At present, all women find that standard-size stockings leave them with knees agape, while stout women thrust slit the tops or suffer tonsilar tightness.

As for garments, this is what five-foot Mrs. E. Hilnt of Nottingham has to say: "I have so many folds in my stockings now that I dread to think of the bumps and lumps if I wore a really slinky dress."

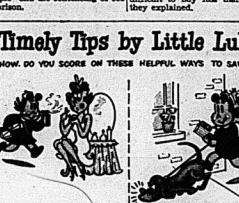
Girls Ride Horses Across Rockies

Victoria, B.C., —(CP) — Two Victoria girls duplicated the feats of British Columbia's pioneers-tiers recently and rode two horses across the rockies.

Ann Wilson and Phyllis Elwood of Victoria explain their trip this way:

"We had the horses in Alberta and we were in Victoria. Horses are expensive in Victoria and so we decided to go to Red Deer; and bring our animals out."



So the girls went back to Red Deer and made the nine-week trip back to Victoria.

As in the days of the pioneers the horses had to live off the country.

"Our pack pony was already fully loaded so we couldn't carry a 10-pound sack of oats, and it's difficult to buy less than that," they explained.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

An unwed mother is disillusioned

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am an unwed mother with a darling little boy who means the world and all to me.

What I want to ask you is, do you think I'll ever find the right man to be a good daddy for my boy, and make a good home? It seems as though all the men have on their minds is drinking and having what they call good times. They never seem to think about settling down or planning for the future.

I don't drink, smoke, go dancing or run around at all, but the men I know get mad if you don't do these things with them and won't have anything to do with you any more. I am trying to be a good mother for my little boy, so that when he grows up he will be proud of his mother, but I get so discouraged sometimes I don't know which way to turn.

What would you do, keep looking for my dream man, or forget about the men?—A. S. B.

Dear A.S.B.:

If I were you, I wouldn't do either. In other words, don't pin all your dreams and hopes on finding a husband, and don't make up your mind that you never will find one. Instead, take a middle course, and plan a useful, interesting worthwhile life for yourself and your little boy, and concentrate on that.

Some wise person has said that to attract the kind of man you want, you must live the kind of life that sort of man would live, and that seems to me a very sensible way of planning. If you fill your life with wholesome activities, including taking part in community work and recreation that will bring you in touch with others, I think in time the kind of steady, dependable and loyal man you want will find you.

Twenty-nine and divorced isn't suited to seventeen

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 17, and have been going with a man of 29 who has been divorced. I am very much in love with him and I know he loves me and wants to marry me. He never quarrels or argues with me, but is very good to me, and yet I hesitate to marry him as all my friends tell me he is too old for me.

We were engaged, but I gave his ring back, even though I love him and he loves me. I am mixed up and don't know what to do.—B. P.

Dear B.P.:

There is no reason why you should be mixed up and uncertain of what to do. Even a girl of 17 should have sense enough to realize that a man of 29 is unsuited to her, especially when he has one marital failure behind him.

Don't misunderstand me, I am not saying that the mere fact of his divorce makes him unsuitable. What I mean is that your difference in age, plus the fact that he has so much more experience of life than you have, would make it extremely difficult, if not impossible, for you to make a successful adjustment of these things.

Now that you have given back his ring, which was sensible, make up your mind that you will start in to associate with friends of your own age, and give yourself a chance to make a more normal marriage later.

Fashionable Efficiency

Rayon jersey daytime dress.

THE nylonized finish is one of the newest improvements in the fashion fabric field, and it is being applied to many materials such as the rayon jersey used for this little daytime number. It is the type of dress that sees one through a busy day efficiently and nicely. The color is beet-red with navy velvet for buttons and belt. Simple turn-down collar above a plunged neckline. Seamed hip release into graceful unpressed pleats. A below-waist closing makes for easy handling.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

When bride is to wear white velvet gown, and groom in wear dress blue Marine uniform

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

It is to be an October wedding, in church. The bride will wear a white velvet wedding dress. The groom will wear his dress blue Marine uniform. There are to be two bridesmaids. The best man and four ushers. Could the best man wear his Army uniform? Should the ushers wear any certain color suits. . . could they wear gray suits, which they all have?—M. P.

Isn't it true that this bride wishes to have her wedding regarded as a formal church wedding? If so, the velvet wedding dress would certainly seem to indicate this, and so would the formal military attire of her bridegroom. To be consistent with this formality the ushers would correctly wear formal daytime attire (if the wedding is to be in the daytime): cutaway coats, striped trousers, and appropriate accessories. (This formal attire may be rented, and today usually is!) The next best alternative for formal attire is for the ushers to wear dark-blue business suits. And, yes, the best man may wear his Army uniform.

She doesn't like "The Bridal —— us" or "Mendelssohn's "Wedding March"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to have a formal church wedding. I do not like the Bridal Chorus from "Lohengrin" and do not want it for my processional, or the Mendelssohn's Wedding March as the recessional. Are there any other music selections that can be used in place of these? I have asked many different people about my problem, but can't seem to get an answer.—A Bride-to-be.

The organist of your church is the one you should have consulted for he will gladly be your guide in selecting suitable alternatives for these marches, which, while more or less traditional, are not at all compulsory. For the processional you may like to have that tenderly beautiful "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden" or the stately hymn "The King of Love My Shepherd Is."

What to serve at Informal birthday party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm planning to give the first party I have ever given, a surprise party to celebrate the birthday of one of my friends. Would it be all right to serve any kind of sandwiches? And what else should I serve?—A. H.

Yes, at all kinds of informal parties, guests usually expect and usually welcome sandwiches—in party sandwiches, slim, delicately-made ones, of simple delicious fillings, made in small or large sizes, in kinds of breads. Or, as an alternative (or an addition) you may serve the ever popular chicken salad or fruit salad, with heated rolls. Coffee and/or tea and/or whatever beverage you prefer. Then the gala birthday cake, festively brought in with candles lighted, the cake to be cut by the birthday guest of honor.

Degree of wedding formality determines what men in wedding party should wear

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My wedding is to be an afternoon church wedding next month. I will wear a white nylon net ballerina-length gown, and my matron of honor will wear the same type gown. What would be the correct attire for the men in the wedding party?—J. H.

If you wish to have your wedding in the formal mood, the men in the wedding party should wear formal daytime attire: cutaway coats with correct formal accessories. For a semi-formal wedding, the men may wear silver cutaways or Oxford jackets, with formal accessories. If your wedding is to be small and on the side of informality, the men of the wedding party may wear dark blue suits, with appropriate accessories.

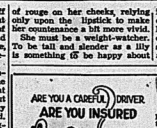
BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Girls are getting taller

Surveys show that petite girls are becoming fewer, tall girls more numerous. Many daughters are taller than their mothers. There may be an explanation. The mamas were not vitamin babies. They didn't have orange juice, and a big dietary spree for the Family Stalunces was a baked potato. Now infants are stuffed with strained vegetables almost from the start, get their vitamins and mineral salts, lap up a lot of milk every day. And look at 'em! They are on their way to being tall well-developed men and women.

Now it is the tall girl's turn. Fashion houses ask for the services of mannequins at least five feet five inches tall; they like them even taller. They show off clothes with more distinction than girls of average size.



But the tall girl may say that that fact doesn't make her feel any happier. She's always looking around for tall guys to take her places, and that cuts down the supply line. She must not let her inches control her thoughts too much.

There are certain matters she should keep in mind; good posture is necessary. If she is inclined to stoop, because she fancies she will look shorter, she will ruin her figure. The queenly pose is her good-looks ally. She must be exquisitely groomed. The cutie can get away with a scrambled hairdo, but not the one who didn't stop growing soon enough. She must select clothes that have style, rather than prettiness. Fluff and ruffles are not for her, but for the half-pint. Simplicity of costume and reliance on line and color to hit the fashion bull's-eye, must be her continual aim in regard to sartorial charm.

Shoes should not be so decorative as to attract attention. The same rule applies to gloves. Flat hats are best, naturally, but should not be so small that they are out of proportion to her build. She must strive for chic and dignity at one stroke. There are little tricks that work magic, and this type of young woman is entitled to resort to all of them.

Make-up should be perfect, but that applies to all of the sisters. More so to her, however, as she must never appear conspicuous. It may happen that she will be more attractive without a sign of rouge on her cheeks, relying only upon the lipstick to make her countenance a bit more vivid.

She must be a weight-watcher. To be tall and slender as a lily is something to be happy about if proportions are normal. If inclined to be heavy, she must shed her eyes to cream puffs and baked Alaskas. Then gain at the middle section is to lose youthful lines, and that's just too bad.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

by WINIFRED E. WILSON

HIDE AND GO SEEK

Have you ever tried identifying warblers in autumn after a mixed flock has alighted amidst the shrubbery of your garden? It is like a game of hide and go seek with the birds doing the hiding. At first you see one - - - then you don't. For a second, another little head appears through a leaf, and there is barely time to decide that it is either a blue or a prairie warbler. Something with two white wing-bars is glimpsed between the branches, but it might be a blackburnian or a black-throated green. White shafts pass so close to your face that it is impossible to tell if they belong to a chestnut-sided warbler, a junco, or a vesper sparrow. Another small bird, probably a warbler, keeps flitting from bush to bush, always evading you, and only giving the impression that it is mainly green.

That adds zest to the chase. There are many greenish warblers even in spring, and now some descendants of non-green parents add to the number. Some vireos and the ruby-crowned kinglet also are greenish, and comparable in size to warblers, causing more confusion. Size gives little aid anyway. Though a parula warbler is sometimes but 4½ inches long and a Connecticut might be as much as 6, nearly all warblers are from 5 to 5½ inches. A water-thrush or an ovenbird could be over 6 inches, but their habits and choice of locality usually prevent mistaken identity.

It is essential that we keep in mind definite marks for each species, more than one if possible. While eye-rings, yellow underparts, and olive backs are present in both Connecticut and Nashville warblers. We must think of some distinguishing feature. In spring the Connecticut wears a dark hood well down below its throat. Though much paler now, this still shows.

An immature black-throated green is hardly recognizable, because the cold-shaped, black blotch is not visible now. However, the very yellow cheek in the wings of a triangle is still quite noticeable. Only a trace of the Canada warbler's pretty, black necklace is left for identification purposes, but its golden spectacles, none piece at all, indicate its species.

Few of these tiny jewels of Birdland sing in autumn, and habitat cannot be relied on when they are in migration. But we must continue the game of hide and go seek, always hoping that we can accurately identify at least one warbler.

Producers Want Marketing Agency For Their Hogs

Toronto, Sept. 21. (CP)—Delegates to the Ontario Hog Producers Association meeting here today expressed their desire to establish a marketing agency for hogs.

At the same time, W. G. Johnson, secretary of the association, said it appears that powerful groups are controlling market prices by having 90 per cent of the hogs delivered directly to the buyers.

He said that only 10 per cent of the hogs sold are actually purchased on the Ontario Livestock market.

Said F. C. Newton, zone director of the Simcoe County Hog Association: "Give us legislation to control our own marketing.

"We saw this (slump) was coming . . . the reason is, producers have no control over the marketing. . . . I think a central marketing agency where a farmer has control over how and where his hogs are marketed will give a measure of control and assure us of a competitive price."

The price of hogs a hundredweight has dropped $7, from $36 to $29, in the last few days.

SCULLERS REGAINED TOP FORM TO GRAB IMPORTANT WIN FROM RIDERS

By refusing to walk the plank on Saturday afternoon in Toronto, the local boys managed to stall around long enough to reverse pocitsy and scuttle their opponents, Ottawa Roughriders, 17-10, while 16,280 mariners watched proceedings between intermittent rainstorms. This was the one Toronto Argonauts had to win and they did just that with Al Dekdebrun directing a wonderfully varied attack featuring Billy Bass, Doug Pyzer and Doug. Smylie, seen above carrying the ball with Hatfield and Anthony left, in hot pursuit. This victory, the second over their traditional enemies, enabled dominion champs to snare a triple tie for second place with Riders and Montreal Alouettes. Hamilton is still in possession of first place despite 17-16 loss Ala banzied them in Montreal on Sunday.—Central Press Canadian.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was walking along with Puds Simkins, just walking along, and we were passed a big billboard saying on it, Eat Royal Oats and Always Feel Like a King, and I said, Aw, who says kings are worth feeling like? I wouldn't be a king if you payed me a thousand dollers a minute, I said.

Why wouldn't you? Puds said. Wouldn't you like to sit on a throne and have all your loyal subjects walk passed and kiss your hand just for the honor? he said, and I said, I should say not, do you think I'd want to catch all their germs?

They'd be more likel to catch yours, and that would just be another proof how loyal they are to you, Puds said, and I said, Let them keep their own germs, and I'll keep mine. And anyways, I dont want to sit on a throne looking so royal and dignified I'd even be afraid to scratch, no matter how bad I itched, and if I ever got cawt chewing bubble gum while I was sitting up there, good nite it would be a heck of a scandle, I said.

Yeh, during office hours, maybe, but how about when you go out? Puds said. You'd have your own perrade every time you took a walk, with soldiers martching and bands playing and everything, he said, and I said, Yeh, but I'd have to stay in frunt of the perrade still looking dignified. Instead of running alongside of it yelling and really injoying myself. And believe me those solid gold crowns are heavy. Who wants to get used to always having a headache? I said.

Oh well, if you didn't like it you could always make yourself unpopuler and get yourself assassinated, Puds said.

Being the bummest argument yet and the end of the subject.

COACHES SPLINTERED IN TRAIN WRECK

Thirty lives were reported lost in this train wreck at Rugby, England. The train, London to Liverpool, had just emerged from a tunnel when it was derailed. The coaches splintered to matchwood, rolled down a 30-foot embankment.—Central Press Canadian.

BRITISH AIR FORCE HITS NORTH KOREA

Against the background of the mountains of North Korea, white smoke rises from buildings set in the midst of intricately patterned fields. The burning buildings were bombed by aircraft from the British 14th Carrier Air Group operating from the H.M.S. Glory. The U. N. naval air effort in Korean waters has been stepped up. Recently the air group of the British light fleet carrier flew the record number of 84 sorties in one day.—Central Press Canadian.

Baseball Peewees Enjoy Tour Of Ottawa, Hull

Walker Hardware baseball peewees had diversified entertainment during their stay in Ottawa on Saturday where they were eliminated by the Ottawa Flyers peewees 8-1 in the second game of the best-of-three OBA playdown series.

The team, accompanied by other boys and girls numbering 29 all told enjoyed a sight-seeing tour of the capital city on Sunday following a courtesy all-night stay at the YMCA after the Saturday game.

The boys were taken on a tour of the Parliament Buildings, the Peace Tower, Museum and Purification Plant under the guidance of red-coated Mounties, later taking in the sights of Hull, Quebec.

While in Ottawa they were the guests of the Elgin Theatre management seeing a motion picture called "Rhubarb", a film dealing with baseball.

On Sunday morning the boys attended divine service at their respective churches.

The boys were under the supervision of Coach Walter Bent. Willie Fordham, Redman barrier, joined the team in Ottawa Saturday night following the Redmen-Brockville game in Brockville.

Motors Defeat Cleaner Combines To Even Series

Belleville Motor Cars, taking advantage of Cleaner Combines pitchers' wildness defeated the "A section leaders by a 15-6 score at Alemite Field last night.

The game was the second of a best-of-three series for the city championship and left the teams tied at one victory each. The third and deciding game will be played Thursday night starting at eight o'clock.

The winners rapped out 11 hits and the combined efforts of Hazelton, pitching hurler, Bunton and Lucciola. They belted Harold for nine runs on seven hits and seven walks as five innings; tabbed Bunton for four runs off no hits and five walks in one-third innings and Lucciola for two runs and four hits over the balance of the route.

Reid went the route for the Motors giving up 10 hits, the Cleaners clustering four in each of the second and eighth innings when the losers scored three and two runs respectively with the other coming in the sixth after Mulvihill tripled and scored on infield out. Reid walked three and struck out a like number.

Motors Score First

Motors got away to an auspicious start in the first, rapping out two hits and getting a brace of walks plus two Cleaner bobbles. Cleaners came back to tie the score in the second off four hits but their rally was nipped by a smart Motor's double play.

Hatfield's triple and hits by Miller and O'Brien paved the way for four more Motor runs in the fourth and they added for six runs off one hit as O'Brien's home run prefaced three walks by Harold and five by Bunton. Bob gave way to Lucciola with two out and he squelched the eruption. They scored two more in the seventh to end route.

Cleaners got a single in the sixth and two more in the eighth off Mulvihill's wound - tripper with one man aboard.

Mulvihill led the Cleaners with a homer and triple with Jones and Young getting two each. O'Brien hit a four-bagger and single for the winners while Hatfield got a triple and single, Semark a double and single and Walsh a brace of singles.

Vancouver Bows To Peterborough In Title Lacrosse

Vancouver, Sept. 25 (CP) — Vancouver Combines today were faced with the problem of running around Peterborough Petes' stonewall defence.

They ran into it at full tilt last night and bounced off with a 16-9 loss in the first game of the best-of-seven series for the Canadian, senior lacrosse championship. Second game will be played at Victoria Wednesday.

Vancouver coach Johnny Cavanilla commented: "They're big boys. We've got to find more speed and we'll have to run around them. But we'll beat them."

Playing coach Don Crowe's comment: "We were terrible. We haven't played such poor lacrosse in our last 12 games, Nobody hardly ever gets a chance to shoot at our goal as often as Combines did."

Petes went about their victory slowly and methodically, forcing Vancouver to play their kind of game. The game was as slow at times the 2,500 fans began yelling for more action. Westerners are used to fast-breaking, running game.

Vancouver led 4-3 at the half by making the most of their chances. But their forwards took a harsh pummelling from the bigger Peterborough team.

Bringing up the rear were Express with five points, Engineers, Roustabouts and Trainmen with two and the Despatchers without a point.

On September 25, 1951, The Bank of Nova Scotia officially opened the new home of the Bank's General Office and Main Toronto Branch in the Bank of Nova Scotia Building, King and Bay Streets, Toronto.

Thus another chapter is written in the life and growth of a nation. More than a story of steel and stone, the new building is part of the vigorous life of the nation. It came into being through the ever-expanding demand for increased banking service by Canadians and through a busy city's need for many thousands of additional square feet of modern office space. It tells a story in form and substance, of confidence in Canada's future.

Materially, the building is the third highest bank building in the British Empire and the most modern structure of its kind in Canada. Its 25 floors enclose 320,000 square feet of floor space, providing everything that is new in modern banking and commercial office accommodation. It is veritably a city within a city . . . a city that thousands of men and women will enter daily in the course of business.

The new Bank of Nova Scotia Building means more than modern banking services and office accommodation. It is a magnificent symbol of Canada's progress. It is a building we invite you to visit when you are next in Toronto.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

YIP "YIPS" — HERSCHOCK YAPS

"What's gone wrong with you guys," roared COBI, president Bob Nesbitt's secretary Miss Friday, the one and only Harry "Yip" Radley following last night's Redmen - Memo game. "Sure, they tell us in Kingston these Brockville smashmen would take you in four straight, and here you've knocked the bejabers out of all ricksing and lambasted the Brockville Rhoys-av-the-backroom club's prediction's into a cocked hat." (The madder "Yip" gets, the more pronounced the brogue. If its wrestling he is discussing he's liable to swing into a Polish dialect).

"Furthermore", Yip yipped, "and it's me and the president that did lug the Hugh M. Campbell Trophy all the way from Kingston to printel it to the Memos. And yes ye sad fore ye hide this entry lypine. Tis ashamed av yourselves, ye should be. Now tis us, bedad that has to gander to Brockville tomorry night, just in case the Memos win. And back here Wednesday if they don't and back there Thursday again if they don't.

"I think we'll be parkin' the danged dewdad in Bob Nisbitt's cubby hole in Kingston and you can plek it up at your leasure whoever wins it. Sure tis meself that don't mind doing a bit av secretarial worruk, but I'll be dadbusted if me dotles call for being nurse to a chunk o' silverware."

Seriously the Redmen came up with a fine exhibition again last night and this time the pendulum swung their way. Billy Sirahan yielded up but seven hits to the Memos sluggers and the Red bludgeoners came through with clutch clouts that sent two with the Brockville balloon high in the ozone in the disastrous third.

Fiery Andy Herschock, Memos coach si last found an umpire who would stand up to his filibustering and no zero, last night. True, the stocky mentor is somewhat of a showman but that can be taken too far as he discovered last night. The umps made him listen to "Memos" and when he bucked at being heard at the end of the game, the law came in and escorted the loquacious coach to quieter scenes.

It all happened with a schoolboy gesture that the' Redmen were using a baseball first as one of the proper official trps. And Herschock and company who, it is said, revelled in rhubarbs and drawn-out arguments in their recent semi-finals series, not to mention last Saturday in Brockville, struck a snag when they found the umps had halted the verbal "clowning" with an ejection order.

It's the rather playsme stuff, sort of kindergarten caltlure when a team that has won three straight games in a senior championship series suddenly finds itself with defeat staring it in the face and resorts to such cry-baby tactics.

SEE, EYE!

It just goes to show that you cannot tell what might happen in softball, like baseball, until the last batter is out and the final whistle blows. Last night "Warpy" O'Brien's Belleville Motors literally "walked" away with a 15-8 victory over the Cleaner Combines to even their city AA championship best-of-three series at one game each. Cleaner pitchers were wild, at least starter Harold and in - betweener Bob Bunton were, the pair dividing fourteen passes between them. Belleville fed the combos, but the damage was done, Meanwhile Jack Reid breezed along allowing ten hits, which came in four - bunch clusters in two separate innings. The third and deciding tussle is slated for Thursday night starting at eight o'clock.

THIS SHOULD BE GOOD!

Friday night the Kingston Guards, crack senior "A" softball squad and the Kingston Penitentiary and managed by the Kingston Dinny Lee's baseball mentor Stan. Scrutton, will be here in an exhibition tilt with the city champions Glen Roys. The two clubs are slated to battle with the entire proceeds devoted to an injured player fund the Glens have started. The Guards boast a smart team, well balanced and the tilt should be well worth glimpsing. There will be a draw for a handsome prize, so better grab those tickets early.

AND SO SHOULD THIS!

Cleaner Combines hook up with the Toronto Family Credit Jewellers here on Wednesday night starting at eight in the second game of their Intermediate AA second round playdowns. IF . . .

So close is the race for the American League pennant that, forsooth, a playoff between New York, Cleveland and Boston, the boys got together yesterday in a coin - tossing huddle to see who would play where, and when.

The Indians may not have used their heads in recent ballitussles but they came in mighty handy in the penny-flip, the heads, that is, that grace one side of one of Uncle Sam's coppers.

The outcome was, and representatives of the Associated Press, United Press and International News Service were on hand to see that no double-headed or two-tailed coins were used, that if Cleveland ties with New York, the playoff will take place in Cleveland on October 1st, and if the Red Sox / go into a stalemate with the Tribe, Cleveland also gets the home game on that date.

And if New York ties with Boston, the playoff tussle will take place at Fenway Park.

The boys took no chances on what the fickle baseball gods may do in the blazing flight now taking place along the pennant trail. They figured there is a possibility of a three-way tie and again they went into a coin-flipping get-together.

And again the Indians war medicine was good. They drew a bye into this series of battles with New York slated to play Boston at New York on October 1st. The winner of the Yankees - Red Sox tilt would then face the Indians at the winner's city;

In any event the series will open in the American League winners city on Wednesday, October 3rd, if New York or Boston wins and on Thursday, Oct. 4th if Cleveland wins. Hotel space shortage necessitated the latter date at Cleveland, it was stated.

Yanks Can Clinch it Friday; Brooks Need Four of Seven But Giants Are Still Hoping

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Three teams today are waiting for a miracle to take place—for only by such a phenomenon can New York Giants, Cleveland Indians or Boston Red Sox win the pennant.

Leo Durocher and his Giants apparently believe in miracles. They are staying stubbornly alive when they must know they should be dead.

Yesterday, while Brooklyn manager Charlie Dressen was announcing Preacher Roe as his pitcher in the world series opener, the relentless Giants chipped another half game off the Dodgers' National League lead with a 4-3 triumph over Boston Braves. All other games were idle.

Brooklyn now leads New York by 2½ games, the smallest margin since the opening week of the campaign. Since the Giants started their futile and seemingly hopeless chase Aug. 16, they chopped off 11 games from the Dodgers' once insurmountable lead. The Giants have won 33 of 40 since then for an amazing .825 gait.

The Giants' victory left the clinching combination for the Dodgers at four games. Brooklyn has seven games to play, four in Boston and three in Philadelphia. A twi-night twin bill in Boston is on the books for Friday, but the four remaining games are divided between Philadelphia and Boston. They are Robin Roberts (21-12), the Philly ace, tonight.

Yanks Can Clinch It Friday

New York Yankees can clinch their 18th flag Friday night when over the Philadelphia Athletics this afternoon and a sweep of Friday's doubleheader with the Red Sox, all at Yankee Stadium, will finish off the Indians and the Red Sox.

New York's clinching number is three. That means all they have to do to capture their third straight pennant is play .500 ball for their remaining six games or capture of what the Indians do in their three games. Of course, that would sink the Red Sox, whom they play five of their six games.

Casey Stengel, ex - Yankee pilot, has named Bob Kuzava to oppose the Athletics' Bobby Shantz today. This will be Kuzava's first start in six weeks. He has been used exclusively as a relief of late. Shantz (17-9), is the A's top pitcher. He has knocked off the Yankees three times.

Early Wynn, one of Cleveland's three 20-game aces, is slated to tackle Washington, it will be Bob Porterfield of the Senators against rookie Leo Kiely of the Red Sox.

A two-out single by Eddie Stanky in the ninth inning drove in Davey Williams with the run that gave the Giants their 3rd victory over the Braves in as many days. It was the Giants' last home game of the season.

Dave Koslo, who came to the rescue of starter Sheldon Jones in the 4th inn was credited with his 10th victory.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

A proposed change in the Boston Bruins' ownership will be main topic of discussion at Wednesday's meeting in New York of National Hockey League governors.

League president Clarence Campbell said last night at Montreal that the meeting has been in the discussion stage for some time. Only the scheme, the Boston Garden would take over the reins of the Bruins from a syndicate that is getting owned. No price has yet been disclosed.

Johnny McCormack, newest member of the Montreal Canadiens hockey team, yesterday at Toronto became the father of a baby boy. Sale of McCormack to Montreal was announced Saturday by Toronto Maple Leafs. The Leafs sent him to their Pittsburgh farm club last December for getting married without team officials' permission.

At Quebec, Very Rev. R. L. Seaborn, Anglican dean of Quebec, said in a statement yesterday he supported proposals for a negotiation list agreement between the National Hockey League and the Quebec Senior Hockey League.

Dean Seaborn said: "I am very glad to see that protests have been made against— placing of young hockey players on the negotiation list of professional hockey clubs, without their prior knowledge or consent in many cases."

Galt Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A division have started pre-season workouts that performed under the direction of manager Jack Murray and coach Red Hamill.

Maurice Richard — the Rocket—signed his 1951-52 contract with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League. No announcement was made of the terms but it is believed the right winger received a bonus arrangement similar to that of last season. Then he got $100 a goal after 35. He wound up the season with 42 goals and 24 assists for 66 scoring points.

Brownies Have Veeck Spirit, But That's All

St. Louis, Sept. 25—(AP)—Bill Veeck has instilled a bit of spirit in the last place St. Louis Browns since taking control in July, but the won-lost column hasn't begun to show it.

A check of the club's standing today as compared with July 5— the last day before Veeck bought the Browns from Bill and Charles Dewitt—shows the team has gone up just .033.

On July 5 the club had 21 victories and 49 defeats for .300. Today the club has 49 victories and 98 defeats for a .333 rating. That gives Veeck 28 triumphs.

Veeck says that's what you could call energetic. But then no one looked for an overnight miracle. The flamboyant Veeck tempers his optimism.

Veeck's purpose, naturally, is to cop a pennant. But he realizes it will not come easily or quickly. He says, however, that he hope to be up there next year, fighting for the first division.

That alone is quite a prediction for a team that has enjoyed first division life only 12 times in a half century.

Not Much Chance

Veeck didn't have much chance to resurrect the Browns this early in the year, but trading and outright purchase of players began to take effect in a big way when Bill moved in.

During the winter he expected to build a good ball club—including the unveiling of a successor to manager Zack Taylor.

As it is 15 players have joined the Browns under the Veeck regime, but only one that saw him give up just three hits, walk one and fan 11 in 10 1-3 innings of relief hurling.

Batting Title For Stan Musial

Stan Musial is almost a sure thing to win his fifth National League batting championship with a .358 average and only four games to go. Leading runner-up Richie Ashburn of Philadelphia trails by 14 points. Musial seems assured of another crown to go with his collection dating back to 1943, the St. Louis slugger won in '43, '46, '48, and '50.

Ashburn, .341, in second place has a seven point edge on Brooklyn's Jackie Robinson, .334 with the Dodgers' Roy Campanella fourth at .328.

Ferris Fain of Philadelphia picked up six more points last week to boost his average to .327, to be in the lead for the American League batting championship. Chicago's Minnie Minoso is over second place with .325 while Ted Williams of Boston was third with .324. George Kell, Detroit third sacker who was second last week, fell to fourth place when his average dipped from .322 to 316.

Boucher Favors Draft System

Guelph, Sept. 25 (CP) —Frank Boucher, general manager of New York Rangers, said yesterday he favors the creation of a draft system to keep professional clubs staffed with players.

Boucher, emphasizing that he was expressing his own opinion, said he was doubtful whether the National Hockey League Rangers obtain any benefit from the thousands of dollars they spend on their sponsored clubs.

"I don't think it's paying off," he said. "We haven't got a Ranger in the past five years from any of our sponsored clubs. There's still a chance, but meanwhile, it's costing us an awful lot of money."

Boucher, who admitted that designing a draft program might be difficult, said "if we had a proper draft system we wouldn't need sponsored clubs."

The pro clubs would get together in order of seniority and pick their own players from the amateur ranks. No agreement would be necessary with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Mimico Leads Lacrosse Finals

Brampton, Ont., Sept. 25—(CP) —Mimico Mountaineers last night stretched their Minto cup playoff lead to two games by beating Manitoba All-Stars 20-9 in the second encounter of their best-of-five Canadian Junior Lacrosse finals.

Mimico took the series opener 20-12 Saturday night. The third game will be played here Wednesday, the fourth and fifth, if necessary, Thursday and Friday.

Savoie Wins Unpopular Decision Over Cantor for Lightweight Title

Montreal, Sept. 25 —(CP) — ing, landing body blows that slowed Savoie. He was reprimanded once in the third when referee Maurice O'Connell said he was holding in the clinches.

In preliminaries, Fernando Leighton of Quebec, kayoed Myril Glimstad of Springfield, Mass., at 1:29 of the third in a 10-round-er.

Bryan Kelly of Niagara Falls, Ont., also scored with a K.O. over Montreal's Aime Gauthier at 2:14 of the sixth in an eight-round bout.

Another Toronto boy, Dave Mitchell, dropped a six-round decision to Noel Paquette of Montreal, while Dexter Connors of Halifax took a four-round decision from Bobby Dufour of Montreal.

Boo Decision

Montreal fans who usually support their own boys were definitely in favor of Cantor at the end of the bout. The unsuited champion was effective with a steady jab and a straight-arm right that twice rocked Savoie.

Cantor was the crowd's favorite in all but the second, fourth, fifth and sixth rounds.

However, the two judges voted Montreal Joseph Gow five-four-three for Savoie, Desse Green six-four-two for Savoie. Judge Ross Clement scored in favor of Cantor, giving him eight rounds against Savoie's four, with two even.

Savoie was at his best in the second round when he scored with a hard right to Cantor's midriff, lifting the Toronto boy off the floor. In the fourth, Savoie cut Cantor's mouth with a right to the jaw.

Cantor was superior in in-fight-

Backs-To-Wall Redmen Trounce Brockville 7-3 For First Series Win

Roar Back For Six in Third After Yielding Three In 1st, Strahan Blanks 'Em for Eight

Belleville Redmen clung to a slim hope today to win the Central Ontario Baseball League title after trouncing the Brockville Memos here last night 7-3 in the fourth game of the championship series. Memos now lead the series 3-1.

Erupting for six runs in the third after spotting the visitors three in the first, the Reds played spankling baseball behind Billy Strahan's seven-hit hurling to win the verdict. The Memos were blanked for the last eight innings.

Coach Andy Hershock was tossed out of the game by Umpire Bill Keenan after protesting too volubly on the ball-and-strike calls by the Redmen. It was stated Brockville has protested the game on these grounds.

All Safes:

Practically every Redman had a hand in contributing to the win as the hometown's weak All-out forcing runs in the third frame and gain the lead that ultimately proved a winning margin.

After big Bill Kasepchuk had set the Reds down without difficulty in the first two frames, they came to life with a vengeance in the bottom of the third. Pat Gilmour started things off with a ringing double to left field that sent Trusdell racing to the fence for the ball. Strahan sacrificed and was safe at first when the lemons elected to try for Gilmour who arrived ahead of the throw to third.

Don Gilmour drove in the first Red run with a single to centre and Strahan scored on second Fitzpatrick's safety through the box sent Strahan, scampering across the platter and Gilmour beat the throw to third base. Then a bit of baseball psychology by manager Pat Wilson brought the tying run across and seemed to rattle hurler Kasepchuk.

Wilson sent Fitzpatrick down to second after Kasepchuk had started his windup. Big Bill, seeing Fitzpatrick running, stopped his motion and made a move toward the runner, thus committing a balk and allowing both runners to advance a base. This bothered him to the extent that he let go a wild pitch and Fitz scampered to third.

Munroe drew a base on balls to put two men on, the score tied, and still nobody out. Goyer fanned but Johnny Dean unleashed a tremendous drive to the left-centre field fence for three bases to drive in the two runners. He scored a moment later on Carson's ground ball to Stelmach, Stelmach tried to make a play at third base but threw the ball away, Reeves fanned and Carson ended the big inning being caught trying to steal third.

Carson drove in the Reds other tally in the seventh with a triple to centre scoring Goyer who had singled.

Score Three in First

The Memos took full advantage of a shaky Redman start to plate their three in the first. Weaver fanned to start but Coleman and Galen singled and all hands were safe when Kasepchuk's double-play grounder was mishandled by Carson. Pierce popped one to shortstop for an automatic infield fly but two runs scored when Reeves charged in too far and the ball dropped safely. Hayes ended the frame by whiffing.

The Memos only other serious threat came in the seventh when a pair of hits and a dropped fly ball in short centre field loaded the sacks with only one out. Strahan settled long enough however to get Coleman on a short fly and made quick go from swinging on a wide breaking curve after the count had reached three and one.

Tossed Out of Game

The big rhubarb of the contest came in the fifth when, after Kasepchuk had passed two straight men, Andy Hershock, Memo mentor, contested the legality of the baseballs being used in the game. His protested so vehemently that Bill "Squeek" Reason, plate umpire, ejected him from the game. Brockville then announced that they were playing the game under protest.

Don Gilmour and Dick Fitzpatrick each collected a pair of singles to lead the Red batting attack. Dean and Carson banged out triples while Paddy Gilmour lashed out a two-bagger.

"Red" Coleman was the only visitor to tag Strahan for more than one hit as he pitched up a double and single, the former being the only extra-base hit by the Memos.

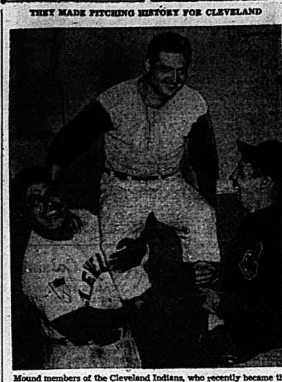
Quebec Players Sign Contracts Similiar to Pros

Montreal, Sept. 25 (CP) —A meeting of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association last night decided that henceforth all Quebec Senior League players will play under contracts similar to those of professional clubs.

Previously QSHL players were required to sign an amateur playing card.

The league now will bind its players by contracts which can be purchased by other leagues at the end of each season.



The QSHL said it would adopt a new by-law at the end of the coming season, setting different prices on its players. Under the proposed clause, a player could be purchased by the National League for $10,000, by the American League for $7,000 and by the Pacific Coast League for $5,000.

General-manager Frank Selke of the Montreal Canadiens of the NHL told the meeting an understanding between the National and Quebec Senior Leagues which will remain in effect despite recent protests. The agreement provides in one section that players on NHL negotiating list must sign an NHL contract before playing in the QSHL.

LUCKY LEAF CENTRE IS SOLD TO MONTREAL IN STRAIGHT CASH DEAL

JOHNNY McCORMACK

The recent announcement of the sale of Johnny McCormack, lanky Leaf centre, to Montreal Canadiens in a straight cash deal, was reported by Conny Smythe, Toronto Maple Leaf pawpy, who had made a promise to Frank Selke, general manager Canadiens, some time ago. It was to the effect that the Montreal club would have first chance to obtain McCormack, who was sent to the Leafs' minor league farm at Pittsburgh last season following his marriage in mid - season. It was generally believed at the time the demotion was a punitive measure, but subsequent developments showed Leafs had intended to bring Johnny back to the major league in time for the playoffs. However, they were defeated in that purpose when Johnny suffered a broken collarbone in the AHL playoffs.—Central Press Canadian.

Pep First to Wear Crown Thrice, If He Can Defeat Sandy Saddler

New York, Sept. 25 (AP) — the 28-year-old challenger is Willie Pep can become the first boxer to wear the same crown three times if he defeats featherweight champion Sandy Saddler in their fourth title bout tomorrow night at the Polo Grounds.

The crafty Hartford fighter held the championship from 1944 to Oct. 29, 1948 when Saddler scored a jolting upset by knocking Pep out in the fourth round at Madison Square Garden.

Pep bounced back on Feb. 11, 1949 and outpointed Saddler in a 15-round bout at the Garden to regain his title.

Saddler 2-1 Favorite

Yankee Stadium was the scene of their last match on Sept. 8, 1950 and Saddler again dethroned wily Willy on an eight round TKO. A shoulder injury forced Pep to quit, although he was ahead in points on most scorecards.

The 25-year-old Saddler, who lost his last fight to Paddy DeMarco on a split decision, will rule a 2-1 favorite tomorrow night to whip Pep, winner of 164 fights against only three defeats. In their 15 round bout.

But that's good news as far as concerned because the favorite has lost in the three previous meetings.

Milwaukee Wins League Title

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 25 (AP) —The league champion Milwaukee Brewers levelled a 16-hit attack against six St. Paul pitchers here last night and humbled the Saints 17-2, to win the American Association final play-off round 4-2.

Milwaukee now play Montreal Royals in the Little World Series starting in the Canadian city Wednesday night.

Campbell Favors Face-Off Circles

North Bay, Sept. 25 (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, believes the new, 20-foot face-off circles directly in front of the goal nets will improve the game and enable fans to get a better view of face-offs.

He made a close study of the circles during a weekend visit here for the Chicago Black Hawks-Detroit Red Wings exhibition game.

He said he believed amateur leagues will adopt the circles by Oct. 3 and that fans, especially those in small arenas, will be able to see the face-offs more clearly.

"Often in small arenas, people cannot see a face-off in the corner," he said.

FRANKFORD

Approximately 25 members of the Frankford Lions Club drove to Trenton on Wednesday evening to attend a joint meeting of Trenton, Brighton and Frankford clubs in the Queensway Hotel. Guest speaker for the evening was Lion Roy Keaton, Director General of Lions International.

The Frankford United Church Choir held a special practice and social evening at the home of Mr. Arthur Southworth Wednesday evening preparatory to their trip to Ivanhoe Sunday to assist with the Ivanhoe Anniversary Services.

Mr. Ed. Turley has returned to London, following a week's holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Turley in Trenton, and with friends in Frankford.

Misses Marlen Munn and Barbara Bonisteel attended Stirling Fair on Wednesday afternoon.

It is expected that the Frankford Branch of the Canadian Legion, and the 1st Frankford Boy Scout Troop will be among the organizations helping to line the streets and highway on the Royal Visit to Trenton.

Sorry to hear that Ted Slingerland has been quite ill this past week, confined to his bed.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lohnes and Darlene spent the dinner hour Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lohnes.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You may like to overrule a rule with judgment. But you are not well fitted for that job until you know the rule. Horse Sense claims to teach you the rule you should first know.

A simple overcall (non-jump defensive bid) shows a minimum foundation of five tricks, two high cards, one sure trick. In response thereto, a jump bid is forcing to game.

In answer to a simple overcall, a jump bid shows a hand as good as an opening bid. And an opening bid of one shows five tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks.

That should make it easy for you to know the rule. Suppose you have a hand that could open the bidding. If partner bids a simple overcall before you get a chance to bid, you jump in response.

If such a jump response is an asset in a major suit, ten tricks are enough for a game. And if both partners have told the truth, they will have a game with their ten tricks.

But if such a jump response is a takeout to a new suit, the margin of safety may be close. There is usually a play for it. But if the contract ends in a minor suit, the play may be tough.

So a poor player may feel safer with six tricks for a jump takeout to a minor suit. An experienced player, however, is fortified with the basis. He may use his judgment for one trick in such a case.

South opponent opens with one heart. Your west partner makes a simple overcall of one spade. You have what you would have needed for an opening bid with this east hand:

♠K J 3 2
♥9 3
♦A Q 7
♣A 8 4 2

So you jump, your response is three spades. You tell your partner that you have a hand that could have started with an opening bid. You say you have enough to help him make a game in his suit.

Give him that jump signal or he will cry: "Why don't somebody tell me these things."

ATTENDS PEERS' COLLEGE

Tokyo, Sept. 25 (AP) — The newspaper Yomiuri said today the imperial household does not want Japan's crown prince Akihito to become a "cosmopolite and another Duke of Windsor." A controversy over where the 18-year-old prince would be educated was won by the "Old Guard," the newspaper said. He'll attend peers' college instead of the more democratic Tokyo university.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

An afternoon in the life of a Hollywood reporter, or, why columnists get gray:

The press agent on the Gary Cooper picture calls up and says he's got a hot story on Coop. "Hot story on Coop?" I reply, sticking the tongue almost through the cheek.

"Yeah, sure," said this zippy character. "Coop thinks the cowboy hero is being outmoded by the hero of science fiction. How can a guy on a pinto compete with a space-ship jockey?"

"You're sure he'll talk about this?" I inquire, recalling previous encounters with the laconic Coop.

"Absolutely," answers the flack. "Coop's a changed man. He talks!" Yup.

Ridden with doubts, I agree to risk the venture and trek to the San Fernando Valley.

"How about it Coop?" begins the press agent. "Don't you think the guy with the six-shooter is being run out of business by men with ray guns?"

"Yep, I guess you're right," comments Coop.

"Because the kids won't go for heroes who can only plug three or four villains at a time; they want whole armies struck down by rockets," prods the agent.

"Yep, I wouldn't be surprised," the actor agrees.

"And it looks as though the cowboy hero will become something of a historical figure, like Robin Hood or something," the press agent continues, reminding me of a salmon struggling upstream against all odds.

"Yep," is the reply.

As I am leaving, the legman for a female columnist is introduced to Coop. "Well," says he jauntily, "have you got any scoops that you didn't give to Thomas?"

"Nope," says Coop, with a grin, "I just spilled everything to Thomas."

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

For Wednesday, Sept. 26, 1951

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Grand start influences, most sound endeavors favorably rated. Do make this day count on credit side of mental ledger. Different tasks, delicate matters, mental and artistic work sponsored.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Promising indications and you can achieve in new undertakings as well as advance in everyday work. Fine period for art, science, medicine teaching, studying; for trades, too.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—An opportune, benefic stretch ahead starting with this stimulating good day. Do plan sensibly in order to make all the progress possible. Tact!

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Smile. Pitch determinedly into work or whatever your program. Ask God's help and you will do better, faster. Mental and laborious interests equally favored. Be original.

July 24 to August 23—(Leo)—Some restrictions (Sun rays indicated) which can be more helpful than hindering, pointing up need for self control, denials, etc. Progressive day if you tone down over-confidence.

August 24 to September 23—(Virgo)—Inspiring time for writers, creators of new devices, useful implements, machinery, in all fields supplying needs of our armed forces, home and factory. Decorators, modistes, advances.

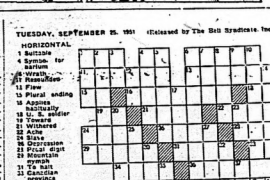
September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Read Taurus and Cancer, aims for you now. Don't permit inertia, doubt, lack of enthusiasm or any such tempters to hamper your good work. Gain in new undertakings strongly sponsored.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Mars' position wisely stresses a restraining hand; May tend to overreach, crowd yourself to attain. Be sensibly moderate, you will go farther, conserve strength. Brain work tops.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Your Jupiter's aspect warns against undue extravagance, carelessness in trading, and handling properties. Otherwise day is encouraging, helpful for all honest, worthy interests.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Have system, forethought; don't make unnecessary changes in plans or schedule unless to improve a program. You can have fine returns from sound efforts, perhaps gain fresh advantages.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Your Uranus among the favorably aspected planets. Quickly lay out your day and attack with least possible red tape. Add new methods, devices of value.



February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Especially friendly rays for you, for advancing youngsters' interests, adding to income, or at least solidifying present position, holdings. Improve where you can. Be hopeful.

YOU BORN TODAY: Intuition, impartiality, judgment, great graciousness, generosity and studiousness inherent characteristics and admirable. May be susceptible to the influence of others through sympathy, therefore it is important you choose friends, associates most carefully, with thought as to character, moral fiber. You have a knack for doing things well but bringing about results in unorthodox fashion. Especially suited to work with the soil, animals; to mechanics. Unusual artistic ability. Pray for guidance.

Birthdate: Irving A. Bacheller, author, journalist; Geo. Gershwin, music composer; Jean Andre Gericault, painter.

WHY WE SAY —
PRETTY

— Subversive movement
It was not long ago that a man could be for a girl to be called pretty. The word is derived from the Old English "prostle" which meant cunning or sly. After centuries it changed to crafty, then handsome and finally to its present meaning.

Engineer and 31 Passengers Will Settle in Canada

New York, Sept. 25. (AP)—The engineer and 31 passengers of the crashed Scottish highliner Hispaniola through the iron curtain to freedom in Germany will be re-settled in Canada, it was announced yesterday.

Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, chairman of the Iron Curtain Refugee campaign, said members of the group are to be brought to a camp in Ludwigsburg, Germany, for final screening by Canadian immigration authorities.

The group that rode the rails in a dramatic escape from communist-ruled Czechoslovakia is being sponsored by the International Rescue committee, a private American organization.

Those in the escape plot stood guard over communist officials on the train, ready to shoot it out if any interference.

Passengers who wished to return to Czechoslovakia were permitted to do so by U.S. authorities.

Conroy Walkout Leaves Big Split In Labor Ranks

Vancouver, Sept. 24 — (CP) — The Canadian Congress of Labor slapped a gaping wound today after a convention battle here ended in the biggest blowoff in recent labor history in this country.

The annual convention would up Friday night but repercussions followed Saturday, leaving a wide-open split in the executive of the 350,000-member Congress.

National Secretary - treasurer Pat Conroy, who shapes Congress policy, resigned. So did Vice-presidents C. H. Millard of Toronto, chief of the 60,000-man United Steel Workers, and Alex MacAusiane of Toronto, Canadian head of the Oil Workers' International Union.

Millard Out Too

Millard quit one of the four vice-presidencies after the Congress executive had rejected what it considered Millard's bid for greater power in the Congress.

But Millard had already pulled off his coup, getting more representation for his union — the biggest in Canada — on the C. C. L. executive.

At this point, Conroy suddenly quit Friday night. He has so far steadfastly refused to return to his key post.

The following day, MacAusiane announced his resignation in crystal sympathy with Conroy's stand.

The battle, brewing for a long time, was touched off during the election of officers.

Backing Sam Baron

The executive decided to back for re-election to the Congress executive committee Sam Baron of Hamilton, recently fired as Canadian head of the textile workers by his international chief in the United States.

Millard put up two steel-union delegates instead and got the support of the packinghouse workers and international Woodworkers.

This was enough to elect the steel men where there had been only one before although Millard himself quit his vice-presidency.

When the result was announced, Conroy walked out.

An executive council meeting has been called for Ottawa in late October. It will consider Conroy's departure and what is to be done about it. Meanwhile, Conroy's post will be filled by Harry Campbell of Winnipeg, second-in-command of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT:

CAMPBELLFORD

Thomas McCook, Retires After 60 Years Service With Company

Campbellford — Citizens of Campbellford took off their collective hats this week to a man who has achieved a unique and enviable record of service, when Thomas McCook of this town retired after 60 years service with the local pulp and paper industry. Mr. McCook's achievement is almost without record. He has been superintendent of the local plant of the Gair Company of Canada and although he is now superannuated, his services will still be available in an advisory capacity.

Mr. McCook is the senior employee, not only of the Gair Company plant in Campbellford, or even in Canada, but of the entire Gair organization, Of Scottish extraction, Tom was born in Seymour township a short distance from Campbellford. He attended country school near the village of Meyersburg and at the age of 14 started work in Campbellford at the paper mill, which at that time was the only one of its kind in this part of the country.

Drove Horse and Wagon

Tom drove a horse and light wagon as his first job, but since then has worked at just about every job in the mill, weighing and drawing straw, firing, back tender, machine tender, and finally superintendent.

Always a familiar figure in show rings at local fairs, Tom's hobby was horses and his favorite sport, horse racing. Until recently, he kept a good driving horse, as he felt this was the only sure way of getting through the snow drifts in the winter time.

In the early days of the paper industry in Canada, the main product was strawboard, straw for which was purchased from farmers in the surrounding county. To haul this to the mill, twelve teams of horses were kept. Owing to his knowledge of horses Tom did the buying when replacements were needed to keep the horse power up to full strength. He still can remember the cold winter mornings when the teams would leave the local plant at 4 or 5 a.m.! travel roads in the frosty air before daybreak, and finally arrive at their destination after a cold lunch they would load up and start for home, sometimes in a blinding blizzard or drizzling rain. Often as not, the teams would have to stop on their homeward trip and double up in order to get the loads up the long steep hills.

The men would pull into the mill at nine or ten at night, unload, feed the horses, groom them and bed them down for the night. Though this would seem a hardship to the younger generation, Thomas McCook thinks of these as the good old days when everybody was happy and contented, even if the pay was only one dollar a day. He feels that in those times people got far more pleasure out of life, he thinks people now require too much in the way of entertainment.

Great Improvement Seen

The greatest change in the paper industry since Mr. McCook started is the great improvement in paper making machinery, he says. The machine at that time turned out two tons of paper in 24 hours and ran only in the summer months. There were no dryers, so the wet sheet was taken off the machine, laid on a wooden rack, hauled away by Tom with his one-horse wagon, and placed in the sun to dry. If a shower came up, all hands ran out of the mill, picked up the rack and carried it in out of the rain. Four years later, when a dryer was first installed which turned out four tons of paper in 24 hours, it was considered such an improvement that people came from far and wide to see it.

"Early to bed and early to rise" is Tom's recipe for good health. He has enjoyed good health throughout his life and refrains absolutely from the use of liquor or tobacco.

Campbellford—Mr. and Mrs. J. A. M. Thompson, of Campbellford, celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary on Thurs., with members of their family attending the affair from many distant points. The day was also the tenth anniversary of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thompson, of Campbellford.

Mr. Thompson is of Scottish parentage, his father coming from Scotland in the pioneer days of Campbellford, to settle on the farm now owned and occupied by the couple.

Mr. Thompson was formerly married to Jessie Innes, who died at an early age, leaving two small children, a daughter, Agnes, who trained for the nursing profession and who passed away four years ago, and a son, John D., who is now principal of a consolidated school at Fenelon Falls, Ontario.

On September 20th, 1911, 40 years ago Mr. Thompson married his present wife, Bertha May Humphries. She is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Adam Humphries of Asphodel Township, and the eldest sister of a present ex-warden of Peterborough County, in the person of James Humphries.

Little Benny's Note Book

It was drizzeling a little, and I was standing at ma's window wondering if it was getting redy to stop or just practicing to come down harder, and I thought O, I hope it's too much in it, I bet I wouldn't hardly get wet, if ma would let me try it.

And I started to give her a few hints, saying, You couldn't actually call this raining, could you, ma?

Goodness no, the farmers must be quite disappointed, ma said, and I said, Well anyways, a little tiny rain like this is good for flowers, aint it, ma?

Yes indeed, ma said, and I said, Then maybe its just as good for us, too.

Would you like to make the experiment? ma said, and"I started to feel lucky, saying, Sure, ma, G, I'll run around the block a couple of times and I bet it will make me feel grate. Be careful not to drop the pots, ma said, and I said, What pots?

Why, the flower pots, of course ma said, How are you going to find out if rain is as good for boys as it is for flowers unless you carry a cupple of my little house plants with you? she said. Well aw G, ma, cant I just put the plants out on the frunt steps till I get back?

Certainly not, sutch an idea, the situation must be exactly the same in both cases, or it wont be a real experiment, ma said, and I said, Aw heck, suppose some of the fellows see me, jiminey roozalem, ma, muthing doing.

Very well, if you want to call off the experiment, I'm sure it wasn't my idea, ma said.

Being the end of the subject, and I thought, Heck, I bet she knew all the time I was just looking for an excuse to go out in the rain.

Which I bet she did.

ASBESTOS in action
When H. W. Johns, co-founder of Johns-Manville, began to experiment with asbestos—he probably never dreamed of the vital part it would play in our daily life. Almost everyone uses and benefits by asbestos. When the housewife tosses a slice of bread, or irons a shirt, her safety is guarded by the asbestos insulation in the electric cord. When the motorist slams on his brakes, he relies on asbestos linings. And asbestos linings for a safer, smoother ride is the reason you drink beer be carried in trucks and railroad refrigerator cars lined with asbestos insulation. And so it goes . . . asbestos serves us in many ways seen and unseen ways!

WILD WEST CHARITY STANDISH

By CHARLES JUDAH

When Charity Standish went west profound influences were at work throughout the world. In Asia, Japan was flexing muscles almost but not quite atrophied by centuries of isolation; in Europe Bismark was putting the finishing touches on his triple alliance; in America the shrill clanging of the industrial revolution was beginning to be heard above the whisper of the winds as they crooned through the rustling corn and tossing wheat of the prairies.

She felt no inner compulsion to bring the influence of virtuous womanhood to bear on the vice-laden frontier, or to grace a one-room schoolhouse from whence waves of culture radiate to the uncouth. On the other hand, this callous indifference to a related life did not spring from a predelection towards sin, for with her black eyes, dark brown hair, gamin's grin and female shape she was well enough endowed for a siren's career, the vision of herself as a dance hall vampire luring men to their destruction eluded her. She was not interested in sin—or even men—very much.

Charity was interested in hay fever. She went West because of hay fever. One day her doctor mentioned casually that according to reports drifting east people did not suffer from hay fever in the west, as they did in Ohio. After that the west was Charity's promised land. She read about the west, she talked about the west, she dreamed about the west. Finally she resolved that being without a family and possessed of a small income there was no reason that she should not go west.

New Mexico, the doctor, who knew as little about the west as about curing hay fever, suggested hopefully. From that point Charity was on her own. Neither physician nor hay fever offered the slightest hint as to just where in New Mexico it would be best to go. After ruthless elimination two places remained— Santa Fe and San Lorenzo. The names of both fascinated her. She could not make up her mind which to choose until a newspaper article reprinted in the Cleveland paper finally turned the scale. The article was from the San Lorenzo Gazette:

"There is a windmill on the plaza and if certain characters return to town 100 substantial citizens of San Lorenzo aim to throw a party around that windmill. Hemp necktie will be the gifts and the wind mill will be tastefully decorated.

"The names of the certain characters" followed. Besides such orthodox ones as Rattlesnake Sam, One-Eye Joe and Scarface Charlie there were others, rather more intriguing. Pancake Billy was mentioned, and Fly-Speck Al, Hatchet-Face Kit, Cold-Deck George, Jimmy-the-Duck and Wink-the-Barber. It was really these names that did it.

"If a girl must go west," Charity explained, "she might as well be interesting sights; and I'm sure that the windmill on the Plaza with Cold-Deck George on one arm sort of balancing Pancake Billy or Wink-the-Barber on the other would be an interesting sight."

"They probably don't hang them on the arms, and besides you'd faint at the sight," replied her companion, whose unromantic name was Ed Smith.

But Ed was prejudiced. He still want Charity to go west. He wanted her to stay home and marry him, he wanted to take her for better or worse, including the hay fever. Charity understood and appreciated the honor. She sympathized so deeply that, though it wasn't quite lady-like, she kissed him—which only made matters worse for Ed.

"I love you," he declared, and added wistfully, "If you'd give yourself a chance you might love me."

"It isn't me that won't give you a chance," Charity explained, "it's the hay fever. Love can't be sandwiched in between sneezes, and a tickling nose makes romance ridiculous. Until I get rid of my hay fever I can't even think of love." That was August—hay fever time in Ohio.

October, in San Lorenzo's Indian summer, Charity's nose did not tickle any more. She sneezed only when she sniffed too eagerly at the pungent pinion laddened smoke that curled lazily or puffed in sudden vigor from the campfire. And she could think of love. Actually she thought of little else. Douglas Kent was the reason. He was so very persistent.

"Though loving you is the only thing I have been persistent about since I last honor," he admitted.

Charity knew that there was a tradition in the west forbidding questions about a man's past. But in Ohio there was a tradition that if a girl was considering marrying a man she should know something about him.

"Where is home and why did you leave it?" she asked lightly.

"Home is South Carolina, I was just a kid when the war came. But I was the only man left. With the help of my mother and a couple of old maid aunts and a few ex-slaves who stayed with us I ran the plantation."

He paused as his mind turned reluctantly back to those grim years that imposed too heavy a burden on a boy trained in an aristocratic tradition that prepared him for almost any hardships save those all too common ones, toil and sweat.

Then as he had schooled himself to do, he closed his mind's eye and laughed. "When my father and the one of my three brothers who was still alive came home after the war I figured I'd done my share to save the old plantation. In '66 I left home. Been drifting ever since."

Charity looked at him—well-groomed, handsome, apparently carefree.

"You don't look like a man who's been drifting 18 years," she said smiling.

Back of San Lorenzo rose the Sangre de Cristo, and beyond the Sangre de Cristo, and beyond the Sangre de Cristo, the Jemez, at their foot lay a valley. It was peaceful in the yellow sunlight when the Conquistadors came; it was still peaceful after Kearney's Amercian army entered the gap towards Santa Fe, California and the new empire of the southwest, the new empire of one of these hills was the loveliest spot Charity had ever known. So often came there alone; today she had brought Douglas. He had protested lazily against the stiff climb.

"A woman's whim," she told him; but now as he slipped his arm around her waist she knew it had been more instinct than whim.

"I could settle down," he said.

It was not until after she had promised to marry him that Charity resumed her catechism.

"What do you do?" she asked "Dot"

"How do you make a living?" "I thought you knew."

She smiled at his dismay.

"Forgive me, I guess I've been so busy falling in love I didn't have time to inquire."

He did not share her gentle amusement; his voice was crisp.

"Maybe that was a mistake. I'm a gambler."

The patient mountainsides formed a backdrop of color—yellows and deep golds from aspen and willow, rich browns and reds from scrub oak. Charity stared across it and dreamed of a small Ohio town. Dust was thick in the street and hung heavy in the hammock that was hung between maples whose leaves, when the frost had painted them, would reduce the timid aspen to pallid, trembling insignificance. Ed Jag respectable Job He bought and sold hogs.

She smiled tenderly at the memory of his earnest voice as he strove to impress her with his station in the world: "It's a mighty fine business to be in, Charity, though a man does have to keep his head and watch his step. Amount of profit depends on the market, you know. Sort of a gamble."

"Still the west is different," Charity gasped.

Douglas did not know what to make of her, nor was he reassured when she added: "It's better for hay fever." However, he was confident when she assured him that despite his profession she would marry him.

"Not right away, though," she pleaded, "if I'm to be a gambler's wife I've got to learn something about the business."

This shocked him a little. "I'd know something about it if you sold hogs, wouldn't I?" She asked. Because he was too good a gambler to crowd his luck, Douglas let it go at that.

Canadian Press Feels Place Of Princess is Beside Father

(By The Canadian Press)

Many Canadian newspapers stressed today that in view of the grave illness of the King, Princess Elizabeth should feel under no obligation to fulfil her Canadian tour, scheduled to open Oct. 2.

Prime Minister St. Laurent Saturday sent a message saying that the Canadian people would understand if it became necessary to cancel the visit, in a similar message, Mayor Arthur Reaume of Windsor, Ont., advised the Princess Sunday many Canadians feel that her place now is beside her father.

The press of Canada agreed.

Following is editorial comment of representative newspapers across the country:

...Ottawa Journal: "She should be released from any sense of obligation to maintain her plans . . . much as we all regret the necessity, there are other things more important at the moment."

Toronto Telegram: "Each member of a family will understand the anxiety any daughter would experiencing at this minute. That worry for Princess Elizabeth should not be increased by the pressure of a tour of Canada, undertaken under the most difficult conditions."

Montreal Gazette: "No obligation for the Royal tour must allow a selfish thought to the deeper, more solemn desire to be near the King and Queen at this time of unlooked crisis."

Montreal Star: "In this country there is no thought but the warm and human feeling that a tour postponed or cancelled would be a tiny price to pay if the continued presence of the daughter would help the father back to health and strength."

Toronto Globe and Mail: "The gesture, (Mr. St. Laurent's telegram) we are sure, will be appreciated in London, that the way in which it is worded still leaves the onus of making the decision with the Princess and the Royal Family. This is not right. Under the circumstances, she should be relieved of the necessity of making that decision by a postponement of the tour."

Halifax Chronicle-Herald: "No member of the Royal Family could be expected to enjoy such a tour while His Majesty lies ill and with no assurance that his life is not in balance. To expect Princess Elizabeth and her consort to come to this country at this time. . . would be thoughtless and heartless."

Vancouver Daily Province: "It would be a fine and thoughtful gesture on the part of Canadians if our government were to suggest to London immediately that the Royal tour be postponed so that the Princess would remain in London to comfort her father during his convalescence."

Winnipeg Free Press: "Such a visit, if it is deemed possible, by the admiration and affection which will unquestionably demonstrate Canadians generally feel for the Royal Family. . ."

Victoria Colonist: "It can be taken for granted that only the gravest developments will be allowed to deter Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip from making the trip. Members of the British Royal Family are particulous in observance of their public duties. . . Some change will be made, however, to reducing the engagements facing the Princess and her husband on either side. . . It would be a considerate gesture to show the nation's sympathy by easing the strain as much as possible.

Close to a million bushels of Russian grain is flowing every year into British granaries in return for British products. Protests from the U. S. over Britain's trade with the U. S. S. Less-Restful Night Spent by King, Condition Good

Bulletins Mean King Nearly Out of Immediate Crisis

By DON SCHWIND

London, Sept. 26 — (AP) — Buckingham Palace said tonight there "inevitably will be a period of some anxiety" about the condition of the King for the next week or 10 days.

This formal statement was issued after doctors reported the monarch spent a less restful night, although he continued gaining strength after his dangerous lung operation Sunday. The doctors said his general condition was good.

The condition of the King, however, caused postponement of the plane of Princess Elizabeth to visit Canada. She originally had been scheduled to arrive in Canada next Tuesday, but now apparently will not leave for at least two weeks after that.

Palace Statement

The Buckingham Palace statement said:

"In connection with medical bulletins issued periodically from Buckingham Palace it should be remembered that while the King's gradual progress toward recovery has been unhesitatingly steady although no complications have arisen so far, there will inevitably be a period of some anxiety for the next week or ten days.

"The present night medical bulletin caused some confusion. Some people in the crowd in front of the palace asked whether it was a good report or a bad one.

Tonight the palace issued a statement apparently intended both to clear up the confusion and explain why Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh had postponed their North American tour.

"It should be remembered," the statement said, "that while the King's gradual progress toward recovery has been unhesitatingly steady although no complications have arisen so far, there will inevitably be a period of some anxiety for the next week or ten days."

The statement said the King had a less restful night but His Majesty's general condition this morning is good and progress is maintained."

Meanwhile, a Buckingham Palace spokesman disclosed that the doctors who have attended the King 24 hours a day now are able to come and go.

But at least two have stayed at the palace all the time along with eight nurses.

Back up Optimism

The bulletin today was signed by these four doctors and the surgeon who operated on the King The surgeon was called each morning at the palace to consult with the others on terms of the bulletin.

Happy headlines in the morning papers had hailed bulletin No. 6 last night, which indicated the King was better. Medical experts backed up the optimism.

The report, posted on the Buckingham Palace fence for a waiting crowd, said the King had a comfortable night and rested for the first time. An earlier bulletin said he continues to gain strength.

A medical report said, "It is very good news indeed. It means the King is out of the immediate crisis."

One newspaper claimed the King's first meal consisted of gelatin and a few bits of steamed fish.

Rainy Period Saturday

Medical experts predict the 55-year-old King will enter another danger period about Saturday. They say there is a risk of late complications such as infection and "secondary haemorrhage."

The King is confined to a Palace sickroom, for what is expected to be a long fight. His doctors cut out all or part of one lung affected by a disease they have not disclosed.

Still undecided is whether Princess Elizabeth, heir to the throne, will leave October 1 on her visit to Canada and the United States.

'More Sacrifice' Budget Issued By Australia

Canberra, Australia, Sept. 26 (Reuters)— Sweeping new taxes to meet Australia's expanding defence program and direct inflation were announced today in a "more sacrifice" budget.

The budget which plans to raise a record £1,041,500,000 ($2,922,460,000) including £967,300,000 in taxation, provides for total defence expenditure of £1,001,700,000, an increase of £33,600,000 over last year.

Expenditure on the army, navy air force is related to £3,000,000 and £32,500,000 is going on the building of strategic raw materials.

New taxes include a special levy on private investment equal to 10 per cent or assessed tax, higher sales taxes and fresh taxes on primary producers and public and private companies.

Treasurer Sir Arthur Fadden, introducing the budget, said: "We make no apology for giving you a budget that will hurt a little."

Australia, he said, must master the problem of inflation if its defence effort and development plans are to be carried through and standards of living preserved.

He said the national income in the last financial year had increased by 35 per cent.

$500,000 Loss At Cache Bay, Sawmill Burns

Cache Bay, Ont., Sept. 26 (CP) — Fire early today destroyed the International Nickel Company's huge George Gordon sawmill here robbing this lumbering community of about 60 miles east of Sudbury of its only large industry. Loss was estimated at almost $500,000, of which $300,000 was covered by insurance.

A crowd of nearly 2,000, including hundreds who flocked here from nearby Sturgeon Falls, watched as flames leaped more than 200 feet into the air.

A night watchman spotted the fire shortly after midnight near the mill boiler room, but by the time Cache Bay's volunteer fire brigade and other fire fighters arrived the mill was a mass of flames.

The fire burned with fierce heat for nearly five hours and would have threatened the whole town had not a north wind blown the flames toward bordering Lake Nipissing.

U.N. Must Enable Italy to Play Full and Equal Part Says Truman

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP) — President Truman said today that if Russia continues to block Italian membership in the United Nations, "others may have to be found" to enable Italy to play a "full and equal part" in upholding U.N. principles.

The President spoke at the dedication of four Italian war ships, given to the United States by the people of Italy.

Mr. Truman said that the United States, British and France favor Italy's membership but Russia imposed on Italy by the peace treaty. They proposed to do it again recently, he said, but the Soviet specially a provision limiting the size of Italian armed forces.

Truman said the treaty "does not give Italy the position of equality among the free nations to which it is now entitled."

One big result would be to relieve Italy of the necessity of Italian rearming.

TWENTY KILLED IN COLLISION BETWEEN TRAINS

Station Master, Engineer Held for Questioning

Vienna, Sept. 26 — (AP) — The Vienna-Rome express crashed into a stationary freight early today, killing 20 persons and injuring 10 seriously. About 30 others were slightly injured.

The dead were believed to be members of an Italian railway man's organization who had been vacationing in Vienna.

The disaster occurred in a mile-night fog at the small railway station at Klausenleinbach, 30 miles southwest of Vienna. The crash telescoped the express' first-class coach in which the Italians were returning home. A heavy baggage car rammed into the air by the force of the crash, fell on top of the passenger coach and buried the dead.

Other passenger cars behind were slightly damaged by the collision, but most of the occupants escaped serious injury.

Austrian police at the scene said the crowded express was travelling at about 30 miles an hour. Heavy fog weather, through the yards at Langenwang when it hit the freight train. The engine of the express was thrown 300 feet. The baggage car then was lifted and shoved backward onto the roof of the death car.

Langenwang is in the Austrian Alps, 10 miles beyond Semmering Pass.

Wreckage littered the track 11 hours after the wreck and railroad officials were being detoured.

The News agency reported that the Langewang station master and the engineer of the express were being held for questioning.

The second plane, with the pilot reported attempting a one-engine landing, crashed a short distance away and was broken to pieces when it also exploded. It was believed that ammunition aboard the plane blew up.

The body of one pilot was located in the wreckage of the plane near the Demedster home. The body of the other pilot was not recovered. Both pilots were killed, both men were withheld pending identification of the pilots.

Exploding ammunition in the plane that crashed on the Demedster farm set off the brush-fire started at a distance for a half-hour after the crash. Exploding shells of machine-gun bullets were found scattered in the area.

Mrs. Ross Storm, on whose farm the second plane crashed, said she saw the planes flying closely together. Their wings touched and both fell from the sky.

Part of the wreckage was driven deep into the ground, leaving a hole in the wall, but no fire resulted. Outside the house, the pilot's body was gouged into the ground.

BAD FLYING WEATHER

Stornaway, Scotland, Sept. 26—(AP)—Twenty-four British and Canadian Sabre Saber jet fighter planes, on route to duty in England, today were grounded by fog. Low cloud and weather from Iceland to Stornaway airport.

Another jet which took off from Iceland at the same time were forced to turn back.

United Nations' Command Rejects Communist Suggestion Korean Talks be Resumed

Tokyo, Sept. 26 (AP) — The United Nations' command today rejected another communist suggestion that full-dress Korean truce talks be resumed immediately.

The allies insisted that "arrangements first be made to prevent further interruptions when meetings are resumed.

The reds made their repeat proposal at a meeting of allied and communist liaison officers in Kaesong, site of the stalled cease-fire talks.

It was the third and longest session held by the liaison teams in an effort to get the talks rolling again.

The Wednesday meeting lasted one hour and 32 minutes. The first liaison session, on Monday, lasted an hour. The second, held Tuesday, ran for 50 minutes. Communist officers stalked out angrily at the climax of an argument over just what ground the liaison talks should cover, the allied command said.

An allied release Wednesday night said:

"U.N. command liaison officers met with the communist officers at Kaesong (11 a.m. today, Sept. 26, (9 a.m. EDT, Tuesday).

"The communist liaison officers proposed a meeting of the delegates at 10 am., Sept. 27, which proposal was answered by the U.N. command liaison officers that their instructions were to meet with the communist liaison officers to discuss conditions mutually satisfactory prior to the resumption of conference discussion by the delegations.

"The meeting of the liaison officers was received by mutual agreement at 11:20 a.m."

Thus the communists and allies were kept right back where they started when the liaison talks began.

The reds still were demanding immediate resumption of the truce talks by the full delegations. The U.N. command was insisting that the liaison officers discuss conditions which will prevent further interruptions of talks scheduled to resume.

The reds broke off the Kaesong talks Aug. 23 after charging that an allied plane bombed the conference site in an attempt to murder the red negotiators. The U.N. command denied the charge.

When the reds stalked out of the liaison meeting Tuesday, they left no indication that they would come back.

Greatest Jet Battle Destroys Or Damages 14 Red Planes

U. N. Command headquarters, Korea, Sept. 26—(AP)—Allied pilots today destroyed or damaged 14 communist planes over northwest Korea in furious dogfights, the U. S. Fifth Air Force said.

The News agency reported that the Langewang station master and the engineer of the express were being held for questioning.

The second plane, with the pilot reported attempting a one-engine landing, crashed a short distance away and was broken to pieces when it also exploded. It was believed that ammunition aboard the plane blew up.

Oldest Building Turned Over By Government

Ottawa, Sept. 26 —(CP)— The lease for what is said to be the oldest building in Canada's capital was turned over today by Transport Minister Chevrier to the city of Ottawa for the Women's Canadian Historical Society.

Built in the 1820s, the stone building is at the corner of the Ottawa locks of the Rideau Canal. It consists of a main floor, a basement and a loft.

Inside the old building is an old stone vault where Colonel By — the canal-building pioneer who gave the city its earliest name of Bytown — is to have stored the silver coins he paid workers who built the Rideau Canal.

In presenting the lease to acting mayor Charlotte Whitton, Mr. Chevrier said "any community, any city, any country that is dead to the greatness of its past is dead to the hope of greatness that is in the future."

The building is to become a museum of the society, to contain relics of Ottawa's past.

Last night, most of Ontario had clear skies. Frost was not reported northward from the Georgian Bay and Haliburton regions. Temperatures ranged as far south as 26 degrees and Muskoka 31. Winds strengthened over the Great Lakes today and will reach gale force over Lakes Huron and Superior by night, the bureau said.

Tomorrow will be cloudy and warm with rain and thunderstorms expected, particularly in southern Ontario. Northern regions of the province will have rain today.

HOTELS FILLED UP

OUSTING OIL MEN BRINGS TROUBLE IRANIANS WARNED

British Envoy Talks Sharply to Tehran

London, Sept. 26 (CP) —British today warned Iran that expulsion from Iran of 300 British oil technicians would have a "grave effect" on Anglo-Iranian relations.

A foreign office statement on representations made to Iran by Ambassador Sir Francis Shepherd in Tehran said:

"His Majesty's government exercised restraint in the Persian (Iranian) government should have decided to take these drastic measures against British nationals residing in Persia (Iran) without any communications whatever to His Majesty's government."

The statement said Shepherd told Dr. Hussein Fatemi, foreign minister with full awareness that Iran will be responsible for consequences of the decision which must have a grave effect on Anglo-Iranian relations."

Shepherd was told last night to convey the British protest after a cabinet meeting here.

Asking Help

Informed sources said Prime Minister Attlee is asking President Truman personally for help. The sources said Attlee, in a personal message to Truman, will make it clear that Britain is determined to stay on in Abadan.

British government leaders have hinted they might order the use of force to keep the technicians at Abadan.

The foreign office spokesman declined to amplify on what Britain meant about possible "consequences" of the expulsion order.

If Britain takes a most forceful line toward Iran it would have the support of international premiums for all the North Atlantic Pact Allies.

Has More Buttons Than He Knows What to Do With

London, Sept. 26 — (Reuters) — When Conservative Col. Alan Lennox-Boyd was called votes Saturday he would bet £1 to a trouser button his party will win the election. But he never thought anybody would take him up.

Today the member for East Perth has more buttons, from people all over the world, than he knows what to do with.

The Lille (France) politician said he will pay up if the Labor government gets a majority of one or more. If both major parties finish even he's going to return the buttons.

Joint Statement Will Be Issued Later by Ottawa

Length of Delay Will Depend on King's Condition

London, Sept. 26 — (AP) — Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh today postponed their Canadian visit for a week or two, because of the King's serious illness.

Britain's heiress presumptive and her handsome husband originally had planned to go by ship. Then because of the King's lung operation last Sunday they decided to wait here to fly instead, to reach Quebec by next Tuesday.

Indicating that the postponement may cut down their American program, a Buckingham Palace spokesman said the Royal couple still hoped to go to Washington as guests of President Truman.

A statement on the postponement issued from Clarence House, residence of the couple, and made public at Buckingham Palace said:

"Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh have accepted with deep gratitude the suggestion made to them by the Prime Minister of Canada that the start of their tour be postponed one or two weeks.

Hope for Trip to U.S.

"The new date of arrival and other details will be announced as soon as they are known.

"Their Royal Highnesses hope very much that arrangements will be able to be made for a visit to Washington."

In Ottawa, Prime Minister St Laurent confirmed news of the tour's postponement and said a joint statement will be issued both in London and in Ottawa at 3:45 p.m. EDT today.

Leaving a cabinet meeting, the Prime Minister said the statement is not set to give a definite date for the start of the tour, but he hoped that the date would be made public "at a very early date."

A reporter asked Mr. St. Laurent if it is definite that there will be a postponement in the arrival of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

The prime minister replied that it should be supposed that there would hardly be a statement issued unless some postponement had been decided upon.

Earlier the cabinet had met with the draft of the forthcoming statement before it. But Mr. St. Laurent told reporters that it would not be issued immediately.

Earlier an official said it is possible the royal visit will go on in October, but not before Oct. 16.

Many Messages Exchanged

Decision to delay Canada's first Royal visit since 1939 came after a long series of telephone talks between the residence of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh and Buckingham Palace headquarters of Prime Minister St. Laurent. He had been summoned to start in Quebec City Tuesday morning.

The link between the two was Canada House, the Canadian mission in London.

It has been felt here for some time now that postponement was inevitable but the final decision was not reached until this morning.

OCCUPY SAME SUITE

London, Sept. 26 (CP) —Mr. and Mrs. Frank Whitaker of Toronto, returning to Canada on the liner Empress of France after a holiday in Britain, occupy the suite that had been reserved for Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

Today the Whitakers gave up their reservation when the Royal visit was announced and regained it when hearing the announcement that the Royal couple would not travel by sea because of the King's illness. The Empress of France sailed yesterday.

700 PILGRIMS DIE

Cairo, Sept. 26—(AP)—An Arab news agency dispatch says temperatures reaching 129 degrees in the shade have caused the deaths of 700 Moslem pilgrims at Mecca. The heat wave comes at the peak of the yearly pilgrimage season.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Sept. 26 (CP) —Synoptic — A cool air mass has developed a crisp, clear night and there was a general frost from the Georgian Bay and Haliburton regions northward. At 4:30 a.m. records at Sudbury near Timmins reported 26 degrees and Muskoka 31. Temperatures will warm up today and it will continue mild tonight.

An intensifying storm centre over Dakota is moving southeastward moving eastward toward Ontario. This storm is causing rain and clouds to advance over the province from the west, and will maintain the weather over province tonight and Thursday. The southerly winds in advance of the storm are expected to provide a milder night throughout the entire province with no frost expected tonight. Winds are already strengthening over the Great Lakes and will reach gale force over Lakes Huron and Superior later today.

U.S. Not More Than Two Planes Involved In Accident Says U.S. Air Official

Wallaceburg, Ont., Sept. 26— (CP)—A United States Air Force spokesman said today that he doubted more than the two planes involved in the crash of two F-86 Sabre jets collided in mid-air near here yesterday.

The two pilots were killed in the crash and a piece of wreckage from one of the planes injured a farmer's wife.

Official at Selfridge Field, Mount Clemens, Mich., said it was known that an airliner had flown over the area minutes before the collision but U.S. Air Force officers were unable to identify the plane or report on the accident at all".

Eyewitnesses to the crash said that there were three aircraft in the areas about the time the collision occurred. Some said there appeared to be three jets while one person said there were two jets and an aircraft similar to an airliner.

The Selfridge spokesman said there could not have been another jet in the area until some time later.

Names of the pilots killed were given as 1st Lieut. Howard S. Godfrey, Unionville, Mo., and 2nd Lieut. Jack G. Mesick, South Charleston, W. Va.

Both were attached to the 97th Fighter-Interceptor Group based at Wright-Patterson Field, Dayton, Ohio. They were stationed at Selfridge.

One of the jets, crashing near a barn on the farm of Alfred de Meester, blew up and part of the flaming wreckage fell on the barn, destroying the $10,000 structure, a lean-to and a straw stack.

Another fragment blown from the wreckage struck Mrs. de Meester on her back, causing minor injury.

The second plane crashed about a mile away.

Eyewitnesses said their wings seemed to touch as they flew out of a cloudbank.

"When you are buying, demand serviceable goods," was the advice given by R. J. Kenaly, of Toronto, an authority on dry cleaning, during an address on his specialty which he made to members of the Belleville Kiwanis Club at Kiwanis Centre, Tuesday.

After he had demonstrated and explained dry cleaning processes Mr. Kenaly showed his audience, by samples taken from what he called his "chamber of horrors," what happens when a garment made of inferior material is subjected to the solvents which dry cleaners use.

"The desire for perfection is one of the most deeply seated of human instincts," said Mr. Kenaly, "That is why most people, when purchasing a garment, consider appearance first and serviceability second."

Worst "Headaches"

Buttons, belts, shoulder pads, ornaments glued on fabrics and raincoats of plastic were listed by Mr. Kenaly as among the worst "headaches" with which dry cleaners nowadays, must contend.

"Buttons," he said, "demonstrate several types, 'are liable to be made of any one of a large number of materials. Some kinds bleed when moistened or warp in water. Others will dissolve in a chemical solvent solution. Still others are damaged by heat.

"Belts nowadays seem to be made of anything, including tire tubes, what will work fine on one kind of belt will destroy another type.

Lost Shape and Color

"Here is what happened to a woman's suit with shoulder pads made of synthetic rubber." The speaker then displayed the suit. It had lost both its shape and most of its color.

Mr. Kenaly then explained that a special solvent was required to clean garments with plastic rubber shoulder pads. "When such pads had first appeared," he said, "they cost the cleaning industry a huge sum of money, because they usually dissolved in the solvent and ruin the garment until the third or fourth cleaning.

"The woman who had brought in the suit would tell us that her pads had been cleaned before without being ruined, and what could we do but pay?" he asked. "In some cases, the only thing we can do with things like these shoulder pads is to remove them before the garment is placed in the solvent. Sequins are another problem. Sometimes, they will dissolve. Another solvent might tarnish them."

Spend $60 Million Annually

At another point in his remarks Mr. Kenaly stated the Canadian public spends $60,000,000 annually on having its clothes cleaned. He added: "Of course, the value of the clothes cleaned represents a much larger sum than that."

The cleaning industry, Mr. Kenaly stated, had become "quite technical in recent times and was becoming more so." New textiles were constantly coming into use. Each frequently required special treatment. Although the cleaning process for each fabric was followed by a great deal of research at one of the Research Institutes maintained by the cleaning industry.

Outlines History

During the earlier part of his address, Mr. Kenaly related the history of the cleaning industry. It originated, he said, in France. At what cleaning his employer's suit was the first dry cleaning establishment.

The industry did not spread to this continent until relatively recent times. It had developed rapidly here," he said, because before the advent of the automobile, gasoline was considered a useless by-product of the oil refineries. Gasoline, he explained, was the common solvent used years ago, and its cheapness caused it to be widely used. Later, more efficient and safer solvents had been developed.

The speaker, Mr. Kenaly stated, were non-inflammable and fast evaporating. This made them safe as well as odorless. Some were prepared synthetically.

A vote of thanks to Mr. Kenaly was moved by Jack Walton. Mr. Kenaly was introduced to the gathering by Addison Lloyd.

A new member of the club, Tom Petke, was introduced by Cliff Bangay, at last Tuesday's meeting.

Everett Ackerman, president of the Belleville club, was chairman. Bud Punchard was sergeant at arms. Harold Carruthers was song leader.

Dogs in Pound

Two dogs are in the city pound it was reported today by City Dog Catcher Charles Thorn. One of the dogs is a black male part Beagle and the other a black and white female terrier pup.

Giant Starfish Cactus in Bloom At Trenton

Said to bloom but very rarely, a species of giant starfish cactus owned by Mrs. Robert Simpson of Manors Street, Trenton, is rather over-doing itself in blooming in recent weeks.

The first bud on Mrs. Simpson's giant starfish cactus broke into bloom about three weeks ago and was 13 inches from tip to tip. The bloom lasted about four days and then died. Since then a second bloom has come out, this one measuring eight inches. Still other buds are forming.

The blooms look exactly like a starfish, have five points and are cream in color with a red centre.

Besides being a rarity, Mrs. Simpson has hundreds of other plants about her home and the summer season flower filled garden is a scene of colored beauty.

Price Control Without Control Of Wages Deemed Impossible By Women's Meeting Speaker

Montreal, Sept. 26—(CP)—Mrs. R. D. Chown, Ministers of Ottawa, said today that it is seeking the impossible to ask the government to put price control over wage control.

The opinion was expressed in her report to the National Council of Women as chairman of the council's committee on economics and taxation.

The attempt to halt inflation by taxation is a negative approach, and, by increasing taxes, the government is adding to living costs, said Mrs. Clark Hamilton.

She questioned the right of the government "to tax and tax the people more than is necessary to meet its cost and its obligations, less taken temporarily to meet an emergency in the form of compulsory savings which will later be returned."

Labor is demanding price controls, although labor costs are primarily responsible for high prices, the report declared.

Dr. Edna Guest of Toronto, dividualistic young country, health committee, expressed the belief in her report that the council is still in favor of "the old fashioned individualistic young country, health insurance should be contributory."

Conditions have changed, however, said the report, "should carry assistance to the present intimate doctor-patient relationship."

The increased number of requests received by Guest in protest against the present alcohol situation was "quite amazing."

They showed an "all too apparent devastating effect of alcohol on the welfare and health of our country, and in particular the young adult generation, on whom Canada must so soon depend for her future destiny." One of the greatest controls of alcohol sale by the Narcotic Drug Act.

Broadening of Canada's immigration policy was approved in a report presented by Mrs. A. E. MacDowell of Montreal, chairman of the council's migration committee.

National Council of Women Hears Report on Work Done In Promoting Good Citizenship

Montreal, Sept. 26—CP—Widespread work for good citizenship in furthering good citizenship were reported today to the National Council of Women at its annual meeting.

The report was prepared by Mrs. Eunice B. Wishart, alderman from Port Arthur, Ont., who is chairman of the council's citizenship committee.

Many councils reported extensive work among new Canadians. Some committees attend ceremonies where citizenship papers are well attended.

Mouse Jaw gives individual help to new Canadian girls. Medicine Hat council works with the junior chamber of commerce hoping to make citizens "more citizenship-conscious."

In Halifax citizenship is taught to children in the schools. New Glasgow, N.S., stresses agricultural significance of good citizenship. Truro, N.S., teaches English and good citizenship and provides social welcome and entertainment.

The Truro city council awards $25 annually to a grade 12 student for citizenship.

The Truro local council of the N.C.W. reported it is strongly opposed to addition of "dominion" from Dominion of Canada, to the renaming of Dominion Day, to the changing of the national anthem and the flag and to the appointment of a Canadian as governor- general, considering all would tend to weaken the links with Great Britain.

Montreal sponsors a popular citizenship series on aspects of Canadian democracy and through canvasses urges women to vote in municipal elections.

Kingston, Ont., stresses the need of higher citizenship standards.

Windsor, Ont., supported a clean-up of alleged gambling and vice spots.

Port Arthur, Ont., advocated a blending of the best customs and traditions of all nationalities resulting in a distinctive "one grand Canadian culture."

Several local councils reported they were successful in sponsoring women candidates for municipal offices.

Associated Press Urges Full Break With Czechs

San Francisco, Sept. 26 (AP) — A special investigating committee of The Associated Press Managing Editors' Association today urged a full break in diplomatic relations with communist Czechoslovakia if all other means fail to win release of imprisoned AP correspondent William N. Oatis.

The committee's report was prepared for 250 editors meeting in their four-day annual appraisal of domestic and foreign news problems.

The Oatis committee report said:

"If those who retain William Oatis in prison continue in their disregard of every plea of humanity, in their indifference to every consideration of justice and in their defiance of every demand for the protection of the citizen of a friendly power, the most serious measures must be contemplated.

"If all else fails, we must ask ourselves and our government if it is wise to maintain international relations with a power that is unable or unwilling to fulfill its obligations."

The report said Oatis has been imprisoned by Czechoslovakia for 10 years "on the outrageous charge that the routine reporting of events in that Iron-Curtain country constituted espionage."

Referring to a press conference Czech ambassador Vladamir Procházka held yesterday in Washington, the report found good news only in the evidence that the Czech government is becoming aware of national indignation in the U.S. created by the case.

Temporary Tower Used for Making Radio-Relay Tests

Transmission tests are being conducted near Stirling this week on a prospective site for a radio-relay station in the Bell Telephone's projected new Buffalo-Toronto - Montreal microwave system.

The radio-relay network will provide additional long distance telephone circuits between Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal. It will also deliver television programs to broadcasting stations being built by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation in Toronto and Montreal.

A temporary tower was erected for the tests on the prospective site, which is about three miles east of Stirling, according to G. W. Proctor, Bell Telephone manager for this region.

Other Towers Erected

Transmission is being tested between Stirling and the next prospective station, also on the proposed route. Similar test towers were erected on these sites. One is near Enterprise, which is about 30 miles east of Stirling, and the other is near Hastings, which is about 25 miles west of Stirling.

Microwave signals are beamed between the towers. Each tower has a special saucer-like antenna that can be moved up and down the tower so that the beam can be conducted at various heights.

The entire installations are portable. The transmitting and receiving equipment is housed in trucks. The towers, which are made up of eight-foot sections and can be erected or dismantled in a few hours, also are transported from site to site in trucks.

Permanent towers will be erected on the Stirling, Enterprise and Hastings sites if the tests prove satisfactory.

In all, about 12 permanent relay stations will be required for the Toronto-Montreal section of the network, in addition to terminal stations in the two cities. The relay stations will be located approximately from about 15 to 35 miles apart, depending on the transmission problems to be overcome.

Co-op Hospital Reduces Rates

Shelburne, Ont. — (CP) — Ontario's first co-operative hospital has been open only eight months — but already it is starting to pay dividends, not only in good health but also in cash.

Officials or the $33,000 hospital say that when the hospital goes into its second year next Jan. 1, its 400 charter members will enjoy a 50-per-cent deduction on hospital care for themselves and their families.

In addition to their annual flat rate of $10, they will pay only $2.75 per day in hospital. Non-members admitted to the 16-bed institution must pay $5.50 a day.

Elmer Dykes, chairman of the hospital board, says that the low rate—dollars below normal hospital charges in the province — doesn't mean the hospital is hamstringing itself financially to make an impressive showing.

"First-year experience, when we gave members a 20-per-cent discount," he says, "has convinced us that the 50-per-cent discount plan will strengthen our financial position."

Members of the hospital feel that they have demonstrated the practicability of the suggestion by provincial and federal health officials that more smaller hospitals would take the pressure off larger institutions.

The hospital is without provincial grants because co-operative hospitals were unknown when the relevant legislation was passed.

HAS GOOD MEMORY

Toronto, Sept. 26 — (CP) Toronto Detective David Cowan last May was shown a picture of John Watson, 26-year-old truck driver wanted for theft. Last night the detective spotted Watson walking along a street. Tensed from his cruiser and recalled him on a charge of stealing $388.

OUSTING OF

Iran has mutual defence treaty with Russia, signed in 1921, that entitles Russia to send troops into Iran if Iran is invaded. This must be taken into account in the reckoning on whether force would be used at Abadan.

Britain contends Iran's oil nationalization amounts to expropriation of British property and that the expulsion of personnel would violate a recent ruling by the International court of justice at The Hague.

Britain hoped to have some sort of reaction from the White House in Washington in time for discussion at a full cabinet meeting in London tomorrow.

Premier Mohammed Mossadegh has ordered about 300 British officials and technicians remaining in the oil areas of southern Iran to leave the country by Oct. 1.

The Iranian move was the latest in the bitter conflict over Iran's nationalization of the rich oil concessions held by the British controlled Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

The British protest followed reports here that Britain is determined to keep its oil men at the world's biggest refinery on Abadan island in the Shatt-El-Arab River.

Prime Minister Attlee met with his top advisers last night at an emergency session attended by the service chiefs, including Field Marshal Sid William Slim, chief of the Imperial general staff.

Calls Full Session

Attlee called a full session of the cabinet for tomorrow and was not expected to seek support from Conservative Leader Winston Churchill and Liberal Leader Clement Davies on any decision to defy Iran and hold Abadan.

Attlee would need a policy supported by all parties in order to keep the bitter oil dispute from becoming one of the main issues in the Oct. 25 general election.

The full session of the cabinet will follow the return of Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison and Defence Minister Emanuel Shinwell from the United States.

Mossadegh's expulsion order was made after Britain refused a new bid to reopen talks on the oil company's future.

Diplomatic circles indicated that Sir Oliver Franks, British ambassador to Washington, may seek the views of President Truman during the day on Britain's sharpening Iranian crisis.

President Truman's personal ambassador W. Averell Harriman went to Tehran and London last month in an effort to get Iran and Britain together in new talks. The talks resumed but broke down chiefly on the question of oil-refinery management.

GERMANS STILL TROUBLESOME

The Germans, who caused two world wars during the present century, are again in a position to make trouble and, judging by reports from Europe, are trying to take full advantage of their opportunities.

The British, American and French foreign ministers have been urging the West Germans to assist in preparing to defend civilization from the onslaught which most statesmen believe is coming from the Soviet Union and its satellites.

If they are going to contribute to western defence, the West Germans insist, they should be given the right to raise a national army, under German control. They also insist that any stand which may be made against Russia be made on the Elbe, and that the fight be carried into enemy territory. They want the restoration of eastern German territory recognized as a war aim. They want the Saar valley returned to them and full control of its production. They want restrictions on their economic institutions eliminated, occupation costs reduced and German assets seized abroad credited to German foreign debts. They want other concessions, too, but these are the most important.

Thus, the negotiators for the governments of the western Allies find themselves in a difficult position. American and other generals admit that western Europe cannot be defended without German co-operation. The western countries also need German industrial production for defence.

The western Allies cannot force the Germans to rearm, nor can they hinder the Germans, if they do form an army, to fight simultaneously under an American general when German territory is likely to be used as a battleground.

Warnings, to the effect that even western Germany will be regarded as "hostile" territory if the West Germans do not show more warmth toward the Allied cause, have not had much effect; the Germans probably feel that the civilian population between two contending armies must suffer about the same fate whether regarded as "friendly" or "hostile."

Meanwhile, the western countries are extremely hesitant about giving the West Germans what they want in the peace settlement. If an unarmed Germany is difficult to deal with, an armed Germany might revert to type and turn amok again.

Although not much news filters through the Iron Curtain about whatever deals are being made between the Russians and the East Germans, the chances are that the Russians are having similar trouble in indoctrinating the people who live in the original home of the Prussian Junkers. That is the one bright spot in the German picture as seen through the eyes of the western Democracies.

ONTARIO WELL POLICED

"Ontario Government Services" is the title of a publication which is sent out by the government of Ontario. Its purpose, the publication announces, is "to advise the people of Ontario of the services which their government renders."

In the latest issue of "Ontario Government Services" is a long article devoted to the Ontario Provincial Police. The Ontario Provincial Police, the article states, started in 1875, with a personnel of one man, named John Wilson Murray. By 1910, this personnel had increased to 45 uniformed men plus a plainclothes division of unstated numbers. At the end of last December, the force numbered 1,174 men.

An article on the same page of "Ontario Government Services" discloses that the population of Ontario is now about 4,500,000. It also discloses that Ontario's population has doubled in the last 50 years.

It is well known that, during the last four or five decades, the number of Royal Canadian Mounted Police constables stationed in Ontario, as well as the police forces maintained by the municipalities, has also increased greatly.

But restricting consideration to the relationship between the increase in Ontario's population and the increase in the size of its police force, it becomes apparent that the police force maintained by the province is increasing in size much faster — many times faster — than the total population.

Several conclusions may be drawn from that fact. One is that the percentage of hoodlums, criminals and outlaws in Ontario's population is increasing steadily and rapidly, thus making a much larger police force necessary to protect those of us who are not big enough and tough enough to protect ourselves.

CITY BEAUTY

The river's as blue as the sky,
And the ships ply up and down.
The great city stands near by,
With its buildings, gray and brown.
The water is pure and sweet
And fit for the cup or glass,
But, gone, on the crowded street
With the rush of the traffic pass.
Oh, some there are who never turn
From the grind of wheel and gear
Or counter and desk to learn
There is so much beauty near.
Though 'tis only a step aside,
On the harsh, grim streets they stay,
Never glimpsing the river side
Or the shore where the children play.
The poorest of all are they,
With so much charm to share,
Who deep in the city stay,
With never an hour to spare.
With beauty that all may own
And loveliness so near by,
From the cold, grim streets of stone
They never once lift an eye.

SENSITIVITY OF SOUL

We are told that some radios are so sensitive that they can be tuned to catch the disturbances of the very distant stars.

The receiving sets in your living room and in mine are not of that variety. Only a few such delicate sets exist. But there are sets of sensitive and so delicately attuned that disturbances millions of miles away are caught by these instruments and recorded.

We can liken the soul of man to a radio receiving set. Some people's souls are about as spiritually efficient as the original crystal set radios of thirty years ago. The souls of others are so sensitive that the divine will easily make itself known to such persons. They look at life from the standpoint of religious values. They think of people in terms of moral character. They criticize themselves unrestfully and are generous in their praise of others. They are fine, spiritual instruments attuned to the principles of that God who is at one and the same time afar off yet very near to everyone of us.

Watch out for the sensitive soul that delicate instrument which humanity has agreed to call the soul. It can be easily thrown out of adjustment—in fact, seriously damaged.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ROADSIDE BEGINNINGS

One of mankind's blessings is the automobile. It has enabled the humblest to see his country as it is. I see in my newspaper that approximately every third person in the United States owns an automobile. What would happen to Russia if this were as true there as here?

You see things along the roadside, while travelling, that you never heard of before, if you are observant and think as you go along. But half the fun and profit are wiped out at once if you drive merely to get somewhere.

This past summer I could not help but think of the great number of men I've seen who have been born in the small villages of Nova Scotia. I recall spending an evening with Robert Norwood, the famous rector of St. Bartholomew's Church in New York City. He was born in Nova Scotia and preached in small towns there and was greatly beloved. From a small church he was called to the great city, but he never lost that early human touch. He lies buried in a little graveyard at Hubbards, Nova Scotia, and I never pass the place without happy memories of this fine and inspiring gentleman.

It was at Yarmouth, in this same Province, that General George C. Kenney was born, who became the air arm for General of the Army Douglas MacArthur during the last World War. I hope I can truly say the last World War!) His book "General Kenney Reports" is fine reading, and his book on General MacArthur is one that should have wide reading, for I understand why General Kenney was so deeply beloved by his "boys".

From the roadside villages of Nova Scotia—indeed from those all over Canada and the United States—have come men and women who have enriched all humanity. Bob Bartlett, the intrepid other part of Admiral Peary, is the latter's final discovery of the North Pole, was born in rugged Newfoundland.

Poets, artists, writers, statesmen, physicians, men and women of almost every calling, have sprung from these roadside beginnings, many in isolated areas. They breed courage, incentive, and inspire us all with faith and purpose.

Move to Combat Daily Stabbings In Johannesburg

Johannesburg —(CP)— Authorities here are considering methods for combatting the alarming increase in crime in the Johannesburg Gold Reef area.

Criminal acts of violence were responsible for 2,344 deaths in the Union of South Africa las tyear. These included murder, culpable homicide, infanticide, faction fighting and public violence.

An average of more than one person a day was stabbed to death in the Reef area last year, in addition to the "usual" toll through shooting and assault.

The figure of serious crime in the Union has increased by 280 per cent between 1941 and 1950," a police official said today.

A startling fact is that African women, as well as African men, are making increasing use of knives to settle their petty differences, in brawls, robberies, and to make a show of force.

A few years ago legislation was introduced to curb this type of lawlessness. Knives with fixed blades, "flick" knives and pocket knives with blades over a certain length were all declared dangerous weapons, and banned.

Ever since then the police have kept a sharp watch for such weapons — but the number of victims found dead with the knife has increased remarkably since 1941.

Discus Penalties

The main subject of discussion at the conference will be the question of penalties for crimes of violence.

The flourishing African shebeens (illegal drinking dens), and the "gangs" operating in other gangs have played a big part in the increasing number of stabbings.

In so far as "Tsotsi" and "Russian" gangsters are concerned, many of their victims and eyewitness of attacks will not come forward for fear of reprisals.

"In the circumstances, our efforts on the streets are very, very good. We will continue to the best of our ability to bring the criminals to book," said a police official.

An interesting aspect, however, is that the number of policemen per population has been declining since 1945.

SLOW BUT SURE

Port Elizabeth, South Africa — (CP) — When a family of this city was transferred to Johannesburg three months ago a tortoise went along too. It soon disappeared and recently turned up at its old home 700 miles away. The tortoise still carried the paperman of the family had screwed into its back.

Sir Montagu Allan Dies in Hospital Of Heart Ailment

Montreal, Sept. 26. (CP)— Sir Hugh Montagu Allan, 91, one of of Canada's leading financiers and sportsmen, died in hospital today.

Sir Montagu, who entered hospital here recently suffering from a heart ailment, was widely known in financial centres but perhaps even more so in sporting circles as the donor of the Allan Cup, awarded annually to the senior amateur hockey champions.

Born in Montreal, Oct. 13, 1860, the son of Sir Hugh Allan, Canadian shipping magnate he was educated at Bishop's College Lennoxville, Quebec and Paris.

In 1901 Sir Montagu was named president of the Merchants Bank of Canada and retained that position until 1922. He had previously been president of the Allan and Acadia Coal Co. Ltd., from 1898 until 1923.

He became Sir Hugh Montagu Allan in 1904 when he was created a Knight Bachelor. In 1907 he was made a commander of the Victorian Order.

In 1911, he received appointment as honorary lieutenant colonel in the Fifth Regiment Royal Highlanders of Canada and retained that position until 1922. He had previously been president of the Allan and Acadia Coal Co. Ltd., from 1898, until 1923.

During the First World War, the late Sir Hugh Allan was president of the Overseas Canadian Pension Board, and from October, 1914, to May, 1915, he was claims agent for the Fourth Canadian Division.

Married in 1893

In 1893, he married Marguerite Ethel Mackenzie, daughter of the late Hector Mackenzie of Montreal. They had three daughters and one son.

But in the First World War, the last three of these, Mrs. Gundren. Two of his daughters, Gwendolyn Evelyn and Anna Marjorie, were drowned when the torpedo of the Lusitania by a German submarine in 1915.

His wife, Lady Allan, was badly injured in the tragedy. The following year their only son, Hugh, was killed while flying over the German lines a member of the R.A.F.

The third daughter, Mirs Martha Allan, who became prominent in the work of the Montreal Repertory Theatre, died in British Columbia in 1939.

Sir Montagu's business activities included directorships of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel Company, Ogilvie Flour Mills, Canadian Cottons, the Canadian Transit Company, Acadia Coal Company, Canadian Paper Company and the former Montreal Light, Heat and Power Consolidated.

He was an ardent supporter of the Navy League and served many times in various capacities as governor including president of the Montreal Division.

He was past president of the St. Andrew's Society and in 1941, with Lady Allan, and Air Chief Marshall Sir Frederick Bowhill, was guest of honor at the St. Andrew's Society dinner.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page, or 100 Words Long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, and Prescription for Treatment Will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped, Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed. Etc.

SMOKING AND C-V-D

C-V-D, besides being the title of a booklet about heart and artery troubles (for copy send 25c and stamped, self-adfressed envelope) is an abbreviation for cardiovascular degeneration. At first blow that may sound pretty bad, but nearly all of us past middle age—you decide for yourself whether you are past middle age—have at least the early stages of it, so we needn't get morbid about it.

Whenever you come upon the word degeneration in my writings you can be sure it has no moral connotation. We are interested only in physical degeneration, and N. Webster will tell you this means "deterioration of a tissue or an organ in which its vitality is diminished; a substitution of a lower for a higher form or structure, either by chemical change of the tissue (true degeneration) or the deposit of abnormal matter in the tissues (infiltration)." That's pretty good, but Stedman's medical dictionary gives a better definition: "A retrogressive pathological change in cells or tissues in consequence of which the functioning power is lost and the living substance becomes converted into an inert mass." A mass of fibrous scar tissue, or fatty material, replacing the original living substance — gland, muscle tissue.

After all, physical degeneration is the way we all die if we live long enough. I have made a life-long study of the subject and I have written a little about the science and art of dying slowly.

One thing I have learned is temperance.

In Thy 7 Keys to Vite (don't send a quarter and stamped, self-addressed envelope for this booklet if you think I don't know what I'm talking about) you will find temperance listed as No. 3 key. No. 1 key, it will astonish you health-ignorant ones to hear, is Save Your Teeth. So, I say, don't waste your money on the booklet if you don't intend minding from your jaws—your own teeth or your dentist. You'll get a great deal more longevity, health and vite by going straight to your dentist to have the missing teeth replaced with functionally efficient dentures, if necessary, than by taking advice than this.

Here's what I mean by temperance. Writing about what he calls the little strokes that fell C. D. Evans remarked: "I like also, to talk to the family doctor, and to assure him that there is no use in taking away the man's salt, his pipe, his little whiskey before going to bed at night, his red meat, his fats, his gardening, and his walks about town."

Excessive smoking, especially cigarette smoking is certainly the chief cause of thrombosis obliterans (Buerger's disease) in most instances. This insidious, painful degeneration of arteries in leg or legs, occurs in persons 20 to 35 to 40 years of age who smoke cigarettes excessively. Forty years ago young women rarely smoked at all; this disease, but since women took up smoking a good many young women have come to amputation because of Buerger's disease.

Be it Buerger's disease or angina pectoris, it seems to me that the carbon monoxide in the smoke and not the nicotine in tobacco is what causes the trouble.

Good doctors permit some patients with angina pectoris or coronary thrombosis to smoke temperately — when the doctor does so he tells the patient precisely how much and under what circumstances he may smoke.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Only Seven Pounds in Seven Weeks

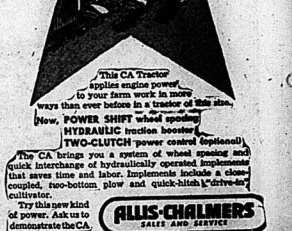
I want to thank you for your fine advice, particularly the advice you give in the pamphlet on Reducing. I have been following the diet outlined in the pamphlet two days a week for the past seven weeks. I have not lost very much weight — barely seven pounds — but I haven't felt so much alive for years, and I intend to keep right on. (Mrs. R. B.)

Answer — That's the ticket. Slow but sure. Two days out of a course of measurements it is a safe bet you have dwindled in the right places, regardless of bodyweight. For the pamphlet How to Lose Weight send stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dangerous Rusty Iron Deposit

You claim the germ tetanus or lock-jaw lives in the intestine... Nothing to know that it lives in rusty iron and so any wound by rusty iron... (M. F.)

Rusty iron has nothing to do with it. The germ of tetanus (tecessary) may be implanted by scratch, puncture or wound by a perfectly bright, apparently sterilized instrument or instrument of iron or other metal, if implement, skin or environment happens to be contaminated by the droppings of animals.



THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It may be that in Canada we put too much emphasis on the virtues of our dwelling places. Now and again in some of the bigger cities there appears a small intellectual people, usually young, who manage to make a perfectly delightful apartment over some old garage or stable. And in the older and run down parts of the cities, you find people who grow weary of trying to find, or pay for, a conventional modern house or bungalow in the outer districts, and who rent or buy some old ramshackle house, maybe 60 or 90 years old, and have, by means of a little decoration and paint converted it into something comfortable. One of the most delightful apartments of my acquaintance, did it chiefly to escape the long journey to and from town each day, which he felt was making him old before his time.

As for his neighbors, who are mostly roomers, transients and the lowest paid of workers, he asks: who in Canada pays any attention to his neighbor anyway? In Britain and France, I have had the chance to see a great many excellent little dwelling places, in communities like London and the capital cities of both England and France, there was indescribable damage in the war, which has not yet been repaired. Housing is terribly short. And the trick of making a habitable, even pretty or stylish appearance of a place has now been developed to a high art. Thousands of people both young and old, in premises which from the outside no would consider civil slums in Canada, I have been a guest in some of the most attractive homes I ever saw. In this desperate world, we are learning about the importance of what is within rather than without.

Women Members Would Dominate Council of State

London, Sept. 25—(AP)—Women would dominate a council of state if one is created to perform functions while the King recovers from his lung operation.

There is no set precedent but such councils usually have been composed of the monarch's closest relatives, including those who stand in immediate succession to the throne.

Government circles assumed today that a council formed in the present circumstances would consist of five members. Probably they would be the Queen, Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret, the King's sister, Princess Mary who is princess royal—and a loss man, the King's brother, the Duke of Gloucester.

Princess Elizabeth has served twice on such councils. Both occasions were during the Second World War when the King visited troops in Africa and France.

Britons scarcely knew about it because the existence of the councils was made known only after they had ceased to function. In war time the movements of the King were kept secret.

Membership on a new council would place additional duties on Princess Elizabeth and there was speculation whether she would carry out her visit to Canada and the United States if the council is set up.

A Buckingham Palace spokesman said there would be no constitutional bar to her leaving England if she becomes a council member, but practical considerations might persuade Elizabeth she has greater responsibilities at home.

A council of state performs almost all the functions of the King. But there are a few limitations—a council could not dissolve parliament nor could it create peers or confer certain other titles.

The present parliament is to be dissolved Oct. 4, before the Oct. 25 election. There has been no announcement but it was suggested that the King may have taken care of dissolution formalities before his operation Sunday.

Woman Sent For Trial On Murder Charge

Peterborough, Sept. 25 (CP)—Mrs. Lillian Thompson, 33, Monaghey was committed for trial on a charge of murder in the rifle slaying of her husband, Roy, after a quarrel Aug. 25 in their home.

Mrs. Thompson is charged with shooting her husband, a scrap metal dealer and war veteran, after an argument over his taking the family car for the evening.

Her 12-year-old daughter, Betty, and neighbors both testified at the preliminary inquiry that she had said: "Pee shot him."

The evidence was all in last week but there was an adjournment while defence counsel T. J. Carley hunted for precedents in which a magistrate had freed a person charged with murder at a preliminary inquiry.

"In view of the fact there has been a quarrel and no other evidence of an affirmative nature — explaining, qualifying or raising any defence — it is my duty to send this case on for trial at the next criminal assizes," said Magistrate W. R. Philp, giving judgment.

Shows No Emotion

Mrs. Thompson, hatless and dressed in a brown dress and light coat, leaned forward to the police matron, Mrs. Mel Shadgett, when the decision was. She showed no sign of emotion but stood up, opened the door of the prisoner's box and walked rapidly away to the cells.

While her defence counsel cited precedents of acquittals on preliminary trials, she listened attentively. Once she asked for a drink of water.

"There is no evidence of intent or motive," said Mr. Carley. "The only evidence is 'I shot him.' It does not exclude self defence or accident."

"The evidence indicates that Mrs. Thompson, instead of looking for the destruction of her husband, was looking for his preservation. She was trying to quieten things. She first tried to stop him going out in the car and later called for a doctor."

WEDDINGS

FARE—JONES

Before a background of pink and white gladioli and fern, a pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday, September 22, at 2:30 p.m., by the Rev. Sidney E. Larman, in Holloway Street United Church, when Annie Marguerite Jones, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. Manson Jones and the late Mrs. Jones, was united in marriage, in a double ring ceremony, to Sergeant William Frederick Farr, of the R.C.A.F., Trenton, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Farr, of Hamilton, Ontario.

The wedding music was rendered by Mr. Tempier, church organist; the soloist Miss Beverley Buck sang before the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer", and during the signing of the register, "Because", expected.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her ankle-length bridal gown of white nylon lace over taffeta, fashioned with molded bodice featuring a Peter Pan collar, and cap sleeves. She wore a matching lace hat, long fingertips gloves and carried a bouquet of red roses and stephanotis.

Miss Barbara Jones, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, gowned in ankle-length blue lace over taffeta with matching lace hat, and gloves, and carried a bouquet of baby yellow 'mums.

Sergeant Donald Fletcher, of Trenton, attended the bridegroom, while Flight Sergeant Gordon Fillman, and Warrant Officer Lloyd Flewelling, both of Trenton, acted as ushers.

At the reception, which was held in the church parlors, the bridegroom's mother received, wearing navy crepe with matching lace yoke and peplum with black accessories and corsage of pink roses.

For motoring through the Eastern United States, the bride chose a tangerine suit with navy accessories and corsage of white gardenias. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Farr will reside on Highway No. 2, one mile east of the R.C.A.F. Station, Trenton.

Out-of-town guests were present from Trenton, Stirling, Peterborough, Aldershot, Montreal and Hamilton.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was entertained at dinner at Mrs. Ian Hogarth's, Belleville, by her associates in the Department of National Revenue, when she was presented with a Kenwood blanket and a tri-light lamp from the staff.

A miscellaneous shower was given by Mrs. Jack Farr, of Hamilton, at the home of the bridegroom's mother, and another at the home of Mrs. Charles Farr.

KILLED SISTER

Wolcott, N.Y., Sept. 26—(AP)—Three-year-old Billy Dauberman picked up a rifle and accidentally killed his baby sister yesterday. Police said. They said the boy fired a .22-calibre rifle in the face of his eight-month-old sister, Ethel.

RAYON OUT-PUT

Rio De Janeiro — (CP) — Brazil's rayon industry, established in Sao Paulo 15 years ago, last year produced 44,325,000 pounds of long yarn, nearly 13 times as much as its first year's output. This year's production will top 63,000,000 pounds it is expected.

Mrs. E. Farnsworth Addresses W.C.T.U.

The September meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held in the Y.M.C.A., with a good attendance. Opening remarks were made by the president, Mrs. E. Farnsworth, who welcomed all and gave words of encouragement. "Our hope in the Temperance work is embodied in the word 'Christian'. Christ is our great Leader.

In the log-book of Columbus, there is an entry more common than all. It is not 'today we saw land', but, 'to-day we'sail on', and to sail on when everything is seemingly hopeless, is the route to make a better world.

Temperance Study Course

"Suppose there was no W.C.T.U. in Belleville, there would be no Temperance Study Course in the Sunday Schools. During the 17 years of this study course, the National W.C.T.U. spent $50,000 to create interest. Many boys and girls in Belleville take part in this study, each year.

"There would be no Temperance or the public schools where posters, essays and health books are sent in by pupils, who receive prizes.

"There would be no girls' 'Y' Camp, where 60 girls met this year, eight from Belleville. Twenty dollars was contributed by our Union and Institutions made by Tabernacle Women's, Gullet, College Hill Woman's Group and St. John Ambulance Corps.

"There would be no study book on scientific temperance among our women; there would be no good meetings for prayer and service in this field. In many organizations there are a few minutes given to temperance, but surely a real study of this great and increasing evil is needed, especially by all women because of the ill effects on the home. There is such tremendous need of temperance education. 'Education is the only effective antidote to the subtle and persistent propaganda of the liquor traffic'."

Dry Canteens

Mrs. George Foster gave some facts from "The Temperance Advocate". The Department of National Defence is considering two recommendations f'made by the Canadian Temperance Federation, with the backing of the Canadian Council of Church on chaplain service: first, they ask for the establishment of dry canteens, wherever wet canteens are set up; secondly, they recommend an educational program for the armed services on the use of alcohol.

Mrs. Major Honeychurch of the Salvation Army, conducted a helpful devotional service bringing to the W.C.T.U., the picture of the story of the good Samaritan. She drew lessons from each character and challenged all to give help to those down and out by Christian service.

Miss Clarke read and commented on two of the resolutions passed at the provincial convention in Windsor, greeting Anglins, the use of building material for liquor outlets rather than homes, and using grain in making liquor when it is needed for a starving world.

Campaign Plans

Plans were made for the campaign of field secretary, Mrs. Beth McKay in October, closing with a rally of the temperance women of Belleville.

An interesting report of the 'Y' Camp was given by two girls who attended, June Dickens and Betty Ann McLuskie, under the direction of Mrs. James McLuskie, who gave so much of her time in making arrangements for the eight girls from Belleville to go.

A new dormitory recently built, was financed by a gift of $1,000 from the Provincial W.C.T.U. and $300 from the County Unions.

LENGTHY LABOR

WMS Annual Opens At Regina, Sask.

Toronto — The annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Society, W. D., of The Presbyterian Church in Canada opened yesterday in First Presbyterian Church, Regina. Seventy-five delegates from Victoria to Quebec are in attendance to hear recent developments in mission work and to legislate for future advances.

First Church, Regina, is the church of the Moderator of the General Assembly, Reverend Norman D. Kennedy, M. A., M. C., Mr. Kennedy will lead the devotional service each day.

Cameron, D. D., Secretary for Foreign Missions—Genfral Board of Missions. Dr. Cameron spent some time in British Guiana last winter and will speak of the place of the Church in that land encircling the particular influence the Presbyterian Church effects through the direction of several schools.

Miss Ellen Douglas, missionary from India, and Miss Isabel Taylor, A.T.C.M., from Taiwan (Formosa) will tell of their respective fields.

Hospital Auxiliary Entertained At Afternoon Tea

Mrs. George Stobie, president of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, entertained the members at a tea at her home on the Trent Road, yesterday afternoon. Old and new members, of which there were many enrolled, enjoyed her gracious hospitality in charming surroundings enhanced by beautiful arrangements of autumn flowers.

There were many gifts brought for the Opportunity Shop which is due to open early in October.

Mrs. Thomas J. Lyttle, of Toronto, president of the Ontario Association of Hospital Auxiliaries, was present and guests were privileged to meet her and share her enthusiasm for Hospital Auxiliary activities.

Mrs. Gilbert Scott and Miss Ivy Dickens, past presidents of the auxiliary, poured and members of the executive assisted in serving.

GIRL PINNED UNDER TRUCK

Pittsburgh, Sept. 26—(AP)— A runaway truck crashed into a parked bus and a gas station last night, pinning 20-year-old Lorraine Pogles under a heavy load of metal for an agonizing hour and 12 minutes. Four other persons were injured. Two tow trucks and 25 men were needed to lift the tractor-trailer and free the girl. She was reported in serious condition in hospital.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She has "taken everything"—what to do?

"In the course of ten years, I have taken everything from my husband," writes a woman who wants to know if she is "a big fool to stick to this way of living."

What she means by "this way of living" is that her husband "goes out nearly every night, never telling me where he is going or caring that his children and I are home alone. I know that sometimes at least he has been with other women.

"The only thing he does for us she goes on to say, "is to buy the groceries every week. Everything else I and the two children have, I have paid for by working. He very seldom lifts a hand to help me do anything at home after I have already done a hard day's work at the factory. All he thinks about is himself. Weekends he goes off by himself, and never asks us to go along. He has fun to stay at home, while he has his good times. He never stays with the children, or does anything else to help. I am just stuck at home all the time when I am not at work. He never shows any affection toward me, and I can hardly stand not having a little loving from him once in a while. I have never been anything but a good wife to him in all these years, and I still love him dearly. But since he never does anything for me, why should I keep doing such a thing for him?

That seems to me a good question, and one to which this wife should find an answer.

The trouble is, a satisfactory answer is pretty hard to find in a situation of this type.

For, as in every other case where any wife has become fed up with her husband though she still thinks she loves him, she has broadly speaking, just two choices. The first and obvious one is to leave her husband in the hope that she can do better and be happier away from him. The second is to stay with him and make the best of the situation, in the hope that some day, if she has patience and wisdom, things may work out.

If, in this individual case, we consider the first alternative, what are the possibilities?

The possibilities are two: to obtain either a divorce or a legal separation. But the fact that the woman's husband does keep the family in food, and that he does not actually abuse her in any way, would, I think, make it difficult for her to find grounds for a divorce, or a legal separation either, simply because a husband ignores his wife.

There is, of course, her statement that he has been unfaithful to her, and any state will grant a divorce on grounds of infidelity. His neglect of her, also, would be sufficient cause of divorce in some states if labelled "mental cruelty". But either of these would require time, money and a great deal of complicated arranging, and I doubt if she is in a position to afford any of this.

As for a legal separation, it would no doubt be equally difficult for the same reason—insufficient grounds on which to base a plea.

To pick up and leave, taking the children with her, without benefit of legal approval, would be an extremely dangerous move for her to make, in case she might be considering this, since she would only put herself in a position for her husband to bring charges against her on the ground of desertion if he wished to do so.

All that seems to remain, then, for the present anyhow, is the second alternative—to make the best of things and await possible happier times. And while waiting, she should make a determined effort to develop more interests in her own life and the lives of her children.

Admittedly this would not be easy, when she works in a factory all day and has two young children to look after the rest of the time. But I believe she can do it if she will ask someone to help her plan it.

There are people within her reach to whom she might go to tell her story and ask frankly for aid in organizing her time so she might take part in some activities outside her home, and in guiding her in suitable activities. If she does not know how to find them, I will be glad to make further suggestions if she will write me again and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Don't say it with your face.

It is not necessary for them to make faces.

When a woman looks in her mirror she sees herself in a state of repose. If the members of the frail sex who indulge in facial acrobatics could see themselves when talking, they would get the surprise of their lives. Petulant talk isn't enough; they express petulance by pulling their eyebrows together. If the conversation is along sad lines, they pull down their lip-ends, look doleful. Every mood must be registered, it seems. One's manner of talking molds the face, in a way, and faces are ever in the making or the unmaking. It seems senseless to inflict beauty griefs upon oneself.

The tissues and fibres of the human portrait are delicate in the extreme, and contours can be just about ruined by the wrong technique. Observe the critical woman who, when she has a sharp-tongued statement to offer, pulls her chin down and in. It is her way of looking severe and disdainful. A spare chin is in the making, and it serves her right.

It is surprising what facial contortionists can do with their lips. To express suspicion they twist them to one side, an ugly habit if there ever was one. Old Grandpa Face, who hasn't a kind thought for anybody, clicks her teeth together in a way that makes you think of a bear trap in action. Her lips are hard, her eyes steely, her facial muscles tight. She does not look very nice. Evidently she doesn't know it, or maybe she just doesn't care. But time will catch up with her. That frozen look will become a permanent fixture.

Tense, nervous women often squint their eyes when they talk, or draw their eyebrows together, forming a frown; or they lift them, a habit that will eventually result in several little railroad tracks running from temple to temple. Time does enough etching of this kind. Why spoil one's pretty face? You cannot erase wrinkles. There is no beauty magic that will do that little thing. There they are for keeps.

Most of these women don't realize the unsightly expressions they assume. They have no idea how unattractive they look when their faces are cutting up capers. They have tongues in their heads. They can express themselves with words. It is not necessary for them to make faces.

We hear a lot about the benefits of relaxation these days. Faces, as well as bodies and nervous systems, should relax if they are to stay young in appearance, look sweet.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

How to word reply to formal invitation when wife accepts, husband regrets

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I just received a wedding invitation and enclosed with the ceremony invitation was an invitation to the wedding dinner. I can accept the invitation, but my husband cannot. How should I answer the "R.s.v.p." on the invitation?—S.

On your personal note-paper or on white double-sheet note-paper, write on the first page:

Mrs. Edgar Graham accepts with pleasure the kind invitation of
Mr. and Mrs. Hall

for Saturday, the first of October at eight o'clock

Mr. Edgar Graham regrets that he is unable to accept

Or, if you wish to give a reason, it would be polite and gracious to write:

regrets that his absence from the city will prevent his accepting

Toasts appropriate for either formal or informal reception

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. What toasts are necessary in order to keep an informal afternoon wedding reception as informal as possible?

2. For the bride's table, is this correct: bride and groom, maid of honor, best man, ushers (there will be no bridesmaids) the two flower girls, the groom's mother (a widow), minister and his wife, soloist, bride's parents? —Bride's Mother.

1. It is not the number of toasts that determines the formality of a wedding reception. There should of course, be the toast to the bride and bridegroom; also it is charming to have a toast proposed to the bride's mother, the hostess, and to the groom's mother, the woman guest of honor. And there may be any other toasts proposed by anyone who feels so inclined.

2. Usually flower girls are not included at the bride's table. And the soloist may be included, if he or she is a relative or very close friend of either bride or groom.

Seating of bride's parents and groom's parents at reception.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Where do the parents of the bride and the parents of the groom sit at the head table at the wedding reception?

2. How is the napkin placed at a dinner place—with the fold or the opening toward the plate?—K. G. G.

Puzzled.

1. Bride's mother, who is hostess, sits at the head of the table. Bride's father, the host, sits opposite her. At the right of the bride's mother is seated the groom's father, who is the man guest of honor. At the right of the bride's father is the groom's mother, who is the woman guest of honor.

2. When the napkin is placed at the left of the plate (as when the first course is set at each place before the guests come to the table) the opening is toward the plate.

Menu for informal mid-afternoon wedding reception

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter's wedding is to be a church, wedding, informal, at 2:30 p.m. The reception is to be in the church parlor immediately after the ceremony. Is this menu suitable: sandwiches, pickles and olives (carrot strips and celery, if correct), small cookies, white cake and ice cream, wedding cake, tea, and fruit punch? Please make any suggestions.—K. G. G.

A suitable menu, with the exception of the relishes . . . I suggest you omit the olives, certainly the pickles and carrot strips and celery. And you might serve coffee as an alternative to tea.

CAMPBELLFORD

Rev. Charles Richmond Addresses Anglican Deanery Meeting

Campbellford — Rev. Charles Richmond, rector of Christ Church in Omemee, was the main speaker at the meeting of the Anglican Deanery held in Campbellford recently. Rev. Richmond is of English extraction and is a most colorful and dynamic speaker. He came to Canada from East Africa about three months ago, to arrange for the education of his two sons.

Missionary Needs

In his address to the members of the various district Anglican Church bodies he stressed the importance of prayer and told of many experiences whereby he had received help, not only through his own prayers, but also through others praying for him in the work he was doing as a missionary. He emphasized the fact that the younger people of the church should train for the mission fields. If they cannot go as a missionary, they should try to donate money to keep up the work of the church, he said, and finally, if a person is not in a position to do either, he can always pray. "Prayer costs nothing," he said.

In the mission fields near Kenya where Rev. Richmond worked, he performed a great many tasks, not only as a member of the clergy, but also as community doctor, dentist, teacher and advisor. He stressed the need of medical supplies in a steady stream to clergy working in remote spots, and believed that all missionaries should receive some medical training.

Mrs. H. L. Enman of Toronto, Diocesan Officer of the Deanery, also spoke. Reports from officials of the various churches in the district were heard. These were of the activities of the various church bodies and what they had accomplished, especially along the missionary line.

Delegates and clergy from many churches in the Peterborough district attended the meeting, about 150 attending communion in Christ Church, Campbellford. Special speaker at this service was Rev. Morris Poole, rector of All Saints' Church, Peterborough. Rev. John McKibbin of Christ Church, Campbellford, was in charge of the service.

Excellent Dinner

After the communion service, ladies of the Parish Guild served dinner in the Parish Hall on Doxee Avenue. At the head table for the dinner were many important personages of the Deanery, including Archdeacon W. P. Robertson of St. John's Church, Peterborough; Rural Dean W. J. Gilling, rector of St. Luke's Church, Peterborough; Deanery Officer Mrs. Edgar of Peterborough, who was responsible for the planning of the Campbellford meeting, and Mrs. H. L. Enman, Diocesan Officer of Toronto. Rev. Gilling expressed the thanks of the group to the ladies of the Parish Guild for the excellent dinner they had served.

After the dinner, members of the clergy met at the rectory to discuss matters pertaining to the work of the Anglican churches in the district. The religious education program was discussed, as were other important matters. This meeting was presided over by Rev. W. J. Gilling, Rural Dean of Peterborough.

All Political Groups Support Premier Frost on Pension Bill; Some Suggest Higher Rate

Toronto, Sept. 26—(CP)—Premier Frost can fear no defeat of his government's new pension bill when it comes to a final vote in the legislature later this week.

Speakers of all three opposition groups yesterday said their parties will support the bill, but took the opportunity to call for pensions higher than the $40 a month which the government will pay to needy persons aged 65 to 69.

All speakers agreed that $50 would be more in line with the needs of pensioners faced with rising living costs.

Agnes Macphail (CCF-York East) sounded the opposition's platform with a demand for a $10 monthly cost-of-living bonus to pensioners, relaxation of the means test provision to allow pensioners to receive a total of $1,000 a year in pension and outside income instead of $720, and improved medical services for them.

Would Give More

She also called on the government to seek federal agreement to $50 pensions in place of the $40 which Ottawa pays to give next year to all persons above 70, regardless of their means.

Farquhar Oliver, floor leader of the Liberals, who represents Grey South, agreed that Ontario should pay $50 pensions although he felt the agreement reached with the federal government was the "greatest single move forward in old-age pension legislation" since the first federal pension bill was passed in 1927.

Mr. Oliver credited the federal government for removing means test from pensions to those over 70.

He was happy, however, that the Ontario government was adopting pensions for needy persons from 65 to 69, and his party would vote for it.

"There isn't any greater thing that a government can do than move along the path of improved social legislation," he said.

Mr. Oliver joined the C.C.F. party in urging that a supplementary payment be given above the $40 monthly.

A few more members were scheduled to speak today on the pensions bill before it is given second reading—approval in principle.

Companion Bill

A companion bill, lifting the income ceilings of blind persons receiving $40 pensions from $720 to $840 a year, is also expected to get second reading, and the house will then either go into committee on the two bills—the only legislation before it—or else give members an opportunity to enter the Throne Speech debate.

Premier Frost said yesterday he was not opposed to permitting a Throne Speech debate if opposition members' wishes, and said he will not press for the motion he made on opening day that the debate be eliminated. The Throne Speech debate allows members to speak on general topics.

Leslie Wismer (CCF-Toronto Riverdale) said pensioners had no hedge against inflation similar to the government's. He referred to Mr. Frost's opening-day speech in which he said rising income from corporation and succession taxes was the administration's "true hedge against inflation."

Money Worth Less

Inflation has cut into pensions, Mr. Wismer said, so that $40 a month now is worth $3 less than the $30 pensions which were proposed in 1925 as a federal-provincial conference. He charged the previous Progressive Conservative administration with scuttling the 1945 conference, at which universal pensions were proposed.

A. A. MacLeod (Lab.-Prog. Toronto Bellwoods) one of two communist members in the house, said "tens of thousands in Ontario are destitute" because they cannot live on $40 a month.

J. D. Baxter (L-Prince Edward Lennox) said he hoped members would "cross party lines" to approve $50 pensions, since $40 a month was "not a fair deal."

R. A. McEwing (L-Wellington North) said he had hoped the government would draw up a scheme of assistance for impecunious persons, who now were forced to seek direct relief.

BOMBAY FACES FAMINE

Bombay, Sept. 26—(Reuters)—The state of Bombay, plagued by drought, faces one of the worst famines in history, a government spokesman said last night. Thousands of square miles of the state were affected and several areas reported a scarcity of drinking water, in 15 or 30 districts crops were withering.

MORE WOMEN THAN MEN

Bonn, Germany, Sept. 26.—(AP) — West Germany has 2,025,000 more women than men, the government's statistical office reported last night. The country's total population is 48,030,200, including 2,161,500 in West Berlin. Of these, 25,506,400 are women and 22,523,-800 are men.

Two Indicted For Daylight Theft of Jewels

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—Two men, one of whom boasted he was the "best burglar in North America," were indicted yesterday in the daring daylight theft of $646,4000 in jewelry from a showcase in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel's crowded lobby.

Joseph Ireland, 31, Vancouver born admitted drug addict, who bragged of his prowess as a burglar, was accused of three counts of grand larceny, one of them involving the week-old Waldorf theft. The other counts related to smaller gem robberies.

Joseph Lovello, 35, assumed fence and alleged supplier of narcotics for Ireland, was named in an indictment containing three counts of criminally receiving the stolen goods and on three more counts of withholding them.

Ireland, police said, admitted taking the jewels from their display case after fashioning a key to fit it.

Both men were to be arraigned today.

Foundry Worker Found Guilty Of Manslaughter

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 26 (CP)—George Liska, 53-year-old Windsor foundry worker, yesterday was found guilty of manslaughter in the slaying last June 8 of his friend and fellow worker, Mike Lesko.

A Supreme Court jury deliberated for an hour and a half before bringing in their verdict. Liska had been charged with the murder of Lesko.

Mr. Justice J. M. King remanded Liska until the end of the week for sentence.

A total of 48 Crown witnesses told of the killing on the back steps of Lesko's home. Liska, making a full admission of the shooting but claiming that he only intended to wound Lesko, was the only defence witness.

A few hours after the shooting Liska was found wandering in the waterfront area with a wound in his chest which he later admitted was self-inflicted.

MORE JET PLANES FOR R. C. A. F. PILOTS

With increasing deliveries of the R. CA. F.'s new jet trainer, the T-33, more squadrons are being equipped with these aircraft enabling pilots to become familiar with jet flying until sufficient Canadian-built F-86 Sabres are available. Primary use of the T-33 will be to convert pilots from the conventional piston-driven aircraft to jet-propelled fighter planes. Latest squadron to receive the new trainer is 416 Squadron Uplands, Ottawa, whose officer commanding Sqdr.-Ldr. Don Laubman, D. F. C. and Bar, of Prevost, Alta., is shown beside one of the sleek, new aircraft. The T-33 is a modified two-seat version of the American F-80 Shooting Star and is capable of speeds in excess of 600 m. p. h.

BROUGHT IN PENNIES

Pottstown, Pa., Sept. 26—(AP)—Lester L. Zern, who said he had not spent a cent since he left high school 15 years ago, came to town today. He heard the banks were running short of pennies. Filling 48 quart jars with the copper coins he had saved, Zern drove to the Security Bank. More than an hour was needed to count the 52,622 pennies.

HIGH-PLACED PUBLICITY

Birmingham, England — (CP) —When the vicar of Handworth saw an umbrella atop the 150-foot spire of his church, he started looking for the culprit. Then he decided it would be good publicity — the church is about to launch an appeal for £600 to repair the spire.

Refugees Release Balloons Carrying Message of Hope

Munich, Germany, Sept. 26 — (AP)— The engineer and the dispatcher of the "Freedom Train" that brought 31 Czech political refugees into west Germany released huge balloons today carrying messages to their communist-controlled homeland.

The balloons were released by Jaroslav Konvalinka and Karl Trukss, carrying messages to tell the people of Czechoslovakia the true story of the dash across the border Sept. 11.

"Dear countrymen," say the messages, "don't believe that any American agent had anything to do with our escape."

The messages said that Czechoslovak government charges U.S. agents aided in the plot were "more in a series of lies spread by the communist government."

Thirty-one Czechoslovaks on the train declared themselves political refugees and were permitted to remain. Seventy-seven unwilling participants were returned to Czechoslovakia.

The Czchoslovak government demanded U.S. occupation authorities extradite the 31 refugees, charging them with kidnapping and threatening to kill the others.

The "Crusade for Freedom," an anti-communist organization in the U.S. said it had found haven for the 31 in Canada.

Many Additional Rural Consumers Being Served

Toronto, Sept. 26 (CP) —About 3,500 additional rural hydro customers are being served by the Ontario Hydro Commission every month, Commission Chairman Robert Saunders said last night.

In a broadcast over an Ontario network, Mr. Saunders said he terms ed electricity "truly the farmer's most valuable hired hand." Mr. Saunders traced the growth of rural hydro since the time 30 years ago when there were only 55 rural customers served by six miles of distribution lines.

"Today that handful of people has grown into a mighty family, a mighty army of the soil. Today, hydro is serving more than 309,-955 rural customers, well over double the 144,000 served at the beginning of 1945, and this great organization is growing at the rate of some 3,500 a month. . .

Brien McMahon Advises U.S. Foot Soldiers Still Needed Despite New Wonder Weapons

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—Americans had the word of top congressional and military authorities today that atomic wonder-weapons are nearer the hands of United States fighting men, but that foot soldiers and bullets won't fade away.

There were expressions from Chairman Brien McMahon (Dem. Conn.) of the senate-house of representatives atomic energy committee, Defence Secretary Robert Lovett and Army Secretary Frank Pace.

They all agreed swift progress has been made. But there was a polite differing of emphasis.

Pace cautiously let it be known that when the stuff is ready, the army will want it in quantity.

Renews Plea

McMahon, who in a senate speech last week urged that the U.S. get started on all-out atomic weapons production to reduce the cost of conventional armament, renewed his plea last night in an address to the Federal Bar Association.

Among other things, McMahon said the atomic energy commission has in being or in development "literally dozens" of different types and kinds of special-purpose atomic weapons.

He said "the so-called wonder weapons" he was talking about weren't just a gleam in the eye of scientists but "down-to-earth" hardware, proven, demonstrated and confirmed," or proof-tested or about to be.

McMahon had prepared his speech before Lovett issued, at a Pentagon press conference, a statement which the secretary explained was to answer misinterpretations of what McMahon had meant in his senate speech last week.

Exaggerated Impression

"Recent publicity about new weapons, new developments in warfare, and optimistic statements on the military application of atomic energy have given the exaggerated impression that a quick, easy and inexpensive security might now be at hand," Lovett said.

Over a seven-year period, he added, considerable progress has been made toward a "variety of new weapons." The Pentagon has "geared" its requests for carriers of these new weapons, "airborne and otherwise," to these developments.

"Many future weapons may be dramatically different from our present armaments," Lovett stated. "Meanwhile, however, we must rely on the proved, tested, and available models to win today's battles with men presently trained to use them.

"Thus in view of these new developments, there is no new, inexpensive, or magic way to win wars in the near future."

EXECUTIVE SENTENCED

Detroit, Sept. 26 —(AP)— A Chrysler Corporation executive, convicted of reckless driving, will spend the next 10 Saturdays in police headquarters — writing a history of 1951 traffic fatalities in Detroit. The defendant, sentenced yesterday, was William J. O'Neill, Jr., assistant general superintendent of the Dodge truck division of Chrysler. To date 125 persons have been killed in Detroit traffic in 1951.

MARMORA

Choral Communion Highlights Harvest Thanksgiving Service

Marmora — The Harvest Thanksgiving service at St. Paul's on Sunday morning, which took the form of Choral Communion, was taken by the rector Rev. Canon J. M. Brownlie, and was largely attended.

The interior of the church was tastefully decorated with flowers which included a fine display of dahlias, the gift of Dr. H. Hammond; autumn foliage, fruits and vegetables. Flowers on the altar were in memory of Joseph Scott and his two daughters, Nellie and Eileen, the gift of Mrs. Scott and family.

Prayer for the recovery of the King was offered in course of the service. Traditional harvest hymns were sung and the congregation listened to an impressive sermon on the text: "While the earth remaineth seed and time and harvest shall not cease," being bidden to sow the seeds of faith, hope, love and life.

RALLY DAY SERVICE

Children of St. Andrew's United Church Sunday School participated with the regular congregation on Sunday morning in the special Rally Day service as prepared by the Department of Christian Education.

Saddler, Pep Renew Fight Series With Champion Favored at 2-1 Odds

By JACK HAND

New York, Sept. 26 — (AP) — The fourth annual renewal of the Sandy Saddler-Willie Pep series for the featherweight title goes at 10 p. m. EDT tonight at the Polo Grounds.

Saddler, the current champion to clear your local comic, is a 2-to-1 choice to end Pep's hopes of being the first man ever to hold the same title three times.

Unless there is a tremendous last minute ticket surge — and there was a year ago for chapter No. 3 — the gate won't go over $75,000 and about 15,000 fans. They drew $282,150 last September.

Home television and radio lose again in this 15-round match that will be seen only in 17 theatres in 13 cities.

Rain put the damper on yesterday's sales. Cloudy skies won't help the last day drive either. In the event of rain the fight will be held Thursday.

Slugger-Boxer

Saddler-Pep is a good example of the classic in fighting styles. The match; Sandy, a lean, long-armed Negro, has one of the best knockout averages in the game. In 139 fights, he's won 128 including 88 by knockouts. He's lost seven, been placed once and fought one draw with Jimmy Carter, now the lightweight champ.

The nimble-footed Pep is a fine boxer with a flicking jab and an ability to befuddle his opponent. At his best he's almost sure fire to outbox Saddler if it goes the route. He's lost only three of 164 starts, but was stopped twice by Saddler.

On the theory that Saddler was fast catching up to Pep when Willie retired because of a dislocated left shoulder last September, the pick here is Saddler inside of 10 rounds.

It's liable to be a rough one. Pep will try to hang on Sandy's potent left hand when they get inside. Saddler, naturally, will be trying to wrestle free. At long range, Pep's left will add up a lead. But Saddler has scored all four knockdowns in the series.

A tendency to go around the ropes may handicap Pep who has been clocking his old form in training hours.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

More testimony was requested by the court yesterday in the suit of New York Yankees football team to restrain quarterback George Ratterman from playing with National Alouettes.

Superior Court Judge John Grimshaw, after hearing at Hackensack, N.J., testimony from both sides, adjourned the hearing until Oct. 15, when depositions will be taken from National-American Football League Commissioner Bert Bell in Philadelphia.

Ted Collins, owner of the football Yankees, seeks an injunction to restrain Ratterman, who led the league in touchdown passes last year, from playing football for the Alouettes.

Collins claimed he held a three-year contract from Ratterman for the 1950-51-52 seasons, calling for a salary of from $13,500 in 1950 to $14,500 in 1952.

Ratterman, signed a contract this summer with Montreal for $17,000 and claimed the Yankees failed to send him a written announcement that they were picking up his option for 1951.

Montreal Canadiens yesterday announced the signing of Dick Gamble, a left-winger, to a two-year contract. Gamble, native of Moncton, N.B., was a higher scorer for the last two seasons with Quebec Aces of the Quebec Senior Hockey League.

Gamble played two years of junior hockey in Moncton before he went to Oshawa where he played three seasons with the Oshawa Generals. Last season at Quebec he gained 46 assists for a total of 80 points.

Soccer at night is still not sanctioned by the Soccer Association for league matches. As yet, it's exhibitions only.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

ALL OVER . . .

That's it. The Redmen can hang up their baseball togs—hawks; beach the war canoes; tear down the teepees and wipe off the war paint. They've been the Central Ontario Baseball League title team—allimmering last night in Brockville when the Memos led by "Ole Smoky" sent them down fighting by a 4-1 score to drop the series by a 4-1 count.

But they went down in a blaze of glory. It was a thriller from start to finish with the Brockies getting three runs in the first, (an old Red custom) and Smith and Fitzpatrick crossing hurling rapiers in a sparkling mound duel that was backed by flawless fielding by both teams and featured by desperate Redmen efforts to turn the tide of defeat, and those of the Memos to hang to the initial lead.

The Redmen fought to the last ditch and sank with all flags flying. At that they tossed a scare into the Brockville fans in the ninth when they scored their lone run; and had two men aboard. But gallant Johnny Dean strode to the plate, smashed the ball to the infield and the Brockies came up with a smart twin-killing to end the game and the series.

The Hugh G. Campbell Trophy was presented to the newly-crowned champions by C.O.B.L. vice president Jack Devlin in the absence of President Bob Nesbitt of Kingston.

The Memos are worthy champions. They played consistent baseball throughout the schedule—including an early lead in handing the pack to finish in the itinerary with a commanding margin. They were pushed to the limit by the defending champions, Smiths Falls Royals who took them thru seven hard-fought battles before giving up the playoff grand.

They proved themselves money players in the series just completed by taking the first three games from the Brockies—losing the fourth and fifth and final last night to grab their first senior championship in the Central Ontario Baseball League. Congratulations.

Nor were the Redmen disgraced in their finals showing. They put up there the hard way, fighting all the time and winning their games when the chips were down. They ousted Batawa in two straight to earn the fourth spot playoff berth and then eliminated Port Hope and Cobourg Dixon Leafs after a stern close-fought seven game semi-finals series.

With all their faults, real and imaginary, the team and the Belleville Baseball Association deserve a lot of credit. Behind the players were a group of baseball-minded citizens who, at the start of the season through diligent untiring effort made it possible for this city to enter a senior baseball team in the Central Ontario League for the first time in over a decade and a half.

And whatever they have done right or wrong, they brought their first "child" in years to the league finals, an achievement of which not only they but this city should be proud.

True they made mistakes. Coach Pat Wilson made mistakes. The team, individually and collectively made mistakes. Who doesn't? They were criticized, rightly and wrongly. Grandstand managers love 'em apart when they lost, and kept "mum"-when they won. But the greater majority of the fans stayed loyally with them, especially in the later playoffs when they packed the southern "amphitheatre" at the fair grounds.

While they did not bring the title to Belleville in their initial attempt, the BHA has laid the foundation for senior baseball here again. It has brought the game back to a city which for several years made sports headlines when the Ontario senior baseball championships were being played. And its teams brought back the tinsley paisfales to the banks of the Moira on more than one occasion.

Whatever its shortcomings, the Belleville Baseball Association at least, brought baseball back to a city that has not been represented in senior circles since 1936. It gave baseball fans here their favorite recreation, and it varied its fare. The Redmen, in common with the rest of the teams in the league, turned in some sparkling exhibitions as well as the other kind with brilliant outstanding examples of how the game should not be played.

But that is baseball. It happens in the major leagues. Winning games gets monotonous, too, as Brockville discovered, as does losing them too consistently. That cannot be said of the Reds. They mixed their brand during the schedule, then drew the admiration, and criticism, believe it or not, of fandom when they proved they were a fighting squad in the ousting of Batawa and Kingston in the "money series".

It's all over now. There are those who will criticise the Association, Coach Pat Wilson and others for not winning the title. That is the inalienable right of the baseball fan. But in criticizing, remember, gentlemen, Rome was not made in a day. The BHA, its officials, coaches and players gave the best they had, and they made a good enough. And remember, too, it is no small achievement to bring a team to the championship series in the first year of operation. That is no mean feat in any man's league.

We believe the BHA, the Redmen team and all connected with it deserve a great big pat on the back for resurrecting senior baseball in this city, and sending it off to a start toward what should develop into an era of prosperity comparable to that when the famous Grand Trunks and later, Nationals, made baseball history in Ontario.

Trample Phils by 5-1 Score As Braves Belt 'Bums' Twice; Yankees Move Closer to Flag

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Is the miracle about to come to pass?

Will the given-up-for-dead New York Giants actually overhaul the runaway Brooklyn Dodgers?

Are the Dodgers panic stricken?

These are some of the questions asked today by an astonished baseball world, dazed by yesterday's sudden turn of events that left the Dodgers reeling.

Manager Charlie Dressen and his Brooklyn crew saw their once-huge 13½-game bulge over the Giants melt to a single game last night when the Braves pummelled them in a nightmarish flood lighted doubleheader, 8-3 and 14-3. At the same time the relentless Giants were polishing off Philadelphia Phils 5-1 for their 24th triumph in their last 41 games.

Yanks Move Closer

The big doings in the National League far overshadowed the American League scramble that saw the front-running New York Yankees move a step nearer the pennant with both Cleveland and Boston Red Sox were beaten. The Yankees, who have shoved the Indians three games behind the Yankees with a 6-2 triumph while Washington topped the Red Sox 5½ games off the pace with a 2-0 victory.

The Dodgers were depressed, but there was no hint of surrender despite their double defeat.

"We're still in front. That's all I know," said captain Pee Wee Reese.

"We got all the bad baseball out of our systems," said Dressen. "The boys aren't panicky. There's nothing we can do but go out and win four of our remaining five."

The Dodgers still have five to go—two in Boston and three in Philadelphia. The Giants have three left—one in Philadelphia and two in Boston. Any combination of four Dodger wins and/or Giant losses would clinch the flag for Brooklyn.

Face Stiff Task

The Giants still face the Herculean task and manager Leo Durocher is confident that his charges cannot afford to lose another game. They are certain to face Warren Spahn, ace Boston lefthander, in one of them. Spahn yesterday whipped the Dodgers for his 22nd victory.

"I'd be foolish to predict a pennant," said Durocher. "Nobody realizes what a task we are fronted with better than I. We still have to have help to win it."

"But let me tell you this," he added, "that 14-game slugfest ball club I ever managed. Everybody else gave up on us but the players themselves. They don't know what it is to quit."

Durocher yesterday made a smart managerial move that helped the Giants to victory. Starter-pitcher Jim Hearn lost his shutout in the seventh with a homerun pitch to Willie Jones. When two singles followed with only one out, Leo derricked Hearn and summoned Sal Maglie, his ace righthander.

Maglie threw a double-play ball to pinch-hitter Del Ennis and breezed through the eighth and ninth innings to preserve Hearn's 16th victory. Alvin Dark paved the way for Robin Roberts' 13th defeat, banging a triple and hong run.

Dodgers Err

The Braves decided each game early. They tallied six runs in the first inning of the opener and scored another sixer in the second inning of the nightcap. A two-run homer by Sam Jethroe and Buddy Kerr's bases-loaded double and Ralph Branca down to defeat in the first game.

Three Dodger errors and a long single by Earl Johnson that scored three runners highlighted the second-game rout as he ex-Dodger of loser Carl Erskine. Jim Wilson hurled a three-hitter for the Braves.

Billy Pierce pitched a nice-hitter to register his fifth victory in six starts against the Indians. He started a game-ending double play after Bobby Doerr had loaded the bases in the ninth. Orestes Minoso homered and singled for the White Sox.

Bob Porterfield handcuffed the Red Sox with two singles as the Senators broke eight off loser Leo Kiely.

The Yankees, rained out of their scheduled game with Philadelphia Athletics, need to win only two of their remaining six to clinch the flag. They play the A's Monday and followed with five against the Red Sox.

Player-Draft System Favored By Smythe

Toronto, Sept. 26—(CP)—Approval of Frank Boucher's recommendation that sponsorship of amateur hockey clubs be dropped by National Hockey League Clubs in favor of a player-draft system was voiced yesterday by Conn Smythe, general manager of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Smythe revealed he had submitted a five-point program to a meeting of the N.H.L. governors last August "in an effort to get hockey back on its firm base again."

He gave no indication how the governors reacted but there is another meeting of the group in New York tomorrow and undoubtedly a draft system will be discussed. Smythe, contacted to bed with a recurrence of a war injury, will be unable to attend.

Boucher, general manager New York Rangers, said Monday at Guelph that despite the fact his club spent thousands of dollas annually on sponsoring clubs it had not been able to develop players capable of making the Rangers.

Smythe would terminate by agreement between the N.H.L. and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association that calls for the N. H.L. to pay amateur teams for developing players. The Leafs' general manager maintained that friendly competition between the two organizations would be better than a partnership "which is entirely in favor of the amateur authorities."

Royals, Brewers, Meet in Little World Series

Montreal, Sept. 26 —(CP) — Montreal Royals of the International League, who wind up in baseball's Little World Series with surprising regularity, play host to Milwaukee Brewers, American Association champions, tonight in the first game of a best-of-seven series.

For Royals, No. 1 farm team of Brooklyn Dodgers, it is the sixth appearance in the Little World Series in 10 years, a fact which gives them some of the status in the International League that the New York Yankees hold in the American League.

In their five appearances the Royals have won the Little World Series three times. This is their first meeting with Milwaukee who have been successful both times they played in the minor league series.

There are only a few things on the records to compare the two teams. Milwaukee has five players with better than .300 averages. One of them is rookie first baseman George Crowe who led the American Association with .339.

Montreal's Central has only two better-than-.300 hitters — outfielder Clint (Shanty) Shuba with .308 and second baseman Hector Rodriguez with .303.

The Brewers appear to have a slight edge in pitchers. They plan to use a righthander Murray Wall (15-8) in tonight's opener against Chris Van Cuyk (11-4).

Dick Donovan (7-5) of Milwaukee may face Montreal's Mal Mallette (10-6) in the second game; and Ernie Johnson (15-4) will probably hurl the third game for Milwaukee against Tom Lasorda (12-6).

Despite the apparent edge, Royals have been installed as 9-5 favorites.

If all three games are scheduled for Montreal's Delormier Stadium tonight, Thursday and Friday. The series then moves to Milwaukee.

Monopoly Charges Are Denied By Boxing Club

New York, Aug. 26 (AP) — The International Boxing Club stoutly defended its practices today amid reports that U.S. federal agents are investigating charges the IBC is operating as a monopoly.

"We know the government has had representatives around here quite a while talking to managers, fighters and others connected with the sport," Harry Markson, managing director of the IBC, said.

"We welcome such an investigation. We know our operations are perfectly okay. We can stand it."

Markson said the investigators had not talked with Mike Morris, president of the IBC or any other member of the organization.

Introduce Bills

Three senators introduced resolutions last month urging an investigation of big time boxing and particularly the IBC.

Senator Magnuson (Dem.-Wash.) introduced a bill asking that a senate committee probe whether there is a monopoly and whether there are any connections between promoters and "any persons connected with rackets or gangs." Magnuson said:

A joint resolution by Republican Senators Cain of Washington and Welker of Idaho declared the boxing profession will disappear "unless certain monopolistic practices are exposed and eliminated."

"It appears," said Senator Cain, "that the International Boxing Club is a closed society that has what amounts to a monopoly of some 90 percent of the boxers in the country."

Dewey Appoints N.Y. Boxing Czar, Demands Fight Game 'Clean House'

Albany, N.Y. Sept. 26. (AP)—Governor Thomas E. Dewey yesterday appointed a new boxing czar for New York State and demanded that the fight game clean house.

Dewey announced the resignation of former amateur boxer Eddie Eagan and appointed Robert J. Christenberry, New York City hotel keeper, as chairman of the State Athletic Commission.

Reporters asked the governor's secretary, James C. Hagerty whether Dewey had forced out Eagan in view of mounting criticism against the one-time Olympic champ.

Hagerty replied tersely: "He resigned. The announcement speaks for itself."

Christenberry, 53 is president of the Hotel Astor. He formerly was a sports writer and a United States consular official.

Eagan said he was quitting because of the pressure of his private law practice.

The three-member Athletic Commission, and especially Eagan, has been under heavy fire by sportswriters and state legislators because of its handling of boxing. Democratic legislators have charged that the commission did nothing to keep underworld influences out of the sport.

Brockville Wins COBL Championship With 4-1 Victory Over Redmen

'Smoky' Edges Fitzpatrick In Thrilling Mound Duel After 1st Inning 3-Run Lead

By MAURICE H. REID

Brockville Memos are 1951 champions of the Central Ontario Baseball League by virtue of their 4-1 win over the Belleville Redmen at Fulford Park on Tuesday night in the fifth game of the final series.

Exploding for three runs in the first frame, all after two men had been put away, the Memos played errorless ball behind the seven-hit championship effort of "Smoky" Smith to gain full measure of the victory cup.

Present Trophy

Vice-president of the COBL, Jack Devine of Belleville, was on hand and presented the Hugh M. Campbell Trophy, symbolic of league supremacy, to coach Andy Hershock of the Memos immediately following completion of the lightning-fast game.

A crowd of about 650 people were on hand to witness the final game of the season which was played in the almost record time of one hour and forty minutes.

Fitzpatrick, who went the distance on the hill for the Reds, got rid of Weaver and Coleman on fly balls in the first inning and seemed away to a good start. But then he passed Galen and hit Bill Kasepchuk with a pitched ball. Art Pierce, Memo rightfielder, made himself the hero of the game when he drove a tremendous triple to right-centre field and scored on Ashley's infield hit for the third counter. Skodis was retired on a pop fly to Dean but the damage was done.

They added their other tally in the fourth on two hits, one a perfect bunt by Stelmach, a sacrifice and a fly ball.

'Smokey' Was Good

Belleville were not able to get a man by second base in that first eight innings, due to a superlative hurling effort by "Old Smokey" and only one runner got by first.

Don Gilmour was that one man, and he accomplished the feat twice. Once in the fourth after he had singled off Smith's glove and advanced on a passed ball, and again in the sixth when he blooped a double into right that everyone went after but nobody caught.

The Redmen started a serious threat in the top of the ninth when Fitzpatrick led off with a single to the left field fence. Don Gilmour flied out but Goyer drove one over the short fence for an automatic double to put two men in scoring position. Carson banged out a safety off Galen's glove scoring Fitz with Goyer retaining second.

Here Smith settled down and forced Johnny Dean to hit a ground ball to short. Stelmach rifled the ball to Weaver who relayed to Skodis for the double killing and the ball game.

"Smoky" Smith turned in another steady hurling effort to chalk up his fifth straight playoff win. He fanned five while issuing only one free ticket.

No Clutch Hitting

Fitzpatrick also threw a good game after the fatal first but the Reds just couldn't get those timely hits to aid him. He walked a pair while whiffing three.

Ashley and Kasepchuk shared hitting honors for the homesters with a double and single each. Pierce's three-bagger was the only other knock for extra bases.

Don Gilmour with a double and single and Fitz who had two safeties, were tops at the plate for the Redmen while Goyer picked up a double.

Both teams played good defensive ball, neither committing an error. Ashley made the defensive play of the night when he climbed the grade approach to the fence in centre field to spear Reeves well-tagged line drive.

Castle Comb, Wiltshire, England — (CP) — Castle Combe's 13th-century market cross may have to be demolished. Repairs will cost £550 and authorities fear the money cannot be raised locally.

INTERESTING RELIC

Copenhagen — (CP) — An artificial finger made of bronze, soldered with silver and provided with ball joints was uncovered during excavations at a medieval castle. Archaeologists say the finger must have been used 400 years ago and thus it is the oldest artificial limb ever found.

Young Goalie Out With Leafs

St. Catharines, Sept. 26—(CP)—Donnie Campbell, 17-year-old goalie from Saskatoon, is working out with Toronto Maple Leafs at their pre-season hockey training camp here. And he says he loves it.

"I've learned more here in two days than I did all the four years I've been playing hockey," said the six-footer who netminded for Saskatoon Wesleys, Western Canada juvenile finalists last season. "Two years ago I was at the Detroit Red Wings' hockey school in Saskatoon but nobody paid me any attention the way they do here."

Best of all, he has as his roommate a standout player he has always idolized from afar, fellow-goalie Turk Broda.

When a natural-meaning word is turned into a special-meaning signal, it is known as a convention. So, a convention is merely an artificial meaning given to a normal bidding word.

Thus, a bid may have a natural meaning and an artificial one. How can you tell when it is used for one or the other? By the spot in which that bid is used.

How do you know the artificial meaning of any convention? It may be a meaning you have agreed upon with your partner. It may be a meaning some expert has advised you to use.

What kind of bids are best used as conventions? Lazy bids. By lazy bids are meant, the bids that you seldom have use for in some situations. Or bids that are more useful as conventions.

The word double is one of the most popular in bridge employed as a convention. Its normal use is to announce that you expect to defeat the last opponent bid. But it is otherwise used as a convention.

As a convention it is a signal that asks partner to bid. That is employed in that manner is a natural result. It comes by the convention use in a setting that is easy to realize.

If partner has not yet bid, seldom have you a chance to defeat a small bid. So, a double of a small bid does not mean it can defeat. It turns into a signal that asks partner to bid.

South opens with a bid of one club. Double with this west hand:

♠K Q 10 5
♥A Q 7 4
♦K J 9
♣7 6

It stands to reason that partner does not expect you to defeat one club. It must mean you want him to bid.

The rule is: If partner has not yet bid, a double of less than four in a suit or less than two in no-trump is a convention that asks partner to bid something.

A convention is an unnatural meaning of a bid.

Hollywood, Sept. 26—(AP) — How would you, Mr. Jones, like to have the little lady accompany you to the office every day?

And you, Mrs. Smith—would you like to sell brushes door-to-door with your hubby?

Here are a husband and wife who have worked together for a year and they like it. But, they quickly add, they don't want to make it a habit.

Rex Harrison and Lilli Palmer scored on Broadway last season in the frothy 'Bell, Book and Candle.' At present they are embarking on a most unusual film project, "The Four-Poster." About their professional association, Harrison commented:

Stimulating Work

"It's stimulating to work together. We can spend much more time besides our working hours in developing the characters. I think it's ideal for roles in which you play married people. You get a much greater intimacy, which would take weeks to achieve if you were working with a strange actress."

"Oh, yes, it's much easier," agreed his wife, "But I don't think we shall do it often. Too much association can be wearing, even with one's own husband or wife. I'm sure a bank clerk wouldn't want to work side-by-side with his wife every working day."

"It's too difficult to find the proper vehicles, anyway," added Harrison. "The only ones who have been able to make a success of it have been Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, and they are quite the exception."

The "Four-Poster" Mr. and Mrs. Harrison co-star with a bed.

There is no one else in the cast. All hands hope it comes off.

In One House

"The entire story takes place in one house—in fact, in two bedrooms," Harrison explained. "It covers the important points in a couple's life from 1937 almost to the present. Included are their wedding night, the birth of their son, the husband's infidelity, the wife's infidelity, the beginning of her illness and her death.

Harrison admited that such a subject and location might sound highly remarkable. But, he claimed, it's entirely harmless.

"It's merely a story of the basic elements of any marriage."

ARCTIC DEPTHS

Greatest depth in the Arctic Ocean has been recorded at 17,850 feet, compared to 35,410 for the Pacific.

AT THE BELLE — Joan Bennett and Linda Darnell co-star with Paul Douglas in 20th. The Paramount picture arrives Thursday at the Capitol Theatre with plenty of Indians, action and laughs. On the same program, in Technicolor, "The Last Outpost," starring Ronald Reagan and Rhonda Fleming.

AT THE McCARTHY — Popular Western favorite Joel McCrea and Dean Stockwell are starred in Universal-International's Technicolor Western, "Cattle Drive," which features Chili Wills, Leon Ames and Bob Steele. Fourteen-year-old Stockwell played an important supporting role to McCrea in "Stars in My Crown," a heartwarming film released last year. "Cattle Drive" opens at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre on Thursday.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was sewing on her sewing machine and I was laying on the floor reeding one of the old books out of our bookcase, being about a girl named Jollyanna that always looked on the brite side of things, making everybody feel happier, including herself, ma said. Oh dear, oh drat, oh shaw.

Meaning on account of her sewing machine having stopped werking, and she started to try to fix it, saying, it never grew in to fix, this bobbin invariably jams just when I'm in the biggest hurry to get through.

Well jimminies, ma, there's always a brite side, I said. Just think of your finger had got run over by the needle, I said, and not kept on poking at the bobbin, saying, it's annoying, it's really most aggravating, and I said, it's lucky you can fix it yourself, ma. If you had to send for the plumber it would take still longer, besides the expense. So how about that for a brite side? I said.

Ma just keeping on trying to fix it without answering me, saying, Oh dear, that whole seam will have to be done over. Sometimes I almost envy the women who never learned to sew, more irritating than a mass of thread getting tangled in the bobbin, she said, and I said, there there is, ma. Gosh, just think how much more irritating it would be if an atomic ray hit the sewing machine and turned the whole thing into a little cloud of dust, I said.

If you were near enough to slap I'd make a little cloud of dust fly out of the seet of your pants, ma said. Now you get out of this room while I have a shred of reelity left, she said, and I said, Well G, ma, dont you like brite sides?

You'd better get started, ma said.

Witch I quick did, proving people in books must be different.

MOTOR CAR DEMOLISHED

St. Catharines, Ont., Sept. 26—A shunting locomotive demolished an automobile last night in the freight yards here but William Jones, 42, of Beamsville, driver of the car, escaped injury. Jones told police a shunting engineer kept him from seeing the backing engine.

MEN WANTED

London —(CP)— Letters from women listeners contained requests for more men on a radio program called "Woman's Hour." So the BBC dutifully introduced a short feature called "The Men's Point of View."

Swiss Yachtsman Makes Lone Trip Across Pacific

at sea on the latest tack of his trip. His last port of call was San Diego.

Told by a British consular official in Honolulu that he would not need a visa to enter Canada, he did not pick up any papers on leaving the United States, other than his port clearance. Immigration officials here appeared doubtful that the genial sailor would be allowed to remain, although he would like to winter here.

Jacques does not know where he will point To Hongi's how if he must leave. He has visited almost every country in the world, speaks many languages and feels that a real wanderer never knows for sure where he will sail next. "I sail where my heart leads me," he said. "There is always boat and you have no worries."

another place, another port.

Reaching Victoria was not easy, the veteran yachtsman asserted. He visited Tahiti first and headed north to Honolulu where he spent five months repairing the schooner.

Headwinds made sailing difficult all the way and a heavy gale outside the strait of Juan de Fuca kept him awake for more than two days and a night.

Sleeping at sea, alone on a small schooner, calls for a special peace of mind, Jacques said. He lashes the tiller, sets his sails for the kind of weather that is brewing and goes below to sleep for a night through serenely.

"Storms at sea?" asks the soft-spoken Swiss sailor. "There is nothing to them, really. You keep the water outside of the boat."

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Thursday, September 27

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Appropriate to take up favorable propositions that have real merit and worth while advantages. Don't be hurried, or anxious to get it over with. Take proper time deciding.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Vibrations fine for well understood and planned effort. Have faith in yourself in judgment wisely compounded. You have the makings of an excellent day. Be consistent, hopeful.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—No need to warn that you think well rather than fast. Good day's achievement can be yours. Things may happen quickly, rate them according to true importance; follow through steadily for gains.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Hold everything until you are rightly set on what should be done, what you can handle without strain. Avoid pointless sharp turns from the known "best way." Keep within safe boundaries.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Opponents won't always telegraph their plans, so be alert, cautious but confident. Heed little hints from those in the know, loved ones, and don't rush in where fools fears to tread.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Study your plans, ascertain the fair and most favorable ones befose acting. This day may be just the right time for going all out on that plan, obligation or desired program.

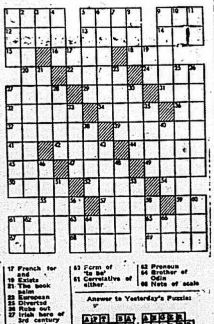
September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Major good things will stand out in general, so delve for the hidden ones. Don't let them slip your attention. Look for better chance to move forward, but keep within reason.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Watch your step, especially in contracts, loans, in any weighty obligations. Don't just think great expectations, work for them.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Certain unfriendly conditions can be annoying if you let them, or act lackadaisical, uninterested in matters around you. Be sensibly careful with chemicals, secretive affairs.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Don't be hurried in decisions or careless answering questions pertaining to work, business. Avoid too strenuous activity in sports, labor, in anything that could impair health.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Your planet in partly inauspicious position, urging more care in finances and professional matters. Less stimulating day than appears; add fresh incentive. Don't let anything get you down.



February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Sidestep useless activity, arguments, pettiness, though you may not be to blame; work hard for harmony. Protect wise routine, but still remember we all have certain chances to take.

YOU BORN TODAY: Sturdy character, sound in reasoning and decisions; natural leader, protector of the peace and the under-dog. Succeed fastest in harmonious surroundings, with intelligent, cheerful associates, as don't we all! However, some get ahead easier under less happy conditions because they accept such a part of life's scheme. You desire to better others' circumstances. Would be excellent in Government post, as statesman, teacher, nurse, any calling dealing directly with people. Cultivate good social contacts, but don't go too hard at pleasures. Pray daily.

WILD WEST CHARITY STANDISH

By CHARLES JUDAH

Charity Standish wore her finest gown to Archie Douglas' Kent that night and was nervous lest it be not half fine enough. The Aztec was all of these things fantastically impossible dreams that come true only in strange corners of America. It was castle-on-the-Rhine, chateau-on-the-Loire and-hunting-lodge-in-the-Black-Forest, all rolled into one.

It covered four acres of ground that ran steeply up the side of a canyon some six miles west of San Lorenzo. It was constructed on seven different levels and the outside was in three different styles of architecture. Inside, however, it was uniform —pure America; millionaire, with walnut paneling and marble bath in each of the 480 guest rooms.

The casino was in keeping with the rest. Not the sort of place Hatchet-face Kit or Fly-Speck Al would be likely to visit, though Billy the Kid sometimes swaggered through it. Nor was it the sort of place in which Douglas Kent customarily gambled. But it was definitely the sort of place to which a man could take a girl from a small town in Ohio. Nowhere was gambling carried on more elegantly, no clientele could be more genteel. Roulette, faro, blackjack — Douglas explained each game to Charity.

It sounded complicated and a little dull. It was more fun to look at the women's clothes, and to guess which were those of wives, and which were maybe not. At a dice table Doug won a small bet.

"It's a sign you're going to bring me good luck," he grinned, and added airily, "Seven's my friend."

"But wasn't $5 a good deal to risk?" Charity asked.

For answer he took her to a roulette table. It was piled high with silver and gold, for Aztec guests scorned the effete paper currency of the east, holding that shining specie better symbolized the glamour of New Mexico. But Charity thought it was silly to have so much money strewn around, and wondered nervously concerning the whereabouts of Hatchet-Face Charlie and Rattlesnake Joe, who appeared to be overlooking a great business opportunity.

Under a high paling moon that a few hours earlier had risen in orange splendor above the mesa she kissed him.

"Couldn't you do something else, Doug? A ranch, maybe?"

He knew he could make a living on a ranch. This was good sheep country and fair for cattle. During the years in the west he had lidded more than once his financial crisis by taking way job that offered itself. It added up to considerable experience. Yes, he could make a living on a ranch. He could picture Charity on the verandas of the long adobe ranch house, waiting for him, or better yet, too impatient to wait, riding to meet him.

The idyllic vision faded. He no longer saw Charity waiting for him at the day's end, fresh and laughing. He saw his mother and aunts as they were at the end of the war, gaunt and careworn, tempers and spirits as frayed as their bodies. He saw himself walking home from the fields, walking because the one remaining mule was even more exhausted than he. He could almost feel again the hot stinging tears that had been shed not for hurt or defeat, but out of sheer rage that life should be all drudgery.

"I can't do it, Charl, honey. I just can't," he muttered.

She kissed him again and told him that she had been foolish and that it did not matter. He was relieved that she had decided to be sensible, that the matter was thus settled so satisfactorily. But when they were riding down the canyon together something stirred within him, something he had brought from South Carolina, some deep instinctive thing that he knew without reason like Charity, and men like himself. He sensed uneasily that a smooth skin and eagerness for love were all that he required of a wife. What life was he offering as an alternative to the one which he insisted Charity relinquish?

Sitting in formal rooms, waiting alone night after night, hoping nervously that his luck would be good. Or, if that proved intolerable she might accompany him, not to casinos like that of the Aztec, but to places like Duke Roger's Four Aces, where gambling exchange amenities with the boys, or chat with women like Angel. But if he attempted ranching what would he use for money? He had exactly $180. Of course Ken Montijo owed him a good deal; but Ken was in the Apache country; there was no telling when he might get back.

"What's the horse's name?" Charity demanded plaintively.

He came back to her slowly. "Horse's name? Why?"

"I'd like to be properly introduced so I could talk to him. You won't even answer my questions."

"I'm sorry. Guess I was too busy loving you."

"What is the way to pass the time; but isn't it a bit difficult—being on different horses and all that?"

"We could dismount and look at the moon."

"Not tonight. Tonight I'm asking questions. Do you spend much time at the Aztec?"

"Not overly. A matter of fact I move around—Texas, Colorado, New Mexico. In San Lorenzo I go mostly to the Four Aces."

Charity Standish had heard of the Four Aces. It was garish place run by Duke Rogers, reported to be the most dangerous man in New Mexico Territory, just as his partner, Angel, whose real name was Angeles, was the most dangerous woman. Charity recalled things she had heard about Angel.

"Is Angel really beautiful?" she asked Douglas Kent.

"Angel! I don't know if you'd call her beautiful, but she can drive a man crazy."

"Did she drive you crazy?"

"Sure, it's part of the attraction of New Mexico. But I got over it. We're just good friends, now."

He was so candid that Charity knew it was ridiculous to be jealous. But she was jealous, and she hated Angel.

"I suppose I really ought to meet her," she said stiffly.

"Why should you meet Angel?" He was a little shocked at the idea.

"A woman should know her future husband's friends. Even if I've heard she's the most beautiful woman in the territory, and that Duke Rogers is the most dangerous man with a gun."

"Then you've heard wrong. You are the most beautiful woman in the territory, and I'll lay odds on Ken Montijo with a gun against Duke any day."

It was nice to be called beautiful, so Charity, though she did not hate her any less, thrust the Angel creature out of her mind. "Who is Ken Montijo?" she asked.

"Half a Scot, half a Spaniard and the best half of both."

The rest of the way to town Douglas extolled the virtues of Ken Montijo until Charity out of sheer perversity disliked him.

"My," she said dolefully, when he kissed her goodnight, "you have such exciting friends, and I'm female, you'll get dreadfully bored with me."

Both were troubled. And they had been engaged less than a day.

When they had been engaged three weeks the situation was worse. Each day they grew more deeply in love and each day it was more deeply borne on them, though neither would admit it to the other, that their future, like the desert in the sunset, was an unobstructed magic—a thing of flaming multi-colored beauty when viewed from afar, but of close quarters parched earth under an unattainable heaven.

As Douglas withdrew more and more into himself, she took the initiative in love making with a boldness that in Ohio would have scared Ed Smith clean out of the hammock.

"I think you'd better marry me," she finally announced.

"Of course, we'll get married."

"I mean right away."

"You suggested waiting."

"Now it's me who suggests marrying."

"Why the change?"

How could she tell him she had changed her mind because of fear that if they waited he would lose one another?

"Let's say because in exactly three days I'll be 25 years old. In Ohio that makes a girl an old maid."

"I see. When shall it be?"

He said it with such an air of gloomy resignation that Charity flushed.

"I think I'd like you for a birthday present."

As it suddenly dawned upon him that in only three days Charity would be his wife, he smiled at her and drew her into his arms. His eyes had not been wet as they were now since those evenings when he walked home behind the mule.

But when he failed to appear the next day she was not so certain, and by the following noon she began to wonder how far a man could run from a girl in three days. She hoped he was running West; she intended to go east. That evening she climbed the mesa to look at what she resolutely told herself was her last sunset in New Mexico. Had she chosen, instead, a final view of the windmill on the plaza, which had been the innocent cause of her coming to San Lorenzo, and which she had never seen "tastefully decorated," she would have heard rumors of a strange game going on in the Four Aces, which had been in progress for 46 hours. The Four Aces had seen games involving more money, and $5,000 was not as unusual bet up the canyon at the Aztec but no one remembered when a man had offered himself as the stake in a dice game. Some of the spectators were shaking their heads and saying it was not legal, but Duke Rogers and Angel said it didn't have to be legal.

Charity, however, had not chosen the windmill. On the mesa, where there was the peace of limitless horizons and where the air was clean as it was final in the Four Aces, she watched the sun disappear behind the hills. Then she returned directly to her hotel. Three hours later when Douglas forced his way into her room, her trunk was packed.

"I have come to say goodby," he told her, swaying precariously, speaking with studied precision.

Charity, pretending to ignore the condition, pointed at the trunk.

After a moment' concentration he replied with evident relief:

"Smart of you to beat me to the draw."

"Just what do you mean?"

"Mean you're planned to run out on me, even before you knew what's happened."

When should a family borrow
A family should borrow only when a loan is the best solution to a money problem. For example, to pay old debts, medical expenses, taxes, fuel, education, car or house repairs. Loans for these reasons are not inflationary, for the money is not used to buy goods in short supply or increase indebtedness.
SOLVING MONEY PROBLEMS
At HFC—Household Finance—no family should borrow only when, by careful planning, the money problem can be resolved, and the loan repaid in an orderly manner. When a family borrows under these circumstances, it is simply "renting" money on terms it can afford. At HFC you may borrow $55, $250, $500 or more on your signature, without bankable security.

Quickly-Spreading Flames Thwart Rescue Attempts

Hagersville, Parry Sound Scenes of Tragedies

Hagersville, Ont., Sept. 27 (CP) — The three children of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Laforme were burned to death here when fire destroyed their home at Little Buffalo near here.

Dead are Martin, 3, Virginia, 4, and Irvin, 5. Mrs. Laforme managed to escape with a younger child, Anna.

The fire, fought by the Hagersville fire department, was confined to have been started either through a faulty furnace pipe or a chimney. The blaze is believed to have broken out in the second storey of the dwelling.

The Indian office at Brantford reported Mr. Laforme was away from home at the time of the tragedy, working in Hamilton.

Mrs. Laforme, hair scorched and clothing scorched, had to stand outside the burning house as her children, trapped in a second-floor bedroom, died.

There is no telephone within four miles of the spot and firemen were called by a passing motorist. The only water available was in the five truck's 200-gallon tank, exhausted quickly.

The motorist, Fred Mattice, ran in and warned Mrs. Laforme, a homemaker, because she had washed out with Joan then re-entered the house, but was unable to reach the bedroom on the second floor.

Parry Sound, Ont., Sept. 27—(CP)—Three young children apparently playing with matches were burned to death today when fire destroyed a combination woodshed and playhouse on a farm five miles south of Parry Sound.

The dead: Joan and Jean Turel, four-year-old twins, and Betty Jane Bartlett, 3.

The twins' mother rushed out of the farm house to find the shed aflame but was unable to save the children.

No details of the fire were available immediately other than it was thought that they were playing with matches.

Mrs. Turel is the mother of 10 other children.

PURCHASES FARM

Toronto, Sept. 27 (CP).—Lord Beaverbrook has purchased a 450 acre farm, about 15 miles north of Toronto, for a reported price of $60,000 it was learned Tuesday. David Hall, realtor at Thornhill, said he believed Lord Beaverbrook, British newspaper magnate, plans to set with his cabinet on the delicate issue of whether to send British troops to protect its oil men in Iran.

Refrain from Expelling British, President Truman Asks Iran; Russ Watch Situation Closely

London, Sept. 27 — (AP) — Britain will stand firm in Iran in the hope that Tehran will turn from the Russian request to cancel an order expelling British technicians from the Abadan refinery, informed sources said today.

The British cabinet was reported to have reached this decision after Premier Mossadegh received a personal message from President Truman urging caution in the potentially explosive Iranian situation.

With the crisis over Iran's oil nationalization boiling to ominous proportions, Britain appealed to the Iranian government to back down on its ultimatum, and told both Britain and the U.S. is ready to help them to find a peaceful settlement.

These developments came as Iran's frail, aged Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh made a street speech in Iran before a wildly-shouting crowd whose members cried death threats for Britons. The British government has been considering sending troops to Abadan to protect the Britons and the British position. Te Negotiate Arain

The sources did not say whether the British cabinet has decided to try to hold Abadan by force if Tehran refuses to cancel the edict. They declared and pat suggests that Brit make at least one more effort to reach an agreement with Iran.

If Iran rejects Truman's appeal to cancel the expulsion order, Britain probably then must consider whether to appeal to the U.N. despite U. S. advance against this.

Mossadegh himself has said the Soviet Union is watching the Iranian developments closely. The Russians have a treaty with Iran providing for Soviet intervention in case of foreign invasion.

With Iran's forces in Khuzistan province, site of the Abadan refinery, placed on an alert, rumors that Britain might land forces brought nationalist tempers in Tehran to a fever pitch.

Prime Minister Mohammed Mossegh, barred from speaking directly in the Majlis (parliament) for lack of a quorum, mounted a chair in front of the building and addressed a wildly shouting crowd of his fanatic followers, declaring that the government would not stop its struggle "to recover the rights of the Iranian people."

Mossadegh was the architect of Iran's program which nationalized the British government - controlled Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

Appeal to Truman

With the 317 remaining British technicians at the great Abadan refinery given until Thursday to get out, Britain appealed to the man last night for help. Meanwhile, allies met with his cabinet on the delicate issue of whether to send British troops to protect its oil men in Iran.

Brewmasters at Detroit Convention Say Beermaking Primarily Art

Detroit, Sept. 27 (AP) —Scientific developments have helped but the brewing of fine beer still is primarily an art.

Even the true scientists among 1,100 master brewers at a convention here agree on that.

"It's both an art and a science, but the art definitely comes first," said Edward W. Huber of Milwaukee, president of the United States Brewers Association of America.

"You hear a lot of talk about a formula for beer," chimed in F. N. Ward of Toronto. "But basically there is no such thing as an absolute formula."

Ward is scheduled to succeed Huber as head of the group to become the first Canadian to lead the group.

What is the art of beer-making?

"It's the ability to make fine beer from natural materials," said Ward. But he quickly added that there can be no good definition for it any more than there is a definition for a famous chef's favorite sauce.

Both agreed that the art has been handed down through the centuries while the scientific developments have been in place.

They both also agreed that there's "no comparison" between modern beer and the kind our ancestors drank. They implied also that the nickel beer of the past was worth only that.

What's the trend in beer tastes? Definitely a lighter, drier, smoother, less-bitter drink. Brewers have met that demand, Huber and Ward said, and have made their beer better looking and more sparkling.

The brewmasters make some elaborate claims about their business. Huber said it is "more biogenic than any other food-processing industry in the world." Pasteur did as much for beer as for milk); that it was the first to use refrigeration and air conditioning; that brewmasters have to go by special schools in years of chemistry, engineering, physics, bacteriology, fermentology and other things as well as brewing and malting techniques.

PACKAGE PRICE OF 20 CIGARETS TO BE INCREASED

Two Cent Rise Will be Effective Oct. 1

Montreal, Sept. 27 (CP) — Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Ltd., today announced a two cents increase in the package price of 20 cigarets. The increase becomes effective Oct. 1.

The company normally sold a package of 20 cigarets for 40 cents. The new price will be 43 cents plus provincial sales tax.

A company spokesman said that manufacturing costs, the one-third items being leaf tobacco, labor and packaging materials, have increased. Transportation costs, selling costs and taxes also have advanced and combined with the increased cost of manufacturing made a price increase unavoidable.

He said that "out of the price to the consumer approximately 50 cents goes to the wholesale and retail trade and, of course, the Federal government also participates directly due to the 10 per cent sales tax. What then remains is required to meet the rise in costs experienced by the company. The company's new price to the trade will go into effect with shipments made on and after Oct. 1."

Incidentally, declined to comment when asked whether they intended also publishing a price increase. Benson and Hedges (Canada) Limited officials said they did not plan a price increase at this time.

Imperial manufacturers 10 brands of cigarets, Sweet Caporal, Players, State Express, Pall Mall, Mildands, Gold Flake, Del-Rex Gold, Old Kentucky, Winchester and Fatamima.

In Quebec province the company's cigarets sell for 43 cents for a package of 20 including provincial and federal sales tax. The new price effective Oct. 1 on new stocks will be 45 cents.

Balloons Blown Across Lake Erie

St. Thomas, Sept. 27 (CP) Balloons from Ohio were blown across Lake Erie yesterday.

One of them, snagged by Mrs. Andy Shivak, whose home is on Lake Erie shore, here, contained this message:

"Crusade for Freedom, North-ern Ohio Balloon Launch, released at four p.m. Sept. 26, 1951, at Cleveland, Ohio, please notify nearest newspaper."

The balloon had crossed the lake from Cleveland, 92 miles away, in exactly three hours. It was similar to those recently released over Germany and intended to drift across the Iron Curtain.

Mossadegh Appeals to Public For Support in Iran Oil Row As Mob Chants 'Death to British'

Tehran, Sept. 27—(CP)—Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh, sobbing and reading with fulminess, today made a public crowd his forum when the Majlis (House of Representatives) boycotted his speech attacking British policy in the oil dispute.

Insufficient members of the Majlis gathered to form a quorum. So the aged, ailing prime minister went outside the parliament building. Standing on a rickety chair, he declared emotionally to a crowd of several hundred: "Wherever you are, there is my parliament."

From time to time braying donkeys drowned his voice and the crowd interrupted with cries of "death to the British leaders" and "down with the British."

But Mossadegh admonished them: "Be calm, my brave friends. May Allah guide them."

Just before he spoke formal notice of expulsion from Iran was handed to 317 Britons at the Abadan Refinery of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

Troops Stand By

The notice gave them one week to leave the country. They were told to hand over their duties not later than Oct. 4 to Iranians. Iranian troops in the refinery area are standing by.

Mossadegh s Britain was not prepared to ... to examine proposals for a ... lement of the dispute over the company. His efforts to nationalize it have so far led to stalemate.

He burst into tears as he brandished a scrap of paper covered with notes.

"Here are the figures," he said. "I have not said Iran should be among the top. This account shows that in the last 40 years the late oil company (Anglo-Iranian) has paid only £110,000,000.

Emotionally, he demanded: "Do you want the British to stay here, my dear people, for the sake of a few million pounds a year?"

"Death to the British, death to the British," the crowd chanted.

At another point they asked: "Allow us to destroy the opposition deputies and traitors.

Boycott Meetings

(Opposition deputies have frequently boycotted meetings of the Majlis to show disapproval of Mossadegh's policies.)

Hussein Makki, secretary of the oil board appointed to take over the British properties, was ordered to mand the recall of Sir Francis Shepherd, British ambassador. Shepherd is seeing Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi today, presumably to reiterate Britain's protest against the expulsion order.

Gen. Ibrahim Arfan with 150,000-man Iranian army was on his way to Abadan with orders to alert the troops in the area to reinforce the Abadan garrison.

The alert orders were issued last night after rumors flooded the city of a possible landing by British troops.

Tornado Sweeps U.S. Midwest Seven Killed, Many Injured Property Damage Unestimated

Waupaca, Wis, Sept. 27 (AP) —The whirling black finger of a tornado dotted a line of death and ruin across two rural areas in central Wisconsin yesterday, taking seven lives.

Due eastward across Lake Michigan from the dark, ominous tornado struck the village of Hiteley, Mich., at night and left one woman dead.

The lower part of Wisconsin's Waupaca County was ripped by a "roaring and terrifying" twister, which killed six persons and injured at least three. Four of the victims, members of one family, were killed by a swamp a quarter-mile from where the tornado engulfed them.

Many Buildings Gone

Then some 45 minutes later and about 30 miles to the south —a funnel-shaped cloud hopped across a lake in Columbia County, killing a woman and injuring her three children by kicking the car in which they were smashing it down 250 yards away. Seven others were injured.

Splintered barns, sheds, silos and homes lined the paths of the tornadoes in Wisconsin, but there was no accurate estimate of the heavy loss. Nor was there a count of the numerous livestock killed.

Howard Rasmussen, 35, his wife, Ruth, and their children, Robert 5 and Betty 2, were cleaning chickens in their yard in Hiteley when the tornado roared down on them. Their bodies were found in a field a half-mile away. Rasmussen's father William, 65, was in the basement. He was struck by a lumber and died four hours later.

Three Swept Away

The other Waupaca County victim was Mrs. Frances Mellett of Lebanon. She and her three children were swept away when the tornado levelled their home. Mrs. Mellett was found dead in a field. The children were in a field, splintered but only seriously hurt.

Mrs. Allen McGuire, 32, was killed when the twister swooped down on her Columbia county home west of Randolph. Her three children were not seriously hurt.

KING STRONGER APPETITE BETTER SAY PHYSICIANS

Monarch Entering New Danger Period

By DON SCHWIND

London, Sept. 27—(AP) — The King's doctors said today he is stronger and his appetite is improving.

Their morning bulletin, the eighth since a serious lung operation Sunday, said the King had a better night and that his progress is continuing.

A London expert on lung operations said today's report "is as good as you could have expected for a young, strong man in the present circumstances."

The Duke of Windsor, who is staying at a private home in London, visited the palace at noon but did not get to see his ailing brother. Only the Queen sees the King. It was the first palace visit by the former king since he arrived Monday from Paris.

The encouraging report was issued as the monarch entered a new danger period in his fight for recovery.

Reports from inside Buckingham Palace, which termed the next 72 hours "vital," indicated two doctors are keeping a constant watch.

Palace sources also said the Queen has indicated she wants to be called at any hour if the King asks for her.

Some London medical specialists speculated that today — the fifth day since the King's operation, is the beginning of the second danger period. He passed the first danger period Sunday night. Three Threats

These specialists said the new critical period—expected in some quarters to last through Monday —holds three threats for the 56-year-old monarch.

1. Fatigue. One doctor explained that when the patient has sufficiently recovered to take food and getting about working again and produces fatigue."

2. Internal bleeding. Medical specialists pointed out that this term "resection" in describing the King's operation means a removal of or part of a lung. The doctors have not disclosed the disease that made the operation necessary.

Anxiety For Ten Days

Buckingham Palace warned the British people last night that the King's condition will cause them anxiety for the next week or 10 days."

Fourteen minutes after the palace statement, Princess Elizabeth announced she was postponing her Canadian tour to stay near her father.

Flight Will Be Made by British Plane to Montreal

Only One Week's Delay Caused by Postponement

London, Sept. 27 — (CP) — Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh will leave for their delayed Canadian tour by air Oct. 7, they announced today.

Their original plans to leave from Liverpool Sept. 25 by sea, arriving in Quebec City Oct. 2, were cancelled because of the King's illness.

They will begin carrying out their tour schedule at Quebec City Oct. 9.

This means there will be only a one week delay caused by delay of the trip.

A spokesman said the Royal couple will disclose later whether it will still be possible for them to carry out their plan to visit President Truman in Washington.

The announcement gave no details of present plans but it was assumed the trip would last about a month, as originally intended.

Quebec Oct. 9

Tonight's brief announcement merely said "Arrangement are being made for their Royal Highnesses to leave by air Oct. 7." They will leave London by air Oct. 7.

It is assumed the flight will be made in a B. O. A. C. Stratocruiser, which almost certainly will land at Montreal. Normal flying time for the 3,400-mile trip is just over 16 hours.

The four-engine aircraft is double-decked and equipped with berths.

In view of the King's health, it had been considered possible here that the Canadian tour would be postponed until next year. Latest medical reports on his condition have been encouraging, however.

The Princess and the Duke originally intended to sail from Liverpool last Tuesday on the Empress of France.

Will Likely Visit U. S.

They had planned to visit in Washington Oct. 24, 25 and 26. Presumably any change of plan would first be cleared with the White House.

The decision to reinstate plans for the tour after only a seven days postponement apparently means that the King is believed to be making a normal recovery from the serious lung operation of last Sunday.

Another reason for thinking so was that Princess Elizabeth went to the races at Ascot today. It was the first time she had been in London since a surgeon cut away all or part of her father's lung a few days ago.

Arrangements Stand

Ottawa—(CP)—Existing Royal tour arrangements from coast to day, and will simply be carried out about it was announced today out one week later than originally planned in each Canadian community.

Charles Stein, chairman of the special committee on Royal tour arrangements, announced that Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh were due to arrive at Montreal Oct. 8 by B. O. A. C.

Actuaries Tell Insurance Firms Canadians, Americans Live Longer

Toronto, Sept. 27—(CP)—People are living longer, the Society of Actuaries has been told by such things for insurance companies in Canada and the United States, was told today.

Mortimer Spiegelman and Dr. Louis Dublin, both of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, New York, said in a joint paper to the society's annual meeting, that the post-war period has seen a tremendous improvement in the health of wage earners and their families.

Further, within five years, deaths among industrial policyholders of the company fell by 529.2 per 100,000 in 1946 to 463.2 in 1950. In the past 20 years the rate dropped by about one-half.

The average length of life of industrial policyholders increased from 65.5 years in 1946 to 68.3 years in 1950. Since 1930, the life has been more than 10 years and since 1935, 21 years.

The paper said further that nearly all the important causes of death showed declines. In the five years, the long-term downward trend for tuberculosis accelerated, the death rate dropping 40 per cent, reaching an all-time low of 18.8 per 100,000 at ages one to 74; the death rate from pneumonia and influenza was cut almost to half; the principal childhood dropped three-quarters. External causes—suicide, homicide and accidents—showed reductions.

The paper credited the favorable trends to new medical and surgical advances; extension of public health service; an increase in hospital use as the result of the growth of insurance; and a steady rise in the standard of living.

Gales, Rain Lash Northern Ontario

(By The Canadian Press)

Gales from the middle-western United States roared across Lake Superior last night and staggered northern Ontario with rain, hail and snow. Power lines snapped and communication were knocked out in the Sault Ste. Marie and Thessalon areas.

Today the storm was showing itself out over James Bay.

Southern Ontario's rich fruit and farm belt missed the main body of the storm.

Canadian National Railways' section gangs worked all night on main lines between Long Lac and Armstrong and Long Lac to Port Arthur to clear shattered telegraph poles and wire from the tracks.

Veteran railroades called it one of the worst fall storms in northern Ontario history. Snow at some points drifted a foot deep.

As the storm moved across Lake Superior rain and ice-freighters took shelter in Whitefish and Thunder Bays.

High waves on Lake Huron damaged wharves and docks at Goderich, and on the shoreline were uprooted.

More than a half-inch of snow covered highways in the North Bay area while farther south, driving rain and lightning swept over the bush, felling many trees.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Sept. 27. (CP)—Synopsis: An intense disturbance moving northeast across Lake Superior Wednesday night reached late Thursday a low of 29.00 inches and with it the latest every type of weather possible.

North of Lake Superior rain occasionally accompanied by thunder and notice on the North Country that winter is not far away. In the south with the exception of some storms preceded a mass of cold air which will follow. Its push across Ontario today.

With clearing skies tonight frost threatens rural and suburban areas.

Judge Reverses Decision Made By Magistrate

In an appeal of a Magistrate's court conviction by Magistrate T. Y. Wills against William Isaac Hill of Shannonville, Judge W. S. Lane of Picton has found the accused not guilty of a charge under the Game and Fisheries Act.

Last January Hill was convicted by Magistrate Wills of being in possession of seine nets without authority as required by the Game and Fisheries Act. The conviction was appealed and was heard before Judge Lane who this week gave his judgment.

In finding Hill not guilty of the offence Judge Lane used as the basis of his judgment a ruling by Chief Justice Hunter of British Columbia that an Indian is not liable to conviction under a provincial game law. In the particular case on which judgment was being given, an Indian was charged with killing a buck out of season on the reservation.

In giving judgment on the Hill appeal, Judge Lane said "I have come to the conclusion that the accused is not guilty by reason of the fact that he, being an Indian would be a breach by an Indian of a provincial act upon an Indian reservation, that the Game Department of Canada is the only competent legislative authority which can regulate the situation involved here."

Judge Lane found that the two seine nets found in the possession of Hill by game and fisheries officers had been taken from within the confines of the Indian Reservation. J. D. Jones acted for Mr. Hill in the appeal.

Registration In Evening Classes Shows Decrease

Registration in the evening classes at the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School is much lower than last year according to a statement made this morning by George Currie, principal of the school.

"Only 162 enrolments were received on Tuesday evening in comparison to approximately 300 for the corresponding night last year," he said. "Classes cannot be formed until we have at least 12 students per class. At present there is only sufficient registration in a few subjects."

The Board of Education have employed 14 part-time teachers and cashiers to handle the expected application and it is the hope of this staff that all interested will register tonight while they are available to give the necessary information regarding the courses.

Mr. Currie added that any matriculation subjects will be taught where there is a sufficient enrolment.

A highlight of the courses offered is the cooking class which will be taught by the highly competent, Miss E. McKinnon. Mrs. McKinnon holds a Bachelor of Household Science degree from the University of Toronto and worked for four years with the Purity Baking Company as a home economist, lecturer and demonstrator throughout Ontario. She has also worked on radio program.

In addition, she has eight years' experience with the Consumer section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture in the promotion, experimental and radio work, as well as conducting their cooking schools.

MRS. IDA MAE HALL (Latta)

Although in ill health for some time, Mrs. Ida Mae Hall, Latta, died suddenly at her home at Latta, on Wednesday evening. Mrs. Hall was about the house all day and after the evening meal was suddenly stricken. In the death of Mrs. Hall the community of Latta has lost a well-known and highly respected resident. She was a woman of fine qualities, a worker in all community activities and took an active interest in the work of the women's organization in the community. She took a most active interest in her church and in the work of her district was president of the WMS being a life member and also a member of the Ladies' Aid. Mrs. Hall was also active in the Women's Institute branch in the district. She was a pianist and choir leader at Plainfield United Church for 30 years and relinquished these duties owing to ill health.

The late Mrs. Hall was born in Tyendinaga township, 54 years ago, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pitman and with the exception of three years, when she resided in Belleville she has lived her entire life in the Latta district.

Surviving her husband, Arthur F. Hall and one daughter, Mrs. Ronald (Phyllis) Hirst of Toronto.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home the funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

IN MEMORIAM

DELINE. — In loving memory of a dear friend, Christopher Deline, who passed away September 27, 1949.

His memory is my keepsake,
With which I'll never part;
God has him in his keeping,
I have him in my heart. 527

Come gently, gentle sleep by Florence. 527

DELINE. — In loving memory of a dear father, Christopher Deline, who passed away September 27, 1949.

We do not need a special day,
To bring you to our mind,
For the days we do not think of you,
It is the hardest to find.
If all the flowers that grow on earth
We'd give, and more beside,
To see the face of father dear
Come gently through the door.
—Always remembered by his two sons, Frank and Ernest. 527

WHITE. — In loving memory of Percy White, who passed away September 27, 1950.

We cannot call, and we will not say
That he is dead—He is just away!
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand
He has wandered into an unknown land.
—Fondly remembered by wife, Olive and children Muriel, Max, Don and Jean. 527

WHITE. — In loving memory of our dear brother, Percy White, who passed away suddenly September 27, 1950.

Often times our thoughts do wander
To a place far away,
Where our only dear brother
Is waiting and watching
The world may change from year to year,
And friends from day to day,
But never will the one we loved
From memory fade away.
—Ever remembered by sisters Spry and Eustice, brother-in-law Will and family. 527

REFRAIN

There was no official announcement on what decision was reached. Some sources hinted that the cabinet might meet again before finally reaching a decision.

G. H. Middleton, counsellor of the British embassy in Tehran, arrived in London for a conference with Attlee and said Iran was "making it physically impossible for the British people to continue in Abadan, by denying them stores, housing and so on."

The U.S. and Britain are reported seeking a middle way out of the crisis. The critical question before Washington is: would the U.S. give diplomatic support to the possible use of armed force by Britain to keep what is left of the British position at Abadan?

Diplomatic informants in Washington said the extreme alternatives facing the British government are either to "walk in or to walk out." Attlee and his cabinet, they mean, must decide whether to send troops or to order their technicians to leave Abadan.

Cheese Output In Prince Edward Probably Greater

Total production of cheese in Prince Edward County is expected to be higher this year than last, according to the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Good fall pastures have been responsible for the milk flow holding up well and the weekly offering of cheese on the local cheese exchange has not dropped to any great extent from the peak in late June. Pastures are excellent throughout the district.

Yields of clover seed have been generally better than average in Prince Edward County, while farmers in Northumberland County report a fair crop.

Apple picking is in full force with farmers finding much difficulty in securing pickers to harvest the crop. The apple crop is generally good throughout the district and is well sized although scab conditions are bad in some areas.

SEND GREETINGS

Alfred Tyrell Has Second Crop Of Raspberries

Especially good growing conditions with the absence of any frosts are giving local gardeners an extra crop of raspberries.

Today Alfred Tyrell, Purdy and Yeomans Streets, bought half a box of fresh raspberries to the office of the Ontario Intelligencer together with a branch loaded with both ripe and green berries.

It is not a double crop of berries that is being harvested so late in the year but is the fruit from summer growth of canes which blossomed late in the summer and is now ripening. Both blue and red varieties of raspberries are showing the late crop, it was stated.

SHE'S A BUILDER!

Mrs. Alphonse Gaudette, who lives at Windsor, Ontario, is just putting the finishing touches on her new store. It is built of cement blocks, but has the usual plate glass front and all the other trimmings. It is 40 feet wide and 50 feet deep. Judging by a picture of the structure published in the Windsor Daily Star, it is just as sharp looking a job as if it had been done by any of those high-priced, slow-moving masculine professionals.

The Windsor Daily Star, it seems, took a deep interest in Mrs. Gaudette's sortie into the building trades industry, and has apparently satisfied itself that she actually did all the work of building the store herself, as she claims.

Even the municipal building inspector is satisfied with the quality of Mrs. Gaudette's workmanship. "There's nothing wrong with it," was the somewhat offhand way in which that functionary admitted that Mrs. Gaudette had done a real, first class, bang-up job.

While strictly an amateur builder, Mrs. Gaudette admits that she is not altogether inexperienced. She built a small house in Windsor in 1941, and one summer she built a cottage in northern Ontario.

Since there is an admittedly serious housing shortage in this country, it is too bad that there are not more people like Mrs. Alphonse Gaudette. She, apparently, knows something that most of us have either forgotten or never known — namely, that if you have a house the simplest answer to the problem is to build one for yourself. Mrs. Gaudette proves that it can be done and has been done.

As a sort of postscript, it may be worth mentioning that, while building her store, which she began April 13th, last, Mrs. Gaudette found time to deliver the baby required in looking after her husband, her aged mother, and three children.

IS OUR CLIMATE CHANGING?

Is the climate of this part of the world changing? Scientists say that it is not, that mild winters, dry summers and so on run in cycles. But many elderly people who have lived a long time in particular parts of Old Ontario claim that it is, and that the climate of Old Ontario is gradually becoming warmer.

It could be that the elderly men are right, and that the people called scientists are wrong. The latter have often been proven wrong. For example, chemists contended for decades that one element could not be transmuted into another, but it is now accepted that one element can become a different one.

It is a well-known fact that the sugar maple can be found growing in northern Ontario at various points where, old timers declare, they did not grow years ago. Persons who are now only middle-aged can remember when tobacco could not be grown in Ontario as a commercial crop, or at least was not grown as such. Now, tobacco is the chief farm crop in some districts in southwestern Ontario, and the tobacco-growing area seems to be moving northward from year to year.

For many years peaches were grown successfully only in the Niagara peninsula and in a small district in the counties of Kent and Essex. But according to Ford Wood, of Guelph, he has been growing peaches successfully for the last ten years.

One explanation of this phenomenon is that hardier varieties of fruits, vegetables and other plants are being developed. But the evidence could also be interpreted as indicating that the boundary of the temperate zone is moving northward in North American continent. Perhaps some day a few centuries hence orange groves will flourish on the banks of the Moira River.

ULSTERMEN STUBBORN

Advices from Northern Ireland indicate that the Ulstermen in their original homeland are as obstinate about allowing the government to run their affairs as are their farm-owned cousins whose ancestors migrated to other parts of the world long ago.

The government of Northern Ireland spent $5,000,000, which is a tidy sum for a tiny land, bringing electric power to farmers, in the hope that they would buy milking machines, electric cream separators and other production-increasing equipment.

But the farmers clung to their old methods of farming and spent their money on radios, electric toasters and so on.

Now, the government is threatening to cut off the power.

SAFETY SPEEDER

(Ottawa Journal)

In Toronto a motorist was fined $50 for travelling at 36 miles per hour in a 30-mile suburban zone, going through two traffic lights, forcing a couple of motorists into the ditch. It is interesting to observe that this reckless fellow operates a school where safe driving is taught.

CUPS AND PRIZES

When they're put upon display,
Prizes offered for a game,
They are goody things and gay
While, by winning, you may claim:

Cups that gleam like honest gold,
Trays and bowls of silver true,
By such trinkets pride is told—
And they're tempting when they're new.

For a little while they stay
For all visitors to see;
Fancy are scroll and symbol gay
Of some well earned victory.
But the tarnish and the dust

Dim your name and winning score
Till the wife says "Go they must.
I will polish them no more."

Pride is only for the day
Lest by doing more maintained.
Triumphs past soon fade away,
Bowls and cups are quickly stained.
And since polished they must be
If you want to keep them bright,
They'll be stored eventually
In the attic, out of sight.

RISING ABOVE HANDICAP

Beethoven suffered untold agony because he was deaf. When he came to the end of his life, he could not hear a single tone of the great compositions he had produced. Just a short time before the end, he sat in the orchestra pit looking up at the orchestra director and beating time for one of his compositions which was being produced. He could not hear the thunderous applause, as the piece ended, and when he was lifted by the hand and turned around to face a cheering audience, he could only stare at them vacantly and greet the faintest suggestion of hand-clapping.

Protest runs through the whole of his musical compositions. It protrudes like sharp thorns thrusting themselves through soft down. Beethoven could not repress the bitterness he felt over the tragic irony of a man producing deathless melodies, yet not being able to hear a single tone of what he had produced.

There are some things in the world we will never understand. No one could explain to Beethoven the significance of an affliction. But John Milton was similarly afflicted. It was blindness in his case. Christian faith raised him above his affliction and caused him to sing sweetly and praise God even as he sat in darkness.

Only Christian faith can comfort one in such straits.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In France, a car horn really is not a horn at all: it is a bugle, a trumpet, a fanfare, an alarm. It is an instrument of music. It is a weapon. As you drive in a taxi or any other car in France, whether in Paris or Bordeaux, the horn is going all the time. It goes loud and long for every intersection. And between intersections, the driver sits at a few hoots if he so much as sees children playing merrily feet from the roadway; and certainly if he sees a pretty girl.

What puzzles the foreigner in France is how you can hear another car tooting its horn at you, with your own horn blasting, approach a crossing. Possibly the French have subtler hearing than we have. But full belt, your driver charges for intersections in complete and wanton faith that the horn will blast a way through for him. I understand that in France one driver in ten kills somebody in accidents.

In London, due to the street layout, traffic is far more complex and involved than in France: but you never hear a car here. You are a week or two in London streets before you realize that the rare, faint toot you have been hearing is one in a long while, is really the horn of the taxi you are riding in. You can't hear any other such horn, partly due to the engine noises of your taxi, partly due to the extreme politeness of British car horns.

My hotel window, as I write this, looks out on Piccadilly, one of the world's busiest arteries; and all day and night a boundless traffic of buses, lorries, taxis and diminutive private cars bolts furiously by. Their sound is like the sound of wind in the trees, soothing, relaxing, because never once in hour after hour does one of these vehicles great or small ever emit the toot of a horn.

Americans Claiming Success In Teaching Huns Democracy

Frankfurt, Sept. 27. (AP) — The United States army's German youth activities program has reached 100,000 German youngsters with play-taught lesson in democracy.

The Americans who sponsor the program are convinced it has reached many German adults too.

"There are signs of growing interest among adult Germans in organized democratic activities for their youth," said Mrs. Jouett Shouse of Washington, D.C., after a tour of G.Y.A. centres.

Mrs. Shouse is head of the General Clay fund for German youth activities.

"Voluntary contributions by Germans are steadily increasing," Mrs. Shouse said.

In the program's infancy some Germans were suspicious the Americans were trying to "Americanize" their youngsters.

"But this suspicion has steadily faded," said Lt.-Col. Robert Norman, who oversees the program.

"We don't Americanize. We simply invited the parents into our centres to see for themselves what we are just trying to teach them democracy."

When the American occupation goes it will take with it many of the things that have made the program possible — including funds.

Already the program has taken a severe financial nap. The U.S. high commission donates 4,600,000 marks ($1,094,800) a year. The U.S. army used to contribute nearly as much by providing buildings and equipment.

The army this year dropped the aid because of German complaints about high occupation costs.

This forced closing of 121 out of the 247 community centres.

But out of the money crisis grew the most hopeful sign for the future. Germans stepped in and took over 58 of the abandoned centres themselves and continued to operate them.

WANT NO DEAL

Washington, Sept. 27. (AP)—Senator Herbert O'Conge (Dem., Md.), spoke out in the Senate yesterday against making any "deal" with communist Czechoslovakia to free William Oatis, Associated Press correspondent held in a Czech prison.

O'Conor said his remarks were prompted by reports that the American ambassador, Vladimir Prochazka, had hinted such a bargain might be possible.

NO ONE INJURED

Quebec, Sept. 27. (CP)— The locomotive of an immigrant train jumped the track while passing only two or three passengers collided Wednesday at the western outskirts of Quebec City.

Firemen at a nearby station said the bus was heavily damaged but that neither no one was fatally injured in the level-crossing accident.

The collision occurred at 1:29 p.m. E.D.T.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DOG TALK

I went into the front room of my friend's home and took an easy chair. I was not conscious that I was being followed, but I was. I had no sooner taken my seat than a puppy spaniel stood before me, wagging his tail and looking up at me in a questioning manner. I was a stranger, no doubt of that, to this small creature, but I knew he was friendly, so I suggested a talk.

My first words his cut-off little tail began to wag with an accelerated motion, and his head would tilt to one side and then the other, as though questioning the sort of person I was. I never looked into a more honest face. Those great eyes, shining, like two rarely polished gems, and those ears that hung like silken mittens, were evidence of a refined canine.

Every word uttered brought a new tilt of the head, and then finally an audible bark, with me that tail wagging faster and more furiously than ever. I answered to it that dumb little friend could understood. Certainly he knew that he stood before one who loved his kind, and would welcome his friendship. So we talked and then he romped to my lap and licked my cheek with his tongue, as if to say: "Now we are friends. Where did you come from? Who are you?"

The wagging of a dog's tail has always fascinated me. You'd always know that a dog is friendly if that tail wags, but if it doesn't, look out! Dogs have great animal powers and are rare judges of human nature, though they talk about it mostly with their eyes, their tilt of head and the wag of their tail. You can't fool them. They will remain loyal only so long as you treat them with kindness and prove to them that they are your friend, and your theirs.

Watch dog of yours, if you have one, will look you squarely in the eye and not question your sincerity. There isn't a human being in this world with more honest eyes than a good dog. There is no deceit in them. The more you talk with one the more lively is his interest in you. He won't talk back but will kindly—in look and manner. Forever will he remain "man's best friend".

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page, or 100 Words long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, Will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped, Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed.

WHEN IS A MAD DOG A BOON?

Some twenty years ago when the ever ready operators were still rushing groups of children to the operating-room for the so-called tonsillectomy, I remember I was trying to whoop up a little popular indignation about it. I'm afraid I didn't stir many parents enough to save their children from the scalpel. However, I had the satisfaction of receiving some letters from doctors who had ceased performing tonsillectomy and they were unanimous in the observation that children seemed to get along better without tonsillectomy than after the operation.

Then I studied the statistics gathered over many years by Dr. Albert D. Kaiser of Rochester, N.Y.—by far the most authoritative data available today—and for the life of me I can't see how any one can conclude that school children are benefited in any way by tonsillectomy.

In 1932 Dr. Kaiser's book Children's Tonsils In and Out was published (Lippincott) and I read it. Dr. Kaiser's yes-men, under the influence of a large dose of synthetic rancor, snarled that tonsil diathermy "should be avoided as one would avoid a mad dog." I don't say the little man who made this remarkable remark never saw either tonsil diathermy or a mad dog.

But the mad dog thing pleased me and I made a note of it. He rushed it into print in such haste that he entirely overlooked the still more remarkable fact that the yes-man made in the next paragraph, to the effect that tonsil diathermy (electro-coagulation) is a boon in cases where surgical extirpation would be the least intelligent thing.

Thus, inadvertently, the Big Noise of the pusillanimous medical opposition to unprofessional and approved tonsil diathermy in one fell swoop of the big mouth of the of the Association never has had the courage to negate or revoke any article or act of the lately deposed dictator since he consented to withdraw on payment of a huge ransom, euphemistically reported to the sucker members who pay it as a "retaining fee."

I hope, perhaps vainly, that this item may come through uncensored. It should reach a lot of doctors and a lot of laymen to understand what ails American Medicine.

Lou Diamond, Noted Toledo Marine, Dies

Great Lakes, Ill.—An old soldier died but legends about Lou Diamond will never fade away.

Master Gunnery Sgt. Leland (Lou) Diamond, 51, who once earned a citation from the Marine Corps commandant as the "old marine," died of cancer in U.S. Naval Hospital, Great Lakes, Ill.

Born and reared in East Toledo, Sergeant Diamond lived with a brother, Irvine, at 3004 Fryer Avenue. He retired from active service in 1945. He entered the hospital Aug. 8.

Enlisted in 1917

Sergeant Diamond enlisted in the marines in 1917 "for the duration" or World War I. His death marked the close of 30 years and 6 months of service.

Sergeant Diamond, who had to battle with his superiors to be assigned to the fighting front in World War II because of his age, appeared in the Toledo marine recruiting office last December for a chance to participate in the Korean war, but was rejected.

Receives Citations

During World War I he served through all five major engagements of the Second Marine Division, receiving citations for all of them: Marne, Meuse, Argonne, Chateau Thierry and St. Mihiel.

After a stint with the Army of Occupation, he was discharged in 1919. He tried civilian life for a year, but left it when he was back in the marine corps. Then followed service in China, Panama and various posts around the United States.

He became a mortar expert, able to direct high explosive shells on pinpoint targets. He developed a new efficient marching pack, which was adopted for all marines.

Sergeant Diamond was visiting in Toledo at the time of Pearl Harbor, but he soon was back with his outfit.

There followed a series of engagements in which he was in the thick of battle on the Solomons, on Vella, Lavagi Ridge, the Treasuru and the Matanikau on Guadalcanal.

During this period, Sergeant Diamond grew a moustache and beard which became a trademark until he shaved them off upon his retirement.

Record With Mortar

The marine corps is full of stories about him and his accuracy with the mortar. Fellow marines tell of how he planted 14 shells on 14 Japanese installations at Tulagi, then won a $50 bet by placing a shell squarely in the smokestack of the 12th building. Another time in Guadalcanal he was credited with hitting away an attacking Japanese cruiser—single handed.

Lieut. Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, then marine corps commandant, described Sergeant Diamond as the "finest mortar" in presenting him with a citation in Australia.

Legend of the career of how Sergeant Diamond could not find a green uniform for his 200-pound, 6-foot, 11-inch frame, for the occasion. He accepted the award wearing dungarees.

Fabulous Career

Mementos of the fabulous career are found in a box in the Irvine Diamond home, a container crammed with citations and medals, many of which continued to arrive long after the fighting was over. The last, a Bronze Star Medal, was received about a year ago.

Sergeant Diamond, who attended Birmingham School, started railroad work at Air Line Junction here in 1915 and later became a yardmaster for the Michigan Central Railroad in Detroit before joining the marines. He returned to his Detroit job upon his discharge in 1918, but gave it up again in favor of re-enlistment.

Services Arranged

He was a member of Naval Lodge AF&AM in Pensacola, Fla., the KOOP in Detroit, and VFW Post 3013 and the Marine League in Toledo.

Surviving are another brother, Herbert, Belleville, Ont., and a sister, Mrs. Mina Malone, Hamilton, Montana.

Editor's Note:—

The late Lou Diamond visited his brother, Herbert Diamond in this city on many occasions. He was a frequent visitor at the Army, Navy and Air Force veterans Memorial Hall, where he enjoyed chinning with other veterans. His death will be sincerely regretted by a wide circle of friends in Belleville.

MOSSADEGH

The orders were accompanied, a member of the National Defence Board said, by instructions to blow up all installations at the Iranian's largest oil plant if foreign forces attempt to land.

The 317 British still at Abadan — once the keystone of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's operations — were ready to leave on a minute's notice.

Final instructions were expected after today's cabinet meeting in London, where the British government is believed ready to make a decision on how to handle the crisis.

Flies to Britain

Britain's No. 2 diplomat in Iran — Embassy Counsellor George Middleton — flew home yesterday to give the cabinet a first-hand report.

Middleton's boss, Ambassador Sir Francis Shepherd, protested orally to Premier Mohammed Mossadegh over Iran's order giving British oil technicians until next Thursday to get out of the country.

Britons at Abadan today received individual dismissal notes formally telling them to leave the country by Oct. 4.

The letters promised that every effort will be made to make the final days in Iran as pleasant as possible for the staff.

It is this order which has brought the crisis to a head and led to the rumors that Britain may resort to by force.

There were no indications today, however, that Britain would do so. Most western diplomats here feel such a course would be risky.

Troops Ready

Up until today at least, the United States attitude has been that Britain should resort to force only to protect the lives of her citizens. The attitude is believed to stem from fear that Russia might use such a British move as an excuse to move troops into Iran.

The Russians are watching the critical situation closely. Soviet Ambassador Ivan Sadchikov cancelled a visit to Moscow in order to remain on the scene.

Britain has 10 warships stationed within 30 miles of the giant refinery at Abadan, planes based in neighboring Iraq, and a brigade of parachute troops only a few hours away.

REFUGEES ESCAPE

Hof, Bavaria, Sept. 27—(Reuters)—Five Czech refugees from the miners' camp of the Joachimsthal uranium mines have arrived here after a flight through the Soviet zone. They said they had been condemned to long forced labor sentences as opponents of communism.

WEDDINGS

STATHAM—SKONSON

A lovely background of asters, dahlias and pastel shades performed the setting in the United Church parsonage, at Madoc, on Saturday, September 22, at 3:30 o'clock, when Rev. J. F. Lane united in marriage, Gwendolyne Marie Skonson, of Madoc, and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Bronson, to James H. H. Statham, of Peterborough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Statham.

Mrs. Emma Reid rendered the traditional wedding music.

The bride, who was given in married by her father, was radiant in her white satin gown fashioned with fitted bodice, long sheath-like sleeves ending in points over the wrists and full skirt. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion and flower bouquet of red roses completed her ensemble.

Miss Rosella Connolly, of Peterborough, was bridesmaid, gowned in pale blue net over taffeta. She carried a cascade of yellow gladioli.

Mr. William Bronson, of Peterborough, attended the bridegroom.

At the reception, which was held at the home of the bride's parents, the bride's mother, attired in flame coral crepe, with black accessories and corsage of bronze 'mums and fern, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore beige with brown accessories and corsage of red roses, received the guests.

Guests were present from Lindsay, Niagara Falls, Toronto, Peterborough and Wellman's Corners.

Mr. and Mrs. Statham will reside in Peterborough.

CRAFT—ALLEN

A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized at Burleigh Falls parsonage, on Saturday, September 22, at 3:00 p.m., when Marion Olive Allen, of Belleville, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Allen and the late Mr. Allen, became bride of Clare Lorne Crapp, of Lakefield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Crapp. The Rev. Willard R. Day, officiated.

The bride was attractively attired in powder blue with lace inserts, brown accessories. She carried a red rose bouquet. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Gerald MacDonald, who was becomingly gowned in navy blue with grey accessories and carried pink roses.

Mr. Morgan Crapp, brother of the bridegroom, of Lakefield, attended his brother.

Following the reception, which was attended by the immediate families, the young couple left by motor for Ottawa, Hamilton, and Niagara Falls, the bride wearing a wine-colored suit with brown accessories. Upon their return they will reside in Hamilton.

St. Andrew's W.M.S. Holds Charming Tea

A dainty afternoon tea and sale of homecooking was held yesterday at the home of Mrs. R. W. Pidgen, 330 Charles Street, under the auspices of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Women's Missionary Society.

The many guests were received at the door by the hostess, Mrs. R. N. Pigden, Mrs. J. G. Hornsby and Mrs. William Manlie, while Mrs. M. MacIntosh and Mrs. F. Parsons acted as treasurers.

Glowing Welcome

The tea room and adjoining rooms were charmingly arranged with baskets of golden-bronze cacti dahlias, multi-colored zinnias and mauve, pink and white asters and asparagus fern. The tea table with its lovely lacey, handmade cloth, was centred by a silver standard of triple comucopias on a pedestal reflected with rosy-scarlet cosmos and asparagus fern, and flanked by tri-branched silver candelabra with tall ivory tapers which flickered their glowing welcome to all.

Those who presided at the silver services were, Mrs. J. Reid, Mrs. J. Craig, Mrs. A. Cameron and Mrs. I. L. Moore, while Mrs. C. Basegar was the gracious tea room hostess. Replenishing the attractive trays with their delectable dainties were, Mrs. G. Walbridge and Mrs. B. Beavis. Those who served included, Mrs. V. Weir, Mrs. H. Yorke, Mrs. H. Arnott, Mrs. W. Marner, Mrs. M. Barlow, Mrs. P. Townsley, Mrs. J. Webb and Mrs. L. Fleming and Mrs. H. Blair, who were the conveners of the tea.

Bounteous Supply

The homecooking table was laden with a bounteous supply of chocolate cakes, chocolate rings dusted with shredded coconut, taffy and raspberry tarts, cup cakes, large and small, some plain, others with chocolate icing embanced with coconut shreds, angel cakes, date loaves, jars of pennies, golden marmalades, black currant jelly, Dawson pre-

AND SHE SAID—

"Tell me, dear, where did you get this delicious tea?"

"Well, one day George stopped in at his store—had a cup of tea there—turned up his nose at ours—till I had to phone Ethel for the name. Result — Mother Parker's from now on."

"Yes—and I know another person right now who will be serving Mother Parker's from now on. Please—do give your lips a try their Tea Bags. They're so convenient—and Orange Pekoe quality, too."

serves, buns and many other items too numerous to mention. The convenors of this table were Mrs. W. J. Mills, and Mrs. James Miller, who, judging by the many customers would have nothing left over.

In the reception hall, another table with several novelties including books, crystal candleholders in pink, pot-holders, a lovely purple African violet plant, shell earrings, little whatnots, jars of pickle and other relishes, were convened by Mrs. A. McCullough, Mrs. W. MacDonald and Mrs. W. Hiddlestone.

A dainty tea, charmingly convened and pleasingly successful.

A most enjoyable afternoon was spent at the home of Mrs. Charles Earle, 224 Ann street, when 30 hostess welcomed the members and guests including all those who had contributed to the programs during the year.

Assisting Mrs. Earle in receiving was her co-sisters, Mrs. Lefresy and during the social hour the social committee was composed of Mrs. Roblin, Mrs. Gerolins and Mrs. Wardner.

Mrs. Lent presided, and welcomed all, and after the usual opening, messages were read from those who have been ill, and a silent prayer in memory of Mrs. Robert Zufelt, whose passing was keenly felt by all.

Guest Speaker

Mrs. Osborne introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Holmboe, 221 Ann street, who gave a most interesting description of her trip to Norway and Sweden, with colored slides of beautiful scenery—interesting buildings, not the least of which were the homes, rural and family life of her husband's people, who have resided in Nor-

Air force boys brushed them off

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 18, and my sister is 16, and we have a problem.

We met some very nice boys out at the air base here and invited them to our home. We made dates, laughed and talked. They seemed to enjoy themselves and acted as though they didn't want to go, but we never heard from them again. That has happened twice just recently.

We would appreciate it very much if you could help us. It does not make us feel very good when they don't even call and say they had a nice time.—H. L. and J. L.

Dear Girls:

Do you think the fact that there is four years' difference in age between you two might have something to do with this situation? It is possible that boys old enough to be in the air force might feel that a girl of 16 is a bit young for them. I do think, though, it wasn't very nice of them not to have gotten in touch to thank you for your hospitality, but of course not every young man remembers these things especially when away from home and living such a different kind of life.

It is nice for you sisters to be congenial enough to do things together, and perhaps, if you look around your city, you might be able to find some organized group which makes a point of entertaining servicemen, where you could go and help. I suggest you go first to your local YWCA and inquire about such opportunities. They usually know about such things there, and may even have some similar group there. At any rate, I am sure they could suggest some activities in town in which both you and your sister could take part, both separately and together, and where you could have fun with girls and boys your own age. You don't care whether the boys are servicemen or not, as long as you have good times, do you?

Proper, practical way to place dessert fork and spoon

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle a dispute several members of our club are having, will you please answer this question: Is it ever proper to put the dessert fork and spoon across the top of the individual place when one sets the table? —O. R.

Yes . . . this is the form very often used nowadays when setting a table for an informal dinner when there is little or no service. And very sensible and practical it is. The dessert fork and spoon are placed across the top of the place plate (or of the place, if there is no place plate), parallel to the edge of the table. The spoon is placed above the fork, its handle to the right (to be taken in the right hand); the fork with handle to the left (to be taken in the left hand). This means that the hostess doesn't have to bother about the dessert spoons and forks when she serves the dessert, either from her place at table or on individual plates from the kitchen or sideboard.

Teenage etiquette

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. If a girl has been having dates with a boy for almost a year, should she give him a present at Christmas-time, or wait until he gives her a present first?

2. When a boy has invited a girl to go for a drive, should she ask him into the house when he arrives for her, or should she meet him at the door all ready to leave?

3. Is it proper for a girl to invite a boy to have a meal at her home, or is this proper only if they are engaged?

Reader

1. The girl who knows her way around realizes that a boy wants to be given the privilege of making the first gift-giving gesture!

2. If the boy has never been introduced to her parents, here is the opportunity-for-courtesy. So the mannerly girl doesn't rush the boy off and away, but takes time for welcoming him into her home and into acquaintanceship with her mother and her father. A well-bred boy likes this social acceptance!

3. It is proper, perfect hospitality, for a girl's mother to invite a boy friend of her daughter's to any occasion in their home, to dinner or to a sandwich-and-coke. This hospitality is always timely . . . doesn't mean that the young man must be a fiance.

Tips for processional and recessional with tentative wedding party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning my wedding, and tentatively my wedding party includes: maid of honor, two bridesmaids, flower girl, a junior bridesmaid (age 11), four ushers and the best man. Please tell me what would be the correct procedure for the processional and recessional. (Also, if you think that no suitable arrangement can be made with this group of members, will you please give me your suggestions as to change.)—C. M.

With the wedding party you have in mind, this would be the processional: first, the four ushers, two by two; then the junior bridesmaid, alone; then the two bridesmaids, together; the maid of honor, alone; flower girl, alone; last you and your father. The recessional: bride and bridegroom; flower girl, alone; maid of honor, either alone or with the best man; the two bridesmaids, together; the junior bridesmaid, alone; the ushers, two by two.

Trashy Books Said Cause Of Lurid Offenses

Montreal, Sept. 27 — (CP). — The National Council of Women was told Wednesday that an increase in the number of "highly dramatic crimes" in recent years is largely attributable to "the sad plight of the modern, so – called literature."

Mrs. C. L. Pearson of Toronto, in her report as chairman of the council's committee on cinema and printed matter, said most parents closely follow "one or the other, of the threadbare patterns of trashy books."

Unless there is greater care in encouraging good books and discouraging the bad, "we shall be faced with an impossible situation."

Large Display of Trash

"One rapid glance at the cheap bookstalls of any modern city reveals an appalling number of filthy magazines, morbid picture and comic books and smutty novels. These are quite capable of directing their victims into paths of crime and vice."

Reports from local committees indicated active work in connection with the use of library facilities, enlisting the co-operation of theatre managers, endeavoring to have undesirable films and literature eliminated, and encouraging the showing of good films.

Reporting for the committee on moral standards, Mrs. A. W. Merrin of Burwash, Ont., told of the work of local committees acting on circulars dealing with such subjects as alcoholism, gambling, beauty contests, the unmarried mother and the Christian Sunday.

A report from Victoria severely criticized lurid comics, while commending teachers who endeavored to select those with good reading material from the public library. The Victoria committee had also learned through that hoodlumism be curbed at Halifax.

In Montreal, the local committee launched a crusade for improved jail conditions. A resolution by this committee, seeking further implementation of the Archambault Report on Penal Reform, was accompanied by a similar resolution from the Winnipeg local council and after obtaining approval of the National Council were sent on to the prime ministers.

The report also showed that the local committee in Kingston, Ont., had made plans for efforts on behalf of unmarried mothers and alcoholics, as well as in curbing gambling. Positive work had been done in police court and the federal penitentiary there. Peterborough reported on a year-round plan for healthful recreation.

NO BLAME ATTACHED

Kitchener, Sept. 26—(CP)—No blame was attached by a coroner's jury last night in the death of Pilny Hachbart, 3, of Heidelberg, who died of injuries received when struck by a car in the village on Sept. 12. Evidence showed the girl darted into the path of a car driven by Lorne H. Eadie of Toronto.

Girls From Canada Guests At Display by London Stylist

By MURRIL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London —(CP) — A charming green velvet dress that would add glamor to the wardrobe of any Canadian teen-ager has been designed by Angele Delaughe as a tribute to the 50 Canadian girls who visited her salon during their August tour of Britain.

Miss Delaugha, who has a salon in one of London's best-known department stores, (Fortnum and Mason) designed the outfits in about three weeks—including elaborate and glittering ball-gowns of grand-dame magnificence—to give a special show for the young Canadians.

Special for Teen-agers

And the delight of these girls, some of whom live miles from the nearest store in Canada, gave the designer inspiration to create a special teen-age dress that would commemorate their visit. The girls' trip to Britain was sponsored by Garfield Weston, wealthy Canadian business man.

The dress, made after the girls returned to Canada, has a French influence and is called Versailles. A dainty blouse and skirt with detachable cummerbund, it can be separated, the blouse used with a suit and the skirt worn with contrast blouse.

With slit Napoleonic neckline, its magnet sleeves given yoke interest by a line of burgundy hemstitching, the blouse is buttoned with tiny burgundy buttons that have green hemstitching. Buttons emphasize the vertical line of the drum pockets on the skirt with its softly-gathered back.

Energetic Club Holds Wiener Roast

The Energetic Club of Holloway St. Church opened their fall and winter term, by holding recently, a very successful wiener roast at Carl and Audrey Brebour's cottage, on the Moira River.

The guests were greeted with a large bonfire, around which was held a short devotional period, followed by guitar selections played by Archie MacMillan. A new couple were introduced, Pat and Don Bush.

A few amusing games were enjoyed preceding the "wiener roast" which was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

A hearty vote of thanks was given to Grant and Alice Stickle and their group, also to Carl and Audrey for their kindness in opening their cottage to the club.

How to Behave In Presence Of Princess

London, Sept. 26 — (AP) How does one behave in the presence of a Princess? What does one say to the prospective consort of a Queen?

These are questions many Canadians, and not a few Americans, are asking as Princess Elizabeth and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, head for Canada and the United States, on a state visit.

There are no hard and fast rules, but advice in the more sensible sections of court circles is: "Be yourself."

Should the ladies curtsy to the Royal pair? Canadians on formal occasions curtsy to the governor-general. So there are sure to be curtsies in Canada to the young lady who almost certainly will one day be the sovereign.

But on the street — if by the most unusual chance you should meet her there — skip it. She will smile and bow and the Duke probably will wave cheerfully. You can do the same.

Now, what to talk about? No politics, please. The Royal family knows all there is to know about British politics, but traditionally and constitutionally is above it and doesn't talk about it. Especially now, with an election campaign going on.

Talk about babies. They've got two. Talk about music, dogs, horses, gardens. Don't be dry, both of them like a joke.

To the Duke, talk about ships, he's a sailor man. Talk about polo, that's his dish. Talk about motors, he likes speed. He'll chatter about baseball, perhaps, but even better would be cricket and football, the soccer and rugby type.

Best thing for ladies is that they're young parents coming on a visit to be friendly.

Arts, Crafts Club Elects Executive

The first meeting of the fall term of the Belleville Arts and Crafts Club was held last Friday evening, at the library with Miss Helen Keeler presiding.

After a cordial welcome, the business of the meeting was dealt with and a list of the new officers was read as follows, president, Miss Helen Keeler; vice president and art convener, Miss Mary Moult; 2nd vice president and craft convener, Mrs. Lily Law; treasurer, Miss Helen Sulman; secretary, Mrs. Gladys Simpson; film representative, Mrs. Edna Gibson; press reporter, Miss Edna Jobson.

Mrs. Robbins gave a fine discussion on the Vienna Art Treasures which were on display this summer in Toronto. This was much enjoyed by all present.

Mr. William Jardine, of Flower Lane, Belleville, gave a most enjoyable demonstration on floral arrangements. He kept almost strictly to garden flowers and showed arrangements which any one could use at any time. Some of the ladies brought their own bowls to see how best to use them. A few of the ladies also tried their skill with Mr. Jardine showing them how to correct small errors. It was entertaining as well as instructive and Mrs. Law conveyed these thoughts to Mr. Jardine.

There were about thirty present.

Women's Activities

WHITE'S W.A.

White's District — Mrs. Glen Meyers was hostess to the ladies of the White's Woman's Association on Thursday last with a pot-luck dinner served at noon to 13 members, one visitor and two children.

Following the dinner, the president, Mrs. Floyd Dudley, presided over an interesting meeting.

The devotional service was in charge of Mrs. Wm. Yeteman, who opened with "Come Ye Thankful People Come." The Scripture, Psalm 78: 1-20, was read by Mrs. George Bilham and the story of the lesson was given by Mrs. Benson Bonisteel, under the heading "He leads them on safely."

A committee was named to call on people before anniversary services. October meeting is to be at the parsonage.

It was decided to try to obtain Mrs. Dobbs, the Presbyterial president, as a speaker for the November meeting.

There was a discussion on the anniversary services which are to be held at White's Church on Sunday October 21st with the morning and evening services taken by the Rev. G. Puttenham of Grace Church, Trenton, and the Rev. G. Mirldly of King Street Church, Trenton.

It was decided to send a plant to Mrs. G. Sarles who is ill in Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. W. Jones thanked the ladies for a plant sent her when she was in Trenton Memorial Hospital. A letter from Mrs. H. C. Jones was reading for a card and cards sent her when she was ill, was read.

Mrs. Benson Bonisteel gave a reading entitled "The Undertaker," "Coy Church" was given by Mrs. Leonard Young. Mrs. Wm. Yeteman supplied a musical contest with Mrs. Glen Meyers and Mrs. George Bilham winning first place. Mrs. Bilham received a lovely fuschia as a prize.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Bonisteel by Mrs. A. Jones and the Rev. A. C. McCallum moved a hearty vote of thanks to the hostess.

MADOC

W. Timmons Gives Talk at W. I. on Needs of the Blind

Madoc.—Madoc Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. G. C. Moon for their September meeting. The president, Mrs. D. Kernohan, presided. The meeting opened in the usual manner, and the roll call showed 34 members and two visitors present.

Guest Speaker

Mr. W. Timmins, of Kingston, representing the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, then addressed the meeting. He spoke of the need of preventive measures and about the rehabilitation of blind persons with respect to employment and helping to make it easier for blind persons to endure their handicap.

He appealed to the Institute to canvass Madoc in aid of the C.N.I.B. It was decided to do this in October with Mrs. J. W. Hulin, as convener. There were several communications, including one from Hastings County Council re demonstration wood lots; one re Salada Tea Company Quilt competition; and a "Thank-you" card from Mrs. Nathan Bronson. It was decided that the Institute purchase a flag for the village and suggest to the local council that it be flown in the park.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. Forestell on October 26, instead of the regular meeting date. Plans were made for preparations for booth at Madoc Fair.

Program

The program was in charge of Mrs. J. Aylsworth, convener of Historical Research. Mrs. Allan Johnston gave a paper on the cemeteries of Madoc. She mentioned the Indian graves which were found on the Danford property; Hazard's Cemetery which is over 100 years old; the graves at the Seymour property, which date back to 1840-1849. Lakeview Cemetery was formerly known as the Fuller Cemetery and was later purchased by Mr. E. C. Tufts.

She also gave the history of the old Catholic Cemetery and their new one along No. 7 Highway; and reminded the members of the formation of the cemetery board and hoped that people would show more interest in their meetings.

Mrs. Aylsworth then told of the waterways of Madoc, mentioning the dam that was behind Dr. Beatty's residence; the one behind the Seymour property and the one that had been used to run the old woollen mill.

Some very old pictures of Madoc were shown by Mrs. Allan Johnston, and copies of these will be used in the Tweedsmuir book. It was decided that a new Tweedsmuir book be purchased.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Vankleek, Mrs. George Hill and Mrs. Jack Henderson.

Mrs. K. T. Nicol moved a hearty vote of thanks to those who had helped with the program and to the hostess and her helpers.

New Chemical, Primaquine May Prove Effective Weapon Against Malaria

Washington. — (CP) — United States army doctors believe that at last they may have an effective weapon against the relapsing form of malaria.

Relapsing malaria, while rarely fatal, is most prevalent throughout the world. It can occur in temperate as well as tropical zones. It is highly frequent in Korea. The army says "onerous cases" may be expected among returning troops.

For years it has been possible to control periodic bouts of relapsing malaria, but doctor's couldn't cure it. They could only let it burn itself out—usually in about three years—although they could do a lot to cut down the number and severity of relapses.

The reason they could not cure it is this:

Parasites transmitted to man by the bite of the anopheles mosquito, live in both the blood stream, where they cause active trouble, and in the liver (and perhaps other organs of the body) where they do not cause any evident symptoms. However, periodically they get into the blood stream from the liver and cause relapses.

Doctors have a number of drugs which can eliminate parasites from the blood stream and thus overcome an actual attack. Such chemicals include the war-developed atabrine and the more recent and more satisfactory chloroquine.

But they have had no drug which could attack the parasites harbored in the liver.

Now, the army thinks it may have one. Still under test, it is called primaquine.

It's a man-made drug distantly related to atabrine and is an outgrowth of research during the war by army, navy and civilian scientists.

In co-operation with the University of Chicago, the army tested it on prisoner volunteers at the Stateville Penitentiary, Joliet, Ill. A report on the experiment said there was a high percentage of cures among malaria cases with no subsequent relapses. The prisoners were inoculated with experimental strains of malaria.

Even if present high hopes for primaquine hold out, it will not replace chloroquine. Instead, service doctors envision a double-barreled attack with chloroquine to suppress actual attacks and primaquine to prevent relapses.

"It may be possible," the army says, "to cure malaria, which has been suppressed . . . by chloroquine without the individual concerned being aware that he had contracted the disease."

There is still no drug that can prevent the disease once an individual has been infected by anopheles—nicknamed "Bloody Anne" by the soldiers of the Second World War.

But war-developed insecticides, like DDT, can fight it, and improved mosquito repellants have been developed in recent years.

The most malignant form of malaria is called falciparum. It's restricted to tropic and sub-tropic zones. While it is frequently fatal, it can actually be cured by a number of drugs and is seldom relapsing.

The most prevalent type is vivax, which has been found throughout the world. It is highly relapsing but rarely fatal. Primaquine has been tried against this form of the disease.

There is a third type, less common than the others, called malariae. Both it and vivax can be suppressed by drugs but not cured.

The new drug, primaquine, has not yet been tried against malariae.

Half-Million Labor Votes Will be Wasted

London, Sept. 27—(CP)—About 500,000 socialist supporters will trudge to the poles in vain in next month's general elections. Their votes, the experts say, will be wasted.

The theory is that labor holds some seats by such overwhelming margins that the extra votes are not needed, and do not influence results in other constituencies.

The Conservatives suffer from the same disability but not nearly to the same extent. At the last general election in February, 1950, some five-sixths of the 60 largest majorities went into the socialist ledger.

This statistical bias in the electoral system, which operates on a single-constituency basis, was detected by David Butler, appointed by the Nuffield Foundation to break the 1950 election down into figures. But Butler's calculations, the bias is such that—all things being equal—labor will need about two per cent more of the popular vote than the Conservatives to win a like number of seats.

Sections in which Labor votes are least likely to be needed include the working class area of east London, the industrial Tyneside, coal-mining Durham and South Wales.

Thus Labor campaign managers can be expected to fire their big guns in the marginal areas. Among these will be the 47 constituencies in which the winning margin a year ago last February was less than 1,000. The battle will be even fiercer in the seven seats now held by less than 100 votes.

Three Danger Spots

Chief among the danger spots for Labor are the Manchester division, held by 42 votes in an electorate of nearly 6,000; Preston South and Pembroke. The Liberal party, which had 474 candidates in the last election but only nine seats, holds seven by margins of less than 2,000. This time the Liberals are concentrating on a much smaller number of constituencies.

The reduced Liberal presentation probably will help the Conservatives more than Labor. Tory pundits claimed they lost 14 seats in February, 1950, through the large-scale Liberal intervention. These were ridings in which Liberal voters were considered right wing, and in which Labor won by narrow margins.

The 1950 swing—that is, the average of the Conservative gain and Labor loss has—been estimated at slightly more than 3 per cent. It is estimated that a further swing of about 2 per cent would give the Tories a comfortable working majority in the next parliament—say by about 50 seats.

Says Russia May Strike Should Collapse Hit West

Frankfurt, Germany, Sept. 27—(CP)—A former Czechoslovak official who fled his communist-ruled country expressed belief Russia may strike after an economic collapse in the West.

The official, Maximilian Jiri Lon, fled from Prague this month with his wife and daughter. He was once chief of the United States section of the Czech ministry of Foreign Trade.

He told a press conference today that Czechoslovak "is rapidly deteriorating as the temp of rearmament is speeded up."

Asked if that meant the Russians are getting ready to strike soon, he replied:

"No, I don't think so, at least not for some time. They are hoping that America will suffer a depression that will collapse the N.A.T.O. (North Atlantic Treaty Organization) and the Marshall Plan, then they might strike."

Last Summer's Tourist Influx Into Canada Largest Ever; Yields Nation $260,000,000

(By The Canadian Press)

By train, motor coach or airplane—but mostly by automobile—tourists streamed into Canada in unprecedented numbers this summer.

A Canadian Press survey today showed that the biggest increase was in Manitoba, which reported 70 per cent more visitors than last year. The Dominion Tourist Bureau in Ottawa said the average increase across Canada was about 10 per cent.

Figures showing the percentage of United States citizens among tourists entering Canada this year have not yet been compiled but last year the figure was about 90 per cent. In that year, more than 4,500,000 American citizens put $260,000,000 into Canadian pockets.

Biggest attractions were Canada's forest and lake-studded vacation-lands which thousands came to swim, fish or sun themselves on beaches. Other attractions ranged from scenic tours in the Maritimes and British Columbia to historic sites in Ontario and Quebec.

Up 12 Per Cent

The number of tourists who ranged the picturesque coastline highways of the Maritimes was up about 12 per cent from last year. The trend was expected to continue through the fall as the moose and deer-hunting the object of most of the visitors.

In Quebec, Tourist Bureau officials reported only a 5.8-per cent increase in vacationists but they expected an eight-per cent increase for the year because of an expected fall influx.

More than 1,000,000 tourists' automobiles had entered Ontario by September 1 of this year—an increase over last year of about 218 per cent. Many had remained in the cities but most headed for the great outdoors where they packed cottages, forests and villages.

Although the weather this summer on the prairies was cool, income from tourist expenditures was expected to be up 14 per cent in Manitoba, 12 per cent in Alberta. No figures were available for Saskatchewan.

In Manitoba, although the relative increase in the number of visitors was the largest, the individual traveller spent less than his counterpart last year. Similar reports came from other tourist bureaus, but no exact figures were available.

B.C. Does Well

The average tourist who came for salmon in British Columbia or drove through the towering Rockies was well-heeled this summer. He spent $30 a day—to bring B.C.'s gross tourist income to $70,000,000 this year. In the other provinces, the average expenditure was $10 to $15 a day.

A breakdown of the tourist dollar shows that retail and department stores get the largest single cut—25 cents. Restaurants and food stores get 22 cents and hotels, resorts and camps share 17 cents among them. The remainder goes for car servicing, entertainments and transportation on trains, buses and planes.

Biggest gripe of most American tourists—after the condition of back-country roads—was the refusal of many persons to allow a premium on United States funds. After one or two refusals, most travellers went to banks, where they got Canadian currency at current exchange rates.

Search Party Combing Bush Find Missing Boy

Peterborough, Sept. 27 (CP) — Twelve-year-old Max McKelvey, lost in dense bush near his Minden home 40 miles north of here, was found today.

The boy became lost Wednesday afternoon while rounding up one of his father's horses.

About 40 volunteers combed the bushland through the night.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert McKelvey, started out after school to hunt for a couple of horses pasturing in the bush. He was accompanied by his seven-year-old brother, Frank.

Frank found one of the horses and waited for Max to return. He remained there until dark and then went home. The McKelveys live three miles north of Minden village.

LARGE AWARD MADE

Kitchener, Sept. 27 (CP)—An award of $18,000 was made today to the widow and two children of Clifford Huehn, 41, of Heidelberg, who was killed in a highway crash about a mile west of that village on Nov. 8, 1947.

It was the end of a damage action in which Harry Koehler, Heidelberg, executor of the Huehn estate, sued William A. Stewart, Waterloo, contractor, and the driver of the truck, Walter R. Ziegler, Waterloo.

James Mason, Heidelberg, who suffered back injuries in the crash was awarded $627.

Huge Quantity Of Grapes May Be Left on Vines

Grimsby, Sept. 27 (CP) —Unless Ontario housewives buy and use more grapes than they ever did before there seems a strong possibility that a huge quantity will be left on the vines to rot unpicked. There are varying reports about the crop, but a conservative estimate places it at around 60,000 tons with the wineries contracted for only 15,000 tons.

This leaves about 45,000 tons to be absorbed by the fresh fruit market. And fruit shippers do not see any possibility of the fresh fruit market absorbing the surplus.

The negotiated price for grapes going to the winery is $77.50 a ton. The price to growers is 27 cents for a six-quart basket will cover.

17 Hamilton Dairies Apply For Cent Increase

Hamilton, Sept. 27 —(CP) — Seventeen dairies serving the Hamilton trading area today applied for a one-cent per quart increase in the retail price of milk. In the application submitted to the Milk Control Board of Ontario, the dairies said increasing operating costs made the boost necessary.

Members of the Hamilton Milk Distributors Association, the dairies pointed to cost-of-living bonuses given their employes that had generally added half a cent per quart to operating costs in the last 10 months.

Increased labor costs were only part of the picture, the distributors' brief noted. Supplies and services had risen since last November from 5 percent for gasoline to more than 45 percent for tires.

The brief suggested that parking another day from the present service to give a five-day delivery might be adopted to cut costs further.

BULLET IN BRAIN

New York, Sept. 27 (AP) — A man with a bullet in his brain was found standing in the middle of a busy street last night, blood spouting from an ear, he waved down a police car and was rushed to hospital. Letters identified him as Jack Kessler of the Bronx. Police said he mumbled the words, "three men" and "stick up."

Welfare Minister Goodfellow Says Government Will Give Pensions to Totally Disabled

Toronto, Sept. 27 (CP)— The Ontario legislature ends its short fall session today by giving final approval to two pieces of social legislation. It has the promise of a third for when it meets again.

Also scheduled for today is a brief Throne Speech debate in which leaders of the three parties in the House will take part.

J. L. McDonald (PC-Stormont) will make the motion for an address in reply to the Speech from the Throne and G. E. Gordon (PC-Simcoe Centre) will second him.

The promise of future "legislation overshadowed yesterday's debate on bills to provide pensions for persons aged 65 to 69 years and to improve assistance given to the Blind.

Welfare Minister Goodfellow pledged the government to introduce legislation in the next session, to totally disabled persons from 18 to 65 years at the next session. He said the program will benefit an estimated 10,000 persons and will cost between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 a year.

Round Out Program

It will "round out our Progressive public welfare program in the province," he said, and remove all but a few persons from the relief rolls of municipalities.

Recipients would have to show need. Their degree of disability would be ruled on by a medical board and only those unable to work would come under the bill.

Those to benefit will be chosen by a medical board, the bill says, paper men. It will cover such cases as poliomyelitis, arthritis, spastic paralysis and mental ailments.

The financial income of disabled persons will be a factor, he said. The amount, not yet determined, would be "comparable to other public-assistance allowances." Present pensions to needy persons are a maximum $40 monthly.

Proposed Previously

Mr. Goodfellow said the plan is the same as that proposed by Ontario at December's federal - provincial conference. Ontario had compromised in accepting the alternative of a pension plan for those 65 to 69, but wanted to adopt the plan for the disabled as well.

Mr. Goodfellow said the legislation would be ready in "ample time" before the next session of the House.

There was no indication from the government whether the promise of help to the disabled was meant as an election promise or as legislation it intends to pass before going to the people.

The plan could not be put into effect this session, Mr. Goodfellow said, because of the difficulties of organizing pensions for those between 65 and 69, which go into effect next January.

Earlier in the week the opposition demanded that the government pay a $10-a-month cost-of-living bonus to supplement the $40-a-month means test pensions and yesterday the government replied to these demands.

Mr. Goodfellow said the federal - provincial agreement stipulated that the pensions would be $40 at least. The Ontario government would be "most reluctant" to change it.

He added that a previous bonus to the old age pension had been used as a political football.

Jolliffe Critical

Criticism of the means - test pensions legislation was voiced by E. B. Jolliffe, CCF opposition leader, who said the ceiling of $720 on annual earnings was inherently in accord with the means test provision.

C. H. Millard (CCF — York West) also asked for removal of the means test and urged that penalties be paid to the blind during the five years between the end of family allowances and the start of blind assistance at 21.

Fast Time Ends Across Canada Saturday Night

(By The Canadian Press)

Remember—that hour's sleep you lost last April 29 when Daylight Time went into effect? You get it back this weekend.

That is, you will unless you live in Alberta or in the Ontario centres of Dresden, Thamesville, Cornwall and Windsor.

Actually, you won't gain an hour when those Canadian points which observed Daylight Time during the spring and summer switch back Sunday to Standard Time. It's just an illusion, the time experts say. But you won't care as you snuggle under the blankets for that extra hour's sleep. You'll adjust your clocks before going to bed Saturday night, of course.

Most of Ontario and Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick—in fact, most of Canada—observed Daylight Time in 1951. They all switch back to Standard at 2 a.m. Sunday.

But Albertans won't notice any difference. That province, by law is on Standard Time the year around.

Ontario's Thamesville reverted to Standard Time last weekend. Dresden switched in mid-week—Wednesday night. Windsor and a few other points remained on Standard Time. Cornwall decided to remain on Daylight Time an extra week. This was because Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh were scheduled to arrive there Oct. 1 on their R.S.T.C. October 5. The town authorities felt the extra hour would be more suitable time for a reception and extended Daylight Time.

Sarnia, Sept. 27 (CP) —Carl C. Manore, secretary-manager of the Sarnia Chamber of Commerce, has resigned, effective Jan. 1, 1952. He will become publisher of the Meaford Express on Oct. 15.

Mr. Manore, a past lieutenant-governor of Kiwanis International District No. 2, Ontario, Quebec and Maritimes region, is also a former advertising manager of the Canadian Observer, Sarnia.

Television Impact on Newspapers Pondered by U.S. Managing Editors

San Francisco, Sept. 27—(AP)—The impact of television on newspapers was brought under close scrutiny by 200 top U.S. editors today.

A report to The Associated Press Managing Editors' Association by Lee Hills of the Miami Herald concluded: "the red light in TV for newspapers was a warning against dullness."

Hills considered it a challenge to newspapers to be creative and "to take full advantage of the unique medium that we have."

The editors, in the second of a four-day session, approached the question of TV with mixed views.

Vincent S. Jones of the Gannett newspapers said:

"Editors have been so busy looking fearfully at television as a competitor that they have been slow to appreciate what it is doing to make and to stimulate interest in news fields."

Carl E. Linstrom of the Hartford, Conn., Times asked:

"Can it be that when we are selling 25,000,000 papers a day we are losing our audience?"

TV rocketed into the news field this year as never before with spectacular presentations of the Kefauver crime hearings, the Hiss-Arthur story and the Japanese peace treaty conference in San Francisco.

RCAF Abandons Ground Search For Bush Pilot

Edmonton, Sept. 27. (CP)—Lack of clues and the advent of wintry weather have forced the R.C.A.F. to abandon its far north ground search for bush pilot Johnny Bourassa.

The air force withdrew the ground searchers yesterday. They had spent three fruitless weeks scouring a wilderness of bush and countless lakes and streams in the Northwest Territories southeast of Yellowknife without picking up Bourassa's trail.

But the RCAF announced the air search for the Peace River, Alta., pilot, about 30, will be continued for the next few days until it has covered all of the 27,000 square miles in which Bourassa could possibly be.

The bush pilot, an expert woodsman with a keen knowledge of north country survival, has been missing since May 18. Discovery of his damaged plane on the rocky shore of Whoidala Lake, 375 miles southeast of Yellowknife, prompted the Air Force to reopen the search for him Sept. 5. It had been called off 2 1-2 months before.

Note Sparks Renewed Search

A note left by Bourassa—first indication he was alive and of sound health—sparked the renewed search. In the note Bourassa said he stayed with his plane five days and then set out on foot for settlements along the southern shore of Great Slave Lake, 200 air miles to the northwest.

A temporary camp ten miles southwest of the downed aircraft was the only point on Bourassa's trail picked up by the ground searchers, woodsmen and trappers who were personal friends of the pilot.

He left no blazed trail as hoped and the ground searchers conceded that the area to be searched was too vast without this vital guidance.

It is generally believed that Bourassa figured he was much closer to Great Slave Lake than Whoidala Lake when he started his overland trek. He had made an emergency landing after running out of gas in overshooting his destination by some 325 miles.

Prepared for you from the WORLD'S CHOICEST COFFEE BEANS

NESCAFE

*Nescafé (pronounced NES-CAFAY) is the exclusive registered trade mark of Nestlé's Milk Products (Canada) Limited to designate its soluble coffee product which is composed of equal parts of pure soluble coffee and added dry milk solids. Sugar, flavour and other features added solely to protect the flavor.

Choicest coffee beans from the world's finest plantations are selected for preparing "Nescafé. First the coffee beans are freshly roasted. Then the coffee is brewed and the rich coffee solids, the part that contains the aroma and flavor, are extracted and carbohydrates are added slowly to seal in all the coffee goodness.

All you do is just measure one teaspoonful right into the cup—pour on boiling water—and it's done. One taste and you'll know why more people drink Nescafé . . . for pure coffee enjoyment.

No fuss or bother—no wait. More economical, too, than ordinary coffee making. You save up to 40c a pound when you enjoy Nescafé.

Women's Council Continues Fight to Lower Prices

Montreal, Sept. 27 (CP)—A report to the National Council of Women yesterday attributed increases in meat prices to the "almost insatiable desire" of the United States for Canadian meat, and the apparent willingness of Canadians to buy meat "at almost any price".

The report was prepared by Mrs. W. R. Lang of Toronto, liaison officer between the council and the Canadian Association of Consumers.

The report said provincial organizations of the council are continuing the fight for the consumer "in the matter of ever-rising prices for milk, meat and bread, though not always with success."

The Manitoba and Ontario Provincial Associations won the right to have a consumer representative on their milk boards. In addition, Manitoba obtained the right to have full particulars of all facts obtained by the board released to the Canadian Association of Consumers.

The report noted distributors' claims that cost of door-to-door delivery is largely responsible for higher prices of milk, and suggested it is only reasonable to ask for a greater differential between delivered and cash-and-carry prices.

A switch to skim milk and powdered skim milk was noted. Unfortunately, said Mrs. Lang's report, increased demand for these products had brought a rise in their prices, working a hardship on lower income groups and large families.

Suggested Remedies

The high cost of living had brought about a demand for re-institution of all-over price control, said the report, while practically the only possible permanent ways of curing the situation were to produce more goods or to demand fewer goods. At the moment the people of Canada are doing neither, said Mrs. Lang.

She suggested it might be necessary, in view of the priority of labor for defence projects, for labor to consent temporarily to working slightly longer hours. This would again result in making more money available to demand more goods. Thus it might be necessary to pay the extra wages in some form of deferred purchasing power which would act as a cushion against a possible future deflation.

Mrs. Lang suggested "each of us realize our responsibility to check the spending spree which is the vogue of the moment."

Married Women Get More Jobs With Costs Up

Montreal, Sept. 27 (CP)—Surveys showing that large numbers of married women are entering the employment field because of the increased cost of living were presented yesterday to the National Council of Women.

The surveys, by local committees, were embodied in a report by Mrs. Roy Campbell of Regina, national convener of the Council's trades and professions committee.

During the last year the councils concentrated on "the older woman in employment" as one phase of the national theme, "The Canadian Family." Results indicate that, on the whole, the labor picture across Canada appears "quite bright," although certain seasonal layoffs were noted.

Big Step Forward

Establishment by the Ontario government of the principle of equal pay for men and women doing the same work was regarded as "a tremendous step forward" although some disappointment was voiced over the wording of the act. The hope was expressed that other provinces would not be far behind Ontario.

Vancouver reported that married women accounted for much of the increase in the number of women entering employment in British Columbia. Employers were beginning to realize women must be employed for the work they can do, and not according to marital status or age. Nurses were in good supply but teachers were needed. A slight demand was reported for laboratory technicians and air stewardesses. The United Church is seeking 125 young women annually for work in christian education and other fields both in Canada and in foreign countries.

Must Be Qualified

Victoria reported an increasing number of women seeking employment largely because of the higher cost of living or the seasonal unemployment of the husband. The committee found that positions are always available for trained, qualified women, even the older women with special skill and experience.

In Medicine Hat the committee chairman served on the advisory committee of the Unemployment Insurance Commission. Substantial assistance is given there to work for the disabled and the blind.

Regina studied contributory pension schemes, particularly from the viewpoint of older women not gainfully employed.

Fort William reported good opportunities in business for single girls with the necessary qualifications. Little demand existed for women in the higher professional groups, except in hospitals. Because of good pay, some women were seeking jobs on boats and as cooks and helpers in bush work.

Older Women Capable

The Toronto committee reported that if older woman are trained in their profession, are alert and have attractive personalities, there is no difficulty in placing them.

The Kingston, Ont., committee found that women over 45 were not as acceptable as the younger ones in the general labor market except where training, experience and personality were deciding factors. Age was a less important consideration in the professions.

Ottawa reported that while some employers felt the married woman with home responsibilities was an "uncertain quantity," they still wanted experienced workers. It was stated that if all married women whose husbands are working withdrew their services and pay cheques, "a depression would develop overnight." If all married nurses quit their jobs, one third of the hospitals in Ontario would have to close.

Frankford Choir Members Assist At Anniversary Services

Ivanhoe — Anniversary services were held last Sunday in Beulah United Church, Ivanhoe, were conducted by Rev. T. J. Lane, of Trinity United Church, Madoc.

The altar was banked with asters, gladioli and dahlias of many colors. The weather was ideal and both services were largely attended.

Morning Service

At the morning service, the guest minister chose for his text, Jeremiah 3-12.

Jeremiah was a realist, not a pessimist and if his utterances were gloomy, he lived in times that were gloomy. He loved his people so deeply, he was frank in reproving them. They had committed two evils — they had forsaken God, the fountain of living waters and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns that could hold no water.

Broken cisterns which men laboriously hew out for themselves are the seeking of worldly success and worldly pleasures. How many are guilty of deserating God's Day? People are forsaking the fountain of Living Water, gradually and destructively by prayerlessness and by carelessly attempting to find a substitute for God.

As in individuals, so in nations, God must be restored to His rightful places in the hearts of men.

Evening Message

The evening message was based on Romans 7-19. "For the good that I would, I do not; but the evil which I would not, that I do."

There is in every one's personality both good and evil. It is possible for an evil person to do good and also possible for a good person to do evil. It must be recognized the fact that evil is ever present and will never be completely destroyed. So vigilance and guard against it must never be relaxed in order that good may predominate.

One must turn to Christ with complete consecration and let Him overcome and control the evil. There is always hope of saving any evil person.

Frankford Choir

Twenty-seven members of the Frankford United Church choir were present at both services. The choir under the direction of Mr. Ernest Wallace, with Miss Marilyn Spencer as organist rendered at the morning service the following selections: anthem, "Lift Up The Gates of Praise"; quartet, Frank Terry, Ernie Wallace, Arthur Southworth, Harry Slingerland, "The King's Highway" "I Will be True to Thee".

Evening worship selections included anthems by choir, "Trust and Obey", "More Like the Master", "It is Mine", quartet, "I Have a Little Shepherd Who Feeds Jesus".

At the close of the evening service, Mr. Lane on behalf of the Board expressed grateful thanks to the choir for their inspiring messages in song, commending them for so generously giving of their time and talent contributing so much to make the day memorable.

Cleaners Ousted By Toronto Team In Two Straight

Toronto Family Credit Jewellers defeated Cleaner Combines by a score of 16-7 last night at the Alemite field to sweep their best-of-three series in two straight.

The Jewellers now qualify to enter the O.A.B.A. intermediate A.A. finals against Hamilton or Stratford.

A brilliant relief hurling job turned in by Wilbur Shaw of the Jewellers was the highlight of the contest. Coming in in the first frame, Shaw allowed only five hits over the remainder of the route while whiffing 13 and passing only five. He sent the Cleaners down hitless in the last five innings.

Cleaners took a first run lead off starter Williams and had five runs across on four hits, a pair of walks and an error, before Shaw took over the mound chore and retired the side without further damage.

They combined three hits in the second for another tally and Bob Green's homer in the third was the final run scored for the homesters.

The Jewellers pecked away at the offering of Bob Green for a pair in the first, one in the third and three in the fourth to keep within one run of the lead.

Blew In Sixth

They blew the lid off a close contest in the sixth however as they exploded for eight runs. A combination of five hits, five errors and three bases on balls did the trick.

From then until the end of the contest it was just a formality as Shaw down to keep the Cleaners hitless while his team mates plated more in the top of the ninth off the offerings of reliefer Jack Holmes who chocked the last three frames.

Collins, two triples and a single led the 16-hit attack at the plate for the visitors. Berry, Ganny, Shaw, Hawkshaw, Winemaster and Williams each garnered two hits and Comars picked up the other.

Pete Jones was best for the Cleaners with three singles in his first three times up. DeHaabi picked up a pair with singletons going to Mulvihill, Young, Benston and Green, the latter's being a home run for the only extra base clout by the homesters.

ALL IN THE FAMILY

Everton, Bedfordshire, England. (CP)—For more than 100 years the postmaster here has been a member of the Giles family. Now after 41 years of service, John Giles will be succeeded by his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Eric Giles.

Montreal Takes First Game In 'Little' Series

Montreal, Sept. 27 (CP)—Milwaukee Brewers' much-touted batting power failed to come through last night as the American Association champions dropped the first game of the Little World Series 6-3 to Montreal Royals.

Lefty Chris Van Cuyk limited Brewers to seven hits in his 7 2/3 innings on the mound. Those, along with the one relief pitcher Tommy Lasorda yielded in the ninth, were all singles.

Van Cuyk had some measure of consolation for being lifted in the eighth. His single in the second drove in the Royals' fourth run, the one that meant the game.

The International League pennant winners hardly gave Brewers starter Murray Wall time to get warmed up. Bert Haas, George Byam and Bob Morgan rapped out successive singles in the second. Walt Fiala doubled and Bert Thiel came in for Wall. Van Cuyk nicked him for a single before an outfield out and a double play ended Royals' rally.

Brewers, held to two hits by Van Cuyk until the fifth, collected another pair which, aided by two Royals errors, put them back into the game.

Guelph Thumps St. Mikes 8-3

Guelph, Sept. 27 (CP)—Guelph Biltmores defeated Toronto St. Michaels College 8-3 last night night in an Ontario Hockey Association junior A exhibition game. Billy McCreary led Guelph with three goals and Ken McNeil, Dean Prentice, Chick Chalmers, Ted Doyle and Andy Bathgate got the others. Toronto scorers were Logan, Walkroth and Jacobi.

Mimico Juniors Win Dominion Lacrosse Title

Brampton, Ont., Sept. 27 (CP)—With a smooth passing attack and a strong defence, Mimico Mountaineers won the Canadian Junior Lacrosse championship and the Minto Cup here last night.

They defeated Manitoba All-Stars 19-7 for their third successive victory in the best-of-five series. Earlier, the Mountaineers had blanketed the Manitobans 20-9 and 20-12.

Last night's game was the hardest fought of the series — and the closest. For a short time it appeared the westerners might force a third game. Halfway through the first quarter, they led 2-0 and at the end of the frame they were ahead 5-1.

But in the second quarter Bill McLean and Fraser Rock scored singles for Mimico and Sandford, president of the Mountaineers, banged in two, to put the easterners ahead 6-5.

The Mountaineers never lost the initiative. They knocked in seven scores in the westerners' three in the third quarter, and four to the All-Stars' three in the fourth.

Main reason for the early lead was substitute goalie Bill Nichols, young Peterborough star pressed into service when injuries forced Clarke Hicks to leave the series. Nicholls was covered under in the first period but tightened his blocking as the game progressed.

Sandford was one of a trio of three-goal men, for the winners. The others were McLean and Bill Lubbock. Rock Bailey and Burt Sargent each scored twice and Fraser Rock, Don Meeke, Jim McIntyre and Lou Nickle banged in singles.

Four men carried most of the scoring load for Manitoba, Glenn Christianson, Bill Yelligan, Ron Arkile and Jim Palmer scored two goals each and Effie Neubauer was good for a single.

BCI Grid Seniors Bow to Trinity By 18-3 Score

Belleville Collegiate Institute's senior football squad went down to defeat by an 18-3 score in its first gridiron test of the season against Trinity College School at Port Hope yesterday.

The game opened slowly, with numerous fumbles on each side, and not until the eleventh minute was a first down made. Soon after, Clark scored a touchdown for TCS and McDermont made the convert. Belleville then threatened to score as Barclay ran 60 yards on a pass from Green, but they were held by a strongly charging TCS line. The first quarter ended with Currie going over for a second touchdown for TCS.

Soon after the second quarter started, TCS fumbled behind their line, and Belleville scored a safety touch to make the score 13-2.

From then until the end of the half, neither team was able to score, although TCS made a few fine runs.

TCS threatened early in the second half, but were unable to put the ball over the BCI goalline. Belleville then made the score 12-3 on a rouge to Moore. In the fourth quarter Board scored TCS's final touchdown, which also was converted by McDermont.

For TCS Muntz, McDermott, Currie and Board played well while for Belleville, Allen, Green and Moore were the best.

TRAILING RACCOON

Bowmanville, Sept. 27. (CP)—Police are on the trail of a raccoon blamed for wrecking the interior of F. Hoag's newly-painted house. When Hoag returned yesterday from a two-week visit to Toronto, he found wallpaper and plaster torn off the walls, while bottles, a pail, a lamp and boxes had been knocked over. There were claw marks on the walls.

CLEANERS BOW OUT!

Classic Combines blew a first-innings three-run lead, scoring five after Armenia Parish Church grabbed two to start shading off, then failed to fathom the visitors' hurling over the rest of the route and were eliminated 16-7 in the second game of their Interstate AA semi-finals series. The Credit crew lost the first tilt in Toronto last week.

So the organized softball in the city after the most successful year of operation since its resurrection three or four years ago. Glen Rays were ousted in the senior "B" playdowns by Kingston Alumni. Both Glens and Cleaners, although defeated in their initial forays into OASA softball were far from disgraced. They were a distinct credit to their leagues, their executive of the Commercial Softball League and to their city. Next year should see them bigger and better.

KINGSTON GUARDS HERE TOMORROW!

Kingston Guards, rated as one of the best senior "A" softball teams in this part of Ontario will show their wares against the city champion Glen Rays at Alemite Field tomorrow night in an exhibition tilt. The entire proceeds will go to assist in defraying the hospital expenses of an injured member of the Glens who underwent an operation recently. It's a safe bet there will be a draw for a handsome prize. The Guards and Glens have met before and the scores have been closer than your underwear. It should be a tidy tussle, and softball fandom should not miss this outstanding tilt.

COLOR!

Color is as important an ingredient to the success of a baseball club as it is to a painting or a debutante's wardrobe. Properly used it is a fine asset, both in the club and in individual players and others actively connected with the game. But like the fabled's first coke, it can overdo.

Color in the hands of master baseball artists brought them wonderful fame and public homage. There was the immortal Babe Ruth whose gesture in that famous Yankee-Cubs game when he answered Chicago hecklers with a dramatic indication of the right-field stands where he promptly plastered the next pitch, is a brilliant paragraph in baseball history.

There was the uneducated nature-in-the-raw hillbilly Dizzy Dean, whose colorful sayings and actions brought him wide acclaim from the baseball world, not to mention a job that netted him as one of the highest paid baseball radio announcers in the world.

There was the "Old Arbitrator" Bill Klem, who died a short time ago, who used a natural gift to bring himself to one of baseball's highest planes.

Sport would be drab without its color. Every fan likes what he termed a "rabble-rouser" at the helm of the medley bout of shoved dizziness in hockey. It is the spice to the fans' sports meal. Without it, competitive games would be dull affairs.

Dizzy Dean's natural witticisms over his microphone are becoming American grass of baseball lore. One day when a "screwy" moved close to an "umpire", Diz came out with, "Lookit that umpire, standin' out there with his arms behind his back. Umpires don't never seem to know what to do with their hands. They either got 'em behind their backs or folded. Lookit 'im out there. Looks sorta like a knicker."

Dizzy is frequently handed a lot of written material to read over the air. After struggling through a long commercial one afternoon, he concluded with, "Well, at least I got through to the end. I admit I calmi read good. But they're one thing I hope. When that pitcher throws that ball, he throws it. When that ketcher kaches that ball, he kritches it. And when that hitter hits it, he hits it. That's all yuh gotta know, folks."

Commenting on Joe Gordon's lazily relaxed manner on the field, Diz came out with "Look at 'im. There's a fella you look at an you say, there's a fella dreads to do anything."

Dizzy speaks of "sprang trainings" and "peench hitters" and the relief hurler "thewin' down his pilmuinary pitches". He summarizes "No hits, no runs and no airs". Conferences take place "in the middle of the diament". He says time has been called while a base runner is "lacuning up his shoes". He becomes the baseball expert when he remarks, "They's gonna be a little fancy straggly now". He describes a hagi-hiberring pitcher as having "pumgumption clean thew his wishkers". And when Joe DiMaggio made a magnificent running catch in deep centre, running with his back towards the plate and reaching high above to snag the ball, Dizzy yelled, "Holy Cow, He caught it with his back in front of the pitcher's box".

One of the colorful stories of the "Old Arbitrator" was that when a runner was taking a long lead off first the pitcher fired the ball to the first baseman. The runner made a slamming slide to get back. As the dust settled, the first baseman glanced down and saw that his sleeve with the ball in it, was jammed between the runner's foot and the base, clearly signifying the man was out. He didn't move from his awkward position, but yelled at the umpire: "My God, yer blind! Looka here, his foot aint even touchin' the bay". Klem had already seen it. "How about you lookin'?" he yelled at the baseman. "That's yer own foot, ya big dumb ox". And so it was.

Brooks Belt Boston Braves As Giants Polish off Phils; Shantz Stifles Bomber Bats

By ED CORRIGAN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The desperate Brooklyn Dodgers, who saw their once-mighty 13½-game National League lead dwindle to just one game, go into today's game with the Boston Braves with Preacher Roe—ace stopper—on the mound.

New York Giants, pasting down the Brooks' back in the mad chase for the flag, will spend the day watching and waiting. They get back into action Saturday against the Braves.

Actually, the Brooks are in an advantageous position and the Giants will have to get the breaks to win the bunting. If the Giants win both games against the Braves, Chub Feeney's operatives will have to win three of their four remaining contests.

Should the Giants falter once, Brooklyn will need only two triumphs.

Dressen is taking no chances on his pitching rotation.

"It's Roe, Roe, Roe," he said, "for we've got to keep on winning. I'm not counting anybody to help us by beating the Giants. We've got to help ourselves. Carl Erskine will start for us tomorrow. I don't know who will go Saturday, but it will be Roe again Sunday if we need the win."

Yesterday's 15-5 conquest of the Braves did a lot for the Dodgers, even though the Giants came right back at night and polished off Philadelphia, 11-1. It demonstrated that the Brooks had not cracked, as their double defeat at the hands of the Braves Tuesday might have indicated.

Also, it showed that Don Newcombe, who had been trying to win his 19th assignment for a long time, again could be trusted with a starting assignment.

Shantz Stunks Yanks

In the American League New York Yankees made no progress in their efforts to save up the flag. They were completely ineffectual against the pitching of Bobby Shantz and dropped a 4-1 decision to Philadelphia A's.

So the combination still is two for the Yanks—two triumphs or two defeats by the Cleveland Indians, who were idle yesterday. The Yanks have five games left and the Indians only two. The tribe winds up the season's business with single games at home against Detroit Tigers Saturday and Sunday. The Yanks play all five against Boston Red Sox.

Casey Stengel's men have only one worry about the Sox now. With their 7-1 loss at the hands of Washington Senators last night, the beaneaters aren't possible to win the pennant. If they win all six of their remaining games, and the Yanks lose all five of theirs, Steve O'Neill's team will tie.

Giants on Spot

The Giants were on the spot last night and they knew it. They came through nobly behind Larry Jansen, who racked up his 21st victory. Jansen's task was made easy when his mates presented him with four runs in the first inning.

Monte Irvin was the big boy in the Giant attack with a three-run home run, a triple and a double.

Oshawa, Falls Can Have Title If They Desire

Hamilton, Sept. 27 — (CP) — Winner of the current best-of-seven series between Oshawa Merchants and Niagara Falls Foods will be declared winners of the Ontario Senior A baseball championship if they so desire, the executive of the Ontario Baseball Association said last night.

Members of the executive said that the winner would have the option of playing the winner of the Toronto Baseball Association senior A championship—or of refusing to play and receiving the Ontario championship without a playdown series.

What, No Toronto?

The decision to exclude the T.B.A. winner except on the option of the Merchants-Foods winner was made because the T.B.A. did not declare a winner in their group by a date specified by the O.B.A. The T.B.A. playoffs are still in the semi-finals stage.

By a 6-0 win last night, Merchants have a 2-0 series lead over the Foods in the senior A series.

The executive decided also that in the junior A series, the winner of the current Oshawa-Kingston series would play London for the Ontario championship.

Owing to the lateness of the season, the executive ruled that all clubs in all series must play at least two games per week.

Sarnia Trounces Windsor Royals

Sarnia, Ont., Sept. 27 (CP) — Sarnia Imperials had too much power for all undermanned Windsor Royal team here last night and the "Big Red" team rolled to a 38-6 victory. The win enabled the Imperials to gain a tie with Toronto Balmy Beach for top position in the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union race.

The Sarnians scored four touch downs in the first half before Windsor entered the scoring column. Doug Passmore recovered a Windsor fumble in the first quarter to set up the first Sarnia score, George Curtis fired a 40-yard pass to Al Farris for the major. John Chorsteckci converted.

Corky Duchene raced 51 yards for the second touchdown. The Chorsteckci converted. Archie McAffer ran 11 yards for the fourth Sarnia touchdown. The convert was wide.

Bill Miller plunged over from the three-yard line in the second quarter for the third major. The convert was wide.

Remember When

(By The Canadian Press)

Lou Gehrig was a rookie first baseman with the New York Yankees when he hit his first American League home run 28 years ago today at New York. Gehrig went on to complete an iron-man record of playing 2,130 consecutive games with the Yankees before his death in 1941.

Pep Out-Hugs Sandy Saddler But Gives Up Ghost in TKO

New York, Sept. 27 (AP) — Unless they take their act on the wrestling circuit, the Sandy Saddler-Willie Pep featherweight series is over today with plaudits to Sandy still the champion.

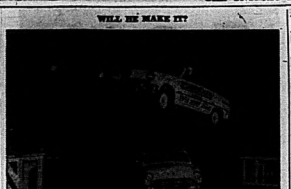
Four times is enough—and to many fans too much—for this stiff bout between the ring's best 126-pounders. A battered, bleeding and disgusted Pep quit on his stool after the ninth round in the Polo Grounds last night to the skinny Harlem lad—the nine-round technical knockout and a 3-1 edge in the series. Last night's fight was almost a replicate of last year's battle between the two. That one ended when Pep claimed a dislocated shoulder after the seventh round. Today eye is bothering him and "I don't want to go on. The pain is killing me."

Both Warned

Exactly when the sad-eyed, dark-haired little ex-champ told referee Ray Miller when the offer was made over to Willie's corner after the ninth to warn him to cut out his holding and wrestling tactics or face disqualification. Both gladiators had been warned repeatedly by Miller to stop the rough stuff and get back to boxing.

"Don't get the idea, though, that this was strictly for the wrestling fiends. There were moments of boxing brilliance in the bout won't Pep actually was leading by a shade on the scorecards of two of the three officials.

At the end, the 29-year-old Connecticut critic's right eye was half closed, was bleeding from the nose and mouth and his strength seemed gone.



Shook The Champion

But earlier he shook up Sandy several times and twice—in the second and fifth—connected with 12 and 14 rapid-fire blows without a return from Saddler. Sandy was shaken both times.

After taking that barrage in the second, the 25-year-old Saddler lashed back with jolting left hooks and uppercuts and decked Willie for the only legitimate knockdown of the brawl. Both boys went down several times, wrapped in each other's arms, and once the referee went down himself as he tried to pry them apart.

Willy Willie, who studied holds with a wrestler, tried something new in the seventh—rubbing the round partly because of it. He coiled his right leg around Sandy's left leg and the fighters and the referee all went down.

Willie was done after that.

Vancouver Evens Lacrosse Finals, Defeats Peterborough Petes 11-7

Victoria, B.C., Sept. 27—(CP)—Vancouver Combines kept their promise last night and as a result the Canadian lacrosse finals with Peterborough Petes are square at a game apiece.

The western champions confronted the Petes with blazing speed and power and more speed at the Petes, who outweigh them an average of 15 pounds a man.

In the first quarter last night, Vancouver appeared to be falling into the pattern of play of the series opener. They trailed 4-1 after the first 15 minutes.

But between periods they changed their heavy duty work boots for running shoes, and by the time the game ended they had the Petes gasping for breath.

Slim Crowd See Game

A slim crowd of 1,500 fans saw the game, compared with the 2,500 at Monday's game. However, since admission prices were raised after the first game, the gate was larger. Third game of the series is scheduled for Vancouver Friday.

Individual star of the game was Harry Whipper, big Peterborough defence man who can shift either way on the dead run. Whipper scored two goals and assisted on two more by Curly Mason.

However, in the third quarter he ran into the Vancouver defence and was smashed down hard as he tried to barge through to the goal. It took him a long time to get up and he didn't have his usual drive after that.

When Whipper's ability was reduced, the whole Peterborough team was similarly affected.

Varsity Gridders Surprise Beaches

Toronto, Sept. 27 (CP) — A fast-running, shifty squad of Varsity Blues from the University of Toronto Wednesday defeated the leaders of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, Toronto Balmy Beach 16-11 in a twilight exhibition game before about 3,500 fans in Varsity Stadium.

Bob Masterson's Blues capitalized on a Beach fumble and a deceptive passing play for the victory.

Steve Onoschuk ran 20 yards in the first quarter for the first Varsity major and Al Brown recovered Bill Haddleton's fumble of a Blues kick into the Beach end zone for the second U. of T. touchdown in the second quarter.

An 18-yard run by Bob Scott put the Beach on the Varsity two in the third quarter, but Ralph Pulley had to make two tries after quarter Gerry Tuttle failed before he scored the first Balmy major. Tuttle went over on a quarterback sneak in the final quarter.

Then the unexpected came as Bill Bewley, his Blues behind one point, grabbed a pitchout, made as though to run around the left end and, instead, heaved a 30-yard pass into the waiting hands of Al Haig behind the Balmy goal line. Jimmy Bell's convert was successful.

The Petes led 6-5 at half time, but as the Combines picked up speed, they lost their scoring touch and got only one goal in the last half.

Irate Braves Vow Vengeance Vile On Nasty 'Bums' Who Scored a Pile

By JOE REICHLER

Boston, Sept. 27—(AP)—An aroused Boston team, led by its equally irate manager, Tommy Holmes, has vowed to "shoot the works" today in an all-out effort to knock off the "high and mighty" Brooklyn Dodgers.

The Braves, who battled two stunning defeats upon the Brooks Tuesday to cut their National League leading margin over the New York Giants to one game, were on the receiving end yesterday. The Dodgers literally ripped them to pieces with a 15-5 shellacking.

The one-sided defeat, however, did not bother Holmes and his men half as much as one comparatively insignificant Brooklyn manoeuvre that had no direct bearing on the result.

The play in question was the steal of home by Jackie Robinson. It came in the eighth and was the sixth of a seven-run frame. The Braves felt it was an act of poor sportsmanship.

Rubbing It In

"Maybe you call it baseball," Holmes stormed after the game. "But I call it rubbing it in. They just wanted to pile it on. Who ever heard of a guy attempting to steal home when his team is ahead by 10 runs so late in the game?

"I don't mind getting beaten," the usually mild mannered pilot continued. "But nobody likes to get shown up.

"Now, we're going to throw the book at 'em. This is the big one and I'm going to pitch the kid, Chet Nichols. But I'm going to have everybody ready in the bullpen and I'm going to have Warren Spahn if we need him."

Spahn, the ace of the Braves' staff, whipped the Dodgers Tuesday for his 22nd victory. He was scheduled to face the Giants next Saturday.

Brooklyn manager Charlie Dressen accepted Holmes' challenge in typical Dressen manner.

"That's great," he chortled. "Now we have less worries about. I like to see the opposition mad. When a fellow is hot under the collar, he's bound to make mistakes."

Leo Durocher May be Named Manager of Year

Philadelphia, Sept. 27 (AP) — Jin or Jose in the pulsating National League pennant race, Leo Durocher of the astonishing New York Giants is certain to be a leading candidate for manager-of-the-year honors.

Although he refuses to take credit for his team's surge, or part in the Giant success can't be minimized. Even Leo's bitterest critics are grudgingly giving the devil his due.

Said Leo in the dressing room after his Giants slaughtered Philadelphia Phillies last night 10-1, and pulled within one game of Brooklyn Dodgers:

Never Quit

"The success of this ball club is due to the 25 men who comprise the squad. They never quit. They have fought hard. Always remember that the players make the manager, not the manager the players."

A reporter asked him if it was the players who decided to remove Jim Hearn with Sal Maglie Monday night with slugger Del Ennis at bat, three runs and a Giants ahead 3-1, Ennis hit to a double play.

Durocher replied and said: "If Ennis had hit a home run I'd have been a bum. It didn't take much thinking to come in with your best with only four games left and every one counting like a million."

The Giants look relaxed on the field. They are making great plays in the clutch. And in the clubhouse, they're not excited after the game, the boys came in and quietly went about the business of getting dressed, to take a train for New York.

QUALIFY FOR FINALS

Toronto, Sept. 27. (CP) —Toronto Carlton's last night qualified to meet Stratford Kroehler's here Saturday in the opener of the best-of-three finals for the Provincial Women's Softball Union championship. Carlton's beat Toronto Fuels 7-2 to win the best-of-three semi-finals 2-1.

National League President's Job Up to Giles

Chicago, Sept. 27—(AP)—It was up to Warren Giles today; whether to accept the $40,000-a-year job as National League president, and the prestige that goes with it, or continue on in his well paid position as president of the Cincinnati Reds.

National League owners all want the big job, and Giles for a successor to Ford Frick, who a week ago was elected baseball's commissioner after Giles stepped out of the running. Frick, National League president since 1934, succeeded A. B. Chandler to the $65,000 a year commissionership.

League vice-president Phil K. Wrigley, who is owner of the Chicago Cubs, declared yesterday that all league clubs had authorized him to ask Giles to take over as league president.

Giles had no comment on the offer immediately but his boss Reds owner Powell Crosley, Jr., said, "It is up to Warren. As far as the ball club is concerned he is free to make up his own mind." Crosley said he would release Giles from a contract extending through 1956.

It is thought that, financially, Giles would be just as well off to remain as president of the reds. He has a long career as an executive in organized baseball and once was president of the International League. He has been with the Reds since 1936.

BY SAM GORDON

With Sweetie Pie your game is wrecked. No bids of hers were ever cute. But what she lacked in that respect, she made up in a bathing suit. And now perhaps you tell the dame: "My dear, it's time you learned the game."

A man writes to say that his wife is always getting him into hot water with her defensive bids. When an opponent in south opened with a heart, she jumped into two spades with this west hand:

♠ A Q J 9 8 2
♦ K 9 4
♣ A K Q

So would I. However, he objected to this. He says he uses a jump defensive bid to show a long suit and nothing else. He insists that the purpose of a jump defence bid is to make it tough on opponents.

To show a strong defensive hand, he says, he prefers to use a double for takeout. Even with a redoubable suit. Even with plenty of tricks. Even if his hand is worth eight tricks.

Many players use the jump overcall as he does. It gives them a chance to stick in some interference bids that way. It guns up the works for the opposing side in many cases.

But its best use is to show a hand with eight tricks and a suit that is redoubable. Used like this, it shows a hand stronger than a redouble and not quite as strong as an overcall in opponent suit.

This gives it a good purpose. Because in defence, what partner needs is to know quickly how much strength you have. It enables your partner to help you reach a game with weaker support.

Here and there you find a player who insists on some pet rule that is wrong. If he will not change, it pays to fit instead of fight while he is your partner. Particularly if you are married to him.

When you get a different partner you can change back to its correct purpose. It may pay you to know the correct use of a bid. But it does not pay to drag it through the divorce courts.

A SCENE FROM THE CAPITOL — Beautiful Rochelle Hudson appears with Ronald Reagan in Universal-International's new outdoor adventure, "The Last Outpost", now at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program, in Technicolor, "Pals Face" starring Bob Hope and Jane Russell.

AT THE BELLE — Paul Douglas wipes perspiration off his face before facing a nightclub audience for the first time in a scene from 20th. Century-Fox's "The Guy Who Came Back," showing at the Belle Century-Fox's "The Guy Who Came Back," showing at the Belle Theatre tonight for the last times. Linda Darnell and Joan Bennett share starring honors in the romantic drama. Everyone will enjoy this fascinating Saturday Evening Post story. "Experiment Alcatraz" is the companion feature.

AT THE McCARTHY — Rugged Joel McCrea is starred with 14-year-old Dean Stockwell in United-International's new Technicolor western, "Cattle Drive," opening today at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre, which features Chill Wills, Leon Ames and Bob Steele. McCrea and Stockwell also appeared together in "Stars in Your Eyes," a heartwarming film released last year.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 27.— (AP) — Sultry Vancouver-born Yvonne De Carlo, who has slithered through many an exotic epic, has returned from the Near East with a new respect for such films. She found the folks love 'em over there.

Miss De Carlo, first film star to perform in Israel, reported she played to riotous audiences there. Before her trip, she was not very fond of the "Arabian Nights" type of film she has often appeared in.

"But I was amazed at how much the people liked those pictures," she remarked. "I talked to many natives—cab drivers, hair dressers, hotel clerks—who said they had seen "Scheherazade" four and five times. And they seemed to have liked "Chahlah", too, although I don't know why."

First Actress

Eddie Cantor, Jascha Heifetz and Leonard Bernstein have appeared in Israel, but Miss De Carlo was the first film personality to entertain in the new country.

"It would have happened to any film performer playing there," she said modestly. "At every performance, there were civilian and military personnel to hold back the crowds.

"My biggest worry was getting into the theatre. The people individually were very respectful, but you know what mobs can do. I was never certain of getting out alive."

Miss De Carlo is about the travelingest actress around, whenever she isn't busy on the movie stages, she is packing up for some faraway spot. Of all the countries she has visited, she likes Spain best.

The only drawback to Spain she added, was the fans—"sometimes you find a crowd a block long following you."

Paris is another matter—"They don't care about celebrities there; they are too busy enjoying life." She feels best in England, since it's like her native Vancouver.

Sport in Brief

Warren Giles, who graciously stepped out of a stalemate with Ford Frick for baseball's commissionership, yesterday was graciously asked to become Frick's successor as president of the National League.

League vice-president Phil Wrigley of Chicago Cubs disclosed that the loop presidents all wanted Giles, 55, dignified No. 2 man of Cincinnati Reds, to accept Frick's $40,000-a-year job at a meeting already set after the final world series game.

Giles had no immediate comment.

Toronto-born Hugh Bolton is the leading candidate for the fifth and last defence spot with Toronto Maple Leafs.

At the Leaf's National Hockey League pre-season training camp in St. Catharines, Bolton, Frankie Mathers and Tim Horton are fighting hard for a chance to stay up in the spot left open by the disappearance of Bill Barilko on a far-north fishing trip a month ago.

Jim Thompson, Gus Mortson, Fern Flaman and Bill Juzda, all Leafs of last season, appear to have four of the five rearguard berths sewn up.

The fifth may go to Bolton, who stood out in yesterday's practice.

Pat Egan, New York Rangers defenceman, was sent down to the Cincinnati Mohawks, farm club in the American Hockey League, along with three other players off the Ranger roster yesterday.

Egan had second best consecutive streak for games played, 399, in National Hockey League history. The record run of 563 was made by Murray Murdock, an original Ranger, during 1926-37.

Others sent to Cincinnati were Emile (The Cat) Francis, Dumas Mathers and Tim Horton are fighting hard for a chance to stay up in the spot left open by the disappearance of Bill Barilko on a far-north fishing trip a month ago.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, September 28

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Another friendly day to warm you heart, encourage ambition. Many sound interests and activities present to everyday life ask attention. Don't abandon the useful merely for ventures.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Another stimulating, benefic day in what should have been a fruitful month all told. Personal interests, home and heart affairs equally favored with work, business matters. Squelch fear.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Good period for checking, finishing pending matters, readying things for next week. No urgent task need be neglected and to-morrow is much better for action, achievement, fun.

June 22 to July 22—(Cancer)—Happy prospects for weekend. Especially favored now is laborious work; handling big jobs and doing well the more intricate, delicate and "fiddle" things. Your day, so do make good.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Generous rays, but extra care needed if seeking appointments, dealing with those in high position, the boss, office, seeking advancement in your job. Don't discourage, just have more tact.

August 24 to September 23—(Virgo)—Good rays linger from yesterday and more encouraging ones augur for tomorrow. Day favorable to all interests, but interests, but warns against restless changes in usual routine.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Your Venus in excellent Aquarian augurs for a successful, pleasant day no matter if it is all work or recreation, or both. Much can be achieved now; do it. Enjoy free time.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Friendly indications, although strenuous activities are less favored than are usual routine tasks and healthy fun. But no duty of immediacy need be neglected, and it can succeed.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Extra care suggested dealing with lawyers, judges, in speculation, investments, if signing bonds, making money transactions. Otherwise day is benefic and you can achieve much. Try!

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Concentration may be a bit difficult now but keep right on with day's plans, schedule. Artistic professions, the home and domestic interests top favored. Be careful with mechanics.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)— Day has incentive, good indications for family, home, personal interests. Some restraint in spending; pleasures best sensible, as always. Clear bench or desk of first tasks first.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)— Sane caution urged in handling vehicles, dangerous tools, machinery. Day is benefic, favors work and recreational activities in sensible moderation. Have a good weekend.

YOU BORN TODAY: A well-balanced individual, usually courteous, kindly, sympathetic. If provoked, deluded and false in your finer qualities, are industrious, talented, very capable, ambitious and old folks like you, and you have especial gift for nursing ills. Can handle animals, till the soil profitably, or be equally efficient as skilled mechanic, builder, carpenter. Curb tendency to gamble, live too luxuriously, and don't be imposed upon by unscrupulous persons who would trade on your sympathy.

Birthdate: Rudolph Baunbach, lyric poet; John B. Gregg, University Prof.; Georgs Clemenceau, French statesman; Walter Pidgeon, actor.

Back Hurt; Limbs Ached Nervous, Couldn't Sleep

Was in Poor health for long time, says this woman. Got headaches, had dizzy spells, indigestion. Tells how Syntona helped her.

To people who suffer from tired, rundown feeling, stomach disorders, nervous irritability and rheumatic aches and pains throughout the body this message may prove a welcome news. It is typical of the many men and women who have found relief from similar troubles by taking Syntona Herbal Compound. The experience today is that of Mrs. Mary Yule, 122 Maple Street, London, Ontario, who says:

"For several years I have been troubled with constipation and stomach disorders. After eating I would bloat with gas and have pains and cramps in my stomach. I would belch up hot sour liquids and was subject to bad headaches and dizzy spells. My back hurt all the time, limbs and joints ached with rheumatic pains so badly I couldn't get my proper sleep at night and I was extremely nervous and rundown.

"Several friends of mine had used Syntona with such good results that I decided to try it myself now I am so pleased with the medicine that I will gladly recommend it to others. For the first time in years my food is digesting well. I am free of headaches and backache, my nerves are calmed down and I sleep splendidly. I feel better at night."

Thousands of people have experienced these same good results by taking Syntona Herbal Compound. Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

WILD WEST CHARITY STANDISH

By CHARLES JUDAH

Charity looked at him. "I don't know what's happened; but it isn't so smart of a girl to know when she's been jilted."

Douglas Kent shook his head decisively. "Mustn't say that. Mustn't think it."

"What am I to think?"

"That I love you."

"I suppose that's why you don't want to marry me."

"Do want to marry you, but you'd never be happy—gambler's wife—now I'm not even a gambler's husband. Angel's peon—she said so herself—wouldn't want to marry Angel's peon, would you?"

It was his last effort. He stumped to the floor. Charity looked down at him. He was not handsome now, nor ever will proconsul, nor very. His brown hair was unkempt, his skin was gray, unhealthy circles underlined his eyes, an outflung hand was grimy from the dice table.

He had admitted he was Angel's peon. She supposed that was the Spanish way of saying a man was infatuated with a woman, her slave. Charity looked at the packed trunk. The train left a little past midnight. There was still time.

But there was not time. Perhaps there would never be time for Charity to snatch a train bound back to Ohio. It was past midnight and she was still sitting at a table in Duke Rogers' place, talking to Angeles, the angel who drove men crazy and who, according to his own confession, owned Douglas Kent.

Charity, without pausing to think, had instinctively pictured Angel as large and curved and plump, with yellow hair, skin too smooth and too white and a china doll's blue eyes. She was none of those things. Her name was Angeles Cortez. Her skin was warm olive, her eyes were large and blacker than Charity's own, her straight hair gleamed with dark lights. She had moved to meet Charity with the lithe natural grace, that is the heritage of those people whose forebears had lived on Mediterranean shores. Her voice was liquid; she spoke with only a faint trace of accent, which she manipulated with studied effect. Only her mouth, with its red lips stretched to thinly over sharp white teeth, betrayed her. A small mouth, it gave little promise of a generous flowering. However, Charity doubting if a man would be as critical as she, grudgingly admitted that Douglas Angel might be a dark angel, she was beautiful. She was self-possessed too.

"You have misunderstood, Miss Standish. Douglas is not as you think a slave of love. I did call him my peon, yes. It was only a little joke. Of course he is not. Peons are bound by cruel laws; Douglas is only bound to me by what he so beautifully calls a debt of honor."

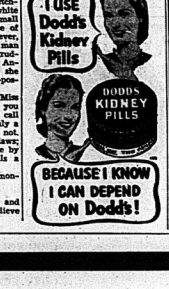
"You mean he owes you money?"

"Five thousand dollars."

Charity gasped in dismay, and rallied weakly. "I don't believe it."

Angel's lips parted in their thin cruel smile. "You call me a liar! If I were a man, we would fight about that. But I am not and you not tell that Douglas himself admitted that he owed me money?"

"Yes, I'm sorry I said I didn't believe you. But $5,000! What could he have done with it so much?"



"Alas, He lost it at dice to Mr. Rogers."

Charity's eyes narrowed. "Let me get this straight," she said slowly. "Doug came here, borrowed $5,000 from you and lost it to your Mr. Rogers. So now Mr. Rogers has the $5,000 and you have Doug. Is that right?"

"That is right, though it is perhaps too simple and I do not like the way you say my Mr. Rogers."

"Why is it too simple?"

"First Douglas lost $200 or a little less of his own, I was not paying attention. Towards morning he came to me. He was very sad. He drank heavily, which Douglas does not do. He told me he needed money. We are old friends, I know him to be a man of honor; I loan him money, a little at first. He loses, I give him more. So it went all day and through the first night. This afternoon I was forced to tell him that already he owed me too much. When I told him, he was overwhelmed. I took pity on his misery. Once before I had suggested that we open a casino in Santa Fe. He had refused then. Now I would again shake the offer; I would loan him more money, up to $5,000 if he won he could repay me, if his bad luck continued he must open the place in Santa Fe. Perhaps it was throwing good money after bad, but I am very tender hearted, so I was pleased when he said, 'I'll be back.' I made the little joke about the peon. 'But you will not be my partner,' I told him, 'you will be my peon.' His luck was very bad."

Angel's story was straightforward and it agreed with Douglas's own confession. "I suppose he will take a long time to pay."

"A long time, yes. I cannot afford high wages, and, of course, he cannot credit me with all of my little he will receive against what he owes me. Some he must keep for food, clothes and, since I cannot be cruel to our poor Douglas, little fun."

A tall man Charity hadn't noticed moved up behind Charity. "Did I hear you say Doug was drinking?" he asked Angel.

Angel looked up; the smile with which she had regarded Charity Standish faded. She glanced towards the dice table where Duke Rogers presided. The tall intruder repeated the question, "was Doug drinking?"

Angel shrugged. "Men come here to drink."

"Doug doesn't if he's playing."

The man turned towards Charity scrutinizing her out of eyes half amused half puzzled. She stared back, indignant that anyone should be so impertinent as to eavesdrop on a conversation between ladies. He was tall and lean. He held himself, as Angel did, with easy grace, and like Angel's his skin was warm ivory, but unlike Angel his eyes were grey and his hair sand colored, his mouth was as big as hers was small, as generous as hers was cruel.

"I don't know how you fit in this picture, ma'am," he said to Charity, "but I doubt if you believe it. I'd go back to the Astec if I were you."

Under other circumstances Charity might have been flattered at being classified with the Astec's pallid-cable citizenship. But she was in no mood for flattery.

"I can take care of myself, thank you," she snapped.

He grinned amiably. "I doubt it."

All her bitter disappointment in Douglas Kent, all the impotent hurt, spun up rage around by Angel found a target in this stranger who first eavesdropped and then presumed to give advice. Her voice was shrill, unladylike —the sort of voice that before tonight she had smugly associated with women such as Angel.

"Get out and tend to your own business."

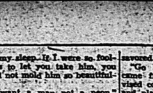
"I guess it's a good idea," he replied, his grin unruffled.

When he was gone Angel's mood had changed.

"He is right you do not belong here," she told Charity.

"I came about Douglas Kent."

"Yes, and now that you know how it is with him, it would be better for you to go away."



Charity knew that this was true. She would flee San Lorenzo, the west. But first there was something to be done. It was utterly mad, the plan was a fool; but there was some force within her that compelled her, as it had compelled her Puritan ancestors, to oppose her enemies to the bitter end, though she must cruelly herself in so doing. She calculated rapidly. With care she could live on half her income, and she might get a position teaching school or as assistant librarian; or she might even marry Ez Smith, though that did seem a trifle unscrupulous.

"I'll pay you your $5,000," she said.

Angel made no attempt to hide her scorn. "You are stupid, or you believe I am. You would pay me my $5,000 you say, though it would take a long time. If I did believe you, why should I agree? If you paid me, I would only have that to pay it. It would be the end. With Douglas Kent it will never be the end. I will see to that. There will always be a little more owing; it is the way with peons. He must work for me. He will make many times $5,000. And soon day, if he pleases me, I shall marry him."

"He may have to work for you, but he will never marry you," Charity declared with conviction.

"Maybe you are right—tonight, tomorrow. But when he has made me a rich woman, he will marry me if I want him. And be very grateful for such a beautiful and rich wife." Her thin smile bared the sharp white teeth. "Yes, when that time comes your Douglas will swear that night is day, or day night if I but whisper it in my sleep. If I were a fool, ah se je let you take him, you would not mold him so beautifully."

"I want a man not a peon," Charity said angrily. "But you are mistaken; if you think I will to pay you so I can marry Douglas Kent, I wouldn't marry him if—if he were the last man on earth."

"You see why do you offer to buy him from me?"

"Because I hate you," and Charity burst into tears. Angeles swayed her triumph.

"Go to, wherever you come from, cry-baby," she advised contemptuously. "Go home and play with your dolls."

Charity dashed the tears out of her eyes.

"I'm 25," she protested.

"So very grown up, no? Shall I have whiskey sent later perhaps you would gamble." She laughed at her joke and walked away.

Charity sat motionless for a long time. When she finally moved it was to beckon for a waiter.

"Whisky," she said.

Two Youths Killed in Crash Near Kitchener

Kitchener, Sept. 28 — (CP) — Two Preston youths were killed and a third seriously injured today when their car in which they were riding left the Galt - Preston highway and rolled up a five-foot ornamental retaining wall.

The dead are: Edward Conway, 18 and Donald Clawsey, 22, both of Preston.

Clawsey was almost instantly killed while Clawsey died in hospital some two hours after the crash.

In the same hospital with head injuries which include a severe concussion is 22-year-old Donald Conway, also of Preston who is believed to have been driving the car at the time.

Donaldson was to have been married tomorrow.

The boys were returning from a stag party celebrating the forthcoming marriage of two of them. Clawsey was to have been married in two weeks to a sister of Conway, while Donaldson planned to marry Joan Gordon of Preston on Oct. 6.

Police say the 18-year-old car went out of control when the driver swerved to avoid a right-angle turn into a side street by failing motorist and the car failed to make the turn and struck a stone wall.

Bookie Given 12-Year Stretch Faces More Years

New York, Sept. 28. (AP)— Bookie Harry Gross, sentenced to 12 years in prison for operating a $20,000,000 a year gambling and loan racket, faces additional 10-year jail term for contempt stemming from the police graft trial.

The 42-year-old bookie sat glum and silent yesterday as he heard himself sentenced to serve one year each, running consecutively, on 12 counts of a 66-count indictment charging conspiracy and conspiracy.

Sentence was suspended on the other 54 counts, and there was no fine. Maximum sentence would have been 66 years in jail and $94,000 in fines.

British .280 Rifle Gets Secret Test Against U.S. .300

Washington, Sept. 28. (Reuters) — Britain's new lightweight automatic rifle has been secretly tested against the latest United States and Belgian weapons, the national defence department disclosed today.

A department spokesman said the rifles have been tested under varying climatic conditions for hitting power, accuracy and rate of fire.

The tests were attended by British, French, Belgian and U.S. authorities but the results were kept secret. They were held in connection with the decision to seek the best rifle as the result of Infantryman's weapon for the Atlantic Pact armies.

The U.S. rifle used a .30-calibre bullet, the standard bore in the American army. The British and Belgian guns used a new type .280 calibre.

It was agreed at a meeting of high defence officials of the U.S., France, Britain and Canada in Washington last month that a common size of ammunition should be adopted as early as practicable.

London, Sept. 28—(CP)—Britain may ask the United Nations security council to intervene in the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute, informed sources said today.

The cabinet met in the oil crisis for the third time this week, as Britain awaited developments in the middle-east, country which has ordered British oil men at Abadan expelled by Oct. 4.

It likely course for London may be, the informants said, to ask the world body to call on Iran in loyal obedience to an international court of justice recommendation.

The court urged both sides to seek a peaceful settlement of the dispute which arose from Iran's nationalization of the billion-dollar Anglo-Iranian oil company holdings.

A senior British cabinet minister will be a reporter the government will issue a full statement tonight on its course of action and its reasons behind it, which it considers justified, but he would not say what the decision was.

A foreign-office spokesman refused to confirm or deny that Britain was considering the dispatch of warships.

A foreign office spokesman said reports from the British mission in Tehran thus far have brought no indication of established reports that Iranian authorities actually seized Anglo-Iranian Oil Company properties in Abadan.

Given Up Hope

A British call for U.N. help would suggest that the Labor government had given up hope that either Iran's Premier Mossadegh or premier would cancel the order to the 317 remaining Britons to get out. It would also indicate that the Britons would leave Abadan before the deadline, rather than attempt to stay through the use of force.

The cabinet premier's demand that 317 Britons quit the country by Oct. 4 was widely mistaked last night, Reuters news agency reported, when Iranian officials barred entry to the refinery.

The workers said they stopped all but 10 executives from entering the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's Abadan plant.

Later dispatches from Abadan to Tehran reported it said only that one Iranian officer and one soldier were posted at the refinery gate. The 10th man was said to be to prevent 70 British employees of the administration and accounting departments from entering.

Lapointe Ready to Extend Every Facility for Sunnybrook Probe

Ottawa, Sept. 28 (CP) —Veterans' Minister Lapointe said today that if responsible officers of the Sunnybrook hospital request it the Canadian Legion feel allegations made by Sunnybrook veterans Hospital require investigation "we are willing to give them every facility."

The minister said "we feel confident that they will find that there is nothing to justify the standard of treatment for veterans there, at Sunnybrook Hospital."

The minister issued a statement commenting on allegations about the hospital made in connection with the St. Catharines, Ont., last night by Arthur Padbury, provincial service bureau chairman of the Canadian Legion. Mr. Padbury said Sunnybrook provides great ment "of the sausage-mill variety," that suicides had occurred there without investigation and that it was a "school for Toronto Frames, British and Canada in Washington last month that a common size of ammunition should be adopted as early as practicable.

MONARCH NEARLY OUT OF DANGER SAY SPECIALISTS

Spent Good Night, Making Steady Progress

London, Sept. 28 — (AP)—The King spent another comfortable night and maintained a steady progress, a medical bulletin said today.

It was the second optimistic bulletin in a row from the doctors who handled the King's critical lung operation Sunday.

The bulletin, the ninth since the operation, said:

"The King has had another comfortable night and is making steady progress."

Herring unforseen complications, the King now is out of danger, some medical specialists indicated today. A number of Buckingham Palace sources refused to be quoted.

Dr. Russell Brain, president of the royal college of physicians, said only that one Iranian officer and one soldier were posted at the refinery gate. The 10th man was said to be to prevent 70 British employees of the administration and accounting departments from entering.

Churchill Calls Upon Britain To Free Itself From Socialism, Improve Living, Raise Prestige

London, Sept. 28 — (AP) — Winston Churchill called upon Britain today to free itself from socialism in order to rebuild its life at home and its prestige abroad.

In a 2,500-word Conservative party manifesto, the 76-year-old wartime prime minister said the Oct. 25 general election is "may well be the turning point in the fortunes and even life of Britain."

"There must be no illusions about our difficulties and dangers," he said.

Churchill demanded an end to class warfare and a growth in national unity. He blamed the "acute estrangement" of the Labor government for devaluation of the pound from $4.02 to $2.80 on Sept. 18, 1949.

The Conservatives were the first to issue their election manifesto for the battle at the polls shaping up for Oct. 25, in which the Tories must put the possibility of a victory ending the six years of Labor party reign. The Labor party, which has held that six years nationalized most of Britain's major industries, is expected to announce its manifesto Sunday or Monday. The election campaign officially opens Monday in Scarborough.

Churchill laid down these main points his party would seek to carry out if returned to power:

1. The Conservatives aim is to increase our national output. Hence, the first duty is to keep our people fully employed, to halt the rising cost of living and to preserve our social services."

2. Complete the £4,700,000,000 defence development program started by the Labor government, adding "we believe, however, that far better value could be got for the immense manpower and sums of money which are involved."

3. Impose an excess profits tax during the defence emergency.

4. Stop all further nationalization of industry.

5. Return the iron and steel industry nationalized early this year "to its former owners."

6. Decentralize the nationalized rail and road transport and coal industries, and give private freight trucking firms a chance to bid for business.

7. Strengthen the monopolies commission to reduce "to the minimum possible all restrictive practices on both sides of industry," including the nationalized industries.

The Conservatives also wait to give "a building a priority second only to defence and to provide better education and health services for the money now being spent upon them."

Churchill promised to unify the party to bind Britain, the Empire and the Commonwealth closer together in defence and trade matters, and seek closer unity of the Empire and Commonwealth peoples.

Churchill said that "the attempt to impose a doctrinaire socialism upon an island which has been created by free enterprise has inflicted serious injury upon our strength and prosperity."

Gen. Bradley Arrives in Tokyo For Conference With Ridgway

Tokyo, Sept. 29—(AP)— Gen. Omar Bradley arrived tonight, possibly to map plans for the Korean truce talks collapse completely and fullscale fighting erupts.

Bradley's plane arrived at nearby Haneda airport at 8:30 p.m. (8.30 a.m., EDT). The chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff was accompanied by Air Marshal Bohun, state department expert on Russia.

The defence department in Washington said Bradley would "survey all aspects of the situation" with Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme allied commander.

Ridgway personally greeted Bradley. In the truce talk site in an effort to revive the stalled armistice talks.

Peiping radio treated Ridgway's proposal with rough language, it was broadcast that Bradley's plane was winging the last few miles to Tokyo, it seemed in no way of "carrying out orders from Washington to use the changed conference as a means to block the resumption" of truce talks.

The Chinese and north Korean commanders in a two-hour talk yesterday in the Communist sector of Panmunjom rejected Ridgway's suggestion Thursday for getting the armistice parley started again. He wanted the conference site switched from Kaesong, hidden to the Songhyon area in No-Man's Land. The village is six miles southeast of Kaesong.

Observers said this could be Ridgway's last compromise proposal.

Barbara Ann Leaves London For US Rehearsals

By ALAN HARVEY

London, Sept. 28 (CP)—Barbara Ann Scott slept late Britain last night bade Britain a reluctant farewell and headed home to the U.S. and Canada for rehearsals for what probably will be the richest role of her career.

The Canadian skating star left by plane for New York and Chicago. There she will train for her start in Hollywood Ice Revue, sponsored by Arthur Wirtz and Jack Norris, Sept. 16.

Barbara Ann has one remaining European commitment, appearing in Dundee, Scotland, to appear Oct. 19-31 in a show sponsored by British promoter Tom Arnold. Then it's back to North American and the scheduled opening of the new revue at Milwaukee Nov. 7.

"It's been quite a rush," Barbara Ann said in an interview before boarding her plane. "I haven't had a holiday for a year and I don't know when the next one will be." also announced.

Prepared Map Will be Placed On Royal Train

Ottawa, Sept. 28 (CP)—Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh will follow their tour of Canada on the Royal train on specially prepared maps of Canada.

The royal train, 350 feet long, 16 by 36 inches, hand-colored and embellished with the coat of arms of each province on the engine on the No. 1 car of the Royal train.

In it, the Princess and her husband will be able to pick out to red the names and dates of places they will visit on the forward trip. The return route is shown in green, with the dates of departure in miniature airplane silhouettes.

There is a map of the central area of Washington, D.C., showing the White House and other buildings of the United States capital.

Cartographers of the geological survey and division of the federal Department of Technical Surveys have been engaged to draw the maps which fold into book form.

The Royal train itself has been specially fitted out for the occasion.

It will consist of a steam locomotive, two baggage cars and eight other cars to provide sleeping and living quarters.

Built during the Canada trade of 1939, it is not painted a uniform color, but will carry the CPR's red and the CNR's green. There is no special locomotive. It will be hauled by the regular locomotives on the lines and by CPR engines on CPR lines. The Princess and Prince Philip and their staff will occupy the two cars normally used by the Governor-General.

Her Highness' suite consists of a bedroom, dressing room and bathroom. Her bed and dressing rooms are painted shell pink with matching carpets and blending furniture in dust pink. The bathroom is decorated with mauve tile and fixtures.

TRUMAN VOICES SUPPORT FOR SEAWAY PLAN

Solo Effort by Dominion If No United Action

Washington, Sept. 29 (AP) — President Truman said today he would support a proposal of Canada to build the St. Lawrence seaway if the project can not be started soon as joint United States-Canadian development.

Truman's position was made known in a joint statement after a conference at Prime Minister St. Laurent presented Canada's proposal.

The statement said Truman strongly prefers joint action and expressed hope that Congress will soon authorize joint construction of the seaway-power project along the lines of the U.S.-Canadian agreement of 1941.

However, the statement added, Truman will "support Canadian action as a second choice" in the event the Canadian premier's flight plan next week fails to produce agreement on the joint development does not prove possible.

The Canadian premier's flight plan next week is evidence that the Canadian cabinet is about to undertake the huge power and seaway project without further years of fruitless negotiations.

Congress, despite Truman's personal support of the plan as a major defence measure, has stalled building of the huge ditch in co-operation with Canada. The president would have to join the Canadian premier in allowing the International Joint Commission, with jurisdiction over boundary waters, to conduct an inquiry into the seaway.

Truman Favorable

Truman yesterday indicated his support of the project when he told a press conference he would like to see the Niagara hydro power project and the seaway built as complementary.

He said there is good reason for not starting a New York State-Dominion power project on the Niagara River separately.

St. Laurent was accompanied by another seaway enthusiast, American Ambassador Stanley Woodward, when he met with the two cabinet aides. He was to return to Ottawa late today.

He was met at the airport by Maj.-Gen. Harry Vaughan, the president's military aide, Canadian Ambassador Hume Wrong, and others.

Canada Ready

The prime minister indicated on arrival that Canada may be interested in developing the project on its own if the U.S. continues delaying it.

LONG ODDS

Toronto, Sept. 28 (CP) — The Vincent brothers killed in the crash of a scheduled airline plane are 4,000 to 1 for persons who fly 100 hours each year, J. R. Bonbright, secretary of the Travellers Insurance Company, Hartford, Conn., said yesterday.

Nizam Would Rather Have Cash, Selling Fabulous Family Jewels

New Delhi, (Reuters) — The Nizam of Hyderabad is putting his fabulous family jewels on an auction block—he says he'd rather have the cash.

The plans to save only a few treasurers, as family heirlooms and for use on state occasions.

Nearly all the jewels collection goes to the highest bidder. Total value is put at $28,000,000.

The enormous egg-shaped diamond, large as a crystal paperweight, has been given to the Nizam's grandfather in the United States. Mauve Hall, where the jewels and white fixtures are in the bathroom.

There are few men in the world who could pay such a price for a single jewel these days. But unless a buyer is found it may have to be carved up into several lesser diamonds of more marketable value.

The Nizam is understood to have offered $2,000,000 for the Information Scant But Rumors Say Troops On Move

Buenos Aires Mobs Promise To Fight for Peron

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Sept. 28 — (AP) — The official state radio announced today a revolt was staged by two former army generals against the government of Juan D. Peron and was swiftly put down.

The radio, a short time after announcing civil war had broken out in Argentina, said the government quelled the rising headed by former Gen. Arturo Rawson and former Gen. Benjamin Menendez. Rawson was a leader of a 1943 rebellion which placed him in the presidency for just three days.

There was no information available from other sources. The capital has been closed down tightly, with business establishments shuttered.

There were many rumors of troop movements, but these, too, could not be confirmed.

No fighting was observed in the streets of Buenos Aires except for sporadic fist fights. But a large crowd was pouring into the Plaza de Mayo in front of Peron's offices, shouting "La vida por Peron" (Our lives for Peron.)

Supports Peron

The Labor Confederation (C.G.T.) is the backbone of Peron's government.

The broadcast warned that any military men joining in the uprising would be executed. A date of the attempted coup was not given.

However, the statement added, Truman will "support Canadian action as a second choice" in the event the Canadian premier's flight plan next week fails to produce agreement on the joint development does not prove possible.

Nizam Would Rather Have Cash, Selling Fabulous Family Jewels

New Delhi, (Reuters) — The diamond.

The Nizam says he is selling his jewels to form a money trust for his grandchildren.

Although he owns several strongly built modern safes, he has always kept the jewels in three old tin trunks, covered with cobwebs.

Pearls lie jumbled in cardboard shoe-boxes, to be brought out from time to time when a visitor wants a light on their color.

The Nizam himself has always lived in Spartan simplicity, shuffling through his palace halls in slippers and seats, wearing threadbare clothes.

Before the sale the Nizam's jewels will probably take place either in Paris or in Switzerland, where export conditions are most favorable.

The jewels include some of the finest emeralds in India, for green is the Hyderabad Royal Family's religious color.

Now in the vaults of a Bombay bank, they will be put on the market gradually as conditions offer the most favorable prices.

C.N.R. President Made Honorary Member of Tribe

Fort William, Sept. 28 (CP)— Donald Gordon, president of the Canadian National Railways, last night became an honorary member of the Chippewa Ojibway Indian tribe. His Indian name will be Chief Kai-Nou-Gwan, meaning "Many Feathers."

The ceremony took place at the formal opening of a new Indian recreation centre near Fort William's Mt. McKay.

Mr. Gordon said:

"I think it is good for us all. Indians and palefaces alike, to be able to turn the clock back like this — because when a nation forgets its history or allows it to become dim . . . the nation crumbles and dies."

He accepted the chieftainship on behalf of the 113,000 C. N. R. employees.

ORGANIZED OPPOSITION

Brockville, Sept. 28 — (CP) — Organized opposition to the abandonment of the Brockville and Westport branch of the Canadian National Railways has been promised by a combined group of delegates from the municipalities of Leeds county.

Lad is Injured As Bike Collides With Passing Car

Knocked from his bicycle when he collided with an auto which was attempting to pass, Myron Lazenby, 12 yr. old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lazenby, 2nd concession of Ameliasburg township, is in Belleville General Hospital with concussion and lacerations.

The accident occurred late Thursday afternoon, David Carter, a neighbor of the Lazenby family, was driving up the road when he overtook the Lazenby boy riding his bicycle. As Carter was about to pass, the lad suddenly swerved his bicycle to the left colliding with the right front corner of the car and was knocked to the roadway.

In an attempt to miss the boy, Carter swung his car to the left and it went into the ditch and overturned. Mrs. Carter and their two children were in the car but were not injured.

The Lazenby boy was knocked unconscious when he fell to the road and he was carried into a nearby home by Carter. The lad was later taken to hospital by Bush's ambulance.

Carter told police that he was certain the Lazenby boy had seen his car as he had turned around just as the car was about to pass. A strong wind was blowing and it is thought the noise may have blown the boy off balance causing him to swerve into the car.

County Constable Earl Marvin, of Wellington, investigated.

Attended Royalty and Rajahs, Racetracks, The Underworld During Messenger-Boy Career

Many expatriated Britons, especially Londoners are going through periods of nostalgia during the announced royal visit of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh to Canada this month.

London-born Alfred Ogilvy, well-known prosperous dairy man of Picton or Wellington, Ont., was a prominent figure among the other in a reminiscent mood the other day when talking with a reporter.

Ogilvy was a member of the famous London Messenger Boys, an organization that sent its trimly-uniformed members to all parts of the world bearing important messages.

During a lengthy tenure with the Messenger Service, he adopted a chameleon-like role at times. He "shunted" with Scotland Yard; haunted Anarchist dives in thug-festered London; the Duke of Norfolk, Earl Derby and others of the British peerage.

He is no stranger in the famous No. 10 Downing Street, home of British Prime Ministers. He enjoyed a party given to messengers by Lady Foley at Ruxley Lodge and was entertained at Lord Curzon Manners 500-foot sea-going yacht "Little Boy Blue" on an ocean jaunt off Harwich.

Long journeys into the country were the messengers' delight and trusty bikes into unknown places, forced to depend on strangers for police stations for a night's lodging, sleeping at times in police cells.

Special duty saw Ogilvy at the Royal Albert Hall and the Convent Garden opera when members of the Royal Family were in attendance.

One of the outstanding 'calls' in his career sent him from London to Newport, home of the famous rack track. He carried a message too important for telephonic delivery. Absence of train service forced him to ride his bicycle the 64 miles, returning the next morning with an answer to the message.

It was sent by a member of the Royal Family.

Race track duties saw Ogilvy in attendance on such personages as the Duke of Norfolk, Lord Rothschild, who was a generous "tipper", and many others.

On one trip to Buckingham Palace he delivered a message to a lady-in-waiting and was met by Queen Alexandra, who paused for a moment to chat with the messenger boy.

Walled on Rajah

Special duty gave him a personal assignment to the Maharajah of Patialla, an Indian prince of enormous wealth, who was staying with his glittering entourages at the Grosvenor Hotel. Given special credentials, Ogilvy moved at will through the Maharajah's special suite. He became popular with the dusky members of the Indian prince's staff.

The next week found Ogilvy haunting the sinister underworld of London's East End. Here the constable held secret meetings; thugs held furtive conferences. He knew the underworld, but never interfered with.

Again, he trailed international crooks aboard trains from British coast to London, working with Scotland Yard officials.

He has been nominated to seeing Royalty all his life with the exception of course of his years in Canada. He served overseas with the Canadian Infantry during World War 1, and a son Jack, president of the Wellington Branch of the Canadian Legion, served for four years in World War 11.

Now Ogilvy will see Princess Elizabeth, he hopes, when she visits Trenton.

Christian Fellowship Conference To Hold 3-Day Session in City

The third annual Teachers' Christian Fellowship conference is being held in the city this week-end with the week-day sessions being scheduled for today, Saturday and Sunday at Paul's Methodist Church. Registration conference brings to Belleville a number of teachers who feel it worthwhile to discuss their spiritual topics of educational importance to all in the teaching profession.

Mr. Clifford Pitt, president for the Ontario TCF, who is professor of psychology at the Ontario College of Education will be present at the conference. Special speaker for the conference is Reverend Andrew McIlreath of Toronto. Another speaker, Mrs. Eva Rankin, provincial convener of FWTAO will deal with religious education in the schools of Ontario.

Opens Friday Evening

The sessions will open at 8.30 this evening with Mr. McBeath scheduled to address the conference. Saturday's agenda includes an address by Mr. McBeath, presentation of discussion topics with afternoon discussions being led by Mrs. K. Scroggie, Mrs. Eva Rankin and Mr. Ross Leigh. Luncheon and dinner will be at Golden Acres. In the evening a fellowship hour will be held at the Baptist Chapel, Fairway Ave. with films, games and refreshments.

Sunday there will be services at 8 o'clock and at 11 at Paul's Motel in charge of Mr. McBeath; dinner at Golden Acres and a closing message at the motel. The TCF began with the realization of a need of an active Christian fellowship in educational circles and was organized in Canada in 1937. United States teachers organized in 1941 and today there are groups also in England, Australia and in New Zealand.

Affiliated With Schools

The T.C.F. is affiliated with the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship which maintains the Christian testimony in the universities, normal schools and high schools across Canada. Many teachers when in normal school, university or teacher training college found that their connection with the I.V.C.F. developed a positive Christian experience and character that made effective teaching and happy living possible.

Professor M. K. Inman, Ph.D., of Western University, said "At this time when the very foundations of civilization are being threatened I am convinced more than ever before that the answers to our basic problems are to be found in the gospel of Jesus Christ as set forth in God's written word —The Bible. The Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship is concerned with the great task of furthering this gospel among students—leaders in the world tomorrow. I heartily endorse the work of this organization."

All teachers from kindergarten to university, experienced or inexperienced, are welcome as members of the organization.

Wellington Sees Tomato Shower As Truck Upsets

Eight tons of tomatoes en route from Port Hope to Bloomfield for canning came to grief near Wellington Thursday night when the transport blew a tire and turned on its side in the ditch.

The transport, owned by Lee's Cartage of Port Hope, had a full load of tomatoes for the factory. Between Wellington and Bloomfield on Highway No. 33 a front tire blew out. The driver was unable to control the vehicle and it went into the ditch.

Tomatoes were scattered over the highway and ditch. Workmen gathered the spilled tomatoes up with shovels. Provincial Police Constable Fletcher of Picton investigated.

Back Injured In Fall From Telephone Pole

Ernest G. Godin, 37, of 22 Hillcrest Ave., is in Belleville General Hospital with back injuries suffered when he fell climbing spikes gaw way allowing him to drop 35 feet down a pole to the ground.

A lineman with the Ontario Hydro, Mr. Godin was erecting telephone wires on poles on Victoria Ave., when a clamp attachment holding the wires gave way. Godin grabbed for the wire and in doing so his spikes came out of the pole allowing him to slide to the ground. His safety belt remained in place and held him to the pole while he dropped to the ground.

He was taken to hospital where X-rays were taken to determine if there were any bones broken. He is expected to be away from work for some days.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 28 — (CP)-Stock market quiet with severed indecisively today in early afternoon dealings. Early leadership by a few key issues faltered in mid-session.

Activity increased with heavier producing gold and western oils buying. Base metals showed large turnovers in a scattered list and leading industrials traded actively. Volume for the first three hours was 2,183,000 shares.

Steels turned mixed after early rise. Utilities found firm support and showed a majority of gains. Agriculturals, construction, liquors, refining oils, banks, manufacturing companies and retail stores were irregular. Papers and miscellaneous industrials weakened.

BRITISH MAY

The Abadan dispute and other Britons would continue to work at the plant until they leave, as ordered, next week.

Iranian army personnel had orders to seize the property, nationalized by Mossadegh's government, and to prepare to blow it up if British military forces were brought into action.

Meanwhile, London officials have instructed British Ambassador Sir Francis Shepherd in Tehran to report on Mossadegh's reaction to an appeal from President Truman to reverse the order.

Oppose Military Action

Prime Minister Attlee has a personal message from Truman which qualified informants said made it plain the United States is opposed to British military action in the oil-rich country.

Britain has 19 warships in the vicinity, planes in neighboring Iraq, and paratroops within a few hours' flight.

The U. S. State Department announced in Washington yesterday that it "stands ready" to help reach a solution to the explosive problem.

Following a cabinet meeting here yesterday, Attlee conferred with Conservative leader Winston Churchill. It is thought in Conservative circles that any complete British retreat from Abadan would bring an attack from Churchill on Attlee's Labor government. The Tory leader would have an issue for the forthcoming election campaign striking the British voter on a sensitive nerve — the prestige of his country abroad.

All signs are that the government will stick to its pledged policy of holding all or part of Abadan. How this pledge would be maintained was not clear today.

Any hint of a change of mind by Attlee is expected to bring a Churchill demand for a full-dress debate in the House of Commons. The House is scheduled to be dissolved next Thursday prior to new elections Oct. 25.

teaching is practised and have given Sunnybrook the grading "A", which is the highest. The hospital has also been approved by the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada for advanced training in specialties Sunnybrook is not an undergraduate teaching institution as all interns have had one year's previous experience.

"The policy of having veterans hospitals teaching hospitals is one which, was instituted by my predecessors with the full knowledge and approval of the government. This system was instituted on the recommendation of Dr. Warner, the director general of treatment services, who enjoys the highest reputation in the medical profession throughout Canada and in whom I have every confidence.

"It is true that in recent years there have been suicides at Sunnybrook. Suicides, unfortunately, occur in all hospitals. These have all been referred to the coroner, who decided that no inquests were necessary.

"Nevertheless, a departmental investigation in the manner laid down by regulations was carried out in each case and the results were laid before the minister by the deputy minister of the department. In none of them was lack of care on the part of the responsible staff in the hospital or any negligence shown. The incidents, while most regrettable, could not have been foreseen or prevented.

"If the responsible officers of the Ontario provincial command of the Canadian Legion feel that Mr. Padbury's allegations require investigation, we are willing to give them every facility. We feel confident that they will find that nowhere is there a better standard of treatment for veterans than at Sunnybrook Hospital."

News of Trenton

21-Gun Salute To be Fired As Salute to Royal Couple

Trenton (Specia)— A twenty-one gun salute will be fired for their Royal Highnesses and they will be greeted officially by Air Vic Marshal C. R. Slemon, C.B., D.S.O., Air Officer Commanding Training Command when the Princess and Duke visit the Trenton Air Station on the afternoon of October 12.

R.C.A.F. officials state that preparations for the reception of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Phillip are progressing as planned.

Massed brass bands and hundreds of officers and airmen are spending long hours daily on the parade square in front of the main administration building preparing for the "big" day.

Dress swords glitter as the bands perfect the marches selected for the occasion.

A 100-man Guard of Honor with fixed bayonets, consisting Flight Cadets from R.C.A.F. Station, Centralia, rehearse while 800 pilots, officers and airmen practise the march past the Royal dais.

R.C.A.F. authorities state that the focal point of the reception will be a presentation ceremony during which gifts from the Royal Canadian Air Force will be given to the Royal couple.

A 14-car procession will form the entourage from the C.N.R. Junction through Trenton along No. 2 highway to the Memorial Gates at Station Trenton.

Massed Bands Parade

The military parade will be led by the massed bands of Station Trenton, 6 R.D. and Station Camp Borden. The Trenton Ramsay brass band will form on the parade square to escort Their Highnesses to the dais.

The King's Color, formally presented to training command headquarters last June on Air Force day will be carried on parade for the first time. The Queen of Her Royal Highness will be flown above the RCAF color at the station masthead.

Three Vampire jets from auxiliary squadrons in Toronto are expected to appear over the parade square during the ceremony. They will display the Prince of Wales Feathers" an aerobatic manoeuvre which depicts a fleur-de-lys, the leading aircraft performing the upward loop and the two wing aircraft "peeling off" to port and starboard.

Four Sergeants Picked to Drive Their Highnesses

Trenton — (Special) — Four flight sergeants from the Trenton Air Station have been selected to drive the Royal Couple and party during their stay in Trenton on October 12.

On Tuesday they left to attend an army driving school at York armouries in Toronto.

The Royal tour driving team includes Flight Sergeants John Alan Ramsay, 34, of Trenton and Fingal; Jack Edward Alexander, 32, of Trenton; Alexander Ramsay, 32, of 171 Shuter Street, Trenton and formerly of Kitchener and Alan MacInnes of Trenton and Halifax.

Overheated Pipes

Overheated stovepipes at the home of W. Masters on 156 West Street had the fire department's both trucks racing through town and across the highway bridge yesterday. Rescue Launch Will be Used In Royal Tour

Trenton (Special) — An RCAF rescue launch with three mighty proud airmen aboard left for Ottawa yesterday to take part in the Royal tour proceedings in the Capital on October 11.

The 35-foot boat from the marine section is one of the RCAF's specially constructed rescue launches. It will figure in the Royal Highnesses' tour with two smaller RCAF marine craft from the airbase at Rockcliffe. A water trip on the Ottawa river has been planned for the Princess and Duke.

The boat will travel nearly two hundred miles and make use of forty-nine canal locks on its way to the Capital City. The boat is scheduled to arrive at Dow's Lake sometime tomorrow.

The three men, with 'skipper' Flight Sergeant Flikowski of Grimsby, in charge, will expend plenty of elbow grease during their five day trip, keeping the boat in tip top shape. Flight Sergeant Corporal G. G. 'Tommy' Boullion of Rimouski will putter over the craft's two 140-horsepower ma-termined as the cause.

Birch Tree Split

In the high wind yesterday a birch tree eight inches in diameter split at the bottom and swung precariously back and forth threatening to drop on the home of F/L. W. Muir, 48 Laird Ave., Middleton Park.

At first the 6 Repair Depot fire department was summoned but the danger could not be removed until two airmen with a crosscut saw and axes came on the scene. The tall birch was lowered and sawed up in logs by 11.30 p.m. last night and the Muir family rested easier afterwards.

LIGHT FROST GENERAL

Edmonton, Sept. 28 (CP) Light frost was general on the western prairies last night but it wasn't cold enough to bother crops that survived the severe frost of the night before.

It was to be warmer today, with highs of about 50 in Alberta and 45 in western Saskatchewan. There will be no rain, except in northwestern Saskatchewan.

"NO MEAN CITY"

It was fitting that the ten Canadian premiers, as well as scores of other Very Important Persons, attended the opening the other day of the new Bank of Nova Scotia building at King and Bay streets, Toronto.

The building is 25 storeys tall and cost $17,000,000. Although the head office of the bank will remain nominally at Halifax, where it was founded, the towering new Toronto building will house the bank's executive staff. The gleaming-white structure, which looked impressive enough even long before it was completed, is the third largest building in the British Empire.

The advent of such a building should help Canadians everywhere, particularly those who live in Ontario, to realize that their country, financially and economically at least, has come of age and is no longer the faraway colony of a benevolent motherland.

Ontarians in general and Torontonians in particular may take pride in the realization that Ontario's capital is one of the world's great cities. By any standard of measurement except that of mere population figures, Toronto ranks near the top.

Not merely in the size and scope of its financial houses, but in many other ways, Toronto stands away up. Its educational institutions and hospitals, for example, are reputed among the best anywhere. Many of its industries — of which Massey-Harris might be mentioned as a single example — are international in operation and importance.

Many people who have seen not only the major cities of the United States, but most of the important centres of population in the Old World have affirmed that few cities surpass Toronto for handsome streets, palatial homes, beautiful parks and a general air of prosperity and well-being.

It is the custom in some circles, particularly in some of Ontario's smaller communities, to deride Toronto as "Hogtown." The other title, "The Queen City," is not only more pleasing, but more appropriate.

Let those of us who live in the smaller communities of Ontario be proud of our capital city and not a subject of envy, but a symbol of Ontario's greatness and an earnest of her future.

ONTARIO IMPORTS FOOD

According to Hon. Thomas Kennedy, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, Ontario is no longer feeding itself from its own production. For the first time in its history, he says, Ontario is importing food.

Dairy products, Mr. Kennedy points out, present the biggest problem. Ontario once shipped 70,000,000 pounds of cheese annually to Great Britain, but now finds difficulty in filling a 20,000,000 pound contract.

But Mr. Kennedy adds that the reason is not that Ontario's land is becoming less productive. He blames the situation on urban industry's shorter hours and higher wages. These, he says, are draining the young people off the farms.

What Mr. Kennedy says is correct. There are abandoned farms even in the heavily-populated peninsula of southwestern Ontario. In the less heavily-populated parts of the province there are thousands of such abandoned farms, perhaps tens of thousands of them. There is also, in almost every part of the province, land which could be put into cultivation but which never has been.

Thus, there is no danger of Ontario starving to death. Urbanites may think food is for everyone who can, for a very moderate sum of money, acquire far more land than they can cultivate and produce their own food. Millions of people have been doing it for hundreds of generations.

KNIFING UNPOPULAR

A masterpiece of understatement is contained in a booklet issued in London by some 5,000 English gardeners who are considering planning to migrate to such English-speaking countries as Canada.

At one point the booklet says: "Here (in English-speaking countries) people do not fight duels. An Englishman is always ready to settle a quarrel by fighting according to the classical boxing rules. Do not use a knife; you would lose all sympathy."

Besides, the booklet might have added, the police in Anglo-Saxon countries are notoriously narrow-minded about people who use knives to settle arguments.

WALKING CANE LORE

(Toronto Telegram)

The walking stick, or cane, has captured the interest of a Telegram reader, who would like to know when they were first used. In their original form, as staffs, they probably date back to the days when man first walked erect.

The custom of carrying walking sticks, more for effect than use, is known to have been adopted by young Athenian dandies in the days of the Glory of Greece. In Europe, the walking stick is believed to have taken the place of the sword when the wearing of swords was discontinued.

Under Louis XIV (1643-1715) the custom of carrying a stick was introduced to the French court and both men and women began to carry long, slender canes. The women's walking sticks, incidentally, were invariably decorated with love knots and other decorations.

HORSE SENSE

A race horse said: "On me
How foolish men must be
To gamble their careers,
Last all for five long years.

"Upon my final stride,
To wager family pride;
Honor and trust to place
So me 'ma'kin's' can race.

"Since it's the gambler's trade
Of money bets are made,
But some, at cruel cost of life,
Have let their homes, and lost.

"I am a horse, well bred.
But when some men are led
To stake all to bet on me
How foolish they must be."

NEVER GRAY

When Cortez landed on the shores of America with his army, prepared to conquer Mexico, he burned his ships behind him. For he knew that defeat meant death.

To say this is not to commend the bloody campaign and cruel looting carried on by Cortez and his soldiers, but the resolution and courage of the leader cannot be denied. When he had decided upon a course, he stuck to it, and he made no provision for turning back. Another historical character before Cortez, was said to have burned his bridges behind him.

Brave men—whether evil they are pursuing—make no provision for retreat. The same spirit was manifested by Augustine, when, gray, after living a dissolute and immoral life, he decided to become a Christian. This happened many centuries ago, but the effect of his subsequent consecration is visible in every branch of the Christian Church. Augustine read the words, "Put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make no provision for the flesh to fulfill the lusts thereof," obeying that command, Augustine burned his back on the world and for the first time found true happiness and peace of soul. He burned his ships and his bridges behind him.

There can be no halfway measures in the living of a Christian life. We either are Christians or we are not. Morality is either black or white. It can never be gray.

C.P.R. Tram Halted, Cars Damaged In Derailment Near Thessalon

Thessalon, Ont., Sept. 28 (CP) —Wrecking crews Thursday were clearing the wreckage of nineteen freight cars which jack-knifed and piled up at a washout on the Canadian Pacific Railway line four miles east of here late last night.

The men were hampered by flooded fields in which they worked.

Two Sault Ste. Marie residents, Engineer Gordon Porter and Conductor Ira N. Myers, riding in the diesel engine, escaped injury when the line collapsed seconds after the engine had crossed a section of track weakened by the washout which occurred during a storm.

The two men said the diesel crossed safely but the wheels of the engine's rear compartment and the first box car hit the depressed rails and left the track. As they were derailed the coupling between engine and car separated, causing the 18 other cars to pile up within 75 yards of the line.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

THE DRY EYE

That was a near thing the other night at the movies. For a minute there, but in a scene as poignant and as real as any ever filmed, I found myself on the lip of tears. For the first time in many years, I might have wept. Like a fool, I let the chance slip by.

I felt a strange shame that I've allowed my emotions this brief holiday. I glanced guiltily at my wife. In the pale light from the screen I saw that she was crying like a baby. So, too, were the three women farther along the row. They were having the time of their lives.

It was too late for me then. The mood had fled. Once more I had a tight rein on my melancholy, a stiff upper lip and all that sort of rot. But I kind of envied the ladies.

I asked Brown Eyes about it later. "Doesn't it make you feel sort of sad to cry like that?" I said. I didn't understand it. You howl like a dog and come out of the show as if you'd never had a better time."

"I like a good cry when I'm sad," she confessed, as if that is peculiar to the female. "A few tears and I'm all right. It's like a smile. Gets it out of your system."

I thought about this. Makes a whole lot of sense. I remembered some words of wisdom once written by a man named Herbert Hodge, an English writer I admire. He, too, confessed, as I recall it, that when he had the blues he never tried to laugh his way out of them. Instead, he tried to beat them by getting downright miserable.

It was, he explained, like a plumber tackling a sunken ballcock. He'd start by pushing it half-way down a cistern and won't come up again, the plumber explained. He'd pushing it farther down into the water until the increasing pressure below makes it spring back to the top.

I probably have this all wrong but you get the idea, don't you?

As It Was

It will take a closer student of the human race than me to explain why we've got a thing in our make-up that any adult life I have seen only one man cry. It was a terrible moment for me, as I somehow I had invaded his privacy.

This man was a fellow recruit in the army who was physically incapable of marching in step and had an unmerciful tongue-lashing from a bestial sergeant. Well, the poor, unco-ordinated fellow about it.

finally broke down on the parade square, utterly spent, and with the tears coursing down his cheeks. Actually, it did him a lot of good. He got out of the army.

Tears weren't always considered unmanly. Read any book of a century or more ago—read Boswell, for example—and you'll see that the men enjoyed a good little cry now and then, sometimes over nothing more than a letter from home. I have read that the sailors who went out to attack the Spanish Armada, on the eve of battle, expressed their emotions in a basket of tears.

Nowadays, of course, we discourage any kind of public acknowledgment of our inner selves. A man would just as soon be seen in his ballroom-seat underwear as be seen with a hint of moisture in his eyes. I suppose it has to be traced back to our British tradition of chin-up, carry-on Derek. Certainly it isn't Continental. It's not Latin. In those climes, even today, it is customary to act as the spirit may move you, with gestures and, on occasion, gunfire.

It seem chained these days to a code that demands a face of stone turned to the world. Sentiment, it seems soft, an excess of gloom or hilarity is regarded as unhealthy or unmanly. Any compulsion to give expression to an emotion is quickly held under control and it expires. It is all very sad.

Turning Point

Women like to cry occasionally. I'm told that a certain old fraternal my wife cry in a Mickey Rooney show, forcing herself just a little. She says it does her a world of good, like a tonic. And the more I think about it, the more I'm inclined to agree. Even periods of melancholy —probably no more or less than I indulge in seldom are bad for the long, glum ride back into the city on the train, or the hair-raising, long, morose ride down and the tedious are almost gone. My body was nearly covered with the scab patches. My eyes dying thanks. . . I write about my experience now in the hope that it may help others who have psoriasis . . .

In my files are numerous similar reports. Take it or leave it.

Personal Health Talks

IODIN DEFICIENCY AND THE SILVERY SCALE DISEASE

Psoriasis is nearly as common as eczema, in both sexes and all ages. I call it the silvery scale disease because the affected patches of skin are usually covered with white, silvery scales.

The silvery scale disease is not contagious. It is not at all dangerous to health or life. It is just an annoyance to the victim. Oh, well, call it a curse if you prefer. But, after all, it could be a lot——all right, all right, I remember how I felt when I took a dive off the porch and broke my arm and my head and split the scalp over one eye—I was lucky, they told me, that I didn't bash my alleged brains . . .maybe I did. If so I'd be the last to mean everybody but I would notice something is missing. I come to think of it, no one has called me a nut lately, perhaps because it is now unsupervisory. At least, I still feel happy and look upon the rest of the world with compassion or tolerance, as circumstance. Now who's crazy?

In the chapter on psoriasis in Save Your Skin (for this booklet send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope) I have discussed every known cause as casually as possible that the condition presents remissions and relapses without apparent reason. This makes it difficult to gauge the value of diet or treatment.

One remedy I do not mention in the booklet may have great healing value or none at all. I don't know. I leave it to readers who have tried it to testify. All I can say is that to my mind it can do no harm and, I believe, in many cases it may do much good in general, whether the psoriasis responds or not.

One reader, Jessie, writes:

Two or three years ago one of your followers reported that he had taken seaweed or kelp tablets for about a year and how much it had helped his condition. I began taking it, have taken it over a year now, and my lesions are almost gone. My body was nearly covered with the scab patches. My eyes dying thanks. . . I write about my experience now in the hope that it may help others who have psoriasis . . .

Answer—by writing on a postal card you saved two cents. If I pay the freight on an answer you will have saved a nickel. But, darn it, I'm too generous to co-operate. You'll have to plunge —send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask for the pamphlet Wheat to Eat, which gives names of makers of hand and power mills.

It's your skin. On written request accompanied with a stamped, self-addressed envelope I will send directions for making The Iodin Ration—which, in my opinion, is good for every one and cannot do anybody any harm.

Incidentally, people who take mineral oil, liquid petrolatum, in the belief that it is an "internal lubricant" and that it is harmless should know that it depletes the system of fat-soluble vitamins A and D and interferes with assimilatio nof minerals and other sustanc indict it as a contributing cause of psoriasis.

TODAY'S TALK

SEPTEMBER'S LEAVES

Nature is always celebrating. In the Springtime there are the buds and blooms, life coming to the carpet of the earth, and the appearance and changing of the birds and the leafing of trees, shrubs and flowers. It is the birth time of the year, with newness all around.

Then it is that Summer's warmth and maturity are at their height, and all nature is at the playground of every one of us. Recreation and the enjoyment of the gifts of nature are ours and we can select what we will. The glorious sunshine is with us always and we are renewed for the Autumn and Winter days ahead.

Then days of September and October, however, we must look for color and the full celebration of the year. It is then that September leaves begin to turn, begin to fall gently to the earth, there to be melted into the soil to nourish future leaves and growth. Hence, nature keeps changing, losing nothing. Outside my window the dogwood and maples are already trying on their Autumn gowns, and exquisite in color they are! Trees have enriched the thought of the ages, bringing blessed the birds that built within their shade and the children who found happiness to both beast and man. The very stir of the falling leaves in the Autumn is the stirred whispered notes of eternity into our listening ears.

The poet spoke of the Autumn days as the melancholy days, "the saddest of the year," but to me they seem the most glorious, for they are the full of fruition and achievement.

How universal are these months of September and October — brightening the earth and fruitfulness that should be of appreciation for. "what God hath wrought." How strange if we never had these months to give us cheer and hope. How thankful we should feel for this bounty! How they scatter their peacefulness, and their very stir is evidence of a living abundant joy. They are the festival months of the entire year — harbingers of happiness.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

What we call shrimps, the English call prawns. A shrimp is small and pretty. A prawn is a diminutive little pink thing no larger than a bean. You could put a dozen of them on a teaspoon.

Prawns—the larger article—are served in their skins or shells. One dozen of them are being a pretty cute trick around the edge of a deep saucer, with their legs, feelers and tails projecting like a fringe in all directions. You eat 'em in the good old fashioned way. You seize them one by one in your fingers, peel them, dip them in any sauce that fancy, although most Englishmen eat them au natural, and pop the little darlings in your mouth. You are not as big as the shrimps we get in our shrimp salad; not so pretty. They have a flavor almost identical with ours. And the dozen of them, served in this entirely informal and personal style, costs about a shilling. As you sit at an oyster bar-eating them, you are served with vinegar and salt as all who preceded you this day. Instead of eating them shrimps, you might say, chiefly in the way they are presented to you.

Shrimps are boiled, but not such shrimps, are never served in the raw. Immediately after they are shelled and boiled, they are dropped into a pot of fresh butter, and as immediately fished out again. These are called 'potted shrimps.' You get a good big spoonful of them, more than a serving of grapenuts. And their flavor is to the flavor of them as a cold shrimp what the perfume of a rose is to the perfume of an orange.

Sausage-Mill Treatment Given Sunnybrook Hospital Veterans, St. Catharines Legion Told

St. Catharines, Sept. 28. (CP)—Arthur Padbury, provincial service bureau chairman of the Canadian Legion, charged at a Legion meeting here last night that Toronto's Sunnybrook Veterans Hospital provides treatment "of the sausage-mill variety".

At a joint meeting of Thorold, Welland, Port Colborne and St. Catharines Canadian Legion members, Mr. Padbury claimed that an "unprecedented number of suicides" had occurred at Sunnybrook in the last 18 months—with no investigation ordered—and that the hospital was little better than a "school for Toronto University medical students".

Sunnybrook Hospital authorities said a statement replying to Mr. Padbury's charges would be issued today.

Dr. H. H. McMillan, Liberal member of parliament for Welland, one of two M.P.'s at the joint meeting attended by more than 250 Legionnaires, said he would investigate the charges.

Saying that in view of the weight of evidence placed before him he would do so, Bruce chairman he was convinced that there no longer was need for the hospital at Sunnybrook as individual treatment of patients, Mr. Padbury asserted:

"It is of the sausage-mill variety . . . something is shoved in at one end and how it comes out at the other—God only knows.

"I used to be said that veterans were entitled to be treated as private patients in a civilian institution . . . and it used to be so. But in Sunnybrook and, I am led to believe in Westminster (in London, Ont.), treatment is being meted out to patients with less regard than it would be to patients in the public wards of civilian hospitals."

Of his charge that suicides had occurred without investigation, Mr. Padbury said an inquiry was made because of orders issued by Dr. W. P. Warner, director-general of medical services. He added:

"I understand that little over a week ago this condition of suicides became so bad that it was demanded by some of the senior staff that a special board of inquiry be set up under the chairmanship of Dr. Arthur Jones.

Mr. Padbury termed veterans being treated at Sunnybrook "guinea pigs for the teaching of medical science."

In Ottawa, Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, deputy minister of the department of veterans affairs, termed Mr. Padbury's charges "most astonishing because we take great pains in our treatment of patients."

Gen. Burns said there had been "a number" of suicides in Sunnybrook Hospital. Each had been investigated and each referred to the local coroner, who decided no further action was necessary. He said hospital had disclosed no "common reason for this". The cases usually were those of elderly veterans who had become dependent.

Of the charges in general, Gen. Burns said that if the executive of the Canadian Legion could produce evidence to support them "we will be glad to tell them everything they want to know."

BANCROFT

24 Cases Tried, $384 Collected In Police Court

Bancroft— A record was established in the semi-monthly court in Bancroft on Wednesday afternoon when 24 cases were tried. Magistrate J. R. Garvin and Assistant County Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson, K.C., had a busy and a fairly noisy time as a department of public works well driller was pounding away beside the court room during the session. The machine had arrived early that morning and the well had to be drilled when the equipment was available.

$384 was the gross amount in fines and costs collected during the afternoon. All cases were those of the local provincial police detachment who had the large total due to the fact that it was three weeks since the previous court as the detachment was required for regular duty to handle the yards at Coe Hill Fair on the 19th.

With one or two exceptions all cases were breaches of the Highway Traffic and Liquor Control Acts.

William Williamson of Maynooth and Ernest Barage of Oshawa paid the highest fines—$50 and costs for driving while their ability to drive was impaired by alcohol.

Double Charge Laid

A double charge of failure to remain at the scene of an accident and failure to report the change of address cost Elmer Dobbleman of Whitby a total of $35 and costs.

$20 and costs was the amount paid by James R. Leeson of Peterborough for careless driving.

Four people paid fines of fifteen dollars and costs; Donald Freeburn of Flinton for having liquor in a place other than a private residence, Joseph Dion of Tweed for the same offence, Milton Spence of Bancroft for being intoxicated in a public place and Murray Kehusky of Bancroft for speeding.

Included in the ten and costs list were Stanley Peever of Bancroft for careless driving, Lawrence Quinlan, of Coe Hill for being intoxicated in a public place, Rene Seaborn of Coe Hill for failing to give half the road, Wilmo Arbuthot of Bancroft for causing a disturbance in a public place, Alexandra of Whitney for being intoxicated in a public place,Telesphore Letour of Tweed for failure to report an accident and Howard Farrell of Bancroft for not having a driver's licence.

John Ross Tait of L'Amable paid $5 and costs for failing to stop before entering a through highway and four cases were adjourned until October 24th.

Coroner's Jury Finds Man Guilty In Woman's Death

Timiskaming, Que., Sept. 28—(CP)—Gerald Ryan, 22, was charged with murder last night after a coroner's jury declared him criminally responsible for the strangling early Sept. 19 of his pretty bride of two months.

Constable Oliver Daly said he found Mrs. Ryan lying dead in the bathroom, partly covered with the satin-and-lace wedding gown she had worn for her wedding to Ryan July 16. He quoted Ryan, a construction company cook, as saying:

"I choked her."

A Texas crowd of 250 persons that packed the small community building here heard Leslie Kirgan, a cook in the Crawley-McCracken cafeteria where the Ryans worked, and Constable Oliver Daly tell of the admission of the slaying.

Kirgan, second cook at the cafeteria, said he and Ryan were sitting in the main floor dining room of the cafeteria shooting a game of the next day's meals. That was about 9 o'clock the night of the slaying.

Ryan left to go upstairs, presumably to the apartment he and his wife occupied on the second floor. Kirgan said Ryan returned about 20 minutes later and said: "I'm leaving tonight Les."

Asked why, he added: "I've killed Rose."

"I told him he was crazy," Kirgan related at the hearing, "but he said again he had killed Rose."

Apartment Locked

Kirgan said he went upstairs but couldn't get into the locked apartment.

Constable Daly was sitting in the Temiskaming office when the phone rang. He said a voice which he recognized as Ryan's asked him to come to the cafeteria.

When he arrived there Daly asked Ryan: "What's the matter Gerry?"

He said Ryan answered: "I've killed my wife. I choked her. She's up in the room."

Daly said he asked Ryan to come upstairs, but Ryan said he didn't want to go.

Kirgan and Daly found the keys to the apartment shoved under another door across the hall. When they went into the apartment both of them first entered the bedroom. They said it was in "a mess," bedclothes were twisted all over the bed and the floor.

Body in Bathroom

In the bathroom they found Mrs. Ryan's body lying on the floor face up. Part of the body was covered by a white satin and lace wedding dress, some of the folds clutched in the dead woman's hands.

Then Daly took Ryan to jail and called a doctor.

Dr. F. W. Scott said he noticed several blue marks on the woman's neck. He told Coroner W. N. Irwin they could have been caused by strangling.

Peter Anthony, manager of the Crawley - McCracken cafeteria, said the Ryans had lived in the apartment above the cafeteria since their marriage July 16.

Truman Orders Memo Withdrawn

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP) — President Truman last night killed an office of price stabilization memo to its staff to withhold from the public any information which might embarrass it.

He moved just two hours and nine minutes after word of the directive leaked out. But even that was not soon enough to head off a storm of Senate protest over the O.P.S. action.

Joseph Short, White House press secretary, announced that Truman had ordered the memo withdrawn because it "might be misconstrued" as an outgrowth of Truman's order setting up curbs on the release of material affecting national security.

The controversial memo was issued Tuesday, the same day the President issued his order.

Mushroom Strikes Threaten Industry In N. J. Plants

Newark, N.J., Sept. 28 (AP) — Mushrooming strikes in key New Jersey defence plants spread today from the aircraft to the rubber industry and threatened oil production.

Well over $1,000,000,000 in defence production was halted by walkouts affecting more than 16,000 workers.

While federal mediators moved into the walkout of 10,000 Wright Aeronautical workers in Woodridge and Carfield, some 3,000 United Rubber Workers (CIO) shut down the U.S. rubber company plant in Passaic at midnight.

State officials moved to avert a stoppage of 2,200 workers at the Bayonne Refinery of Esso Standard Oil Co., in mediation sessions here. They also scheduled conferences to try to settle a wage dispute that has made idle 1,100 workers at four plants of the Whippany Paper Board Co. for 59 days.

Picket lines were thrown around the Passaic rubber plant after four-month-long negotiations broke down over a union incentive system and seniority provisions.

Almost $1,000,000,000 in defence production is involved in the strike of the United Auto Workers (CIO) at the Wright plants. Another 4,000 construction and office employees are honoring the picket lines. The CIO is asking a 15-cent hourly wage hike. The company is offering three to nine cents.

ports reaching Washington recently, they said, showed there had been since popular discontent over inflation, shortages of meat and other food items, and a general economic pinch.)

(Reuters News Agency quoted Jose Espejo, secretary general of the general confederation of labor, as saying in his appeal to the workers for an immediate general strike:

("Traitors have risen against you and against the legally constituted authorities of the nation.

("Protest with the utmost urgency against this absurd attempt to overarrow the rule of law. Every worker now is a soldier of law and order. The hour has arrived for the final showdown.

("Nothing can be permitted to go against the will of the people who will defend their cause with their lives if need be.")

Only yesterday, Peron announced that the army would police the forthcoming national elections in which he has been named a candidate to succeed himself.

There have been rumors for some time that an army coup was in the making against Peron, who himself became the strong man of Argentina on the coat-tail of a coup.

Era Opposed

Last month the executive council of the government-controlled Confederation of Labor urged Peron to stand as presidential candidate, with his wife Eva Duarte Peron, as vice-presidential candidate.

Where apparently was army opposition to Mrs. Peron. A series of rumblings arose against what was called Eva's "petticoat dictatorship." She later turned down the invitation to run for vice-president, in a tearful withdrawal.

The Argentine elections are scheduled Nov. 11.

Peron first came to power in 1943 after an army coup overthrew the government of President Ramon S. Castillo. Peron, as the power behind the scenes, placed Gen. Pedro P. Ramiez in power, but soon replaced him with Gen. Edelmiro Farrell.

Peron himself took over the posts of secretary of labor and security. In 1944 he emerged as minister of war and then vice-president. Like many other South American strongmen, he built his strength around the labor party, having won military support.

In 1945 Peron was jailed briefly and then released. He campaigned for the presidential election and won it in 1946. Eva or Evita (Lady Eva) as she preferred to be called, then entered politics in a big way, helping to rally the workers and the poor to Peron's colors with broad promises of better days to come.

Married Secretly

Peron and Eva had been married secretly in a civil ceremony outside Buenos Aires in 1945. Peron then was 50, and Evita was 26.

The Perons bought and controlled newspapers. Peron's government put the largest independent daily, La Prensa, out of business, and exercised control over others through government monopoly of newsprint.

Peron jailed politicians who opposed him, charging them with disrespect of the president.

The army, however, appeared to have been unhappy over the "petticoat rule" of Evita, In February, 1947, army leaders were reported to have approached Peron with appeals to ease his politically ambitious wife out of public life.

Peron is understood to have threatened to resign if the army brought further pressure to bear on the touchy point of Evita.

WEDDINGS

TURNER—REPPARD

Christ Church, Belleville, was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding on Monday evening, September 17, at 7:30, when the Rev. Canon J. R. Creeggan, rector of the church, united in marriage Fay Lorraine Reppard, daughter of Mr. W. Reppard, 370 Bleecker Avenue, Belleville, and the late Mrs. Reppard, to Ernest Charles Turner, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Turner, of Harrow, Middlesex, England.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was charming in a grey, gabardine suit with pink and grey accessories and corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Jack Reppard, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor, becomingly attired in a brown gabardine suit with dark green accessories and corsage of bronze roses and mums.

Mr. Jack Reppard, brother of the bride, attended the bridegroom.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Golden Acres Inn, Kingston Road where Mrs. Fred Saunders, friend of the bride, received the guests, wearing a becoming black and white sheer with black velvet accessories.

The bride's table was lovely, centred with a four-tier bridal cake, in a fluff of pink tulle, flanked by tall, white candles and pink and white gladioli blooms; while the bride and white streamer centred by white wedding bells blended together in making a delightful and long-to-be-remembered picture, arranged by Mrs. Rosetti and the staff of Golden Acres.

The toast to the bride was proposed by the Rev. Canon J. R. Creeggan, to which the bridegroom suitably replied. One of the highlights was the receipt of a cablegram from the bridegroom's relatives, in England, wishing him and his bride every happiness.

During the evening, Mr. Ed. Brown rendered several fine solos including "I Love You Truly", "Ave Maria" and "Galway Bay", accompanied by Mrs. Grace Calvert, at the piano. Community singing was also much enjoyed, led by Mr. Creeggan, Dr. J. R. Scott and Mr. Frank Follwell, M.P.

Following the reception, the happy couple left for Toronto, Barrie, North Bay and New York City.

The bride's gift to her bridegroom was a diamond set signet ring, and the matron of honor, a black and gold sterling, and the bridegroom's gift to his bride was a matching rhinestone set, and to his groomsman, engraved cuff links and billfold.

MEAGHER—BELL

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, was the scene of a very lovely autumn wedding on Saturday, September 8, at 10 a.m., when Doreen Edith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Bell, Cobden, Ontario, became the bride of Allan Joseph, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan G. Meagher, Belleville. Rev. Father G. O'Hearn, Stirling, officiated. Acolytes were, Messrs. Bernard Macaro and Thomas Cushing, both of Belleville.

The bride, given by Forhan, soloist, sang during the Nuptial Mass, "Ave Maria", and "On This Day O Beautiful Mother". Mrs. Dean Whalen at the organ console, rendered the "Rosary" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her oldest brother, Mr. Alexander Bell, the bride was radiant in her floor-length gown of white Brussels lace over satin, long sleeves ending in lily points over the wrists; a necklace with Queen Anne collar. The full skirt fell gracefully into a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of tulle was held in place by a stand-up lace band and carried a bouquet with a small satin bow and a spray of lily-of-the-valley. She carried a bouquet of white gladioli and pink roses.

The bride's lovely attendant, Miss Catherine Meagher, sister of the bridegroom, wore a strapless gown with matching bolero of powder blue nylon net over taffeta. Her headdress was a ruffled band of powder blue net over taffeta with matching rosette on the side. Her gloves were matching powder blue net and she carried a basket of pink and rose gladioli.

Mr. Douglas Jones, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom and the ushers were, Mr. Bernard Meagher, brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. Donald Hache, Belleville.

At the wedding reception which was held at the Golden Acres Inn, the bride's sister, Mrs. E. S. Francis, received wearing a fawn suit with navy accessories and a corsage of yellow roses and 'mums. The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a teal blue crepe gown with toast accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

For their honeymoon trip to points in Western Ontario and the United States, the bride donned a navy blue suit with navy and white accessories and a corsage of white 'mums and stephanotis. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Meagher will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were from Brockville, Forresters Falls and Plainfield.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was the honored guest of two miscellaneous showers at the homes of Mrs. Clarence Culkin, Coleman Street, and Miss Catherine Meagher, Octavia Street. A presentation was made to the bride at a luncheon held by the collection department of the Income Tax Office, where the bride was formerly employed. The staff of the Belleville Income Tax Association presented the bride with a butter dish and an electric kettle.

'Around the Bend' Discussed By Women's Guild

A book review of "Around the Bend" by Neville Shute formed the program of the September meeting of the Women's Guild on Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Hazel Thompson, Bridge St. E.

An outline of the main events and characters was given by Miss J. Tickell, interspersed and followed by comments and discussion by many of the members who had recently been reading the book.

Study—Integrity

Some of the points brought out were that all forms of religion become debased and need refreshing, that sincerity in every religion leads to integrity in one's craft, that men of different races may have the same infinitely fine perception of right and wrong, that sometimes one has to go "around the bend" to see the way of the road clearly.

Grace Matthews was conducted by the vice-president, Mrs. William Hurst, and Mrs. F. B. Ashley led in a suitable worship period.

A social cup of tea at the close provided opportunity for further informal discussion of this unusual and worthwhile book.

Women's Activities

ST. PAUL'S W.A.

The September meeting of St. Paul's W.A., Stirling, was held at the home of Mrs. P. Utman with Mrs. Ed. Warren presiding.

Two dozen tea towels were purchased for the kitchen. It was decided to have the usual fowl anniversary supper which will be October 24, Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Volney Richardson presided for the devotional period. Mrs. C. Tucker read the Scripture and Mrs. J. R. Thompson offered prayer. Mrs. Roy Bush was the speaker giving an interesting and effective talk on "Loneliness". Loneliness—Causes

Mrs. Bush brought home to the listeners the many causes for loneliness: lack of friends, misfortune, sickness, lack of relatives and cares and the curses such as being unselfish and thinking of many others in worse circumstances than ourselves, not demanding the time of others, giving more of our own time, cheerfulness, preparing for adversity which comes to all at some time, reading poetry, and having a trust and faith in God who is able to give peace and tranquility.

This talk was interspersed by two solos by Mrs. J. Black and Miss Erma Campbell.

The October meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. William Cornett.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The September meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S., Stirling, was held at the home of Mrs. R. B. Johnson, with a splendid attendance. The president, Mrs. L. Rodgers, presided over the meeting.

As an introduction to the meeting she reminded the members that in times of discouragement they should remember the truth of the words, "I am the Light of the World". That should be the torch and the very of light that should guide the life. One should let that light shine through his or her life. Mrs. W. H. V. Walker read the Scripture lesson from Luke 15 1-7. Rev. Mr. Walker led the meeting in prayer.

Mrs. R. H. Williams spoke for the "Call of Christ", telling that every home should have this magazine.

Mrs. James Johnson spoke on behalf of the home. She expressed great pleasure at the splendid interest in the work. Mrs. R. A. Hermiston read a short poem; Miss Heather Rodgers sang a solo, "He my Jesus' Little Lassie". Miss Gena Spry gave a reading entitled "The Modern Home". Minister of Home

Mrs. Eva McGee gave the topic "Women of the Hymns" vs a hymn is a song of praise or thanksgiving. Hymns have done more than anything else to bring comfort and joy to the hearts of people in sickness and sorrow, in doubt, danger, and trouble. Many lives have been saved in time of peril when those brave souls have raised a voice to sing a sweet simple hymn. The others have listened to the appeal and have been comforted. They have gained confidence and have been prevented from rushing into panic in which they might all have perished.

Mrs. R. A. Hermiston, assisted the hostesses in serving refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Mrs. Don Fargey expressed the thanks of the members and visitors to Mrs. R. Johnson and to Mrs. James Johnson for this profitable meeting.

ST. ANDREW'S W.G.

The September meeting of St. Andrew's Women's Guild was held on Tuesday evening. Mrs. H. Elvidge opened the meeting with a devotional period during which Mrs. W. Manner read a passage of scripture. Following this, the regular items of business were duly dealt with.

Mrs. P. Tounsley's group had charge of the program when Miss Kathleen McCullough contributed a group of piano selections which were greatly enjoyed.

On behalf of the guild, Mrs. D. L. Fleming extended thanks to Miss McCullough.

A social half-hour followed when Mrs. J. Reibsin's group served refreshments.

BRIDGE STREET Y.P.U.

On Monday evening, the Bridge Street Young People met for their second meeting of the fall term.

The meeting opened with recreation led by Loretta McDougall, followed by a short business period. During the business period, plans were made for the young people to attend the South Hastings District Play Party in Stirling on Tuesday night.

The guest speaker for the evening, Miss Norma Arkles, was introduced by Felicity Bennett. Miss Arkles gave some of the highlights of her trip to Washington, West Virginia and her time spent at Keni University.

Marjorie Telford thanked Miss Arkles on behalf of the young people, for her interesting talk.

Swiss Woman Hunter Shoots Big Game But Can't Bait Hook

Calgary (CP)—Helene Nabholz of Switzerland handles a big game rifle with relish—but admits she's a bit squeamish about baiting a fish hook.

"Killing animals doesn't bother me in the least but I just can't put a worm on a hook. It makes me shudder," she confessed Friday.

Miss Nabholz is here waiting for dry weather so she can search for big game on the B.C.-Alberta border.

She is a veteran hunter—though she'll never be a fisherman—and speaks with brisk authority about hunting methods, game and firearms. She was taught to hunt by her father when a child and has been at it all her life.

The Swiss-born hunter came to Canada after a friend showed her pictures and told glowing reports of a trip two years ago.

When she's not hunting, Miss Nabholz is an equally efficient business-woman. She manages the family firm—Nabholz Knitting Mill—and lives at Schoonerd, mid-way between Zurich and Berne.

Versatile Miss Nabholz is also a linguist. She's equally at home in English, French, or German.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She's his fifth wife, and unhappy

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been married to my second husband for five years. My husband is 62, and I am 46.

He comes from a large family, and like three sisters living in the same town with us. These three women are death on their in-laws, and they seem to lie awake nights figuring how they can cause trouble. With all the trouble they make, they still come first with my husband, and he believes whatever they tell him. They are fussy drinkers, and he goes scrap for weeks at a time with them, spending all our money on drinking. Then they send him back to me, broke, sick and disgusting. I think they just don't want to see him get sober, and they themselves are unhappy in their marriages.

He has been married three times and at his age and because of his sisters' influence, I am afraid I will not make a home with him.

G.

Dear G.:

I am very much afraid you are right. There certainly doesn't seem to be very much left for satisfaction you describe to offer great hope that your husband will straighten out.

Why in the world would you marry such a man who had already had four wives? That in itself should have warned you that association was wrong somewhere.

If I were in your place, I think the next time he goes off on a drunken bout I would definitely pick up and leave for an undisclosed destination, get myself a job, and plan my own life as I pleased. If your husband made sufficient effort to locate you, and gave any evidence in which you could have confidence that he would mend his ways, you might consider trying life with him once more. But you had better have him demonstrate a reform beyond any doubt before doing so.

Try correspondence for keeping up this friendship alive

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17 and have gone out five times with a girl my own age, and find myself growing very fond of her. Being rather shy though I find it hard to let her know how much I like her, thought I think she is fond of me, too.

Now she has left for a city about a thousand miles from where I live, and it may be a year or more before I'll see her again. What I want to know is how can I keep this friendship very much alive? Should I write her of my feeling for her, or live on the assumption that she understands how I feel, or should I forget her, which I don't do.

P.

Dear P.:

By all means, write this girl that you enjoyed her companionship very much, that you are going to miss her ,and that you hope the two of you can keep up your friendship by correspondence until you have a chance to take it up again in person. This should make her understand that you are very much interested in her without your going overboard about it, which would be silly.

If you keep up a nice friendly correspondence, perhaps your interest in each other will grow, and you'll look forward to seeing each other in the future. I wish you, though, that the chances are the correspondence will peter out eventually, as you both get more interested in someone closer at hand whom you see more often. But don't worry about that at this point, because if things should work out that way, it likely won't mind much, whatever you may think now.

MARIO

about FOOD . . . in his distinctive feature

What's Cooking?

Not many people remember the pear race of 1850.

This was a competition among wealthy Frenchmen to see who could raise the best type of pear. The landed gentry were as excited about their pears as horse owners are nowadays at the Kentucky Derby. Many of the names of pears such as d'Anjou, Du Comice and Bosc were their originto the French pear derby.

Although pear pie is not frequently found on menus, the fruit makes an excellent pie filling. Sweet and mellow rather than tart, pear pie is especially good when covered with a light cream cheese topping. California Bartlett pears are still plentiful and not too expensive.

Pears are placed on a single crust pie in today's recipe. If the heat of the oven seems to be cooking the pears too rapidly while the bottom of the crust needs browning, a pie plate may be inverted over the pear pie until the baking is completed. Be sure the pie is completely cool when the cream topping is put on, or the cream topping will melt. Store any unused pie in the refrigerator.

Pear Pie, Cream Topping

Bake unbaked pie shell

1 quart sliced Bartlett pears

2-3 cup sugar

3 tablespoons flour

1-2 teaspoon salt

1-8 teaspoon ginger

1-8 teaspoon nutmeg

3 ounce package cream cheese

1-2 cup heavy cream

1-2 teaspoon vanilla

1 tablespoon sugar

Prepare the pie dough for a one crust pie. Fit the dough into the pie plate and flute the edges.

Peel and cut enough firm fresh Bartlett pears into slices to make 1 quart. Slices should be 1-2 inch thick. Remove cores and seeds.

In a mixing bowl combine the pears, 2-3 cup sugar, flour, salt, ginger and nutmeg. Mix well.

Turn the mixture into the unbaked pie shell. Bake at 425 degrees, 40 to 50 minutes. Remove from the fire.

Chill the pie thoroughly.

Beat the cream cheese until light and fluffy.

Beat the heavy cream until thick. Combine the cream cheese, whipped cream, vanilla and 1 tablespoon sugar. Blend well. Spread the cream cheese mixture over the pears.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECHMAN

Her problem: the wedding reception where guests are expected to "contribute" to the large expenses!

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My problem concerns the money gifts given to a bridal couple at the wedding reception. My family and I have different opinions about this. My family maintains that the amount of the gift given at the reception should be influenced by the type of reception given and also by the financial status of the families involved. That is, they say that when the wedding reception is to be an elaborate, expensive hotel affair, with dinner and entertainment, the guests are expected to "defray their expenses" by giving a larger money gift. But, on the other hand, if the reception is a simple "house affair" with light refreshments served, it is not necessary for the guest to give a large money gift.

I personally feel that one should give a wedding present according to one's means, and also according to how much you like the persons involved with the plans. After all, if the bride's or the groom's family, as the case may be, through their own choosing and pleasure, decide to have a big, elaborate, expensive wedding reception, should the guests be expected to pay for it; or even to contribute toward it? I feel very strongly that if people wish to plan such a reception, wish to give the impression that they can afford it, they should pay for it, and not count on what the guests will "contribute".

For example, recently my husband and I were guests at a hotel wedding reception of a distant cousin of mine. It was a very splashy affair with all the trimmings. I happen to know that the cost per person at this reception equalled the amount of our gift. Does this mean that we were just paying for our two dinners and our part of the entertainment, and not really giving the bride and groom a wedding present? Since we gave all we could afford to give, should we have regretted the invitation to the wedding reception and just sent a wedding present to the couple? We would all appreciate your point of view on this subject.—A.D.

You yourself perfectly express the correct point of view when you say "I feel that if people wish to plan a big, elaborate, expensive wedding reception, with

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Care of the complexion

Every young girl possesses immense beauty possibilities, and every woman can, by assiduous cultivation, improve her appearances if she will make the right kind of effort. She must not depend upon cosmetics alone to create a lovely complexion. They have their place, and may create a certain uplift, but, first of all, there must be a healthy skin. A woman who has a skin of fine texture and brilliant coloring usually has a better circulatory system, more energy and sounder nerves than the pallid, colorless woman. The facial coat reflects, to a large degree, the condition of the body; hence the first point is strict obedience to the laws of health.

One should have outdoor exercise, have the capacity for breathing deeply. The action of the air in the lungs is what brings the carnation bloom to the cheeks. Shallow breathers are always pale, as are those lazy souls who shuffle through life with the least possible muscular effort.

The daily bath contributes its part. A rousing scouring of the entire body surface with a scrubbed brush helps the skin to function as an organ of elimination. Diet must be considered. One that is rich in fats will excite the sebaceous glands to action on oiliness that keeps the powder pad on the job. More fruits and vegetables, less butter and cream, will often solve the problem of the girl with the beaming nose.

As for local attentions, you'll probably find one's best cosmetic friend. Atmospheric dust is a menace, and certain percentage lands on human faces. It is the direct cause of blackheads, which either turn into pustules, which the soap should be bland, and it should lather freely.

When washing your face, have the water just warm enough so that it will form a good suds. Then remove the soap, then dash on cold water to bring coloring.

Practically everyone needs two jars of cream, a light cleansing emollient to remove make-up before the face washing, a heavier one to use at bedtime. The skin thrives on oils. They keep the skin surface smooth, retard the natural desquamation or shedding of scales that goes on all the time. The friction necessary for their application gives a certain amount of exercise to the underlying fibres. They weatherproof the cutaneous fabric against the ravages of strong sunlight and harsh winds. Use them freely, no matter what type of skin you have.

Fashion Flashes

TELLING THE STORY of the new cloth coat is the surface, with shaggy fabrics such as poodle cloth and sibeline to the force. Scarlet poodle cloth makes a dramatic cape coat, the belted coat looking smart on it own when the attractive cape is detached, but doubly smart when worn with the cape.

CHOICE ACCESSORIES will play a big part in fall fashions. A rose-pink velvet rose is dramatized by green velvet ferns and leaves—the whole thing tied together with narrow green velvet ribbon.

THE COLUMN or sheath silhouette seems to be holding its own despite all the emphasis on the shape—especially for women of abundant proportions. A very smart sheath is of black crepe, covered from scooped-out neckline to slim hem with clipped fringe. Plain black crepe belt has a square buckle of rhinestones. Good afternoon dress!

HANDSOME town suits of tweed are here for autumn. Striped tweed —in muted tones of brown, rust and tan—makes for a charming suit, the jacket used horizontally on the jacket; vertically on the slim skirt. Jacket has slightly tapered double-breasted closing and wide, hip-rounding cuffs on the sleeves, notched revers below a narrow collar.

IT'S EASY to don, easy to wear and figure-flattering, which is why the coat-dress is so important from early morn to dark. Black ottoman is used for a coachman-cut dress with full skirt. Rows of stitching decorate the deep hipline pockets. Decorative horse-shoe collar has a velvet bow, held by a rhinestone ornament, above the double-breasted bodice. Velvet bow and buttons are in beige.

UNADORNED furs are getting more rare each season, now that the trimmed fur, either with contrast fur or fabric, is so well liked. Black Alaska seal makes a full, sweeping coat with low armhole to give a caper look and width. The full, loose sleeves are cuffed to above the elbow in velvet, overlaid with a lattice-work of black silk braid.

Canadian Mink Coat Prices Startle English

Harrogate, England — (CP) — Canadian mink coats flown in this Yorkshire town from Prince caused gasps of astonishment among women buyers. The prices were in the four-figure bracket.

Examples included a natural Canadian mink coat costing £4,000, a natural Canadian wild mink at £4,300 and a silverblu short jacket costing £3,170.

Cheapest fur in the collection were priced at £800 and £640.

"Plenty of women in this area can afford expensive furs," said T. J. Peterson, manager of the Harrogate store which organized the show. "But no inquiries were made."

"English women are so defeatist about furs," said E. J. Jacobs, Paris representative of the furriers.

Harrogate, a watering-place with wide, terraced streets, has long been a favorite residential area for wealthy factory owners in the industrial Midlands. That is why it was chosen for a show of the type of furs usually seen only in London and Paris.

War-Time Duties Started Princess on Royal Career

London (CP)—At the height of last year the voices of two young girls were heard over the radio one evening. They came from an underground studio of the BBC—a studio then without a name because it was in the heart of bombtorn London.

The voice was that of the small Princess Margaret, bidding goodbye to all the British children who had been evacuated to other countries.

The other was the voice of Margaret's not - so - much - bigger sister Elizabeth — grey-eyed and just 14.

"I can truthfully say to you, that all we children at home are full of cheerfulness and courage," said Elizabeth.

It was one of her first public speeches. Many more were to follow, but perhaps this and others she made as a child growing up in the midst of a broken world were the ones in which Elizabeth first touched the heart of a kingdom.

Despite the war and its upsets, the training of Britain's future queen never slackened during those unhappy years. There also were wartime jobs. For instance, as a subaltern in the Auxiliary Territorial Service she took a driving course and learned the mechanics of the truck she drove.

On a visit to the A.T.S. centre the King and Queen found Elizabeth stretched under a truck, smeared with oil but enthusiastic about her "grease monkey" job.

It was shortly after her 11th birthday in 1937 that her future suddenly became apparent to Elizabeth. She was still too young to realize the significance of the moment when "Uncle David," Edward VIII, had abdicated and her father became George VI. But she came to understand in the little changes around home.

"Mummie" Was Queen

The weight of what had happened fell upon her one day when she saw a letter addressed to "Her Majesty The Queen."

"That's mummie now, isn't it?" she asked her governess.

There were still carefree days for a girl who liked to collect unicorns, who could dance an Irish jig and ride a bicycle. But studies became more important than ever. And Queen Mary herself undertook to teach etiquette and diplomatic conventions to young "Lilibet" as she was known throughout London.

Then there was a governess for the history and literature—which she liked—and arithmetic—which she didn't.

Those were the growing-up years of the Princess Elizabeth Alexandra Mary who now as a young married woman of 25 is making her first visit to Canada.

When the war began Britain's future queen was a little girl wearing skirts up to her knees and indulging in good-natured wrestling with young Margaret. At its end she was a serious young woman.

Britishers were hungry for news of their princesses in those war years. But for safety's sake it often had to be held back for days at a time. The girls spent the first four months of war in a small granite house in a lonely Scottish glen. Then later they moved to the south of England.

News dispatches in 1940 recorded that Elizabeth tap-danced and sang at a village concert which the Queen organized to aid war charities. Such charities formed the basis for princess' wartime activities, with much of her spare time spent on knitting sweaters and scarves for servicemen.

She lived without fanfare during the war and reached her 15th birthday in 1942 without much recognition from a Britain then fighting for its life. For Elizabeth, this particular birthday chiefly meant registering under the government youth service scheme, like any other 16-year-old.

Women's Institute

CHAPMAN W.I.

The regular meeting of Chapman W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Roy Hall, Tweed, with 20 members and three visitors present, one of whom joined during the meeting.

The membership is gradually increasing, and was pointed out in the meeting, new members will be welcomed, whether rural or urban. Women and girls, 16 and over are eligible for membership on payment of the annual fee. This organization is non-partisan, non-sectarian and non-racial. Its objectives are, to help women acquire sound and approved practices for greater home efficiency; to discover, and train leaders; to develop a more abundant life in rural communities and a deeper appreciation of the things near at hand; and to develop better, happier and more useful citizens. If any ladies are at all interested, do not wait for a special invitation, the 'Welcome Mat' is always at the door.

Health, Greatest Blessing

The leader, Mrs. Harold Foster, prepared an interesting and educational program on health. The first number, given by herself, stated that good health is the greatest blessing of all. Great progress has been made in reducing our mortality rate, but still an appalling number of babies under one year of age die each year due to lack of pre-natal care. Heart disease causes the most deaths with cancer coming second. Public education is needed to detect cancer in its early stages. Medical check-ups are necessary, don't wait for pain.

Mrs. Stanley Webb gave instructions on how and when to take temperatures, and the care of the thermometer. Mrs. Charles Jeffrey gave a timely and informative article on "Polio".

Mrs. Albert Baker gave a talk on health, mentioning National Health Day and Immunization Week. Because of immunization many of the dread diseases are rarely heard of. All service men are immunized and tested to help cut down the spread of diseases.

Mrs. Provost, accompanied by Mrs. Sager, gave a beautiful solo, "Only Jesus Satisfies".

Two worth-while radio series were brought to the attention of the members. "Human Relations and Mental Health", at 4 p.m. on Tuesdays over CJBQ and "The Cuckoo Clock", "a dramatization of good books for children", every Sunday at 4:30 p.m., over the same station.

Homemaking Project

The coming Homemaking Club Project, "Working With Wool", will be sponsored by this W.I. Girls between the ages of 12 and 26 who are interested in making a woollen skirt, are invited to join this Club. These girls will study pattern selection, and learn how to select woollen material and how to prepare it for cutting. This promises to be a worth-while project. Those wishing to take the course should contact the leader, Mrs. Robert Wheeler, not later than October 5th.

For Citizenship and Education, Mrs. R. C. Graham read an article "Survey Shows Education Pays", which showed that those who better education have more promotions, less unemployment, are more satisfactory workers and are better citizens generally.

For Home Economics and Health Mrs. Stanley Webb read an article on "Preventive Medicines" which showed that many diseases are nearly wiped out because of vaccination and inoculation. T.B. death rate has dropped because of X-ray clinics and early diagnosis. As much as possible should be done to educate the general public as to what preventive medicines can and are doing.

The coming warden's banquet was discussed and an executive meeting was called for Saturday to select committees for making the necessary arrangements.

Refreshments were prepared by Mrs. Kenneth Fisher, Mrs. Chas. Jeffrey, Mrs. Albert Baker, Mrs. T. C. Graham and Mrs. Roy Hall, were served at the close of the meeting while all enjoyed a social half hour. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. John Rannie in October.

Women's Activities

CATHOLIC W.L.

Mass and The September meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in Sacred Heart Hall on Tuesday evening with a good attendance. President, Mrs. C. Cook, occupied the chair.

The secretary, Mrs. Ed. Warren, read a number of 'thank-you' letters. The treasurer's report, given by Mrs. J. O'Neill, showed a substantial balance on hand. Mrs. H. English, Mrs. K. Donaldson and Mrs. E. Crawford reported on Social Welfare. Mrs. J. Clairmont and Mrs. W. A. Shannon reported five visits made to the sick and Mrs. Ed. and Mrs. Teresa Warren and Mrs. Fred Johnston volunteered for this duty for the month of October.

The president expressed her thanks to all for their activities during the summer in catering to wedding dinners and also to those who had assisted at the T.B. clinic. The members were asked for articles such as old linens and cottons for bandages, to be sent to the leper colony.

Mrs. Cook tendered thanks to those who had assisted at the dance last Friday night. Members were also asked to dispose of their tickets on articles to be drawn for at the coming bazaar and to bring in their sewing early before the bazaar so that each article would be properly tagged. It was hoped that each member had made two aprons during the summer for the fancy goods table. Potted plants to be sold at the bazaar were also requested as they had sold well last year and also articles of home cooking for the 'After Social' booth.

Address Meeting

The Rev. Father J. A. O'Neill then addressed the meeting briefly, congratulating members on the fine dinners they had served at the weddings during the summer and discussed arrangements for the bazaar which is being held this year in October instead of November as in previous years.

Mrs. J. Black delighted the members with the recitation of Drummond's poem "When Alouni Sang", and with Mrs. Black at the piano all joined in singing the Nation's Anthem for the King's recovery.

After a few games were played refreshments were served by the ladies of Group 4.

FLAT COUNTRY

In vast stretches of eastern Pakistan there is hardly a hill or even a rock visible for miles.

Beth Hutty Speaks Cree Like Native, Aids Treaty Party

The Pas, Man. (CP) — Beth Hutty, a tiny 27-year-old interpreter, may have seemed out of place when she travelled to Northern Manitoba recently, but she was nothing new to the Indians.

Beth—who measures four feet, 10-inches—was official interpreter for a treaty party which visited Northern Manitoba to pay the Indians their yearly rights. Ever since she was two months old she has lived among the Cree Indians at Nelson House, 175 air miles northeast of here.

Beth's command of Cree said by her Indian and white friends to be even greater than her ability to speak English. Her teachers were the small Indian children of Nelson House with whom she grew up.

Her ability to speak the Cree language was what made Beth decide to give up her job in a drug store at The Pas and head for the rugged northland.

To any other white girl the trip would have been the thrill of a life-time but to Beth it was no different to what she had been used to all of her 27 years. Even so, she admitted that the northern wilderness and bush scenery still held a peculiar attraction for her.

Gets Into The Blood

"Once the Cree gets into your blood you can never get it out," she said. "I don't know how to explain it, but there is something out there in that vast wilderness of lakes, muskeg, bush and rocks that just takes a hold of your very being and claims it for its own."

Beth, who now is back at her job at The Pas, said the hardest part of her job as interpreter for the treaty party was translating church services from English into the Cree language. She has also acted as interpreter for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police on several occasions.

Beth was born at Winnipeg. Dressed in warm rabbit and Indian shawls, she was taken to Nelson House two months later by her mother accompanied by an Indian squaw. Beth was carried Indian style in the traditional papoose sling.

The journey was long, wearisome days of travel over lakes and up and down rivers by canoe. Much of the trip was made in a horse-drawn cart through wild and unlighabited country.

Captain Recalls Windjammer Era in Grim History

By RAE CORELLI
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Lunenburg, N.S. (CP) — "Where" mused Capt. Henry Burke, Lunenburg master mariner, "are all the taut, stately ships?"

As he pondered the approaching death of the windjammer era that night in June, 1950, his clew-hauled schooner cut a phosphorescent wake through the South Pacific, heading for Havana out of Weymouth, N.S.

On the eve of the annual Nova Scotia fisheries exhibition, Lunenburg seamen of another age are accosted with similar thoughts of what has become an accomplished fact.

Townsfolk gather next Sunday on the slopes of Terrace Hill for the yearly remembrance service dedicated to the men who went down to the sea in ships and did not return. In their bowed heads will be thoughts of the days of the barquetine and the schooners and brigantines.

Capt. Burke chronicled those days in a requested history of the fortunes of Lunenburg ships and men over a 50-year period. He was a veteran of 46 years under canvas, 147 trips to the West Indies alone—32 of them in square-riggers.

The captain has been dead these nine years. His narrative now is in possession of a son, Cecil E. Burke of Halifax, Maritime traffic chief of the Canadian Press and himself a veteran of ocean service under sail.

"Steam competition," wrote the captain, "has driven these stately old square-riggers off the oceans."

His amazingly thumbnail sketch details the fates of 104 Lunenburg sailing vessels. He served on many of them, either as mate or master.

Around The World

Tough south shore skippers ranged far by their ships. Their pennants flew in ports around the world from the Tay to Singapore, from Southampton to Seattle.

The schooner Wilfred M., was shelled and sunk in mid-Atlantic by the German raider Crown Prince Cecile. The fleet schooner Marshal Foch was sold to novelist Zane Grey, later laundered and broke up on the rocky New Zealand coast.

Another schooner, Marion J. Smith, foundered and went down while en route from Britain to Halifax. The Richard B. Silver and on the homeward trip from Argentina. The barque Ida Dietz burned to the waterline in the harbor at St. John's, Nfld.

Capt. Burke was in command of the schooner Seaspray the night she was splintered and sunk by the steamer Roselanda.

He was a survivor of the abandonment of the brig Donzella, reeling onto a reef in a blinding blizzard when last seen by her crew. Three of them were frozen to death in the 10 hours preceding rescue.

The ships of which the captain writes foundered at sea, were sunk in collision. One, was Marie Celestes whose end is unknown. Others "laid their ribs to rest on a rock-bound coast."

Whole fleets were ripped to bits by Atlantic hurricanes. Few hardy Lunenburgers survived these sinkings. The schooner Seaspray was dismasted four times. Each time, she was coaxed home under jury rig.

The Narka lost her head gear, bowsprit and foremast in a heavy blow off Nantucket Lightship. She drifted for 13 days but "we finally arrived in Yarmouth, N.S., where we repaired our wreck and proceeded to Portland, Me., with our cargo of molasses."

"These ships were named by hardy seamen who have placed Lunenburg on the front page of the history of wooden ships and iron men," the captain wrote. "Will they ever come into their own again?"

"I wonder."

HEAVY HONEY CROP

Shelburne, Ont., Sept. 28—(CP) — The 1951 Ontario honey crop, just starting to appear on grocers' shelves, promises to be the best in 10 years. But Arthur McConaell, Shelburne district apiarist and a past director of the Ontario Beekeepers' Association, said the crop in western Canada is down by 40 per cent. As a result, he doubts that the Ontario increase will bring available supplies up to consumer demand.

U.S. Prisoners Behind Red Lines In Need of Aid

San Francisco, Sept. 28 (AP) —The most tragic story in Korea today is the plight of 10,000 prisoners of war, general executive Frank H. King of The Associated Press said today.

"It's going to become more tragic as winter closes in," he predicted in a report to The Associated Press Managing Editor's Association.

The editors also dug into problems of city editors, prepared resolutions condemning President Truman's sweeping security of information order to civilian agencies, and condemned the imprisonment of AP correspondent William N. Oatis in Czechoslovakia.

King said American prisoners behind communist lines were in need of "quick aid." His recently returned from a 10 week tour of Asian trouble areas.

"Nobody thinks the Chinese reds can provide for the prisoners," he said, "It isn't a question if they are willing; they haven't got the material to provide warm winter clothes for their prisoners."

King told the managing editors the important things about the Korean cease-fire talks is that the 135-mile long truce is only one phase of the Asian situation.

The real front, he said, is the 1,400 miles from Hongkong, Japan, to Hong Kong. The line runs through the Philippines into Indonesia and down into the southwest Pacific to Australia and New Zealand.

Finding of Piece Of Plane Metal Re-opens Search

Chemainus, B. C., Sept. 28 (CP) — Discovery of a five-foot length of plane metal may spark a new RCAF search for one of several planes missing over Vancouver Island.

The piece of aluminum, measuring five feet by 18 inches and bearing identifying numerals, was found late Wednesday by a woods worker. The metal was believed to be the cover of a plane engine.

The discovery was made at the 2,000-foot level of a 3,000-foot mountain in the forested Sugar Loaf Mountain area, 23 miles northwest of here.

Search and rescue experts of the RCAF will examine the metal today.

"A search may be launched if results of the examination warrant it," said a spokesman for the RCAF.

It could be the wreckage from a wartime plane — several were lost over Vancouver Island during the Second World War — or from a U. S. Navy Neptune bomber which disappeared three years ago with a crew of nine.

Last week searchers found the wreckage of another U. S. Navy plane which crashed on Mount McCreight, further up island. Eleven men perished in the crash.

There's a cold war of endurance going on in Berlin between the citizens of East (red) Berlin and those of the West. East Berlin authorities have sealed off almost all of the connecting roads between the Soviet and western sectors with barricades. Almost daily West Berliners demolish these barricades and the East Berliners thereupon erect them again. This goes on and on. SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON OF THE WEEK

We'd Better Hurry

By ROY L. SMITH

One cannot read very long in the Book of the Acts in the New Testament without getting the impression that those early Christians labored under a great sense of urgency. They seemed to have a feeling that something terrible might happen to the world before they got their story told.

There is that same feeling in the life of the modern church that it has very little time — that there will always be other people on the mission field to be evangelized, that there will always be another generation coming along to take up where we have left off.

World Will Not Wait

As if in refutation of that idea, the events of the last ten years have had the effect of crowding the world up very close together, making it necessary for us to live alongside the unevangelized, the un-Christian and the pagan.

The world's wide struggle with communism has been serious because the leaders of communism have convinced their followers that immediate action is necessary. The weakness of the democracies lies in the fact that we seem to think we have plenty of time.

The two billions of people in the world, hundreds of millions of whom have never known what it was to go to bed with their hunger completely satisfied, are not apt to wait indefinitely. Hungry men are as seldom either patient or reasonable.

It is one of the cruel wounds that communism inflicts that it makes promises it cannot and does not intend to keep, and it raises hopes only for the sake of profiting politically.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for September 30: "Enlarging the Christian Fellowship." Isaiah 60:1-3; Acts 14-21; 3:4-3, 36-39,35-38; Romans 15:-14-29.

The non-communist world, on the other hand, does not shut itself up inside comfortable world of motor cars, air conditioning, television and the radio pulpit, and let the rest of the world go by hungry and ignorant.

Paul Was in a Hurry

Paul held the church in Rome in great confidence. He had confidence faith in the Christians who made up the little congregation. But he did not want them to get the idea he was going to drop in on them for some leisurely visit and spend the time in a comfortable pastorate with them, running into the years.

He had vast responsibilities, great plans, and an expensive

Experts Lay Down Rules for Prexies Of Women's Clubs

New York, Sept. 28. (AP)— There are 5,500,000 women's clubs in the United States.

And at least half their presidents do not know the basic parliamentary rules for conducting a meeting, says Gilles F. Bassett, author of "Georgis' Standard Code of Parliamentary Procedure."

Mrs. Georgis, a recognized parliamentarian, had been studying the procedure of a group of national organizations. One of the first things that struck her was the astronomical number of groups in every U.S. community. The next was the need for a knowledge of recognized rules of procedure.

For the millions of women who this year will preside at meetings of their local clubs, she suggests 10 rules on how to be a good chairman:

"1. Don't use the club for your personal glory. If you put the good of the organization first the personal plaudit will follow.

2. Don't keep on being president after your term is over. Give the new leader a chance.

3. Be sure you understand the basic policy of your organization and follow it.

4. If you have an unpleasant duty to perform, do it outside the club meeting. Don't use the rostrum as a centre for a cat-and-dog fight.

5. Follow, don't push. Your job is to carry out the wishes of all the members, not to bend them to your own will.

6. Watch principles instead of technicalities. You need to know the rules of parliamentary procedure, but remember that the reason for rules is to facilitate business.

7. Remember that the president of a club is in the position of a judge. Don't take sides with one faction against another.

8. Don't campaign for your own election. If you have to fight for the chairmanship, you probably are not yet ready for it.

9. In presiding, be sure that there is a quorum present, that everyone understands each motion, that plenty of time is given to discussion, that the vote is taken accurately, that the will of the majority is carried out and the rights of the minority protected.

CANADIAN CARS TO COST MORE MAKER PREDICTS

Regina, Sept. 19 — (CP) — John C. McGuire, general sales manager of the Chrysler Plymouth Division of the Chrysler Corporation of Canada, Windsor, yesterday told the automotive industry dealers' conference in this city headed for the province-wide meeting here tomorrow.

He said in an interview that Canadian cars will be built in many cases from parts obtained from manufacturers who have plants in the U.S. The quantities of these materials available for Canadian assembly are controlled by U.S. government controls for defence purposes.

With less merchandise, there would be less selling volume and prices would go up because of the high level of operating expenses.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1951

Frost Mum on Election Date As Legislative Session Ends, Raps Thomson as 'Disturber'

Toronto, Sept. 28 (CP) — Ontario Legislature members were back home today after a four-day session of the House, with no more knowledge of when a provincial general election will be held than when the session began.

Premier Frost left the question in the air yesterday in a closing speech in which he said the government had no fear of going to the people "at any time."

When election time comes, "we'll give them lots of notice," he said. But he gave no inkling of whether he will call a fall election or wait until after the next session, which begins in February. The government's present term expires in 1953.

In an apparent reference to Walter Thomson, provincial Liberal leader who sits in the Federal House, Mr. Frost said:

"We've had one paltry, one voice, running around our province demanding an election and disturbing our people . . . running down the road and yelling in windows".

The CCF opposition party, he said "kicked around" Ontario as well as in themselves.

This week's session brought only two new measures.

Will Share Costs

One ratifies the agreement with the federal government to pay $40 monthly old-age assistance to persons aged 65 to 69 who can show need. The provincial and federal governments will share costs equally in the plan, which starts next January. Under the federal government plan to begin payment of $40 pensions to all over 70.

The second separates administration of blind pensions from old pensions, and raises from $720 to $840 the income ceiling under which the blind pensioner will be paid to blind persons from 21 to 65.

Opposition demands that $10 provincial supplement be paid to old-age pensioners headed a CCF non-confidence motion, in which government forces yesterday defeated the three-united opposition parties 49 to 35.

The vote closed yesterday's Throne Speech debate, to be followed by the formal action of Lieutenant-Governor Ray Lawson who gave three assents to the two bills and prorogued the House.

Premier Frost, in his speech, gave a strong indication that announcement of final approval of a start on the St. Lawrence seaway will be made soon in Ottawa.

"The seaway will proceed," he said. "Ontario will be a partner and it will come before very long."

Waits for St. Laurent

He said, however, that he preferred the next announcement on the seaway to come from Prime Minister St. Laurent, with whom the Ontario government had been in close contact for some time.

Premier Frost attacked federal housing and credit policies, as did three others during the Throne Speech debate.

They were CCF leader F. R. Jolliffe, Dr. J. Brown (L-Waterloo North), and A. A. MacLeod (Lab. Prog.-Toronto Bellwoods).

Mr. Frost said credit restrictions has driven Ontario to the New York market to borrow money, and are causing unemployment. Ontario needed "a definite approach to control and management of housing materials" by the federal government, as well as relaxed credit restrictions, which could bring housing construction in Ontario to 50,000 units a year.

MacLeod Wants Heaven

Mr. MacLeod, one of two communist members in the house, said the government should take revaluability for subsidizing a program to build 25,000 houses a year for the next five years.

He also criticized heavy expenditures for defence production when "common sense" would bring peace in the world.

Mr. Frost replied that all members want "men of peace" and Prime Minister St. Laurent and Mr. Pearson "are not afraid of warlike intent".

While members on both sides of the House pounded their desks, the premier said, "we aren't rearming for the purpose of waging war, but for the purpose of protecting our way of life."

Mr. Jolliffe said he could bring forward evidence of "improper expenditure of public funds" in building a fish hatchery at Elk Lake, 15 miles from Englehart. He said he wouldn't make it an election issue unless evidence of similar occurrences were found in other government departments.

From Premier Probe

Mr. Frost promised that if the charge were true, the public accounts committee would give it the "fullest investigation".

Mr. Jolliffe said the federal credit restrictions have caused "a house-building slump, production cutbacks and employment layoffs and short-time work throughout the province.

Mr. Brown, from the Liberal benches, also criticized the federal Liberal government's housing policy. He said there is a "vital need for housing for people who need homes costing between $7,000 and $8,000."

He asked that the provincial government cut its taxation of small corporations, allowing them either an exemption from the seven-per-cent corporation tax below a certain profit level or a reduced tax rate.

Once-Wealthy Stock Broker Appears in Court

New York, Sept. 28—(AP) Twenty years ago William J. Johnston paid $100,000 for a seat on the New York Curb Exchange.

Yesterday, the once-wealthy stock broker—now too poor to hire a lawyer, appeared in felony court charged with larceny. Assistant district-attorney's office said Johnston's case involved thefts totalling more than $225,000. Some of the alleged victims were clergymen.

Assistant district-attorney James Kidder, told this story:

Johnston, 50, got "heavily in debt" after losing accounts representing almost two-thirds of his brokerage business several years ago.

To tide himself over, the broker borrowed money from loan sharks. To meet their usurious rates, the frantic broker talked customers into investing money with him. But instead of buying stocks and bonds for them he kept the money, putting part of it back with the explanation that it represented profit on the investment.

Daily Newspaper Prices Swinging Upward in U.S.

New York, Sept. 28—(AP) Daily newspaper prices are swinging upward all over the United States as rising costs shrink profit margins.

The price upward trend has been underway for several months. Large and small newspaper alike have found a price boost necessary.

Publishers say the higher costs are putting out a paper are responsible. They cite greater newsprint prices, higher wages and larger bills for distributing their papers.

Los Angeles, the Times and the Examiner, both morning papers, have increased their newsstand prices from seven to 10 cents effective October 1.

In Philadelphia, the Commercial Appeal and the Press-Scimitar raised subscription prices effective Monday. The former's weekly rate for daily and Sunday editions goes from 60 to 65 cents. The latter's for daily editions only goes from 35 to 40 cents.

Sunday papers in many cities have gone from 10 cents to 15 cents and in some cases to 20 cents.

Fourteen Bodies Found in Wreck Of Flying Boxcar

Tokyo, Sept. 28 (Reuters) — Fourteen charred bodies were found today in the burned out wreck of a United States Air Force C-119 flying boxcar, which exploded and crashed into a mountain 30 miles west of Tokyo late last night.

Four miles away by the remains of another transport, a C-46. Rescue parties have not yet reported the fate of its six crew members and five passengers.

Both planes crashed on the way to Tachikawa Airport, main cargo base for the Allnitte service between Korea and Japan.

PEACE MAY COME, BUT WAR GOES ON

Hopes for peace that surged through the Allied ranks in Korea have been replaced by grim attention to the struggle at hand as new attacks cause more dead and wounded. These U.S. Marines were hit in the attempt to capture "Heartbreak Hill," which was tenaciously held by Chinese and North Koreans. — Central Press Canadian.

Violence Flares At Shipyards In Vancouver

Vancouver, Sept. 29 (CP) — Violence flared yesterday at the Celtic shipyards when an attempt was made to drive a car through a picket line.

In a general scuffle, two men were injured — one by the car which tried to break the lines and another in a fight.

Bill White, president of the Marine Workers Union, was arrested and charged with assault and Roy Loop, a member of the Carpenters' Union (AFL) driver of the car, was charged with dangerous driving.

Loop was one of the injured. He was dragged from the car and beaten. The other injured man was a 60-year-old picket, Bob Newlands, who was hit by the car and dragged 144 feet.

Three shipyards here have been picketed for a month since the Marine Union was decertified as bargaining agent by the British Columbia Labor Board and Carpenters' Union was given the bargaining rights. The Marine workers were decertified when the labor board ruled their refusal to work overtime was, in effect, an illegal strike.

CAN SEE IT GROW

Washington, Sept. 28—(AP)—Ivy grows so fast on college buildings—at Harvard at least—that "one can practically see it grow." Harvard biologist Sumner Zacks, in a communique to the scientific journal "Science", announced yesterday he had measured the rate of growth and found Harvard's ivy grows at an approximate rate of .01969 inch a minute.

U.S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Sept. 28—(AP)—American guns firing tremendous artillery barrages in Korea are still using shells stockpiled from the Second World War, Americans artillery had fired 8,200,000 rounds through the first of September — and all of it was manufactured during or before 1945.

Captain Jones Will Fly Royal Couple to Canada

London, Sept. 28 — (Reuters)— Captain O. P. Jones, 53-year-old black-bearded veteran, will fly Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh to Canada Oct. 7.

"Opey," as he is called on both sides of the Atlantic, has flown 3,000,000 miles as an aircraft captain and has been a pilot since 1917. His pointed beard, which he has worn 27 years, is famous around the world.

The plane he will pilot for the Royal couple is a stratocruiser of the British Overseas Airways Corporation.

Jones, the most experienced pilot on Britain's airlines, is also known as B.O.A.C.'s strictest disciplinarian. He has been flying the North Atlantic route for 10 years.

"I am deeply honored to have been selected in connection with the flight," he said today. "Both Princess Elizabeth and the Duke have flying experience and they should feel no apprehension."

There will be a crew of 11 aboard the stratocruiser."

TWO SERIOUSLY WOUNDED

Detroit, Sept. 28 — (AP) — A lacquer plant in suburban Trenton blew up and burned last night injuring two employees seriously.

Victor Hermandson, 54, was trapped when a still used to remove lacquer thinner exploded. The flames turned him into a human torch.

Norman Hartley, 19, suffered arm burns when he beat out the flames on Hermondson's clothing. There was no estimate of damage.

RAISE PRICE OF STEEL

Paris, Sept. 28 — (Reuters) — France last night decided to raise the price of steel by 20 per cent, it was learned in quarters close to the cabinet. The sources said a decree to this effect will be published in a few days. The interministerial council also decided on a subsidy of $54,000,000 to reduce the price of imported coal, the same quarters said.

Truman Proposes Top Officials Disclose Incomes

Washington, Sept. 28—(AP) President Truman, taking note of charges that graft is "running rampant," asked Congress yesterday for swift passage of a law to expose the total income of all top United States officials each year—including congressmen.

In a dramatic and unheralded move, Truman said it should be spread on the public record exactly how much money, gifts or loans are received by those responsible for running the country.

He said the list should include members of Congress themselves as well as cabinet members, generals, admirals, judges, all highranking diplomats, policy-levers and bigwigs of both major political parties.

Truman urged congressmen in a special message to enact the legislation promptly as a first step to prevent "improper confounded suspicions."

He said the truth should be known, partly because there has been "a definite effort to discredit the government service."

Truman sent the message even as his star witness, Dr. John William M. Boyle, Jr., took the witness stand at the crime probe in the latest of a long series of congressional investigations into charges of influence peddling in places.

Truman, in his proposal, suggested violations be punished on the same basis as violations of the income tax laws.

Boyle acknowledged before a Senate inquiry group that while serving as "acting chairman" of the Democratic National Committee he accepted eight gratuities, legal cases involving government agencies.

The value of the fees involved was estimated by Senator Richard Nixon (Rep. Calif.) at $158,000.

But the Democratic party chief denied hotly that he had done anything wrong, and President Truman told his press conference nothing has developed to shake his confidence in Boyle.

The Senates investigations subcommittee hearing into Boyle's relations with the American Lithofold Corporation, a St. Louis printing firm which has obtained $14,000,000 worth of government contracts.

Frost Damages Corn and Late Garden Vegetables

Chicago, Sept. 28 (AP) —Corn and late garden vegetables were damaged in spots today by an early cold snap spread over the northern two-thirds of the United States.

It was 31 degrees above at Mason City and 32 at Des Moines, Iowa. Temperatures were below freezing in the Dakotas and parts of Minnesota and Nebraska. About 82 percent of the corn crop in Minnesota is fully mature, 91% in percent in the south stage and subject to serious damage.

No killing frost was reported in Wisconsin, Illinois or Indiana.

The cool belt extended from the Rocky Mountains to the Appalachians southward to the southern plains and middle Mississippi Valley. Freezing readings were in the northern plains—it was 29 above in Bismarck and Dickinson, N.D., and 34 above in Huron and Aberdeen, S.D.

Rumor Persists Members Know Name of Bay Street Promoter Who Cleaned up on Fixed Race

By DON PEACOCK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Sept. 28 (CP) — Just before post time at the Fort Erie race track last July 25 Jockey Alfred Nash told the Ontario Racing Commission that he had been offered a bribe to help "throw" a race. He was told to accept the bribe.

Almost at the same time, a woman in black stepped to the pari-mutuel window reserved for those from across the International boundary betting United States currency. She put $1,500, on the nose of North Drive.

North Drive won. Jockey Nash's Free Flight ran seventh in the eight-horse field.

The Commission began an investigation and what Commission Chairman S. Tupper Bigelow describes as Canada's worst racing scandal developed.

While "The Lady In Black" remained veiled for weeks in a mist of rumors, the Commission heard testimony from jockeys, trainers and other racing men at Fort Erie, Hamilton, Toronto and Niagara Falls. Others stood by at the hearings.

The Commission worked quietly; rumors flew. With the racing season almost over and the investigation ended by a month or so, the mystery lifted. Some of the secret was out.

Mrs. Swartz, wife of Toronto and formerly of Winnipeg, briefly held the limelight when Mrs. Swartz was identified.

The 30-year-old model told the Commission at a cottage party at the Lake Erie resort of Crystal Beach which she attended with Perron. She was released after she testified she knew nothing of what went on between Perron and other jockeys in attendance.

DIPLOMAT SUED

Oakland, Calif., Sept. 28—(AP)—Czech diplomat Bohus Bunge, who resigned in 1948 as Czechoslovakia's consul in San Francisco because the communists had taken over his country, was sued for divorce yesterday. His wife of 26 years filed suit charging extreme cruelty. She is a nephew of Czechoslovakia's late president Edward Benes.

Boy Who Stood on Burning Deck Really Existed

(By Frances Bleyer in the Milwaukee Journal)

Analyze the boy heroes of old stories and you will find that most of these heroic lads hold their places in the hall of fame by reason of their unswerving loyalty. Solve the problem, they unswervingly in the tasks allotted to them.

A Dutch boy here, his finger in the hole in the dike, preventing the waters from flooding his beloved Netherlands. A drummer boy in Napoleon's grand army marched steadily forward to his death answering those who urged him to retreat, "I do not know how to beat a retreat."

And finally, there is that slight, 13-year-old Giacomo Jocante de Casablanca, the boy who "stood on the burning deck, whence all but he had fled," until his little frame was consumed by flames because his father had told him not to move from his post.

Young Casablanca, who died in the battle of the Nile, Aug. 1, 1798, when Lord Nelson sank Napoleon's French fleet, typifies the unswerving obedience to orders. "Theirs not to reason why." "My father told me to do this."

* * *

Twenty-nine year old Napoleon Bonaparte was the first to pay tribute to the bravery of young Casablanca, son of the captain of L'Orient, the flagship of the French fleet in Egypt, the boy who died bravely at the battle of the Nile. Napoleon at the time was one of several generals sent out with armies by the directory, the group which governed France and thought that by moving on Egypt and then on India, the greatest harm would be done to England.

An immense French fleet of 13 ships of the line, 14 frigates, 72 ships of lesser importance and 400 transports carrying an army of 38,000 sailed from Toulon, France, May 19, 1798.

There was another genius beside Napoleon abroad on the seas at the time—Lord Horatio Nelson. Nelson's fleet was slightly inferior to that which had left Toulon. Twice between May 19 and Aug. 1 these two fleets were almost in sight of each other without either knowing it.

The French fleet, commanded by Admiral De Brueys, had discharged the troops and had anchored in the Bay of Aboukir, some 14 miles from the port of Alexandria, Egypt. De Brueys drew up his vessels in a long line where the water between them and the shore was too shallow to be thought, by an enemy to enter. So his ships swung, stern to bow, at ease.

Nelson and his captains with their glasses saw the situation. Nelson at once determined to go around the line, to pass between French ships and the shore, to subject them to fire from both sides.

The battle transpired just as Nelson had foreseen. His ships got between the French squadron and the shore. From all sides Nelson's guns pounded the French ships. One after another sank. Towers of flames lit the night.

Capt. Louis de Casablanca took command of the perishing fleet. Then it was that he placed his young son at a station and told him not to move. The ship was on fire, still the boy stood at his battle station. Then came a vast explosion.

There came a burst of thunder sound;
The boy, where was he?
Ask of the winds that far around
With fragments strewed the sea.

Gen. Bonaparte in Egypt sent a message to the directory, "Casablanca perished gloriously. Holding the flag, he went down with his ship, the Orient. His son, a 10-year-old boy, refused to leave his father and in his father's arms he was devoured by flames."

Napoleon's report on the boy attracted little attention until an English woman poet heard of it 31 years later.

Mrs. Felicia Hemans then wrote the poem beginning, "The boy stood on the burning deck", which has made the heroism of young Giacomo Casablanca known ever since. Her verse makes the boy stand where his father had placed him, with injunctions not to desert his post, vainly calling out to his father and asking whether he might not leave his station.

Seventieth Birthday Honored by Friends

Mr. George Merrick, Mount Pleasant-Rawdon, who celebrated the seventieth anniversary of his birth on Tuesday last was tendered a surprise birthday party on Monday evening by his neighbors. All enjoyed a delightful evening in fun and fellowship. The guests included his sister, Mrs. John Bateman, and Mr. Bateman of Belleville.

For several years this particular neighborhood has held parties in honor of their older youths and those so honored to date have been Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bailey, Mrs. George Merrick and the late Mr. Hector Whitton.

Mr. Bob Hoard was master of ceremonies and expressed birthday felicitations. Two readings were given by Mrs. Frank Bailey and Mrs. Harvey Couch. Master Hughie Hoard delighted with a musical number and he and his sister Norma gave a vocal duet.

Miss Dianna McAdam and her brother Freddie also contributed a duet.

Address Read

Mr. Archie Bailey read the address of appreciation and Mr. Harry McAdam made the presentation of a lovely hassock with Dunlopillo cushion top.

Mr. Merrick graciously replied and expressed deepest thanks for remembering his birthday and the group sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Mrs. Bob Hoard, Mrs. Harry McAdam and Mrs. Archie Bailey conducted several games which the group participated in and enjoyed.

Mrs. Oscar Merrick, daughter-in-law, made the birthday cake adorned with seventy candles and furnished home-made pink ice cream. These two items were served with the other refreshments and those in attendance extended birthday greetings for many more future years in the neighborhood.

Newark, N.J., Sept. 27 (AP)—Morris Tozzi, 40, committed suicide yesterday while police sought him on murder and arson charges for setting fire to his family's home. Tozzi's 17-year-old daughter, Anita, was killed in the blaze. His estranged wife, Frances, 40, and his son, Vincent 15, were injured. The body of Tozzi, a baldini, was also found hanging in the cellar of an apartment two doors away.

MAY HELP POLIO VICTIMS

Philadelphia, Sept. 27 (AP)—A new medical discovery that "may be the means of protection of humans against polio" was announced today by the physician-in-chief of the children's hospital of Philadelphia, Dr. Joseph Stokes, Jr., said the new protective had been tested successfully on animals, but not on human beings. He said Gamma globulin has been combined with virus vaccine, a new agent, to build up the antibodies in the bloodstream against polio.

If you meet a lobster wearing an aluminum tag, don't waste sympathy. It wasn't hauled up for parking opposite a hydrant. The tag was put there by the National Fisheries Board which is sleuthing out marine life stories. A salmon, so decorated, was re-caught after four years and a lobster after ten. The tags were still in excellent condition.

Aluminum's ability to withstand the elements is one of the advantages which make it increasingly popular for walls, roofs and architectural embellishments. An aluminum cornice in Montreal was taken down recently— undamaged after being exposed to the weather since 1895. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan).

Mystery of The Inner Sanctum Smash Umps Door-Whodunit?

By JOE REICHLER

Boston, Sept. 28 (AP) — Did Jackie Robinson, fiery Brooklyn second baseman, pound and kick the locked door of the umpires' dressing room in a violent rage following the Dodgers' hotly disputed 4-3 loss to the Boston Braves yesterday?

"No," said Robinson, "Anybody who says I did it is a damned liar."

Did any of the Dodgers assault the barred door, cracking two of its panels, before the arrival of five special policemen to help the regular guard?

"Yes," admitted Robinson. "I know who did it but I'm not saying who."

"I know who did it, too," echoed Brooklyn pitching ace Preacher Roe, victim of the heartbreaking loss that pared the Dodgers' first place lead over the New York Giants to a half game.

"But it wasn't Jackie," added the Preacher. "I'll take an oath on that."

"I don't know who damaged the umpire's door," another Dodger said, refusing to be identified. "But quite a few of our guys either kicked or pounded it on their way to our dressing room."

Kiztler, one of the special policemen had reported that it was Robinson who had done the kicking and pounding.

Umps Are Mum

Ford Frick, president of the National League, said in New York he had talked by telephone with two of the four umpires who had worked the game and neither had mentioned an assault on the officials' door.

The hectic after-the-stands scene came as a result of the ejection of Brooklyn pilot Roy Campanella by plate umpire Dascoll. Campanella had objected violently when Dascoll called Bob Addis slid home safely with the run that snapped a 3-3 tie in the eighth to give Boston its dramatic victory.

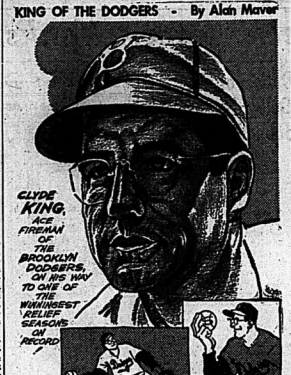
"He threw his glove on the ground," said Dascoll. "Under the rules he was automatically out of the game."

Not only did Dascoll evict Campanella, but he sent coach Cookie Lavagetto along for company. It was the first time in 20 years that the Dodger coach had ever been chased by an umpire.

The incensed Dodgers continued to heckle Dascoll until the umpire finally cleared the bench of all players—15 in all—and left only manager Charlie Dressen and coach Jake Pitler.

Costly Ejection

The importance of Campanella's ejection was borne out in the ninth inning. With Pewee Reese on third and only one out, catcher Rube Walker was due to hit. Normally, it would have been Campy, the Dodgers' top run producer, who would have been at the plate. Dressen sent in pinch-hitter Wayne Terwilliger, who bounced out without advancing the runner. Andy Pafko then fanned to end the game.



The Dodgers, to a man, insisted they were not protesting Dascoll's call that cost them the game. They did portest what they called the umpire's hasty eviction of their star catcher and top slugger.

"Baseball is in a bad way when an umpire's fast thumb determines the outcome of a game," said Dodger coach Clyde Sukeforth. "Dascoll is a bad umpire, that's all."

Dressen joined in the vituperation of the beleaguered umpire. "We've had trouble with him all year—as far back as spring training," he said bitterly.

Dascoll, who came to the National League during the 1948 season, is a showman type of umpire who calls his decisions in a loud, blatant voice, accompanied by picturesque gestures. This marked the second time this season that he had cleared a team. He chased Manager Frank Frisch and all the Cubs one day.

Balloons Blown Across Lake Erie

St. Thomas, Sept. 28,—(CP)—Balloons from Ohio were blown across Lake Erie yesterday.

One of them, snagged by Mrs. Andy Shivak, whose home is on Lake Erie near Port Bruce, contained this message:

"Crusade for Freedom, Northern Ohio Command, released at four p.m. Sept. 26, 1951, at Cleveland, Ohio, please notify nearest newspaper."

The balloon had crossed the lake from Cleveland, 92 miles away, in exactly three hours. It was similar to those recently released over western Germany and intended to drift across the Iron Curtain.

Sport in Brief

At Sydney, N.S., the Maritime branch of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has asked the C.A.H.A. to protect major series clubs "holding" by professional organizations.

C. Roy MacDonald of Glace Bay, vice-president of the Maritime Major Hockey League, submitted the request following a similar resolution passed during the annual meeting of the Maritime Hockey Association.

MacDonald said it was easy for pro clubs to offer contracts to promising amateurs and after a trial period turn them over to major circle or their clubs.

The resolution suggested that a player signed to a pro contract be returned to his original club if he was dropped back to C.A.H.A. ranks during the season.

If the National League baseball race ends in a tie between Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants, the first game of the playoff will take place at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn, with the second and, if necessary, the third at the polo grounds.

This was decided at a contesting ceremony Thursday at the offices of National League president Ford Frick in New York.

Dates for possible play-off were not set but they will start on Monday if the regular campaign ends on Sunday, as scheduled.

The largest daily double of the season, $252.80 was paid yesterday at Long Branch race track at Toronto. Mirwin Stable's son Robert, paid $27.00 in winning the first race and Best Book, another outsider, $42.80 in the second.

At New York, two men were held in $25,000 bail each today as material witnesses in connection with the alleged attempted bribing of a Bradley University basketball player last year, a "re-enactment" defendant in the same case also had his bail raised from $15,000 to $50,000.

Picked up for questioning and held in high bail at the request of District-attorney Frank S. Hogan's office were: Arthur (Chink) Lee, 36 and Benjamin Gans, 34. Remanded to jail in $50,000 bail was Jack Rubinstein, 33, charged with attempted bribery and conspiracy.

Mrs. H. W. Soper of Montreal Kenwood yesterday finished first in the opening day of medal play in the Canadian Women's senior golf association tournament at Toronto. She fired a 49 going out and a 44 on the back nine for a total of 93.

Mrs. J. A. Cameron of Laval-Sur-le-Lac, Montreal, took a 97, and Mrs. G. E. Hackney of Saigeleny Club was a stroke behind with 98.

The defending champion, Mrs. T. J. Agar, of Toronto York Downs, finished eighth with 104.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Maybe "Cap" Warpy O'Brien had better start Spring training for his Belleville Motor Cars city AA champions in the Sahara Desert next year. For last night at Alemite Field they seemed to revel in miniature dust storms that swept the diamond at intermittent periods and came up with a well - deserved 12-7 win over the Chinese Canadians to win the Labatt Trophy in combination with the title.

Get to give the fire-eating "Casey Stengel" and his Motor Car crew full credit. They came through with a neat display of timely hitting, crushing the ball in clusters when hits meant runs and tossing in a fine performance afield despite the four miscues chalked against them.

Cleaners, besides failing to solve the starts of Jack Reid over the six mark, could have been bothered by the dust and Mick - whistle. They bobbled the ball seven times and on occasions tossed it all over the lot, accounting for not a few of the Motor runs.

However it is all over. The Motor Cars are the new champions and they won it in fine style last night. They played heads-up softball and on the night's play thoroughly deserved to win.

CLOSE THE DOOR!

Kingston Feis, a new lease secured by George Patterson, seated Nylon Hockey Club coach, failed to crash the portals of the Belleville Senior "B" group. They were denied admittance as what is said to be a heated session in the Kingston Community Memorial Centre the other day at which OHA big-wigs were present.

President J. M. Roxburgh presided over the torrid duels, with first vice S. E. McTavish, Oshawa, and executive members Frank Buckland, Peterborough and Lorne Cook, Kingston, found in the chair. Also present was Past-President Jim Sutherland, Kingston's "Grand Old Man of Hockey" also took an active part in the discussions.

Six Nylon players, well - known to Belleville and Peterborough fans sought their release from the Nylons Club, presumably to cast in their lot with the newly-formed Feis, but the powers-that-be stymied that move by declaring it was not in accordance with the Hockey Association constitution to allow players to secure releases from one club to a city to join another. In fact, they were told, they would be reported as transfers.

The six that sought severance included Udy Udall, Eddie Plumb, "Buddy" Aitken, Jack Sloan, Bob Joyce and Mike Paterson. The first five were refused their release requests but the sixth made a free agent.

According to the Kingston story, it seems it had been the custom of the Nylon club for the past three years to operate on a co-operative basis. All members of the club had a vote on every last push and on and off the ice.

It appears Patterson was named coach of the Nylons in the middle of the 1950-51 season on a 100 per cent ballot. Prior to the ballot he was removed from the club at a meeting of eight of the players with no actual vote taken. It was due to this move, that the six above-mentioned players demanded their release.

But when Percy Roxburgh explained the OHA constitutional clause whereby players under such circumstances are regarded as imports, the players with the exception of Patterson withdrew their applications for release.

The refusal of the OHA to allow the Feis to enter the senior "B" group was a wise move. Had it allowed the entry admission, there is a strong possibility that the group that operated last year would be broken up. At a recent meeting here with OHA executive members in attendance, both the Peterborough clubs, Peles and Earles stated flatly they would withdraw from the league in addition to a group near Toronto, if a third Kingston entry was admitted. As a matter of fact the Peles clubs were strongly against the admission of the Canadoque entry, and had not appear too sensitive until the Kingston representatives together with that of Queen's agreed to the suggestion that the Peles "away" games with these clubs be halved and treated as four-point affairs, thus eliminating a lot of long hauls.

The meeting here arrived at nothing except a long, drawn-out discussion that was productive of the feelings of the representatives, their likes and little else. The group appointed a committee were to be forwarded to the OHA for something or other, but as yet nothing has been done about the matter. Nor has anything came to light as yet on the district junior "B" grouping.

SHOPPING!

Speaking of hockey, President Ken McNaught and Director Bill Cook of the Belleville Hockey Association were in Galt on Wednesday and Thursday conferring with President Bill Tobin of the Chicago Black Hawks with regards to players for both junior and senior "B" teams. What the conference is we are not aware as yet, but expect something "hot" within a day or so.

Flatbush Fuses Blow in Row As Boston Braves Belt 'Em 4-3; Umps Gives Sixteen Heave-Ho

By ED CORRIGAN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

With Brooklyn Dodgers clinging to a half game lead over New York Giants in the torrid National League pennant race, Brooklyn manager Charlie Dressen today found himself in a mighty ticklish situation.

The prides of Brooklyn reeled into Philadelphia for tonight's game with the Phillies with this situation facing them:

In order to insure themselves the pennant, they must sweep all three games with the Phils during the weekend. Then even if the Giants win both their remaining contests with Boston they have to beat town, they're in.

But if they lose one and the Giants win two, the race will end in a deadlock and if they lose two and the Giants win the whoosh, it will be wall-till-next-year. So from the Giants' viewpoint the Dressenmen must win their two games with the Braves and hope for a split from the Phils.

After Brook ace Preacher Roe rallied yesterday, absorbing a 4-3 defeat at the hands of the Braves, Dressen plans to send Carl Erskine tonight against Phil Haugstad in the opener. Following him, it could be Don Newcombe and Roe again on Saturday.

Yanks Can Win Today

As for the American League, New York Yankees are in a position to breathe a little easier what with their 2½ game lead over Cleveland Indians. The Yanks can clinch the pennant today if they whip Boston Red Sox in a scheduled doubleheader.

The Sox, however, fell victim to mathematically eliminated yesterday by Washington Senators 8-6. Yank manager Casey Stengel is taking no chances. He's throwing his two ace guns against the Sox, Allie Reynolds (16-8) and Vic Raschi (20-10).

Brooks Blow Tops

The excited Dodgers really blew their tops yesterday at umpire Frank Dascoli, who called Bob Addis safe at home with what proved to be the winning run in the eighth. Dascoli cleared the Brook bench and threw out catcher Ray Campanella and coach Cookie Lavagetto.

Chet Nichols, a 20-year-old southpaw stifled the Dodgers with six hits while his mates were tagging Roe for 10. Brooklyn went ahead twice, but couldn't hold the advantage either time.

In the fatal eighth, Addis singled and went to third on Jethroe's single. Earl Torgeson grounded to Jackie Robinson, who tried to get Addis. Dascoli called him safe and that set off the din.

The Red Sox apparently cracked wide open, losing all three games to the seventh-place Senators in the current series. They now are six games back with five to play. Chuck Stobbs was the victim.

Rookie Duke Markell hung up his first major league triumph as the fast-ind St. Louis Browns stopped Detroit Tigers 2-1.

Yanks Meet Rams In Grid Opener

Los Angeles, Sept. 28 — (AP) —Los Angeles Rams and New York Yanks open the National Football League's 1951 regular season tonight.

The Yanks will try to upset the two-time runners-up for the championship.

Four of the Rams will not see action, including captain-quarterback Bob Waterfield.

The others, injured in the Rams' exhibition win over New York Giants last week, are halfback Glenn Davis, tackle Charlie Toogood and halfback Herb Rich.

Other opening games were scheduled Sunday with Chicago Bears clashing at Green Bay with the Packers; the champion Cleveland Browns invading San Francisco to play the 49ers; Washington Redskins at Detroit against the Lions, and Philadelphia Eagles at Chicago against the Cardinals. Monday night New York Giants will play at Pittsburgh against the Steelers.

Remember When

(By The Canadian Press)

Andre Routis, game French featherweight, stripped Tony Canzoneri of his world's featherweight boxing title 23 years ago tonight at New York. The Frenchman was badly battered in the early rounds but made a whirlwind comeback to win in the 15-round decision. Canzoneri moved up to win the lightweight title in 1930.

Duties of M.P. Delay Meeker's Job With Leafs

St. Catharines, Sept. 28 — (CP) — Howie Meeker said last night his duties as a member of parliament will likely keep him out of the Toronto Maple Leafs hockey team lineup until mid-December.

He added that, as a young fellow with long-view political ambitions, he'll probably retire from hockey after this season.

The right-winger who jumped directly from senior amateur hockey to the Leafs in 1946 shortly after his discharge from overseas was elected last summer as Progressive Conservative member for Waterloo South.

He said he'll continue to train with the Leafs, who started preseason workouts here early this week, until the full season of parliament gets under way Oct. 9. Then he'll go to Ottawa for the session, expected to last about two months. After that, he plans to rejoin the team and play out the season if needed.

"I've decided to attend the fall session," he said, "I have to get experience in parliamentary procedure to do my job properly. I'll never be too well-trained to continue as a member after the next election. So, I'll probably be lucky to get the stick after this season, although I would like to finish this season with the Leafs.

Oshawa Thumps Niagara Falls For Third Win

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 28—(CP)— Oshawa Merchants last night scored 10 runs in the eighth inning for a 15-3 victory and their third straight triumph in their best-of-seven Ontario Baseball Association senior final series with Niagara Falls.

Oshawa's Walsh hit one of the longest home-run drives ever seen in a ball park here. His fourth-inning clout landed 400 feet from home plate, bounced over a wire fence and down an embankment and hit a car parked on the roadway.

The fourth game will be played in Oshawa today, with the fifth and sixth, if necessary, also in Oshawa Saturday.

Phillies Taunt Staggering Brooks With 'Remember Last Year' War Cry

Philadelphia, Sept. 28 (CP)—The staggering Brooklyn Dodgers are coming in with almost the same attention that the Philadelphia Phils experienced late in the 1950 National League season.

The Dodgers must win all three of the remaining games with Philadelphia to clinch the pennant, providing that the Giants win their two games with Boston. Any combination of two would throw the race into a deadlock that would make a three-game playoff necessary.

The Dodgers are going to find it tough sledding, just as the desperate Phillies did in 1950.

Philadelphia, with eight days of the 1950 season remaining, had a 7 1-2 game lead over Boston Braves. They held a nine-game advantage over the third-place Dodgers.

Then the Phils went to pieces. By the time they moved into Brooklyn for their final series, their lead had shrunk to three games.

The Dodgers easily won the first two contests and it took Dick Sisler's home run in the final game to decide the pennant in the Phils favor.

This year, Brooklyn had a 15-game lead with about 1 1-2 months of the season left. But the rampaging New York Giants came on with an amazing stretch rush that sliced the Dodgers' lead to a half-game.

Yesterday the Brooks came close to collapse by losing to the Boston Braves 4-3.

The pressure for the Dodgers is tremendous; the Phils are relaxed. The 1950 champs are merely finishing the season. They can't go anywhere, except fifth place. They will be pushing their old-time rivals every inch of the way.

Manager Eddie Sawyer is sending Karl Drews against the Dodgers' Carl Erskine in hopes of making it just as tough for Brooklyn to win the pennant as the Dodgers made it for them in 1950.

Full Menu of Gridiron Fare Tabled for Fans Over Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

American imports and injured players are the problems that all eight coaches of major Canadian football teams are up against as their teams prepare for action this weekend.

All eight teams will play. In the Western Interprovincial Union, the leading Edmonton Eskimos play Saskatchewan Roughriders Saturday and Winnipeg Blue Bombers Monday, both games at Edmonton.

Calgary Stampeders play Blue Bombers Saturday and Roughriders Monday. Both games are at Calgary.

In the Big Four Union, Hamilton Tiger-Cats play Ottawa Rough Riders in Ottawa Saturday and Montreal Alouettes play Toronto Argonauts in Montreal Sunday.

Edmonton coach Annis Stukus has a team that is reported in 'fair shape' for the weekend.

Fullback Don Lord, out for some weeks with an injury, will put on his pads again. But Chuck Quiller from Prince 'Albert—one of Stukus' top linesmen—will be out for the season because of a knee injury suffered last Saturday.

Eskimos' quarterback Lindy Berry, named most valuable player in the west last year, is still out of the Edmonton lineup following a knee operation. He may be in the game for just one play to establish his second year as an American import playing on a Canadian team.

Cut Teams By Oct. 1

Stampeders, tail-enders in the western conference, are in better shape. Their top scorer, end Bob Shaw, will be in the line-up though he is favoring an injured ankle.

They are introducing a new end, Paul Salata from the disbanded Baltimore Colts.

Quarterbacks Keith Spaith and Stan Heath—out recently with injuries—also were back in practice this week, though it is not known whether both are in playing shape.

Though Big Four coaches have injury problems to worry them, they seemed this week more concerned with the extra imports. By a Canadian Rugby Football Union ruling these must be cut to seven per team by Oct. 1.

Coach Carl Voyles of the Tiger-Cats has eight crack imports, all of whom have performed capably in recent games. Two of these are quarterbacks—Zeke Martin and Bernie Custis.

Argos 10 Imports

Argonauts have 10 imports—two quarterbacks, three halves and two line-men. The latest is a new pass-catching end, Al Pfeifer from New York Giants.

Alouettes have only one import to discard as have Ottawa Rough Riders.

Coach Clem Crowe of Ottawa this week did some regrouping on his squad. Don Loney, long rated one of the best centres in the east, will go into an offensive slot as a tackle. And Jack Dunlop, a middle who was dropped a couple of weeks ago, will be given another try.

All four teams of the Senior Intercollegiate Football Union will play exhibition games tomorrow. University of Toronto Blues will play McMaster Marauders of the Ontario Rugby Football Union in Toronto and Toronto Balmy Beach of the O. R. F. U. will lock horns with Queens at Kingston.

University of Western Ontario Mustangs will play Sarnia Imperials of the O. R. F. U. in Sarnia and McGill Redmen will tilt with University of Ottawa Carabins of the Ottawa-St. Lawrence Conference in Cornwall.

ROOKIES SEEK BERTH ON LEAF'S TWO SCORING LINES

Fleming Mackell, left, Danny Lewicki and Ray Timgren are strong bid for a powerful line.

Despite the impressive showing of the newly formed line of rookies Danny Lewicki between Fleming Mackell and Ray Timgren, working out at the Toronto Maple Leafs' hockey camp now under way at St. Catharines, Ont., Coach Poe Primeau has other ideas for the line. "I'm going to switch Mackell with Kluky because Kluky can do most of our penalty killing and I would like to have them playing together. Another good line would be Mackell teamed up with Rudy Migay and Bobby Solinger. Migay has been checking especially well, and Mackell has been digging hard." The switch involves the two best working lines in camp, with the Migay, Solinger, Kluky threesome top in the scoring unit to date. Another pressing problem for Primeau is need for new defenceman, due to Bill Barilko's disappearance on Aug 26. Tim Horton, Hugh Bolton and Frank Mathers are eligible for job, with slight edge being given to Mathers, who has shown a vast improvement in his game this season. — Central Press Canadian.

Motor Cars Defeat Cleaners 12-7, Win City AA Title, Labatt Trophy

The Belleville Motor Cars are the Belleville Commercial Softball League AA champions for 1951. The Motors won the title and the handsome Labatt Trophy at Alemite Field last night when they decisively defeated the City Cleaners by a 12-7 score.

On a dust-swirled diamond, Commercial League president Don Lee presented the championship trophy to Motors captain, Douglas Bone, as the Cleaner players crowded around the new champions with congratulatory gestures.

Motors won the odd game in three to win the title, and last night they were full value for their margin. While they kicked the ball around four times behind the six-hit hurling of Jack Reid, they made up for any fielding lapses with some stout work with the blickeys, paced by a pair of homers by Hatfield. They lashed out an even dozen hits all told.

High wind and swirling dust hampered the fielding of both teams, but the Cleaners were definitely off their usual fielding game, bobbling the ball at least seven times.

Pitchers Go Route

Jack Reid went the route for the winners and restricted the Cleaner hitters to one clout for five innings, yielding one in the sixth and two more in the ninth. He helped his own cause with a pair of singles, struck out two and walked six.

Holmes was touched for 12 hits over the nine inning mound chore with Motors clustering their clouts in the first, third and seventh innings. He struck out five and issued two free passes.

Motors ripped into a three-run lead in the first of the contest doubled by Miller and Semark, O'Brien's single and two Cleaner errors. They made it 7-0 in the third coming up with four runs off Hatfield's homer with the bases empty, O'Brien's triple, Bone's double, a walk and an error.

Motors raced into the picture in the same innings with a three run rally off just one hit, DeRushie's double, a walk and two Motors errors.

The winners clinched the game in the seventh when paced by Hatfield's second home run with one aboard, they added two more with Miller's double, Semark's clean bunt and two costly Cleaner miscues.

Cleaners Rally

Cleaners rallied in the third for a pair of runs one a homer by Bobby Bunton with none on, the other coming off James' double, Dracup's dribbler. They scored their last two runs in the ninth when Mulvihill drove in James who had singled, with a four-base clout but Reid settled down and retired the side with no further damage.

James hit a double and single for the loser with Mulvihill and Bunton hitting home-runs, and DeRushie doubling, with Dracup getting a single.

Miller got two doubles and a single to pace the winners with Hatfield homering twice, O'Brien getting a triple and single; Semark; Semark a double and single and Reid a brace of singles. Walsh hit a double.

The official presentation of the Labatt Trophy will take place at the league banquet scheduled for Oct. 9.

Miss Shirley Marriott held the lucky ticket for the radio draw.

Vancouver, Petes Demand Finals Under Own Rules

Vancouver, Sept. 28 — (CP) — Vancouver Combines last night threatened to withdraw from the Mann Cup finals unless the Canadian Lacrosse Association decides in favor of the West on the contentious face-off rule.

Peterborough Petes were equally insistent that interpretation of the rule be decided in their favor.

In Monday's first game of the best-of-seven series, the C.L.A. ordered the centres to face off Eastern fashion.

In last night's second game at Victoria, the C.L.A. ordered Western interpretation of the rule.

In the East, the centres may face off on either side of the ball; in the West, centres must be set on either side of the ball, their left shoulders towards the opposing goal.

With the series tied 1-1, the third game is scheduled for here tonight.

To Investigate Saddler-Pep 'Dirty Brawl'

Willie Pep and Sandy Saddler will be called on the carpet by the New York State Athletic Commission for Wednesday night's wrestling match with boxing gloves.

Bob Christenberry, new chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, yesterday directed all officials present at the featherweight title bout to submit written reports.

If the reports warrant, a full dress open hearing probably will be called before the commission next week.

The commission was far from satisfied with the dirty brawl in which most of the rules were fractured.

Pep quit in his corner after the ninth round to lose on a ninth-round technical knockout. He said today he is thinking of retiring.

Saddler today took his pre-induction physical for the army as veteran boxing observers racked their memories to recall more disgraceful exhibitions of foul tactics.

Gabriel Paul New Manager Cincinnati Reds

Cincinnati, Sept. 26 — (AP)— Gabriel Heward Paul, who worked himself up from a batboy, took over the general managership of the Cincinnati Reds last night and said he would trade every man on the roster if it will help win ball games.

The 41-year-old former Reds vice president, who succeeds Warren Giles, declared the floundering Reds are going to win more games next season than any Cincinnati club in recent years.

The optimistic statement came after Powel Crosley, chairman of the board of Cincinnati ball club, named Paul to fill the vacancy caused several hours earlier when Giles accepted the presidency of the National League.

Terms of Paul's contract and salary were not disclosed.

Paul's first official act was to announce Luke Sewell will be retained as manager for the 1952 season.

The 55-year-old Giles, who wanted to be baseball commissioner but settled for new commissioner for Fricks former job, had this to say about his successor:

"Gabe has done a great job for me. He has done a great job with me. He will do a great job for Cincinnati."

Here's what Paul says about the 1952 version of the Reds:

"We are going to have a completely-changed ball club. You won't recognize it on the field next season. It may not be better, but it will be different."

Both Teams Lost This One

Portland, Ore., Sept. 26 — (AP)—Ever hear of a football game in which both teams lost?

Two Portland high schools achieved it.

Roosevelt came out the nominal winner 34-0. But it was discovered that two ineligible players had been used and Roosevelt was ordered to forfeit the game.

Next it was learned the other team, Cleveland, also had used an ineligible player.

A forfeit defeat was marked against both teams.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

An expert likes to tell you that he uses judgment in his bids, impercceptibly and nonchalantly, he puffs up a little when he says it. As it apologetic for being too brilliant to be bound by rules.

Actually, he is just taking out a little advance insurance. Some of his rules do not stand up in all situations. He plugs up the holes with exceptions. When an exception backfires, he has judgment for an alibi.

One spot where most system mongers are weak is in their needs for an opening bid of one in a suit. Horse Sense bridge does not have that fault. So, Horse Sense followers are not troubled with exceptions.

There are four specific values to be considered in bidding: They are tricks, high cards, sure tricks and suit. An opening bidder signals that he has better than average in each of them.

Thus, an opening bid of one in a suit guarantees a minimum basis of five tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks, and a biddable suit.

Anything less in any one item makes an opening bid unsound.

The four high cards are the basis for future no-trump bids. If the final contract is not in no-trump, you may not need the four high cards. That lets an expert take chances.

He does not always insist on having four high cards with an opening bid. Then he uses his judgment to plug up the hole. And that is one of the things that confuses many players.

A high card is an ace or king or queen. A trick in suit is a high or short card. The south hand has three sure tricks, five highs, a short in clubs, and a rebiddable heart suit.

Not only is it enough for an opening bid of one. It has a bit more in each department; a bit more than enough for an opening bid of one heart.

When you know this you can keep your judgment in storage.

MEMBERS BUILD BASEMENT

Norwich, Sept. 28—(CP) Members of East Oxford Baptist Church are busy these days putting a basement under their church building. Following the example of their forefathers who built the church by holding "bees" in 1859, they are putting in as much time as they can spare from farm tasks.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, September 29

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Excellent opportunity for well thought out and executed endeavors. Temper words so as not to confuse issues or fog cause and motion. Travel, investments, merchandising freshly favored.

April 21 to May 21—(Taurus)—Propositions may come rapidly, be on guard to distinguish well and avail yourself of most favorable ones. Simmer down to essentials, save time and money, give some time to relaxation you need.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—You may have to take reasonable chances. Look at opponent's view to be better able to put over your points. Give and take alike make for good and fair exchange, balance of business.

June 22 to July 22—(Cancer)—Some extra effort will surely be in order this, in sports, dull day. Advantages may shrink if you are not more energetic, brighter in your promoting, selling self. Smile.

July 24 to August 23—(Leo)—Trend of indications on upgrade. You who are ready and willing can make fast time in favored work, business or profession. Smart interests spurred, can be worthy.

August 24 to September 23—(Virgo)—Very little opposition today. If you are on your toes and don't lag or lose interest. Watch expenditures. Anyone can spend money, smart ones save a share of their earnings.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Opportunities varied, plentiful for the busy student, for sound business, the intelligent seeker. Are you among these? Be up to your best self, realize your capabilities and you can hardly miss.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Auspicious for the unusual, new, and, especially, matters pertaining to progressive undertakings. Don't rest on past performances, today is another new opening. Bright for sincere effort.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Realization of what's feasible to handle now and what should be studied more will help you to surer achievement. Small and wholesale, building good will, can move forward appreciably.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Day likely less attractive for finances than for personal affairs. Romance, marriage, socials sponsored only to wise degree. Hard work, keen thinking needed, and highly rated.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Healthy imagination and self-initiated upsurge of energy will greatly enchance you and your gains now. Think about doing more than one thing, cover ground better but without strain.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Some doubts? May have to bargain betimes for more careful, yoo. P.M. tension lessens and you can expect some gains from intelligent, sincere effort. Romance okayed.

YOU BORN TODAY are of the sign Libra. Have keen sense of perception and inborn fine ideals; are fair dealings with all mankind. Seldom force or hurt another with sharp, domineering attitude or words. But your opinions are set. You have balance in decision, would make fine manager, banker, doctor, nurse; executive, judge, public official, teacher. Innately courteous sociable. Can be trusted readily. Must not always expect harmony and people to be what they should be. Take all in stride.

Birthdate: Horatio, Viscount Nelson, British naval hero; Elizabeth C. Gaskell, English novelist, biographer; Gene Autry, singer; Brenda Marshall, actress.

Upper Canada Bible Society Branch Elects Executive Officers

Marmora—The following officers were elected at the annual meeting of the Marmora Branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society held in the Town Hall on Wednesday evening.

President, W. J. Cottrell; honorary vice-presidents, Canon J. M. Brownlie, Rev. G. D. Young; Rev. L. C. Bell; Rev. G. H. Bache; Rev. W. C. Stevenson; secretary Rev. L. C. Bell; treasurer, Rev. W. N. Crandall.

The meeting opened with the hymn "How Firm a Foundation", with Mrs. W. C. Stevenson as accompanist.

Rev. W. C. Stevenson offered prayer and Ritchie Wells retiring treasurer read the scripture reading.

The treasurer's report as given by Ritchie Wells showed $231.50 to have been raised by the 1950 canvass.

Rev. F. B. Keys, Visual Education secretary of the Society conducted the election of officers, it was decided to canvass the district as in former years in some period during November.

Vote of Thanks Tendered

The retiring officers were tendered a vote of thanks. A collection was taken for the funds of the Society. Rev. F. B. Keys then addressed the gathering on the work of the Society.

He mentioned that the Bible was not only the best seller but contained the big news. He referred to its circulation in this continent and in Europe, Asia and Africa.

Speaking of the increase in literacy in China, he said that ten million a year were learning to read for the first time. The distribution of the scripture was the move to be encouraged with the increased propogation of communistic literature now spreading greatly in Africa.

Later, he showed the Society's film, "Frontiersmen", depicting the visits of the colporteurs to remote and isolated spots in Western Canada and British Columbia and to suburbs of cities where the Christian religion was not followed.

Rev. G. H. Bache closed the meeting.

GIVEN HIGH HONOR

Oslo, Norway, Sept. 27.—(Reuters) King Haakon of Norway yesterday appointed Thor Heyerdahl commander of the order of St. Olav for planning and carrying out of the Kon Tiki expedition. Heyerdahl wrote a best-seller about the expedition, in which he used a replica of a primitive raft in an attempt to prove his theory that the Polynesians had originally drifted from South America to the Pacific Islands.

WILD WEST CHARITY STANDISH

By CHARLES JUDAH

He brought a bottle, which he set with a not very clean glass on the table. As Chic Lady might be permitted sherry or some made elderberry wine on Christmas or to toast the New Year, but no whiskey—not if she were a lady. Charity was not in Ohio, however, and she had taken a momentous resolution — she was not going to be a lady.

She poured a small drink and sipped it down. She coughed. Whiskey was worse than hay fever. The drink had only been a gesture, the picking up of the gauntlet thrown down so contemptuously by Angel.

Perhaps it was the drink. Perhaps it was the relief that comes with action. Whatever it was, as she walked to the dice table,

"Mr. Rogers," she said. He looked up. "I want to play."

"Got any money?"

"Four hundred forty dollars."

Whatever it might be up the canyon, $440 was not pin money on the Four Aces, they stimulated questioningly at Angel, who among other duties, aired up the guests and if need be fattened them for the sacrifice. Angel shrugged. It meant Duke was on his own.

"Care to show it?"

Charity tossed the money on the table. It was all she had. Lose, and like Douglas, she would be a pauper. Hailing from or New England, by way of Ohio, she had weighed the possibility of such a disaster and marked out a line of retreat. A chambermaid at first. She thought.

"My roll," she said hardily.

Duke did not smile. "Dice?" She shook her head.

"Faro? Black jack, Roulette?"

"Your guys never to play the other fellow's game."

"What's your game?" he asked indulgently, certain that there was no form of gambling that was not Duke Rogers' game.

"Hazard," she replied firmly.

A hundred years earlier England's lords and gentlemen had played Hazard for stakes that in comparison made even the play at the Astec gambling hell a game of a boy's marble game, but Duke had never heard of it. Neither had Charity until the previous day when to pass the time she had picked up its only book in the hotel, offered, "Games of Chance." Leafing through its pages she came to Hazard, She read about it and even spent an idle hour playing it against herself, with Miss Lucy, and had her one day as a joke. It was the only gambling game she knew the least thing about, but Doug had said not to play the other fellow's game.

The Duke thought the matter over.

A few minutes earlier Angel had told him who Charity was, and about her attempt to redeem Doug Kent's debt. She had manicured an income, not very much, he figured, but dependable which gambling was not. Moreover, with Angel deserting him to open a casino of her own in Santa Fe he could use some one to take her place at the Four Aces. Angel had worked hard at learning to be a lady, so she could handle occasional suckers from the Astec who came to see what a real western gambling joint was like, but who could sometimes be persuaded to try their luck only by someone who measured up to their own standards of refinement.

This girl would not have to learn. It was easy to see she was born a lady. Young, too, with a freshness that offered something new to a man like Duke. Thus behind his inscrutable gambler's mask Duke's mind raced to a decision. He decided to marry Charity.

The most remote suspicion of such impertinence would have outraged Charity immeasurably —and unjustifiably. True, Duke Rogers was not a smallfire spirit who could readily comprehend the finer nuances of a lady's sentiments, but in terms of his own experience he was no fool, and in picture of Charity was at least a superficially accurate one. He saw her as a romantic, inexperienced girl from the east who had fallen in love with the first man to court her, That man was a gambler, not a very successful one at that.

Now that she had lost him why should she not find solace in Duke, who regarded his attentions for women quite equal to those of Douglas Kent, and who had that very day proved himself smarter? From such a viewpoint Charity would profit from the exchange. Naturally, Duke would need a chance to present his case, but if Charity had no money, and was heavily in debt to him, there need be no want of opportunity.

"All right, lady," he said jovially. "Duke Snider plays anything. The Four Aces, betting my place I better take the bank."

Though the book had said that holding the bank was an advantage, a fact which Duke experience enabled him to recognize immediately, to Charity it seemed unimportant.

"Take the bank," she agreed, and picked up the dice. Duke, in order that there should be no misunderstanding, repeated the rudiments of Hazard.

"As I get it, ma'am, you choose a number from five to nine as your point."

"It's called a 'main'," Charity interrupted.

"Main, then. If you throw it, or never one number that's different with each main, and is called the 'nick' you win. If you throw aces or deuce-ace it's crabs and you lose. If you don't throw your main, or nick, or crabs, that number you do throw is your new point, I mean main."

"It's not called main any more Charity explained brightly, "the new one is your chance."

"Excuse me, chance." When they were married he would endeavor by teaching her not to confuse him. "After that you throw till you get your chance, in which case you win, or the original main, in which case you lose."

It was not hazard as George had known it, or Charles James Fox, but it was Charity's version of Duke Rogers, newly satisfied. From his point of view the rules were not important so long as he was clear what constituted losing.

As soon as she had resolved to try her luck at gambling Charity had determined her course of play.

"Seven's my friend," Douglas had declared; she would always choose seven as her main. That she reminded Duke made 11 her nick. He nodded and repeated patiently "Seven or 11 you win, crabs you lose, anything else is a new point."

"Chance." Charity reminded him sweetly, and rolled the dice.

During the first hour or so the system worked only moderately well, though she did win a little.

"You like seven ma'am?"

Charity looked around. Beside her was the handsome stranger who had interrupted her conversation with Angel.

"Yes," she said shortly.

He was persistent. "Always play it?"

"Yes," she admitted and resumed the game.

A few minutes later the dice rolled within his reach. He picked them up. "For luck." he explained, and spit on them.

"Disgusting," Charity told herself, as with obvious distaste, she retrieved the dice. Then running into a phenomenal streak of good fortune she forgot both her squeamishness over the polluted dice and the stranger. Not once did the aces or deuce-aces, the dreaded crabs, appear. Only sevens. Emboldened by her luck she increased the stakes, even Angel murmured encouragement. Her $400 grew to more than $1,200.

The other patrons abandoned their games to watch. It was exciting but nerve-racking and to a Standish from Ohio embarrassing. Charity resolved to end the business. She shoved everything to the middle of the table.

Duke picked up the dice and rattled them absently. "You got nerve, ma'am," he said, as he handed them back.

Without replying Charity threw. One cube turned up ace, the other rolled lazily. "Six" Charity prayed. The dice stopped. It was ace-deuce. Charity swore softly. Charity did not hear him. Duke swept away her money and dice. She had been foolishly certain that she would win. Reluctantly she turned away from the table.

"You won't quit on account of one bad throw will you?" Duke asked.

"I have nothing left with which to play."

"I'll trust you."

She hesitated. It was one thing to work as a chamber maid until she saved enough to get home or the worst until next quarter's income was due; it was another to get into debt. On the other hand except for the last cast she had been very lucky.

"For how much?" she asked.

He shrugged.

"Must have been around $2,500 in there; how about letting it ride?"

"But if I lost I couldn't pay."

"I'd be willing to wait. That is if you'd stay around here, where I'd know where to find you."

"Don't be a fool," the young man beside her said; and at the same moment Angel laughed. This was too much for Charity. Like most people she was foolish when she lost her temper.

"Thank you, I can care for myself," she told the stranger. To Duke Rogers she said: "Give me the dice. One rolls for $2,500."

"Seven. Your main!"

"Seven."

The stranger sighed.

"First just to make it look right sign this," Duke suggested.

He scribbled on a piece of paper which he shoved toward her. It was an acknowledgment of indebtedness for $2500. Rogers knew that in court it was worthless, but the girl might not be so learned in the law, in which case it would be a useful adjunct to his couring. After a moment's hesitation Charity signed, casting a defiant glance at the impertinent stranger as she did so. She saw that he was grinning, but Angel, who knew him better, disregarded the grin and watched the cold gray eyes.

Rogers gave Charity the dice. She threw and shut her eyes. She heard a sigh from the spectators crowding around the table. She opened her eyes, and saw the double ace.

"Bagged," Duke Rogers told himself exultantly, and before picking up the dice wasted a precious second running a practised eye over Charity. As a consequence when he did reach out it was too late. Another hand with quick strong fingers was before him. It scooped up the dice, Rogers controlled himself with difficulty.

"What's the idea?" he asked.

The stranger held the cubes in the palm of his hand, where he rolled them gently.

"I'll bet $1,000 I can throw the double ace," he said.

"You're, crazy."

"Does sound like it, considering what the odds against the double ace are, but I'll bet."

Mother of Four Slain, Hired Man Is Suspected

Woman Victim of Fatal Knife-and-Hammer Attack

London, Sept. 29 — (AP) — Iran's prime minister, Mohammed Mossadegh, and Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb will plead the case for their governments in the bottling oil dispute before the United Nations Security Council next week.

This was disclosed today in London and Tehran. It will pit a polished British diplomat against a frail, highly-emotional, veteran Iranian politician in a controversy which Britain says endangers world peace. Britain tossed the long and bitter dispute over nationalization of Iran's oil riches to the council yesterday.

Jebb will leave by plane for New York tonight. He will ask the council to call upon the government of Iran not to carry out its eviction notice to 200 technicians and workers to get out by next Thursday. Britain has warned of "grave consequences" would follow a complete takeover at the Abadan refinery.

Iran Advises Worried

In Tehran, advisers of Mossadegh appeared visibly worried at the latest British move to bring international pressure to delay the order pushing British technicians from Abadan.

The appeal to the U.N. surprised the Iranians. They had half expected Britain to refrain from such a move since the Soviet Union, which has a veto in the council, would side with Iran, in the opinion of Mossadegh's advisers.

Deputy Premier Hossein Fatemi told newspapers today that his government does not consider the security council competent to consider the dispute which is purely an internal affair." That is the line expected to be followed by Iran's premier at the hearings.

Britain will call upon the Iranian government to adhere to the interim recommendation of the international court of justice at The Hague in the dispute. This recommendation was that neither side in the dispute take any possible action pending a final decision of the merits of the case.

Mad Dog Mossadegh

Iran boycotted the court hearings. It is significant that it will attend the council sessions, although disputing its authority.

Tehran dispatches said the powerful British warship Mauritius, flagship of the British naval blockade of the Persian Gulf to prevent Iran from shipping oil from the Abadan refinery.

Iran recently moved in additional troops to the area and ordered to bolster army and navy units that have been enforcing martial law in effect there since March. A general staff official said fresh troops have been sent to the Khuzistan province from neighboring Isfahan and Luristan, however, he termed "ridiculous" published reports that Iranian troops were racing toward Abadan from all parts of the country.

Britain is angry at the way her technicians have been incited out of the Iranian oil fields by the company's refinery in Abadan. Iran has nationalized the holdings of the British-owned A.I.O.C.

The country is jittery because of fears that any action to defend her interests anywhere in the world send up in flames the whole Middle East.

Pontiac, Mich., Sept. 29—(AP)—Fire destroyed a $250,000 mansion in the fashionable Bloomfield Hills district yesterday. The police latia] 25-room "Eastwyn Farms" home was that of the Francis Palms banking and industrial family of Detroit.

New York, Sept. 29 — (AP) — A man praised widely for giving back to 18 billed persons was indicted yesterday for allegedly swindling them of overtime pay. Morris Kellman and his Modern Photographic Firm were convicted on 18 counts of cheating his workers of $2,038.

CEILING LIFTED, WILL SELL GOLD ON FREE MARKET

Policy for Canada To be Announced

Washington, Sept. 29—(AP)—The International Monetary Fund has taken its $35-an-ounce ceiling off the price of fabricated gold-gold meant for non-banking use, the fund's action yesterday meant in effect that the 49 fund member countries can buy gold in free world, plus Czechoslovakia—now are free to put as much on their monetary gold on the market as they wish, at whatever price it will bring.

The decision will affect the "free market" price of gold, possibly driving it down as more gold becomes available, or bidding gold up if the demand is great.

May Affect Trade

It may also reflect in international trade prices and in the value, on international exchanges, of some currencies as they are offered in exchange for gold. But officials said effects would not be predicated, may take months to show up, and depend on a host of political and military situations.

(Canada's finance department said Canada will let the government's policy on the sale of Canadian gold will be made next week.

It appeared certain, however, that Canada's policy would be to allow at least part of Canada's gold production to be sold on the free market, as Britain and Union of South Africa, which already so disposes of about 40 per cent of its gold.

Canadian mine operators considered the policy will benefit some gold mines.)

End of Fight

The announcement signalled the end of a four-year fight to keep all but a small percentage of international gold transactions pegged to the official price of gold as money—or the backing behind money—at $35 an ounce. The fund adopted that valuation in relation to money in 1947. It urged its members to adhere to it practically all gold above that price as part of the fund's drive to stabilize the international values of national currencies.

Fabricated gold is put into bar or other shape for sale, ostensibly, for industrial uses, like dental, such as dental and goldsmith supply houses.

The gold has sold over the $35 ceiling, ranging up to $47 an ounce, in London. In order to attempt to keep such sales to the minimum necessary for industrial use.

Fabricated gold in the market has been active over and above amounts of gold offered through the fund for non-banking transactions. The demand has presumably come from purchasers wanting to protect their national currency into a gold hoard, as a hedge against inflation.

One country which has objected to the fund's multiple-tier policy is South Africa. It, mines about $400,000,000 of gold a year, and has been left with more than 40 percent of it into the premium market.

This has drawn criticism from the fund.

Another major producer, Canada, has paid its gold miners a premium in order to receive the fund's gold regulations. Canada may now, if it wishes, free its miners to sell as much gold as they want into the premium market for what they can get. This might eliminate the necessity for paying subsidies.

President Truman's Decision To Back Canada on Seaway Evokes Mixed U.S. Reaction

Washington, Sept. 29 (AP) — President Truman's willingness to support Canada's proposal to build the St. Lawrence seaway if it cannot be completed as a joint United States-Canadian project drew mixed congressional reaction today.

Senator George Aiken (Rep.-Vt.), an ardent seaway supporter during the many years it has been before Congress, said tersely:

"It's a disgrace for the United States to force Canada in do this her own protection. We ought to be ashamed of ourselves."

Truman's position was disclosed in a statement after a conference in which Prime Minister St. Laurent outlined Canada's plan to proceed along with the estimated $700,000,000 development.

The White House announcement, however, emphasized that Truman preferred joint construction as provided for in a 1941 agreement.

"But," the statement said, "the (the president) stated he would support Canadian action as second best if an agreement cannot be reached."

Representative Tom Pickett (Dem.-Tex.), an opponent of the project, said of Truman's announcement:

"He's finally showing a little judgment."

He suggested that Canada give the $700,000,000 to more than two to see if he can't get Congress to act favorably." He said he thought the chances of Congressional approval now are "excellent".

St. Laurent, who is here from the Washington conference to confer with Premier Maurice Duplessis, St. Laurent said the seaway project will be carried out, he said, by the method of procedure remains to be settled.

He told reporters on arrival: "We are going to have it."

In Owen Sound, the chairman of Ontario Hydro, Robert Saunders, said the Hydro Commission hopes to start development of the power phase within a few months.

The U.S. Congress has refused to approve the St. Lawrence proposal since the early 1930s. The development also calls for construction of a 2,200,000 horsepower generating plant in the International Rapids section of the river.

Canada wants the power phase of the project as urgently as she desires the seaway. In this connection, Truman said the U.S. government would be required before the power plant could be built.

If the U.S. and the international joint commission failed to join in the plan, the power plant could be built with the U.S. and Canada sharing equally the costs and the benefits.

Engineers estimate that the entire plant would produce more than 13,000,000,000 kilowat hours annually.

The seaway, involving dredging of an approximate 119-mile stretch of the St. Lawrence River to a depth of 27 feet, would permit ocean-going shipping between the Atlantic and the head of the Great Lakes.

Peron Promises Rough Time For Leaders of Revolution; Army Officers To be Executed

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Sept. 29 (AP)—President Juan Peron today planned rough treatment for "traitors and unworthy military leaders" the government accuses of revolting and plotting to assassinate Peron and his wife Eva.

Congress has passed a law ordering execution of armed forces officers whom the state radio says started a civil war yesterday. It also approved a law allowing the administration to order changes of any kind for military officers. The government radio earlier broadcast reports of a state of seige—modified martial law.

(Reuters news agency reported that the last rebel stronghold—the naval air station at Punta Del Indio — surrendered after midnight after being bombed by the government air force.)

(The report said the base, which commands the entrance to Bahia Blanca River, was fled by its commander, Pio Baroja, and other officers.)

Government communiques named two retired generals, Benjamin Menendez and Bartolome Rawson, as leaders of an officials'-labelled "barefaced plot" during the exciting day started with planes flying low over Buenos Aires firing machine guns and dropping leaflets calling for revolution. It ended with no shooting reported, and with Peron reporting the only sign of violence in the capital.

The government radio proclaimed at 11:10 that civil war had broken out in the country's armed forces and declared of the revolt.

The announcement of a revolt came as campaigning got hotter for the Nov. 11 presidential election in which Peron is candidate for another six-year term.

Menendez was said to be under arrest along with 30 army, navy and air force officers, But late last night, the ministry of the interior and army said there is no information that Rawson is implicated.

10,500 Workers Fail to Report For Night Shift

Virginia, Minn., Sept. 29 (AP) —Iron mining came to a standstill on the Mesabi and Vermilion ranges in Minnesota late yesterday as some 10,500 workers failed to report for work on the night shifts.

The United Steelworkers Union (CIO) denied that a strike had been called.

A spokesman said, however, that the men had been asked to attend a very important meeting before last night. There was no indication how long the men would be absent from their job.

The week stoppage affected 6,-500 employees of the Oliver Iron Mining Company. A United States Steel Company subsidiary, with 4,000 miles employed by independent firms in this area.

The reason the miners are angry over alleged failure of the companies to put into effect a wage and equity policy agreed upon in June. That policy was approved by the union, and had started a series of "fishing holiday" work stoppages.

Spokesmen for the workers said the new policy if put into effect would result in an upgrading of numerous union members with resulting pay increases.

The Mesabi range normally ranges are the principal sources of iron ore in the Lake Superior region.

BRITONS RELAX AS KING PASSES DANGER MARK

Period Since Operation Free of Complications

London, Sept. 29 (CP) —This morning's medical bulletin on the King said: "King George VI has been gaining strength daily the period since his operation has been free of complications."

The bulletin was issued as anxiety for the King—who underwent a major lung operation last week—began to give way to a belief that the worst is over.

There was plenty of awareness that his 56-year-old Monarch is still seriously sick, and there was no illusion yet that he had reached the point where the danger of relapse was past.

But the news of the 10th medical bulletin issued since Sunday's operation said:

"The King slept since the operation on the King. This has been a period free of complications. His Majesty is gaining strength daily."

Crowd Waits for Bulletin

A crowd of 150 waited in the sunshine outside Buckingham Palace for the notice to be posted on the Royal Pantry.

The British people, seeking information beyond the scanty official bulletins, found great signs of subdued cheerfulness:

1. There was no official medical bulletin issued daily for the third straight day.

2. Princess Elizabeth's decision to leave for Canada next week.

3. The visit to Ascot by Princess Elizabeth and Margaret to see the King's horse, Ash Grove, finish a poor eighth.

Public opinion seized on this visit as something much more than a tribute to the Royal Family's fondness for horse-racing. It was widely regarded as a gracious way of relieving the country.

"Father's doing fine. We're taking it easy, you can too."

Princess Elizabeth, driven by the Duke of Edinburgh, left Clarence House — their London home — about an hour before the bulletin was issued. They drove off without calling the palace.

Princess Margaret was flying back to Scotland to continue her vacation at Balmoral, the Royal castle.

The new bulletin was eagerly read outside the palace by crowds of children who had come to London to see the official closing this weekend of the Festival of British exhibition.

John Forsythe, 72, Of Springbrook Fatally Burned

Home and Contents Are Completely Destroyed

Springbrook, Sept. 29 —Carried from his blazing home in an unconscious condition early today, John Forsythe, 72, retired railwayman, died in Belleville General Hospital shortly after admission.

The central-village home of Forsythe was completely destroyed with its contents by fire which swept through the structure shortly after six o'clock this morning.

Reg. McKeown, local garage owner and Harry Lumley, store proprietor, assisted by neighbors rushed into the blazing building and brought the fatally-burned elderly man out. He was clad in his underwear and is believed to have been overcome by smoke after arising and dressing.

He was attended by Dr. William Cornett who immediately ordered the injured man to hospital.

The deceased was alone in his home at the time, Mrs. Forsythe and a granddaughter being in North Bay visiting relatives. The latter had left the night before.

Forsythe was a retired employee of the Canadian National Railways, having worked as section foreman and since his retirement was employed at road construction work.

The fire which is said to have broken out suddenly was first noticed by Ed Bateman of this village who put in an alarm. Villagers rushed to the scene but the flames had made rapid headway preventing all efforts to bring it under control. Neighbors worked valiantly in confining the fire from spreading to adjacent buildings.

Red China Says U.S. Plans Attack On North Korea

Tokyo, Sept. 29—(AP)— The red China radio said tonight the United States has wrecked the Kaesong cease-fire talks and is planning amphibious landings in North Korea.

The broadcast, monitored here, said landings were planned along both the east and west coasts.

The radio continued: "In order to conquer the whole of North Korea, the Americans have decided to train five more divisions, five for the navy and two for the Chinese forces to the Yalu River and bomb the communist bases in Manchuria."

There was no immediate comment by allied officials in Tokyo.

The envelopes, police said, contained suicide messages. Howard was taken to hospital in serious condition.

Allied Planes Hit Many Red Trucks

U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Sept. 29 (AP)—Allied planes today roared through Korean skies in attacks on an estimated 1,000 communist vehicles.

The road traffic apparently was substituted for rail troop movements, disrupted by air attacks.

The main masses of trucks were spotted between Sariwon and Pyongyang, south of Yangdok and Pyongsan, in those areas trains normally carry the bulk of red supplies for the front.

Later Saturday, a cold steady rain settled over the western Korea front. It blanketed out the air war, and almost all ground action.

Except for a few scattered skirmishes, infantry fronts were huddled in dugouts, trying to keep warm.

The heavy rain clouds were so low it looked like dusk.

United Nations' troops on the central front smashed a strategic hill southeast of Kumsong, and repulsed 10 counter-attacks littered the hill.

Communists attacked the hill Thursday. They drove off the Allies' Friday.

Other U.N. troops counter - attacked and captured the high ground.

In east-central Korea, the reds buried U. N. soldiers off a 3,000-foot ridge southeast of Kumsong. An Allied counter-attack failed.

The hill was held by captured 3,500-foot peak north of the "Punchbowl" Friday. They were driven off.

The communists forced the Allies into another withdrawal Friday on the east-central front.

Unified Christian Church Seen Greatest Need for Work in China

New York, Sept. 29 (AP)—How good a job did American Protestant missionaries do during their years in China?

"Partly good, partly bad," is in effect, the answer of the mission's aries themselves.

Reports from more than 150 of them, now back home from 30 politically cataclysmic country, were compiled into a book of analysis for the Foreign Missions division of the National Council of Churches, to be published tomorrow.

The missionaries said that they learned these lessons about implanting the Christian faith abroad:

1. That their work should be on behalf of a unified Christian church, rather than promotion of the "replica of western denominational" groups.

2. That the missionary's attitude should be one of a "co-worker in the community" rather than one of "foreigner bringing new way of life" to strangers.

3. That it is necessary to develop churches with local leadership and local support rather than to impose "paternalistic leadership and western customs from the outside."

Churches which have begun on a basis of a simple program, with emphasis on the spiritual, fastest," one missionary's report said.

The missionaries said that gradually they fostered development to improve "national" churches through employment of Chinese principal for mission schools, and Chinese doctors in hospitals.

But the analysis added: "Most of them felt that too many missionaries kept too much control over indigenous institutions, policies, methods and activities."

Contents of Tiger Fort of Jaipur One of Orient's Top Secrets

Jaipur, India, Sept. 29 — (Reuters) — One of the secrets of the Orient is the contents of the Tiger Fort of Jaipur.

This small fortress, on a hill overlooking Jaipur, is said to be stuffed with fabulous loot from the Punjab and Afghan expeditions of the late great Maharajah Mansingh under the Mogul kings.

But no one knows how much or what kind of jewels and precious stones is worth.

A story of mystery, a wild and primitive tribe, armed with cutlasses, muskets and bows and arrows, guards the fort and threatens to allow anyone within four miles of it.

Even the ruling Maharajah may enter the fort only once in his lifetime.

According to tradition, he is blindfolded and led through the fortress walls into the treasure house. There he may pick one object of his choice to take out with him.

The present Maharajah has been in power since 1946. He is reported to have chosen a jewelled bird with diamond eyes, studded with rubies, which is now in the Ranbagh Palace in Jaipur.

Jaipur, a city of 300,000 people, is a famine in Jaipur, some silver was brought out from the fortress' store and given to the people to keep families.

The fortress, about 100 of them, have had the hereditary privilege of guarding the fort for centuries. They live with their families up at the fort and never come down to the city.

Even their food is sent up to them and handed through a carefully guarded gate. They speak a different tongue from the inhabitants of Jaipur, so that there is no means of real contact.

TIMES RECORDED USED TO GOVERN HUNTING HOURS

A tip to potential duck-hunters. The question of what constitutes one half hour before sunrise and one half hour after sunset has been explained by Fish and Wildlife Inspector R. G. Shepherd.

The daily times recorded for sunrise and sunset listed in daily newspapers are used to govern hunting periods locally and conservation officers base this practice in enforcement activities.

NO SKATING AT THE ARENA

At least it was a good try. A city police squad car's loud speaker popped this morning when a feminine voice trickling over telephone wires inquired, "Is there skating in Memorial Arena tonight?"

Turn Clocks Back

The last warning! If you get in an hour too early for that sermon or the golf date — don't say you were not told about it. Officially you are asked to set the family clocks back at midnight tonight just one hour. If you are a night-hawk, wait until you get home, providing it's before six a.m.

If you are a home body set the clocks back any time you like after dinner and enjoy an extra hour at your favorite home recreation.

If you are an alarm-clock hater, wait until Sunday morning to morrow morning, then with an accompanying suitable gesture, reach for the alarm-shattering ticker and pin his hands back sixty minutes.

In any event, daylight saving ends tonight — and don't say you weren't warned.

Bryson Leslie Gives Report On Convention

Bryson Leslie, president of the Y's Men's Club and official delegate of the club to Y's Men's International Convention in Cleveland this summer, brought to the local club a summary of the convention as the feature of the weekly meeting held in the Y.M.C.A. Thursday night. Y's man Ross Booth who acted as chairman for the meeting introduced and expressed the thanks of the members for the very fine and painstaking report president Leslie presented.

The International convention was held in conjunction with the centennial celebrations of the Y.M.C.A. Past president Gerry Hyde and Y's man Don Leslie were also local delegates, while Al Davis attended the centennial convention.

22 delegates from overseas were in attendance. Many of these persons were present due to the generosity of Y's men throughout Canada and the United States who contributed money to what is known throughout Y circles as the Bishop's Fund. A Canadian, Y's man, Ernest Bell and his wife Miss Clarinton have been the focal point of millions of stamps gathered by Y's men in all parts of the country. By "soaking, sorting and selling" this couple has realized $2,500 for the Bishop's Fund by means of which they are able to transport goodwill throughout the world". Tribute was paid by Y's men to this couple at the convention in the form of a silver platter in recognition of their labors.

20-Page Report

Another person whose work was recognized for the club's president Leslie was Henry D. Grimes who along with his wife has kept the records of Y'sdon for well over 20 years, during which time he has been International Secretary-Treasurer. His 29 page report covered Y'sdon activities in all parts of the country. His analysis made mention of several problems facing the Y's Men's movement among which were, the loss of clubs; the thousands of communities without clubs, how many clubs in lethargy and a few clubs which were dynamic.

The Belleville club stood high in matter of strength and members being the third largest in its region of 26 clubs.

Former local Y's man Rev. Don Amos, now member-at-large from Toronto, was honored as song leader for the convention in which president Leslie said he had won high praise of everyone by his abilities. Rev. Amos was also one of four persons on the platform in the Cleveland convention auditorium before over 6,500 delegates to the Y.M.C.A. convention to close the meeting with the benediction following a challenging address by the fighting senator from Illinois, Paul Douglas.

Force For Good

President Leslie indicated that 411 active clubs throughout the world could be a tremendous force for good, improved understanding and fellowship. Having heard with what enthusiasm, Y's men in countries such as the Philippines, faced the future, he felt that Y's men at home were not doing the job of which they were capable.

Quoting from the report of Henry Grimes the speaker reminded his fellow club members that Y's men were of and for the Y.M.C.A. its objectives and its program. It was the service club of the Y.M.C.A. which organized the volunteer service which Y's men can offer it its objectives are to be reached. By the same token he concluded, Y's men must realize that they represent the traditions, standards and high ideals of the Y.M.C.A. and therefore must be ever concerned to see that in no way do they bring on the association any disgrace by their action or inaction.

Democracy in Action

Y'sdom, he concluded, is Christian democracy in action. Together the Y's mens' club and the Y.M.C.A. must seek to uphold the purposes of building a Christian character in its membership. President Leslie, one of the leadership given at the convention by two other Canadians, Rev. Dave Johnson, Regional Director of Kitchener and Joe Cornell Y.M.C.A. general secretary of Kitchener. The latter's address "The Pendulum Swings" was one of the most challenging of the entire convention. 63 Ontario delegates were among the nearly 1,000 enrolled at the convention. Canada will entertain the convention next summer in Banff when a Canadian will likely be named International President.

Jewry Celebrates Beginning Of New Year Tomorrow

Added significance will mark the traditional prayers for the King of Belleville Jewry during Rosh Hashana, the Hebrew New Year which begins Sunday at sunset, or this year at 6:52 p. m.

At that minute the Jewish calendar year 5712 will be ushered in. It is counted from the traditional date of the creation of the world and is based on the revolution of the moon around the earth. It is astronomically correct.

Rosh Hashana begins with the blowing of the Ram's Horn, or Shofar, Jewry celebrates its New Year, not with turkey and mince pie, but honey and apples. Their greeting at New Year's wish is "May we all be inscribed in the book of long life and happiness."

Impressive Prayer

The prayer for the King is simple yet impressive in its sincerity. "He whose Kingdom is a Kingdom of all Ages." Jewry believes the servant David from the evil sword; He who opened a road through the sea and a path through the mighty waters, may He bless and protect, help and exalt our Sovereign King George VI and the entire Royal Family."

Shortly before sunset Sunday, Belleville and district Jews will gather at the Pinnacle Street Synagogue. The blowing of the Shofar and the reading of the Torah, a scripture scroll of five books of Moses, will usher in one of the most sacred Hebrew holidays.

Rosh Hashanah also ushers in the Ten Days of Penitence which culminate in Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, on October 10. Both Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur are known as Tremendous Nov'in or Days of Awe.

During the Ten Days of Penitence each person is given the opportunity to improve his life through penitence, prayer and deeds of righteousness. Thus a new leaf is turned over in the Book of Remembrance and a New Year is begun on a clean page.

Theatre Guild Advances Plans For Active Season

More than 60 members of the Belleville Theatre Guild met in the Council Chamber of the City Hall on Thursday night, and, after inspecting the space in the old auditorium which Mayor R. T. Potter and Council had kindly offered to make available for them and expressed their deep gratitude for the courtesy.

As a result of the new arrangements and since the City Hall was not available on Tuesdays, it was decided that future meetings would take place on the first and third Wednesdays of every month. The next meeting was scheduled to satisfy almost everyone.

After the President, Mrs. W. J. Doyle, had dealt with several items of business, Mrs. W. J. Hardine, executive member, gave an introductory talk entitled "What is Acting?" in which she discussed the relationship between the actor and the director, and the elements of good technique. After dealing with such abstruse matters as the difference between being "natural" and outlining the importance of such things as "timing" and make-up which will be dealt with more fully later in the season, Mrs. Hardine concluded her very talk by giving the 20 basic rules of action, rules which all should observe, novice and expert alike.

Mrs. Doyle announced the titles of the three plays which with the selection committee had chosen for performance next December. "The Voice of the People," a satirical comedy by famous Canadian playwright Robertson Davies is to be directed by Mr. Sid Rose; Mrs. Jardine will direct a drama entitled "Ida Mae" and a light comedy, 'Bird on the Wing' directed by Mr. Murray Irwin will complete the line. The directors each gave brief accounts of the plots and characterizations of their plays and called for volunteers to try out for parts the next Guild meeting, as well as for assistant directors to help with the complex task ahead of them.

The interest and enthusiasm of all present was a marked feature of the gathering and as most gratifying to the founders of this new Belleville venture. However it is felt that there are still many other citizens interested in various aspects of the stage who have as yet taken no part in the Guild's activities and it is hoped that they will come forward to help in this worthwhile attempt to put the name of Belleville indelibly on the theatrical map of Canada.

Many Denominations Unite to Hold Belleville Bible Sunday Tomorrow

Canon J. B. Creegan, president of the Belleville Bible Society, has announced that Belleville Bible Sunday will be held tomorrow.

Rev. H. K. Young, district secretary, Upper Canada Bible Society, has co-operated with the local committee in arranging for speakers in Belleville churches.

The society has been instrumental in the translating of the Bible into almost 800 languages out of a world total of more than 900 languages. Raised type for the blind is printed in 40 languages by the society.

World distribution of the Scripture is estimated at more than 31,000,000 copies last year. Dr. Frank Laubach claims that an additional 25,000,000 copies yearly will be required for the next number of years.

The Bible Society is to provide the Scriptures for every man in his own tongue and translated the Scriptures as widely as possible.

Although denominations work in collaboration with the society and are dependent upon it for the translations in their own missionary work.

Some of the speakers will be

Rev. A. E. Armstrong will be the speaker at the open meeting which will be held at 8.30 Sunday in the Tabernacle United Church.

Shalom From Israel

By Leo H. Marcus

Editor's Note.—The author, Leo H. Marcus, is a Belleville student who is now in Israel on a scholarship tour. He will spend several months there and in this interesting land each week will contribute an article on his observations and impressions of which this is the first.

ARTICLE 1

(Special to The Ontario Intelligencer)

Jerusalem, Sept. 21.—On Tuesday, Sept. 18, eighteen Jewish youths from Canada and the United States boarded an ELAL Israel National Airline Constellation in New York City. ELAL planes hold 58 passengers, are well-equipped in every respect, and fly from New York to Israel. The Hebrew words "EL AL" mean upwards.

After crossing the State of New York we proceeded across Nova Scotia and from there to Gander, Newfoundland. We were all surprised to see this lovely airport situated in such rugged country. Our plane glopped at Gander for an hour.

Our Constellation was flying at an altitude of 17,000 feet when we crossed the Atlantic Ocean and since it was a cloudy day, we could not see the water. At 4.30 the morning, London, England, was reached there for about two hours.

Beautiful Country

As we flew over England I was impressed by the beauty of the country. The people of England are well laid out and all the land seems to have been utilized as we could not make out any waste area from the air. On leaving England we were thrilled to see the white cliffs of Dover which all of us had read and heard so much about.

The third stop on our trip was Paris. In the few hours the city we all noted its beauty as seen from the air and we were able to pick out a few distinguished land marks, notably the Eiffel Tower. At the Paris airfield we were served famous French pastry. It was interesting to note the high prices there. A American chocolate bar costs 25c. We were also surprised to find the number of French francs that could be bought for an American dollar.

Taking off from Paris we crossed the French Alps and were able to get a good view of them. Many of them have snow on their peaks and we were all struck by their height and ruggedness. Leaving the Alps behind, we headed out over the blue Mediterranean. The passengers on the plane got a good look at the islands of Corsica and Crete. These islands are quite hilly and most of the inhabitants live on the coast.

Arrive At Destination

At a quarter to nine in the evening, Israel time, we could see the lights of Tel Aviv, Israel. (Do not note that Israel time is seven hours ahead of Canadian standard time). From the air Tel Aviv looks like a huge city with its thousands of lights. Ten minutes later our plane touched Israel soil at Lydda airport. Lydda has the largest air base in the Middle East.

As soon as we landed on Israel, a customs official boarded the plane and his first words were "Shalom chevrim, boruch haboim l'Israel" — Welcome friends to Israel.

After passing through the usual formalities we boarded a bus for Jerusalem. The hour's ride is one that I will always remember. Because the moon was almost full and the heavens were full of stars, we could see most of the landscape.

See Relics Of War

We started for the city on the New Jerusalem Road. It was built during the siege of Jerusalem in the Arab-Israeli war and along its sides may be found many wrecked military vehicles. The first village that we passed through was Lydda. This village was formerly occupied by Arabs, but was evacuated by them during the war. It is now occupied by immigrants coming into Israel and is badly damaged by the artillery pounding that it received during the war.

As we proceeded along the Jerusalem Road we could see the Biblical forests of Judean hills. These hills are rocky and have little vegetation on them. The road is bordered with olive trees and some cactus trees.

The temperature became cooler as we approached the old city. The temperature at night is similar to that of Belleville. At midnight we were in the heart of the Holy City—Jerusalem.

Until I tell you more about Israel in my next article—Shalom from Israel.

BIG DAY FOR O.C.

Europe as I See It

By Raymond R. Canon

THE TEXTILE INDUSTRY

(Article 29)

St. Gallen, Switzerland — (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — It is impossible to speak of textiles in Europe, or for that matter the whole world, without mentioning the name St. Gallen. Possessing a tradition that reaches back to the thirteenth century, this industry continues to play an important role in the life of the canton, employing steadily many thousands of workers.

It owes its survival mainly to the initiative and industry of the merchants of St. Gallen, who, in spite of heavy competition from other countries, maintained a solidly organized administration and promoted the development of new methods and new machinery that took second place to none. Today the textile industry, which is highly decentralized, produces almost every type of cloth imaginable, from the finest material down to the very coarsest.

Foreign Markets Important

The textile industry, like most other Swiss industries, is dependent to a large extent on foreign markets, which take half of their produce being intended for export. France and the United States are perhaps the largest buyers, but a complete list would include almost every country in the world. Sources of information as to consumer demand are established throughout the world, so that the producers here know at least six months to a year ahead what the market for a certain cloth is likely to be.

The versatility of the cloth is also an important factor, since if every buyer wanted a special brand or type, and then only a small quantity, there would be no profit in this. A fabric that a Canadian buyer would purchase in certain colors would be sold as something entirely different in Germany and perhaps something else in the Far East.

It is, of course, a well-known fact in business circles that a good product will sell itself to a certain extent. This versatility that the materials have, and their quality, have all helped to make the market as extensive as it is, and so perhaps the Swiss do not have to indulge in high-pressure salesmanship that is so prevalent in Western circles.

High Standards

Earlier I described the development of the Swiss watch industry and mentioned the pains that were taken to maintain the high standard of workmanship, and the same characteristic in the textile industry here for St. Gallen is not only the location of the many factories, but also of several training schools where students are given a thorough grounding, both practical and theoretical, in the production of textiles. These schools work hand in hand with the producers so that there is no danger of the course becoming out of date.

Longer Working Hours

I think one of the most important topics among workers is the high cost of living, in fact, just about everyone takes an interest in it. The same is true here. In my limited experience as a worker in a factory, I found that labor - management relations were at times good, at times not so good. Many of the workers seemed to feel that wages always lagged behind living costs, and so the unions would press for a wage scaled to the cost of living index.

Having been away now for some time, I am unable to say how the shortening of working hours was combined with rising wages so that everyone was satisfied. Working hours have not been reduced as much as in Canada, so that they do not enter into any negotiations as much.

As far as wages are concerned, there seems to be very little trouble in reaching an agreement here. At least the industry has not been plagued with strikes. Both labor and management have a greater respect for each other than is sometimes the case in Canada.

As far as unions are concerned the industry is rather highly organized. All the locals are represented in a central body. However the employers have their own organization and these two together with the Swiss parliament work out wage policy, hours of work. Any change in this policy must be brought about by the central organizations, but the local unions are free to negotiate for changes lying within the existing agreement.

Workers Not Neglected

In looking at wage rates over the past years, it is quite evident that the workers have certainly not been neglected, for today the relationship between income and the price index is more favorable than it was in pre-war days.

Because of the large number of sections within the textile industry, it is difficult to describe them all. Perhaps nylon is as interesting as any, so we shall take a quick look at that. In the past year it experienced difficulties mainly because of the devaluation of currency. Production fell off until the middle of the year, when the outbreak of war in Korea, the rearmament program, and the organization of the European Payments Union all made for an increase in demand, and new uses were found for nylon, among them being the use of nylon cord in the making of automobile tires. At present about two-thirds of all production along this line is intended for export.

Some Obstacles

The future for this industry looks rather good, but there is perhaps one drawback. Free trade would be a great help to the Swiss, but because of the protectionist policy of many countries, trade is not as large as it might be. India is one of the worst offenders in this respect, charging no less than a 60 per cent ad valorem rate, while the U.S., which is a large market, charges only about 30 per cent.

Canada, by the way, has a relatively moderate policy, but does not provide a very large market, since it presents Switzerland buys about twice as much from Canada as we do from Switzerland. Canadian buyers, from the air and we were able to

WHO'S SPENDING TOO MUCH?

Bank managers say that the credit restrictions imposed by the federal government some time ago are becoming really effective — that is, they are preventing large numbers of people from buying things they need, or think they need.

It is unfortunate that the individual bank managers and accountants are often blamed by would-be borrowers for something over which they have no control. The Bank of Canada, which is merely an agency of the federal government, told the banks to limit the extension of credit, and the banks were required to do so.

If the economists who guide the politicians are right in their belief that preventing the spending of large sums of money is going to halt inflation — and no one is suggesting that they are wrong — it is too bad that the advice of the economists is not heeded by some of those individuals who have control of spending the largest sums of money that are spent in this country.

Mr. Ilsley, however great his wealth or prodigality, can or does have the privilege of spending hundreds of millions annually.

WOMEN BARBERS NEXT?

Despite the fact that both shaves and haircuts have advanced in price materially in the last few years, the barbering trade claims it is having difficulty in finding replacements for retiring members, and young men are offering themselves as apprentice barbers. Since the average age of barbers in Ontario is said to be about 56 years, there are prospects of a more severe shortage of barbers in a few years.

If young men do not wish to become barbers, why can't the master barbers who are looking for apprentices try young women? There is said to be at least one efficient young woman barber in Saskatoon. Perhaps this was by barber shops in Saskatoon had several. They all were able to do the job as well as the men. Perhaps there are other Canadian towns and cities with women barbers. There are many women working at the allied trade of hairdressing.

If the women should take over barbering, as they have already done with many occupations at one time regarded as purely masculine, the traditional atmosphere of a good many of the old-time barber shops may have to change. But perhaps that would be just as well.

SOMETHING WRONG

In order that there would not be a butter famine next winter, the Canadian government not long ago purchased three million pounds of butter from New Zealand at 62 cents a pound.

But it has been disclosed from London that the New Zealanders have been selling butter to the government of Great Britain at 45 cents a pound.

Some explanation would appear to be in order. Are the British Liberties better bargainers than Rt. Hon. James G. Gardiner, or whoever else does the negotiating for Canada? Do the New Zealanders feel that socialist Britain cannot afford to pay as high a price as Canada, which is regarded in socialistic circles as one of the plutodemocratic heavens of capitalist imperialism?

In any event, it looks as if Canadian consumers who purchase this New Zealand butter are, in effect, subsidizing British consumers.

"Everyone who, while his ability to drive a motor vehicle or automobile is impaired by alcohol or any drugs, drives any motor vehicle or automobile, or has care or control of a motor vehicle or automobile, whether it is in motion or not, is guilty of an offence and liable, upon summary conviction or upon conviction under indictment.

SIDEWALK CAFE PERILS

(Edmonton Journal)

A British lord is all for more sidewalk cafes in London. This effort to make Paris bow low might have some chance of success if it weren't for the beastly fog. Imagine stumbling over a loaded table on what was thought to be a clear, if invisible stretch of sidewalk, or even swallowing some of the murk in mistake for the local coffee?

HAPPY ELEVEN

Sing "Happy Birthday," again and again,
Elleen Elizabeth steps out of ten.
Tinkle your milk glass and tap on your plate;
Elleen's eleven, and this is the date.
Add one more candle. Have never a doubt
She'll make a wish and then blow them all out.

Bring in the presents with gay ribbons bound.
As each is opened shout: "Thank you, Grandma!"
This one from grandpa and that one from dad,
Only one grandma, and that is the sad.
But, the one absent looks down Smiling on Ellen and sending her love.
Sing "Happy Birthday." Oh, this is my prayer:
May she have many and still be as fair.
Blowing out candles a good lifetime through
May every wish on her birthdays come true.
Ellen Elizabeth! Hip! Hip! Hooray!
Age, just eleven! And this is the day.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

KEEP IT QUAINT

I was astounded at the attitude of the people in Victoria when I followed some birds over there yesterday.

People there just refuse to be quaint and progress. They balk at about the new secondary industries that have come in since the war and almost doubled the population. One man even gave me some comparative figures on bank clearings. Everybody's mad for progress.

Especially, the town didn't look much different to me—still about as lovely a burg as any I know—but when I listened to the boosters I felt that some of ye olde charm was being siphoned off, at any moment they might dig up Butchart's Gardens and put in a new glue factory.

Seems to me that these Victorians have got the wrong idea. As I see it, the way to progress is to slip the old town into reverse. If I were mayor I'd get busy and subsidize a few more retired colonels from the British army, replete with Bath Oliver biscuits, stockings and fierce, moustaches. Then the population would be simply isn't good enough, chaps.

I'd import a few Stanley Steamers or some other old electric cars that used to frighten horses. Saw nothing of them yesterday than a 1934 Grey Dort.

Certainly they're going to have to restore the lights on the Empress Hotel. The place is going darker than a 90 watt bulb. A character in sight. I have an ugly suspicion, that those are trees in which they live.

If this keeps up Victoria is going to be another prospering town and not even the gulls will want to go there.

No Tennis

While I was in the city I dropped in to look at the impressive new plant of the Times and Colonist. Did a little progress secret a sorry sort of thing.

Oh, the building is splendid and I particularly pleasant to see some of the Colonist reporters have given their carrels in which they once toiled. Two or three of the older hands still write with their copy paper inches away from the copy paper, but the younger men are getting accustomed to light (that new-fangled stuff) and re-adjusting themselves nobly.

Trouble is that the same outfit now controls both papers and, indeed, the plant carries on in which one pose in several departments. So that Victoria—along with Halifax, Regina, Edmonton and other cities—has become a monopoly newspaper town. And that ain't good.

Sort of like seeing a boxing match, knowing that the opponents are brothers.

Other World

I spent the afternoon doing some research in the provincial archives and baby, that's the place for you if you feel that the pulse of life have speeded up a little too much.

The archives are in the heart of the Parliament Buildings, cushioned from the noisy world by grey stone walls, isolated by a moat of deep time.

One of the efficient staff, moving about as noiselessly as a Ballet dancer, brought me a great stack of books on my subject and I was off down the corridor of years, clear back to the late nineteenth century. My! that's a pleasant place to go.

The atmosphere in these high-ceilinged rooms, filled with the marvellous old junk of the past, is perfectly suited for the man who likes to get interested in a Stanley Steamer ride to the past than a rocket ride to the moon.

On a table beside the desk where I was working was a great number of odd objects, several cannon balls, some snowshoes, a model of an ancient ship, some Indian utensils made of stone. Friday, get about better on the ten hours of lawn bowling each week that I'm going to do. I'll be set at home waiting for something to happen.

In one or perhaps half a dozen momentary lapses of conscientiousness I had some of us eight years ago—I still have no idea what allied me and I no longer care—and, this is to say, I thought: "Well, I'm not coming back this time." That's all—then blank—and I'm right up at the breakfast.

For most people death, I am sure, is like that. It is not the dying one who suffers—it is the survivors. Especially those of us strangers who read or hear of his departure.

A nice kind Southern lady writes a letter that pleases me and she doesn't ask for much in thing. She merely thanks me for benefits she has received from this column, and she applies a few of them. In closing she hopes I will never withdraw my column from the paper.

Since Tony was a pup my column has, daily, been my departure out from a good many papers, but I have not withdrawn it. The truth is that I am a little ashamed of the manner of my departure from the Belleville scene, as evidenced by the foot of the editor, publisher or advertising manager.

Oh, yes, indeed, I have tried

THE MANNER OF MY DEPARTURE

Since the editor of a newspaper away up in the north woods, the gullible fellow, informed his readers that I still grind out my stuff 363 days in the year although I have been under the sod these many years, I have been thinking, when I had nothing else to do, about what would be the best way to go.

There was the casual way one of my cronies on the bowling green took off. He had been absent for several months on account of a bit of a stroke. One day he visited the green and, just the behest of a well known quack who infests the blessed place, decided to risk a game to get his hand in again. He delivered one wood (as they say in Richard) and fell dead. No one could comment that it was a good shot for a young fellow; the man sank down and turned up his toes. The quack is hard boiled about it maintains the best kind of ending for bowler.

3½ pound bowl on a billiard table green has possibilities. But with the man's departure, As for that, it is my studied opinion that many a man who has had one or more strokes or one or more attacks of coronary thrombosis thereafter enjoys a good deal better than he did before. There are some documents of early days. Across the room, speaking from the shelves, is Mr. B. A. McKelvie was telling someone about his Indian mummy discoveries of days ago.

It was a shame to come out again into the real world and I was very nearly run down by a truck.

The Stanleys

At 11:45 in the morning, walking along Michigan Street, minding my own business, I found myself thinking about the best, beautiful women. Gave me a bit of a turn.

Then Addie, most of whom appeared to be in their 20's, had entered the world bearing Instant Postum in a bright cackle of talk and laughter, bound for their home.

I was aware of their speculative glances at my face and figure and had the uneasy feeling that I deer must get on the day the hunting season opened. This was before me, no matter of conceit but merely the awful knowledge that nine out of 10 of these government gals are after a man and a few of them are after me.

Whistling tonelessly and with hooded eyes, I ducked into the nearest side street.

often enough to withdraw my service when editing and proofreading and literary and factual errors have driven me wild. But I never have carried through, because my counsellor and guide, my friend and defender, Jack Dille of National Hockey League fame, has always shown me the wisdom of remaining in the paper that has raised my hackle.

The benefits mentioned by the Southern lady are available to all readers who want them, as follows:

For instructions for preparing and using the fool proof cough medicine send 25c. and stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask for booklet Call It C-K-C.

For instructions for making The Iodin Ration, which I think every man, woman and child needs, send stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask for it.

For the home book Nerves and Nutrition send stamped self-addressed envelope and 25c. Likewise for Arthritis and Reducing.

For any of the following pamphlets send stamped self-addressed envelope and name the pamphlet—if you ask for more than one pamphlet, enclose for each additional pamphlet you want:

Why Have Headache, Examination, Cure and Prevention of Asthma, Pruritus (Itching without apparent cause), Ivy Poisoning, Shaking Palsy (Parkinson's Disease), Varicose Veins and Phlebitis, Ringing in Head (Tinnitus (dead noises), Acne (pimples and blackheads), Xcne (A Relief for Allergy), How to Sleep (insomnia), Hernia, Hemorrhoids (Piles), Young Folks and Old Folks (how to stay young), How to Gain Weight, Adult Pep (up again and grow in legs and feet), Running Ear, Hearing Aids.

Hygiene for Girls, The Menopause, The Gray Sickness (deficiency disease), Low Blood Pressure (hypotension), Prostatic Obstruction (bladder trouble in men), Bad Breath, Bed-Wetting Habit, Somersaultaugua — how to fix tobacco, or it would be if so many old cadgers on the bowling green were not constitutionally opposed to haying their own.

Ontario Apples Can Meet Citrus Fruit Competition

(An Editorial in The Owen Sound Sun-Times)

Grown in large quantities right in the district, the apple's main competitors are citrus fruits from South, California and Florida, in the form of the citrus fruit.

But, until the growers of oranges and grapefruit can produce something that is as tasty and satisfying as apple pie and good, plain applesauce, we could be convinced that the apple will continue a great favorite with the general public. At the same time, one cannot help but be picked. The citrus fruits are a much more popular on a year-round basis than they used to be.

Apples are pretty well a seasonal fruit, with a long stretch of the year when they are hard to sale . . . this despite extensive cold storage facilities. Oranges, and grapefruit too, however, can be found on the store shelves at practically any time. When the actual fruit is not being promotionally displayed, canned juice is available, having public in great quantities.

Citrus fruit juice is admittedly more popular with the buying public than apple juice. This may be largely due to sales methods. For instance, the canned fruit is actually better than the home-grown product. There seems to be more to orange juice or grapefruit juice than apple juice. We don't mean to run down the competitive food, values of the two, but, unless apple juice is greatly outranked, we feel that the apple producers would advertise the comparatively low buying public would know.

We have often wondered, however, if the lack of publicity of the apple juice hasn't something to do with the fact that it is "weak sister" compared to the citrus fruit juice. Perhaps the apple-juice manufacturers should be so careful in straining all the pulp from the juice. Perhaps they should add acids which are culls due to size and variety.

Then, too, the methods of merchandising citrus fruit juice are superior to those employed in promoting apple sales. Citrus fruit products spend large sums of money to get the public to buy their product.

Oranges, in particular, are kept constantly before the buying public as a health food. They are displayed most prominently in stores. But not so the apple, relegated to a comparatively humble position.

Then, too, is the matter of quality. A good apple should be sound, giving off a snapping sound when you bite into it. It should have sufficient juice to quiet into the eater's eye occasionally. The Red Delicious, in such a condition it should be stored in a cool place for a few days after picking. The two main varieties here, the Northern Spies and the McIntosh Reds, should be picked when there is frost in the air. A few frosts before picking are said to be the finest. Both are very delightful eating, each with its own flavor. Most come first, and is the best eating around Christmas. Then comes the Spies, that reached perfection early in the winter. If kept in proper cold storage, these varieties will last from season to season, though this is very seldom the case.

But that is for eating as a fresh fruit. In cooking, there are many other ways of enjoying this favorite fruit of the district. For the best pie-making, for instance, many have been feasting on green apples . . . made up in pie. Seldom, they will give violent pains about the midriff. Cut in thin, crisp slices and put in between flaky crusts with just enough sugar (and we don't mean much) and they are delicious beyond words. Ripe apples make good pies at any time. But green apples are even better. Perhaps it is because they are the first of the good-old-fashioned apple sauce. It has to be light, almost fluffy, to be "weak sister" compared to the citrus fruit juice. Perhaps the apple-juice manufacturers should be so careful in straining all the pulp from the juice. Perhaps they should add acids which are culls due to size and variety.

But a word of warning in conclusion. Make sure the apples you buy are sound. In fact, do get the best. Don't settle for the mediocre. Don't be satisfied with poor apples. Remember that when you buy green . . . and still tastes green when the consumer gets it. It has no flavor, and, as a result will give the fruit a bad name.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Every once in a while, everybody who can read, and think about it, should read the first few pages of Henry Thoreau's "Walden"; and at least get as far as the unforgettable passage in which Thoreau says the mass of mankind lead lives of "quiet desperation." Though written more than a hundred years ago, Walden was as fresh as though written today. It's a sense of desperation we have a spring still in out, or starting eagerly in the windows; the desperation of the human mind; if it, as you'walk, you meet the men and women returning home from work, and look at their tired and pleasant faces, you get a sense of the incredible loneliest in life that pulses eternally in the human species. But you don't get it all, but must before you get the full implication of the deathless beauty of life itself.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LUGGAGE

How very few of us ever travel with light equipage. We overload ourselves, go on our journey, are overburdened by it, harassed by the burden of all that we take—and when we return from our outing we discover we are taking back with us more than we took on going—and we wonder why we do such a thing!

It's because we are just human, and almost all of us get away from the idea that this is the way of all flesh. Luggage! Note the number of those with heaps of luggage at railroad stations, in automobiles at hotels, and in the declamations of those who return from their journey in search of relief, chuck of disgust at their own foolishness!

Now and over I have made the decision that on my next journey I shall carry only light luggage, but when I am ready for another adventure I carry the same overweight and learn nothing from my experiences. We really need so little to give us enjoyment. Two things we are forced to put on the old things that had become familiar to me, and let it go at that. I was happiest that way.

The late Bob Davis travelled all over the face of this great globe with hardly more than a toothbrush. He regarded this bag to one of his closest friends and one day we talked about it. He could produce a little of the experiences that that bag had encountered, and I guess most of the labels, tags from hotels and places covering thousands of miles, would make the world history stories this matchless narrator in words had told to me, that bag was a friend to me as I looked upon it. Light luggage takes you so much happier.

And when it comes to luggage how about the excess baggage we have around with us but our minds from day to day—worries about things that never happen, things learned that we never do anything about, and fears that are groundless? Sometimes I think we learn to carry light luggage by this sort of curse as after a time we can discard heavy luggage when we learn to live. But why don't we do it?

Canadian Legion Invited to Prove Charges Laid

Toronto, Sept. 29 (CP) — The Department of Veterans Affairs today invited the Canadian Legion to prove charges of "sausage-mill" treatment of war veterans in D.V.A. hospitals.

The charges were levelled in St. Catharines Thursday night by Arthur Padbury, chairman of the Legion's Provincial Service Bureau, at a meeting of Legion members from four Niagara district centres. Some 250 Legionnaires attended the meeting with two Members of Parliament in the audience.

Veterans Minister Lapointe in Ottawa said the "proper facility" would be provided the Legion for an investigation, if that body's executive felt that such was required. Mr. Lapointe said:

"We feel confident that they will find that nowhere is there a better standard of treatment for veterans than at Sunnybrook Hospital."

Mr. Padbury's allegations concerned chiefly the huge, 1,200-bed Sunnybrook Hospital in North York, on Toronto's northern outskirts. He termed it little better than "a school for Toronto University medical students." But his criticism was extended to Westminster Hospital in London, Ont.

Complaints Made

Mr. Padbury's complaints:

An "unprecedented number" of suicides had occurred at Sunnybrook in the last 18 months and that no investigation had been made.

Medical treatment was of the "sausage-mill variety." Something was "push in at one end and how it comes out the other—God only knows."

Patients both in Sunnybrook and in Westminster received less regard than animals in public world of civilian hospitals.

Patients in Sunnybrook were "guinea pigs for the teaching of medical science."

T. A. Hulse, president of the Legion's Provincial Command, said he had not known that Mr. Padbury was going to make his St. Catharines speech. A regular meeting of the Command Administrative Committee would be held today "from which a statement may emanate on Mr. Padbury's address."

Statement By Minister

Mr. Lapointe said in a statement:

"The Department has endeavored to set up facilities for treatment to all its veterans' hospitals of which Sunnybrook is the largest and newest, of a standard equal to the best civilian hospitals.

"The American Hospital Association and the American College of Surgeons Grade Hospitals where teaching is practised and have given Sunnybrook the grading 'A', which is the highest.

"Both Mr. Lapointe and his deputy, Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, said suicides had occurred at Sunnybrook, but denied Mr. Padbury's charge that these were not investigated. Each had been looked into and each referred to the coroner, "who decided that no inquests were necessary."

Dr. W. J. Wardell, director-general of medical services for D.V.A., said denial of the "official mention in Mr. Padbury's speech, said there have been about one suicide in Sunnybrook since it opened five years ago. "Statistically, there isn't a thing we can do to forestall cases such as these," he said. "There is no warning." Older men, who had become despondent were the suicides.

At London, Lt.-Col. W. Eric Harris, district D.V.A. administrator, termed Mr. Padbury's charges "untrue".

Tone and Payton Married In Simple Ceremony

Cloque, Mlm., Sept. 28 (AP)—Franchot Tone of the movie last night married Barbara Payton, the film starlet over whom affections he fought with Tom Neal two weeks ago in Hollywood.

The film couple spoke their vows in a simple, white frame house in the presence of only a few relatives and friends.

"I never felt better in my life" said Tone, still bearing a bloodshot eye and swollen lips from the Neal affray.

The bride and Tone left immediately with the wedding party of 15 for a dinner at some undisclosed place.

It was the third marriage for both Tone and Miss Payton. The actor first married Joan Crawford Oct. 11, 1935, and was divorced in April, 1939. In May, he was wed to Jean Wallace and divorced in 1947. She now is Mrs. Cornell Wilde. Tone had two sons by his second marriage, Pascal 7, and Tom 5.

Miss Payton was married in 1944 to William Hodge, Lubbock, Texas, but that union was annulled. Later, in February, 1945, she married John Payton, a Burlington, Iowa, ice salesman, while he was a member of the air force at Monroe, La.

Mining Men Uncertain of Effect Free Market Will Have for Gold

Ottawa, Sept. 29 — (CP) — Long sought by the gold-mining industry, Canada now has the right to sell gold on the world's free market, but mining men still are not sure how much of a blessing this is going to be.

Full freedom in gold transactions was allowed Canada and 48 other member countries of the International Monetary Fund when the Fund officially lifted its curbs against selling fabricated gold. Gold processed primarily for industrial purposes — for more than the official rate of $35 (U.S.) an ounce.

South Africa, which hasn't been abiding by the restriction, has sold gold for as high as $51 (U.S.) an ounce on the "premium industrial" markets.

The extent to which the federal government will allow Canada's gold industry — with an annual production worth $140,000,000 — to reach this free market is expected to be decided at a cabinet meeting early next week.

The cabinet may also decide what to be done about subsidies which it has been paying out to keep marginal mines from folding. Started in 1948, the subsidies have cost the government about $10,000,000 a year.

In Toronto, financial circles greeted the fund's curb-lifting with a mixture of cheer and caution. Generally the opinion was that it all depended on the degree of free-trading permitted and whether subsidies were to be continued.

The next move was up to the federal government.

Premier Frost of Ontario said the change wouldn't cure the problems of the industry but it represented a more realistic approach.

C. Wansbrough, executive vice-president and managing director of the Canadian Metal Mining Association, said:

"The announcement was not unexpected and certainly will be welcomed by some Canadian gold mines.

"Some concern, however, is felt whether the sales of industrial gold on the free market will be sufficient to secure the position of some of the mining companies and their dependent communities which have been strongly supported by government assistance for the past four years."

J. T. Murdoch, president of Kerr-Addison and Noranda mines, said the price of Canadian gold if permitted on the free market would undoubtedly be higher than the fixed rate of $35 an ounce now being paid. But, he added, the government should not use this as an excuse to drop the assistance it now pays gold producers.

"They should continue this aid," he said, "until we see what the premier market is going to be."

Government officials said there were two main problems:

1. The extreme delicacy of the government's position in trying to maintain "a firm hand" over gold exports.

2. The question of returns to the producers in view of the fact the free markets now may be "bid" well above the existing prices down and making benefits to producers "dubious."

Toronto General Needs 10 Million To Complete Plans

Toronto, Sept. 29 (CP) — A goal of $10,000,000 in an appeal for funds to expand and modernize Toronto General Hospital's residence, rededication of outmoded public wards and addition of 600 beds to bring the total to 1,700 which would make it Canada's largest.

Mr. Urquhart said the expansion plan was drawn up after a three year examination of the hospital which was basically planned to serve a city of 323,000, but now served "a vastly increased area 'with nearly three times as many."

WEDDINGS

BARNETT—NICKLE

Baskets of gladioli and potted foliages made a pretty setting for a wedding of interest which took place in the parsonage of Trinity United Church, Marmora, on Saturday, September 22, when Rosemary Dora Eileen, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nickle, was united in marriage to Mr. Ernest Eugene Barnett, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Barnett, of Toronto. Rev. Everett Hobbs officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Miss Nickle, of Bethesda-ough, was soloist, and Mrs. Nickle Wells, of Toronto, was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a cocktail-length gown of white Chantilly lace over white satin; her three-quarter length veil was caught to a Queen Anne headdress. She carried a cascade of white and red roses and stephanotis.

She was attended by her two sisters, Edith and Doris, who chose similar gowns of orchid and aqua nylon with matching flower headdress. They carried cascades of red roses and white gladioli.

The groom was supported by his brother Mr. Kenneth Barnett, of Toronto. Ushers were the cousins of the bride and groom, Mr. Bill Nickle and Mr. Alfred Barnett, of Malone.

At the reception held in the church parlors, the bride's mother received in a dress of gray crepe and lace with corsage of pink roses and blue stephanotis with black accessories. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore pale blue sheer with white accessories and corsage of pink roses and white stephanotis.

Following the reception, the young couple left for a trip to Montreal and eastern points, the bride travelling in a burnt orange gabardine suit with matching hat and black accessories. On their return they will reside in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Culloden Celebrate 56th Anniversary

Fifty-six years ago, in the Parish Church at Leeds, England, the Rev. A. D. Tupper-Carey united in marriage Elizabeth Beveridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Beverley, to James Culloden, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Culloden, Leeds, Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Culloden are quietly, with the immediate family present, celebrating the anniversary of this happy event, at their home, on Front Street.

After leaving England, they settled in Toronto, where Mr. Culloden was connected with the hydro-electric for eight and one half years. Later, they moved to Belleville, opening up a fish and chip business on Front Street, familiarly known as "Jessa Fish and Chips". They have resided in the city for the past 24 years.

Mr. Culloden served for five years overseas in the World War I under General Allenby, receiving but a minor wound. He lost a brother, Arthur, there, and Mrs. Culloden also a brother, William, who died in England following the conflict.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Culloden are enjoying splendid health in spite of their 77 and 74 years, respectively. Mr. Culloden, now retired, enjoys both reading and fishing, though concerning the latter occupation, says that he was not always successful in landing his quarry. Mrs. Culloden is also an avid reader, especially enjoying the Ontario Intelligencer. She is also a fine housekeeper, and an excellent cook.

They have ten children, six of whom are living: five sons, John, who spent five years in the Royal Navy, now retired in England; Alfred, Percy, James, who also spent five years in the Imperial Army and six years in the R.C.A.F., now of Toronto, also; Arthur, who spent five years overseas with the Post Office staff, here, and Edwin, also of Belleville; one daughter, Mrs. Annie Hooper, of Belleville, with children and two great grandchildren.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Culloden on reaching their 56th milestone of wedded happiness and sincere wishes for many more years together.

Women Asked To Make More Sacrifices

Regina, Sept. 28. (CP)—Members of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church in Canada will be asked to make more personal sacrifices to provide an extra $10,000 in 1951-52.

Mrs. G. R. Fye yesterday laid before the Dominion Council of the Society, holding its annual meeting here, a budget calling for $210,000.

"It is a great privilege to be a member of the W.M.S.," she said. "But it is just as great a responsibility for each member.

"We are being asked to do what seems impossible today but if Christ is with us nothing that we attempt to do in His Name is impossible."

The council meeting, which opened Sept. 25, ended last night. Mrs. Arthur W. Pye, of Toronto, was re-elected president.

Miss Laura K. Pelton, overseas executive secretary, described a new method of providing missionary workers for overseas.

"Instead of sending Canadians abroad, young people are being brought to Canada and given training in theology, medicine and pedagogy," she said.

Five missionaries now were being trained in this way by the W.M.S. She mentioned specifically Rev. Wenchi Kim who will return to Japan in November after two years in the Dominion.

Miss Pelton said there is great need for modern mechanical equipment for overseas missions. Two motor vehicles had been sent to India for use as travelling clinics. She had enlisted the church to provide medical treatment for many thousands of jungle-dwellers.

But many of these primitive people still were under the influence of witch doctors. To serve them adequately, at least three more travelling clinics were needed.

There also was need of visual-education equipment, including projectors, screens and sound equipment.

One missionary, Mary Sherrick of Weyburn, Sask., who is working in India, reported need for farm equipment. She was training the people in better farm practices.

Miss Pelton said another missionary, Margaret Kennedy of Montreal, had done much to teach Indian women spinning, sewing, weaving, better health practices and cooking.

More than 100 delegates attended the council meeting, the first held in Regina.

Mrs. W. Finkle, district chairman, welcomed the mothers and encouraged them to attend the coming meeting.

Mr. C. I. Frederick and Mr. E. Bateman entertained the members of their staff to the guests.

Potatoes Not More Fattening Than Other Food

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The Irish must have had the right idea—they emigrated when they couldn't get enough potatoes to eat at home.

Now the Canadian Fruit Wholesalers Association comes up with what could be interpreted as an explanation for Ireland's historic dependence on spuds—the tuber is an "energy food," says the C.F.W.A. More than just starch the vegetable contains protein, minerals and vitamins.

Finally, if mother thinks cutting potatoes out of her diet means cutting down on her weight —she had better think again.

Health department officials say that 100 calories of potatoes are no more fattening than 100 calories of anything else. In fact, a slice of bread contains about the same calorie content as a medium sized baked or boiled potato.

Potato Cheese Puff

Last night's mashed potatoes always can be turned into tonight's potato cheese puff.

Ingredients: One cup grated cheese; two cups mashed potatoes; two egg yolks; one-third cup milk; two tablespoons melted fat; one-half teaspoon salt; one-quarter teaspoon pepper; one-eighth teaspoon mustard; two egg whites.

Method: Mix grated cheese thoroughly with potato. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored and combine with milk, fat, salt, pepper and mustard. Add to the potato mixture and beat until smooth. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into a well-greased baking dish set in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) until set, about 40 minutes. Yield: Five to six servings.

Cheese Bits

The Dominion Department of Agriculture is anxious to see that more persons become aware of the many and varied uses of Canadian cheese. In fact it has published any number of cheese recipes to coax housewives to use more cheese in their cooking.

For instance — cheese and cookies.

Ingredients: Three tablespoons butter; 1¼ cups thinly sliced cheddar cheese; one teaspoon salt; dash of pepper; five tablespoons milk; one cup grated cheese.

Melt butter, add sliced onions and cook covered over low heat, stirring occasionally until clear (about five minutes). Place over hot water, blend in flour, salt and pepper. Add milk slowly and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Continue cooking for about five minutes. Add cheese and stir until melted. Garnish with chopped parsley before serving. Yield: six servings.

A friend of ours who is a particularly good cook says she always uses a fork when making scrambled eggs. She claims that whipping the mixture around with a fork instead of a spoon makes the eggs much lighter.

SISTERS ALL

By JEAN LOVE GALLOWAY

It has often been said that since marriage is a partnership, it would be fairer if child-birth were shared by both parents. Many times it is suggested that the bearing of children should be shared alternately by mother and father — Whenever this point comes up, a friend of ours spontaneously quotes her own mother's comment on this plan. She used to say that if child-bearing were shared, she would have the first baby, her husband the second and herself the third and last child of the family.

People Can't Save

No speech was more disappointing to more than the one Mr. St. Laurent broadcast recently on the government's policy of steering clear of price controls. He said the way to lower the cost of living today is for all of us to buy less and save more.

Not only was mama surprised to hear this idea coming from a married man, but she didn't like something in the tone of the prime minister's voice. Up to now, mama has simply adored Mr. St. Laurent. She has fallen for his dignity, his intelligent face, his devotion to the country. But after this last speech of his, mama isn't so sure. Mr. St. Laurent cares as much about the people as she thought he did.

Of course, he has brought in these wonderful old age pensions for everybody at the age of 70, but in other things for people. But somehow, that night of his speech, he didn't sound as if he cared too much about the people of Canada who are really struggling under this high cost of living.

Mama asks how she can save money for bonds when the price of porridge goes up two or three cents every week, or she gets a new package? When a box of ordinary soap suds costs 25 cents, there's no change left to buy a bond. Rent is up, the telephone bill is up, milk is one penny a quart—for a dollar, flour is costly.

Hard to Save on Food

Mama says she could understand the prime minister's suggestion of how to fight inflation, if it were only the luxuries that were expensive. But when the everyday necessities of food and rent and clothes are priced sky high, she can't see what she housewife can do but pay the price and save nothing.

Mama suspected more from the Canadian Association of Consumers which is supposed to be the women's voice at Ottawa. They aren't a voice. They are an echo. Mama can tell you exactly that since 1939 she has been cutting down and cutting. And until she has pared everything to the marrow. She used p... milk, margarine and egg substitute. If meat. Her family has stopped smoking.

Mama can't make pape eat less porridge or Johnny thinner toast. She wants those good old price controls back, or she intends to see more of these Consumers' Credit restrictions are all right, Mr. Prime Minister. But you can't get your porridge on credit, and you can't get much milk on the instalment plan.

NO OFFICIAL INFORMATION

Washington, Sept. 28 (Reuters) —The United States State Department said today that the embassy today said they have received no official information of the reported revolt in Buenos Aires.

One U.S. official said it was too early to decide if the reported revolution was successful or not, on behalf of the Peron government. He noted that President Juan Peron is to seek re-election next month.

Which keeps your velvet dusk dolly-sweet?

Toning in to her neighbour? Nay, nay. Just bouncing her way to streamlined beauty. If you're hippy, bump 'em off—10 minutes daily, against the wall. Stirs up circulation; helps iron over-crowded curves. Improving your figure improves your poise. But keeping poised on problem days depends so much on comfort. Choose Kotex. Made to stay soft while you wear it, Kotex gives softness that holds its shape!

How to prepare for "certain" days?

- ☐ Circle your calendar
- ☐ Buy a new belt ☐ Put up your wardrobe

Before "that" time, be ready! All 3 answers above can help. But to assure extra comfort, buy a new Kotex sanitary belt. Made with soil-stretch elastic—doesn't bind, shorten or stretch. Stays flat, even after many washings. Dries pronto! So don't wait... buy a new Kotex belt now. (Why not buy two—for a change?)

P.S. Have you tried Dubrey? Dubrey's is the new bathroom tissue that's safer because it's softer. A product as superior as Kotex... a name as well-known and absorbent as Kleenex®. (We think that's the nicest compliment we've had!)

I told Bette you would be listening and she confided that it will wear so you can picture her on stage on Monday evening. She said, as an evening gown made entirely of pink tissue.

Just returned from England where she made a picture with Richard Greene, Bette sounded vital and happy. ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Young wife worries over errant husband

Sally Hunt—shall we call her? —is not quite 21. Her husband is 22. They have three children, the oldest just yet three.

As though keeping house and taking care of three baby girls were not enough for one woman to have on her mind, Sally is having husband trouble, too.

The trouble began as a "night out" incident. The husband having made a habit of leaving his young wife alone with the babies two or three evenings a week ever since their marriage. Did I say "evenings?" His "evenings" were apt to stretch out until two or three o'clock the next morning, never ended at the earliest before half after midnight. He didn't like Sally's remonstrances over his rendition. He told her, she says, that "lot of husbands do the same thing." I should feel fortunate that I have a nice home and money enough."

"Well, I certainly do feel fortunate so far as those things are concerned," she goes on. "My husband is a good money maker and we have things very nice for a couple as young as we are and with so many children. As a matter of fact, we are a good deal better off than many older married couples. We are even getting ready to buy our own home. So I haven't any complaints coming there."

Others Involved

Now, however, the problem has taken on a different and even more serious character. From a simple "night out" habit, it has at such a problem could ever be called simple—it has progressed to one in which other women are involved.

"I have now found out without a doubt," says Sally, "that my husband has been spending many of his nights out with other girls. He even admits it. One of these girls is the wife of a couple with whom we often go to parties. Another is a 16-year-old. A third is a girl, one of our best friends used to date, and there are at least half a dozen more.

"I have tried to discuss all this with my husband, but he doesn't care to talk about it. (What now, would? B.F.) He did say that it was absolutely no fault of mine and that he really is satisfied with himself. But he adds that he doesn't know whether he will continue to go out with the girls on not.

"My friends and relatives say that I am an absolute fool to put up with him. None of them—not even his parents or mine—know about the other girls, but they do know that he goes out and leaves me alone till all hours because they have often visited me in the evening when he was gone. One of these times I was expecting a baby any moment, and he didn't come home for a whole night three nights in a row. Now my youngest child is in the hospital for an operation, and he went out last night and left me all alone while I was so worried about the baby.

"All this has hurt me very deeply, as you can well imagine. I really do love my husband very much, and I don't know what to do. Do you think I should insist that he leave me, or put up with this thing that has so upset our lives? Or is there any chance that he may stop this going out all the time?"

May Change

Here we have three separate questions. How shall we answer them? That—at this point in the family crisis—is not too difficult. Shall she insist that he leave her? No. Shall she put up with his behavior? For a little while longer perhaps—yes. Is there a chance that he may have a sudden change of heart, do an about face, and start off in a new direction hand in hand again with his loyal and loving wife? Unpredictable.

Is she wholly helpless, then? Not at all.

There are two things she can try before she needs to make a major decision. She can decking up her home or tolerating his unchristmasy and neglect of her.

The first is to work out a plan of action for arranging their life and most of the baby and all is well. There is the possibility that she had her children so fast, and is tied down by them now, that her husband takes it for granted her hands are much too full for she to be able to go out with him. He feels it's much too dull to stick around home all the time, while she's too preoccupied with the children's needs to have time to pay attention to him, so off he goes by himself to hunt a place where things are more lively, with companions who are more carefree. Not a very creditable attitude on his part, if true, but not one characteristic of many a husband. Some of the men in this might perhaps be susceptible to change if he could once see it in the proper perspective. If for the contemptible thing it is.

Has Some Appeal

Since this particular husband has been sufficiently responsible to provide as well as he has for his family, and has a nostalgic reminder of home. "Valley of Eagles" is set against the winter scenery of Norway and Sweden and the company spent three weeks on location there, mostly on the snow-covered slopes and cliffs of Oslo.

Once they met a 90-mile-an-hour blizzard. "My false eyelashes got so tied up I couldn't see a thing," she said with a laugh. "Needless to say, no filming was done that day."

Maritimes Actress Makes Debut in British Film

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London (CP) — With blonde streaks in her naturally dark hair, Canadian actress Mary Laura Wood set out in one of London's biggest movie houses and nervously watched her first screen performance.

Mary Laura, a 26-year-old Maritimer who strayed into the movies through the stage door of London theatre, plays the blonde Swedish wife of an atomic scientist in "Valley of Eagles," a British film.

"Maybe I look like a beautiful blonde on celluloid," the Sackville, N.B., actress said after the preview, "but in the flesh I was a sort of straw-pink shade.

"So I'm going back to natural as fast as possible."

For the slim, five-foot-four Canadian, this first film part was lots of fun—and a nostalgic reminder of home. "Valley of Eagles" is set against the winter scenery of Norway and Sweden and the company spent three weeks on location there, mostly on the snow-covered slopes and cliffs of Oslo.

Once they met a 90-mile-an-hour blizzard. "My false eyelashes got so tied up I couldn't see a thing," she said with a laugh. "Needless to say, no filming was done that day."

Mary Laura, who lives in a flat close behind the London airport terminal, came to Britain in 1948 with no knowledge of the English theatre. Her first attempt at finding a stage job consisted of turning the pages of a telephone directory and making calls that brought no luck.

Then one day, almost haphazardly, she walked through the stage door of the Globe theatre and joined a line of hopefuls awaiting a chance for understudy to Betsy Drake in "Deep Are the Roots." She got the part and eventually took over the lead.

Since then she has understudied Vivien Leigh in "A Streetcar Named Desire." She has also landed many varied parts in both the west end and the provinces, and will soon be playing in "Pick-Up Girl" at Richmond, well-known Thames-side district, just outside London.

Mary Laura longs for the film to reach Calsada. She wants a family verdict from her mother, stepfather, two brothers and a sister. She'd love to see their reactions in the blonde hair-do.

Although she doesn't know when she'll return to Canada for good, she knows it will only be possible to visit her mother—now Mrs. A. W. Bennett—in Alma, N.B. Brought up on a farm in the Tantramar Marshes near Sackville, Mary Laura has not yet seen the house in Alma.

Two Young Women Recipients of Gifts

Mountain View. — On Friday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Barber and Robert entertained at a seven o'clock dinner at their home. The occasion was in honor of Miss Pauline Sprague, who was leaving to attend university in Toronto, and Miss Eleanor Sprague, who is leaving to attend Queen's University, in Kingston.

Other guests present were, Misses Hellie Sprague, Janice Joyce, Yvonne Potts, Pearl Neal, Shirley Thompson, Mary Keeble, Messrs. Hugh Joyce, Andrew Harris, John Harns, B. Barber, John Barber and Douglas Trumble.

The remainder of the evening was spent in visiting and viewing television.

Miss June Asselitine, Miss Marjorie Welsh, also Mr. Jack Hampton, of Napanee, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Hamilton and family.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Weaver and family, of Westbrook, spent the supper hour on Sunday with Mrs. O. Neal and daughter. Miss Maureen Neal returned to her home after spending holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Weaver.

Find Many Mothers Work Outside Home

Calgary (CP)—About 20 per cent of the children attending elementary grades in Calgary public schools have mothers who are employed in full-time occupations outside the home.

The information was gathered in a survey of public schools involving 2,276 children in grades one to seven.

F. R. Coulter, assistant superintendent of the children's department, said the majority of mothers working, but the economic situation today is forcing them to do so.

The survey showed that in one section of the city about 60 per cent of the mothers were working.

The situation was similar in both new and old sections of the city.

Principals of schools in new sections expressed the opinion that mothers were working to aid in the payment for new homes and all the necessary articles to make a home complete.

In the older districts mothers felt the need of work to keep up with the present strain on their husband's pay-checks.

Engagement parties and engagement presents

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

(1) Is it proper to have an engagement party?

(2) If so, should a guest bring a gift? And should this gift be something personal, or a gift for the home?—J. D.

(1) Yes, of course! If the party is an engagement-announcement party. It is given by the girl's parents. But if the party is given to "celebrate" the engagement after it has been announced, any relative or friend may give this.

(2) Engagement presents aren't generally considered necessary, and usually only relatives or intimate friends give them. However, if an engagement present is given, it should be something personal for the bride, perhaps an item for her trousseau . . . not something for the new home, as in a wedding present.

Who sponsors wedding invitations?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How should invitations to a wedding read when the bride-to-be lives alone and has only married brothers?—P. L.

Customarily the wedding invitations would be sponsored by the bride-to-be's oldest brother and his wife:

Mr. and Mrs. John Alan Lane request the honour of your presence at the marriage of their daughter

Patricia Anita Lane

etc

Or the third line may read:

at the marriage of his sister

If the bride-to-be prefers, she may send out her own invitations (although this does suggest that she has no relatives to have this honor):

The honor of your presence is requested at the marriage of

Miss Patricia Anita Lane

to

Mr. Arthur Davidson

etc.

Serving only lemon with oysters or clams on half-shell

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I like to serve oysters or clams on the half-shell as a first course (instead of soup) at the informal little dinner we give. But we think that serving the little type of cocktail sauce embedded in the cracked ice in the centre of the plates isn't necessary, makes the service look more like restaurant service than service in a private house. So will you please tell us if it is necessary to serve the containers of cocktail sauce with the oysters or clams?—W. M.

The cocktail sauce isn't necessary if you prefer not to serve it . . . as a matter of fact you may correctly follow the simpler way of service, that is, serve only a section of lemon on each plate.

Youthful Singer Finds Star Role Test of Talents

New York (AP)—After years of quick-changing parts in radio, television, stage and night club plays, Martha Wright at 25 succeeded Mary Martin in the feminine lead part in the musical "South Pacific," still playing to packed houses after more than two years on Broadway.

"Martha is an old trouper—she started on the stage in grammar school playwork," she says it rather glibly. "Isn't any easier playing in a long-run entertainment.

"It's harder to give a vivid performance day after day in a show you have done again and again than it is when frequent changes create new challenges," she said.

That doesn't mean she isn't glad to have the "South Pacific" lead as Ensign Nellie Forbush — and her name in lights. The glamor and excitement of the long-run show puts sparks in her blue eyes.

Martha comes from Duval, Wash., 30 miles from Seattle. Her grandmother and her father both were singers. Her father went to work for a shipping company when his tenor did not make enough money and her grandmother started Martha singing.

Radio Veteran

By the time she got to college she had her own 15-minute radio show, over the Northwest Tuesday network. Then along came a touring company of "Up In Central Park." She found herself in the chorus in November, 1946, and the tour wound up in New York in May, 1947.

There followed a couple of flop stage shows and some radio and but it was television that kept her going. Also there was a Rodgers and Hammerstein concert in the Yale Bowl in the summer of 1949. There she met Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein who wrote "South Pacific" and many

Only presents to give. . . always present, wedding present

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband is to be best man and I am to be matron of honor at a formal church wedding, where there will also be bridesmaids and ushers. We don't know the bride and groom very well, and know none of their friends. Is it necessary for us to give anything besides the shower present and the wedding present? —J. L. No.

other bit musicals.

"They have been wonderful to me ever since," she said. But she never played in the show until she came to New York to replace Mary Martin last June.

Years ago, she had dreams for opera, and may now she hopes some day to get back to "serious singing." The song hits she does in "South Pacific" may be fine entertainment but in her view it is not real singing.

"There is some good singing in the show," she says, "and I use what we call 'chest tones'. That's the way it was started and that's how it became a hit. But real singing is something else."

Praying Mantis Wages Relentless War on Man's Insect Enemies

Written for the Canadian Press
By PERCY GHENT

Insects have been described as nature's chief competitors for dominion of the earth. The plague and warfare against them is waged continuously and relentlessly. Damage to field crops and forests by destructive insects runs into millions of dollars every year in Canada alone.

But every once in a while there is good news even from the insect world. This year in particular, and for several years past, it has been noted that an insect once common in more southern regions only, is steadily increasing its northward range and now includes much of southern Canada. The praying mantis has joined forces with Canadians in the campaign against insect pests.

This queer fellow and his mate —especially the mate, for the female mantis is infinitely more deadly than the male, mean soldier of death for all potato bugs, Japanese beetles, rose bugs and queaky flies that are encountered. Right grown to 4 inches with a body that is almost all eyes, and with two front legs that look deadly and peek over its shoulder, the mantis has long sickle-shaped arms, that come swiftly upward and outward in an attitude of prayer when the mantis its popular name.

"Preying" mantis would be more appropriate, for the insect is the most bloodthirsty of its race and uses those deadly arms to crush any insect, not excepting the male mantis after mating, that comes within reach. Eating the crushed prey is done with incredible speed. But a large percentage of the mantis diet is injurious insects, and the economic- moment when I hollered."

Snorting Giants Tied With Drooping Dodgers; Pennant Flies Over Yanks

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THE MAN HAS HOPES!

Pat of Kingston comes word that Max Jackson, hockey impresario of that city, is strengthening his 1951-52 edition of Junior "B" puckists, no end. Jackson, owner of the Kingston Vics which are connected with the Boston Bruins, is in Barrie today conferring with Coach Happy Emms of the Barrie Flyers with regards to reinforcements for his Vics. He hopes to replace four "graduate" players of last year's squad.

Jackson must have been quaffing a lot of this optimist soup since he comes out with the "hope" that a district group will be formed which will include, all, or most of the following clubs: Brockville, Belleville, Lindsay, Peterborough, Kingston, soon's University, Oshawa and Port Hope. We would say, Mr. Jackson is an optimist of the first water. The Vics will play all their home games in Kingston's new Memorial Community Centre.

FATE WON'T OPERATE!

George Patterson, of Kingston who formed a new hockey association in that city called the Kingston Fats has stated that he will not ice a team this season, according to one Michael Boddan. It seems somebody got their signals crossed down thataway the other night for OHA executive convener Lorne Cook comes out with the statement that his organization had officially admitted the Fats. It also stated that it would consider application for reinstatement from the Nylons for players Udall, Plumb, Aitken, Stone and Joyce. Patterson said he had hoped to stage his home games in the Jock Harty Arena, had he decided to form and ice a team.

POSSIBLE, NOT PROBABLE!!

It's get back to the junior "B" picture. It is extremely doubtful, following the success of last year's grouping if Belleville, Oshawa, Peterborough, Port Hope and Lindsay will "go" for any additions to their set-up. It was, without a shadow of a doubt, one of the best "B" groupings ever formed in these parts for years, with five teams playing the entire schedule "all even" and Port Hope surging strongly at the end to destroy the tie played among the quintet of the circuit's equal. It was exceptionally good junior puck calisthenics, and as we said before, we strongly doubt if the participating clubs will entertain adding to their set-up.

Let's see, if memory serves us right, the secession at the meeting of junior representatives, which should be called before long.

CO-OPERATION NEEDED DURING HUNTING SEASON

Developing a fire consciousness in the minds of the general public is always a more difficult task when rainfalls are frequent and plentiful. Nature has certainly taken a hand in keeping the fire danger low in the Quinte District during the past few weeks, and it begins to look as if the 1951 Fire Prevention Campaign went a lot farther than was expected, say government officials.

Nevertheless officials in charge of Fire Protection for the Department of Lands and Forests are out to dispel any false sense of security that may have developed. The memories of past fall fire hazard disasters are too painful and too recent to pass over lightly.

Like the dangerous spring period, a fall hazard can move in quickly. Browning vegetation, a carpet of dry leaves, a few warm sunny days and freshening winds set the stage for somebody's act of carelessness. A discarded cigarette, the match someone forgot to break in two, and the unextinguished campfire are all the old fire demons need to fan into action and given the right conditions he can do an awful lot of damage in a short time.

Only the man who has "travelled a burn" knows the feeling of complete loss and ugliness created by a bush fire. Gone are the little pine and spruce trees which one day would replace their big brothers and who maybe are gone as well. Instead of a carpet of leaves or needles there's usually a nice thick layer of ashes and it's awfully quiet with the birds gone and other wildlife destroyed or at least trying to find cover elsewhere.

To those of us who use the woods to hunt, fish or provide a livelihood it may be our prayer that such a catastrophe will never be laid on our doorstep. It's so easy to avoid if we just take that little bit of extra time to remember, and be careful with fire.

During the brief era when Hack Wilson reigned as homerun king, more than one umpire was subjected to the arrogant manner of the big slugger. One afternoon, Klem was being needled by Wilson. When Bill called a strike on him, Hack immediately stepped out of the box and snapped at Klem:

"You missed that one, Bill!"

"I wouldn't have," was Klem's biting retort, "if I had a bat in my hand."

Reynolds Heaves No-Hitter As Bombers Belt Sox Twice; Phils Flail Flatbushers 4-3

By JACK HAND

The gallant New York Giants, tied for first place after wiping out a 12 1-2 game Brooklyn lead, threaten to elbow into the World Series with New York Yankees in one of baseball's greatest comebacks.

With the Yanks already "in", after Allie Reynolds' no-hitter and yesterday's double win over Boston, the Giants rate an even chance to charge past the fading Dodgers who lost to the Phillies last night 4-3.

In years to come they'll talk of the 1951 Giants in the same breath with the 1914 Boston Braves and 1942 St. Louis Cardinals—if they win the pennant.

Even the mighty Braves of '14 who dashed from last on July 20 to win by 10 1-2, manager Lee Duncher's determined tribe from the Polo Grounds. They can better the Boston and '42 Cards who blasted a 10 1-2 game Brooklyn lead to win for Billy Southworth.

Pushed into a tie by Brooklyn's loss, the Giants play Boston today and tomorrow while the Dodgers meet the Phils in two games at Philadelphia.

Unless the tie is broken there will be a best-of-three playoff for the National League championship starting at Brooklyn Monday.

Stole Play From Yanks

The Dodger night loss almost stole the play from the Yanks' third straight pennant-clinching and, 16th in their history. Even Reynolds' brilliant no-hitter, his second of the season and some of its luster amid the wild confusion of the National League race.

For months the experts predicted a last day finish in the Americas and an early wrap-up for Brooklyn. Instead the Yanks clinch with two days to go and the Dodgers may never make it.

Reynolds' dramatic thriller in the first game with the Red Sox, 8-0, assured the Yanks of no worse than a tie. Only once before, and never in the American League, has a pitcher thrown two no-hitters in the same year. Johnny Vander Meer's feat of pitching two in a row for Cincinnati in 1938 is the only topper.

The big Indian had a bad scare in the ninth. With two out, Ted Williams lofted a high foul behind the plate, Yogi Berra dropped it. With another chance to break the spell, Williams popped another four that Berra gathered in for the final out.

Seven runs in the second inning and a three-run homer by Joe DiMaggio in the sixth sewed up the 11-3 clincher, Vic Raschi's 21st win.

Tribe Ousted

The double Boston loss eliminated idle Cleveland, now 3 1-2 games back, but also assured the Indians of finishing second.

The Phillies, who were staggering around at the time last year trying to win a pennant, took a ball out of the Dodgers' Willie Jones' ninth-inning, scored speedy Richie Ashburn from second by Del Ennis, Andy Seminick's two-run homer in the eighth tied the score. Earlier Roy Campanella's homer helped the Dodgers build up a 3-0 lead on Karl Drews.

Just to rub it in, an ex-Giant, Andy Hansen, was the winning Phil pitcher.

Hearing the result at Boston, Duncher murmured, "If I make a move, I'll explode with happiness."

Manager Chuck Dressen of the Dodgers said "I'll pitch Don Newcombe and Preacher Roe tomorrow and Sunday. If they can't do it, well, I'll see you at the Polo Grounds."

There were other games: Cincinnati shaded Pittsburgh 4-3, and Chicago White Sox swept a twi-night double from St. Louis, 6-3 and 4-3 in 10 innings. A Philadelphia-Washington night game was postponed because of cold weather.

Casey Stengel Ties Record

New York, Sept. 29 (AP) — Casey Stengel, manager of the pennant winning New York Yankees, tied a Major League record yesterday by winning league championship in his first three seasons as manager of the club.

Frank Chance did it in 1906, 1907 and 1908 with Chicago Cubs. Hughie Jennings of Detroit performed the feat in 1907, 1908 and 1909.

Stengel managed at Brooklyn and Boston in the National League without winning a pennant.

'Knew it All Time, Couldn't Help It', Grins Reynolds

New York, Sept. 29 (AP)—"I knew it all the time," Allie Reynolds said with a grin after it was all over.

The husky New York Yankee righthander was referring to the progress of his second no-hitter of the season, against Boston in the first game of yesterday's twin bill.

"How could I help it," he added. "The scoreboard was right there."

Was he upset by the dropping of Ted Williams' foul by Yogi Berra in the ninth inning, a fumble which prolonged the agony for the breathless fans?

"No," he said simply. "I was just afraid I had stepped on Yogi's hand. I asked him and he said I didn't. I saw the wind blow the ball toward the field."

Yogi said he had the ball until the last moment, when the wind carried it away from him.

Someone asked Al' s if the game was any different from the no-hitter he pitched at Cleveland July 12. Again Allie gave a slow grin, replying: "They were just the same, they didn't get any hits in either of them."

Vancouver Trims Peterborough 12-7 In Title Lacrosse

Vancouver, Sept. 29 (CP) — Peterborough Petes today were trying to hope up their spirits for best Vancouver Combines' express-train speed which carried the westerners to a 12-7 victory last night and a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven Canadian lacrosse final.

Fourth game of the series will be played here Monday.

Petes won the first game Monday 16-8 with a slow, methodical, heavy-checking style. Combines figured they would have to run their heavier fighting line to the floor or they were goners.

They have done just that, at Victoria Wednesday where they won 11-7, and last night. But they've thrown something else at the Petes—ferocious, bitter checking.

They flung themselves on the Petes like snarling dogs. Petes stopped swinging the ball and their shooting was wild. In the end, a few of them lost their tempers and their fights broke out.

It was the penalties that finally broke Peterborough.

McGill Blanks Ottawa 23-0

Cornwall, Sept. 29 (CP)—McGill University Redmen of the Senior Intercollegiate League last night whitewashed University of Ottawa Carabins 23-0 in an exhibition football game here before a crowd of 2,500 Persons.

Ottawa, member of the Ottawa-St. Lawrence Valley Conference, were an easy prey for McGill's powerful Redmen.

Vic Obeck's senior team piled up a 23-0 lead early in the second quarter and then retired in favor of candidates for McGill Indians, the university's entry in the Ottawa-St. Lawrence grouping. The battling Carabins held the Indians in check for the remainder of the game.

Williams Gets Verdict Over Fritzie Pruden

New York, Sept. 29 (AP) — Don Williams of Worcester, Mass., a stab-and-go artist, last night fed Fritzie Pruden a diet of left jabs to win a unanimous 10-round decision over the transplanted Canadian from St. Catharines.

Pruden weighed 147½, Williams 146.

Pruden, an 8-to-5 favorite, closed strong in the ninth and 10th to bloody the New Englander's face, but it wasn't enough.

Judge Harold Barnes had it 6-2, Judge Marcius Schravesnde 6-4, and referee George Walsh 5-4-1—all in favor of Williams. The AP scorecard had Williams ahead, 6-4.

Only 1,109 showed up at St. Nicholas Arena to pay $3,375.

It was Williams third win in their four meetings, three of them in 1950.

Jab and move was Williams pattern in piling up a wide early lead against Pruden, now fighting out of Paterson, N.J. There were no knockdowns.

'Dont Need Me', Says 'Lip' 'Not Change Lineup' - Dressen

By JOE REICHLER

Boston, Sept. 29—(AP)—"I'm numb. My stomach is just bubbling over. Is it really true? Did the Phillies really beat those guys?"

That was Leo Durocher's first reaction when he was informed that Philadelphia had scored in the ninth to snap a 4-3 tie and defeat Brooklyn, 4-3.

Assured that it was so—that Brooklyn had lost—that the New York Giants were now, for the first time, actually even with the Dodgers—were in a definite flat-footed tie for first place—the fiesty manager let out a deep sigh.

"Now, for the first time, it is all up to us," he said. "This is what I've been praying for all year. We've just got to win now."

Did he think the Dodgers were done? Would he predict a Giant pennant? Who was going to pitch the opener in the world series against the Yankees? Those were some of the questions popped at the jubilant skipper.

Get to Know Whitey

"Wait a minute, boys," he said. "We still have a difficult job ahead of us. We've got to keep winning, remember? We've never worried about those other guys before, so why should we start now?"

All I know is Sal Maglie will face Whitey Lockman and Larry Jansen will pitch Sunday. If we win those two games, we should be within two games of the Giants. I guess that the Phillies will win another from the Dodgers. At least, I hope so."

Earlier, Durocher had called his 1951 Giants "the best team I ever managed."

"There are no individual stars on this ball club," he said. "It is a 25-man club. One day Monte Irvin will get a hit, four on the next day Bobby Thomson wins one, Don Mueller another, then its Stanley, then Dark. That's the way it's been since we got going six weeks ago.

"These guys don't even need a manager. All I do is stand behind third base an wave them home."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

Philadelphia, Sept. 29 (AP) — Like the author of the cold one who tried to explain Ireland's position in the Second World War the Yankees are neutral in the National League pennant race but can't decide who they're neutral against. . . the players' votes generally go with their pocketbooks. . . Ebbets Field can seat only about 33,000 customers for a World Series game, while the Polo Grounds holds 50,000 . . . On the other hand, they figure there is a better a-spot to win from the staggering Dodgers than the red-hot Giants. . . the Dodgers, for such, knew they were against umpire Frank Dascoli, whose decision precipitated that ninth-run in Boston Thursday. . . whether he was right or wrong in calling Bob Addis safe at the plate, they insist he was too quick in giving Roy Campanella the heave. . .

Switch the names and the 1951 pennant race could be 1950 all over again. . . the Phillies, you remember had a seven-game lead early in September last year. . . They blew most of that margin, dropping four straight to the Giants and finally the pennant on Dick Sisler's 10th inning homer against Brooklyn on the last day of the season. . . now it's just the other way—after blowing most of a 13 1-2 game lead, Brooklyn has to whip the Phils to win.

Broad St. Broadside

Jackie Robinson still insists angrily that he didn't take part in the door kicking at Boston . . . "I was there, so they say I did it," Jackie maintains. "But I paid my fine so what's the use of saying it was somebody else . . . but if I was fined for what I said, I deserved it—and it was worth every cent."

Philadelphia, Sept. 29—(AP)—It was just a morgue in the Brooklyn Dodger dressing room last night. Everyone sat in front of their lockers as if they couldn't believe it had happened—the National League race was all tied up.

The faltering Dodgers and the amazing new miracle men of modern baseball—Leo Durocher's surging New York Giants, each have won 94 games and lost 58 in the heart pumping drive for the senior circuit flag. They each have two games left to play.

Reporters had to wait about 20 minutes after Brooklyn's 4-3 loss to Philadelphia Phillies before an attendant opened the locker room door to let them in. You could have heard a pin drop. The players weren't even talking to each other. The gloom could have been sliced with a knife.

Stunned by Turn

Manager Charlie Dressen stood in his little office in Shibe Park's visiting quarters waiting for an avalanche of questions. But none came. Even the usually volatile newsmen were stunned by the sudden turn of events.

"No, I'm not going to change my lineup," he said as one reporter broke the ice with a question.

"This is the ball club that has led the league since May 13. It will have to be good enough to win the pennant.

"We'll go with Don Newcombe today and Preacher Roe tomorrow. If that isn't good enough, who has a couple dollars of tickets for the Polo Grounds?"

Actually, the Dodgers were stifled by Curt Simmons, one of the pitchers Durocher inherited when he became manager of the New York club and finally carded as "not my kind of player."

Simmons, a lefthander, limited the Dodgers to five hits and gained his 20th ball for three innings to emerge the winner.

Hill Prince In Rich Race

New York, Sept. 29 (AP)—Hill Prince, on the comeback trail after winning 1950 horse-of-the-year honors, is a chance horse to show he is ready again to race with the best of the distance performers.

C. T. Chesney's four-year-old son, by Princequillo, will run the mile-and-one-eighth $25,000-added New York Handicap at Belmont Saturday.

The Prince was sidelined by a leg injury that has kept Chesney until recently when he started his comeback by running third in a six furlong dash at Pimlico. On Monday he showed a return to top form in winning a mile allowance race at Belmont.

Remember When

Canadian senior football teams now are studded with American imports, but 15 years ago today all four teams of the eastern big four were hard hit by a ruling of the Ontario Rugby Union that no Americans were ineligible because of residence ruled violations. Montreal and Hamilton each lost three players and Ottawa and Toronto Argos each lost two.

NEW CHIHAWKS

Defencemen Clare Martin (left) and Clare Raglan (right) have been added to Chicago Black Hawks as part of the biggest cash deal in National Hockey League history. Now in pre-season training at Winnipeg, the pair will join the Windy City team when Chicago Black Hawks for $75,000 cash and the right to Black Hawk player Hugh Coflin.

They will be seen in action in Memorial Arena here on October 4th when the Hawks play an intra-club game during a three-day stay in the city.

Esky's Star End Hurt in Accident Son is Killed

Edmonton, Sept. 29 —(CP) — Edmonton Eskimos' star import end, Howie Hansen, wanted to give his two motherless sons a permanent home.

Friday he was driving them through Idaho toward Edmonton when he planned to live. At a bend near Dubois, Idaho, his sleek convertible turned over. Yesterday Craig Hansen, 3, died of injuries he suffered.

Hansen was in Sacred Heart Hospital in Idaho Falls with injuries which hospital attendants said are a broken ankle, crushed ribs and concussion. Manager Al Anderson of Eskimos said he is out of the lineup for the rest of the season.

Two of Hansen's sisters, Eva, 27, and Ruth, 19, were being treated for less serious hurts.

Hansen's second son, Dennis, 2, was under observation but was believed to have escaped almost unhurt. Details of the accident were not known here.

The Hansen boys had been living with Eva and Ruth Hansen at Los Angeles where Hansen used to play with U.C.L.A. Anderson said. The sisters brought the boys to Salt Lake City where Hansen picked up all four.

Hospital attendants said doctors were "not too concerned" about Hansen's general condition. He was resting well. Condition of his sisters was described as better last night.

Loss of Hansen will be a heavy blow to the league-leading Eskimos. He was one of the best two-way ends in the western conference this season—a flanker who converted into an end when Harold Hatfield was put out of action by a knee injury.

Oshawa Takes Senior Title In Four Games

Oshawa, Sept. 29 (CP)—Oshawa Merchants last night won the Ontario Baseball League championship by beating Niagara Falls Ford 6-2 in the fourth straight game of their best-of-seven senior playoff series.

Playing-manager Mike Mellis was credited with the victory—his 14th in 14 starts. He fanned the last three Fords batters in the top of the ninth inning.

Three runs in the first clinched the game for the Merchants. They added singles in the second, sixth and eighth frames.

Eddie Johnston's homer in the eighth inning with Eddie Mulligan on base gave the Fords their only score.

Dekdebrun, Argo Quarter, Out, Coach Says Passing Arm Dead

Toronto, Sept. 29—(CP)—Frank Clair, the studious coach of the champion Toronto Argonauts, today prepared to ward off the wrath of Toronto football fans for his firing Al Dekdebrun as the club's quarterback because he considered Dekdebrun's passing arm had gone dead.

Dekdebrun, a favorite with Toronto crowds and the key man in the Argos' march to the dominion championship last season, was told last night in a 1½ hour conference with Clair that he had lost his job as quarter to Nobby Wirkowski, a 22-year-old import from Miami University in Oxford, O.

The news stunned the city's football fans and some Argo players were reported to have voiced resentment of the unexpected move.

The 27-year-old Dekdebrun, who had brief whirls as a player with the professional New York Yankees and the Buffalo Bills after leaving Cornell University, denied emphatically his arm was dead. He admitted it had been sore since the first game, a pre-season exhibition game against Hamilton Tiger-Cats at Buffalo.

Arm All Right

"It was all right as long as I played on offence but when it switched to defence where I had to tackle, I would get it banged up again," Dekdebrun said.

Clair said he knew he would be criticized for his action in cutting Dekdebrun from the squad—"the most unpleasant job I ever had as a coach."

"But I've been closely studying him in the movies of our games and I'm convinced that his throwing arm is dead. Maybe I'm wrong in going with Wirkowski, but the boy is a good passer and he has an abundance of confidence in himself."

The news of Dekdebrun's dismissal was all the more startling coming after the Argos' 17-10 victory over Ottawa Rough Riders last Saturday. It was the club's second win in five starts in the Big Four this season and it was generally considered that Dekdebrun had called one of his best games since cojoining the Argos in 1950. He was also calling the signals when the scullers beat Ottawa earlier for their first victory.

The good-looking native of Buffalo has been a popular figure here. On Monday he was caught bringing 36 cartons of cigarettes across the border for his teammates and was fined. Dekdebrun himself doesn't smoke.

Glen Roys Edge Kingston Guards In 8-7 Game

Jack Reid's fine relief hurling and Lyle Wanamaker's grand-slam home run gave the city champion Glen Roys an 8-7 victory over the Kingston Guards, Limestone City senior "A" champs at the Alemite Field last night.

Reid came to the rescue of starter Marty Halloran who gave up nine hits for six runs in two innings and held the Stan Scrutton crew to one run and two hits over the rest of the seven-innings route. Reid struck out nine of the 17 men to face him in five innings, the only hits being a scratch bunt and Duff's homer in the final chapter.

Wanamaker's four-base clout came in the fifth inning with the Glens trailing on the short end of a 6-1 score. Hopkinson, who took over from Scrutton on the mound, loaded the sacks with two out and tossed a tantalizing slow ball to Wanamaker. The fielder blasted it out of the lot and the score was 6-5.

Clinch Game In Sixth

Glens scored the clincher runs in the sixth when Mulvihill playing shortstop for the homesters smashed out his second hit of the game. Hunter went out and Sword walked. Roger Mallory drove them in with a sharp drive to centre field scoring himself after Culkin's high fly went to deep right. The score was 8-6.

Duff, Guards' centre fielder hit the first ball pitched for a four-bagger in the top of the seventh but Reid retired the next three batters easily.

Despite the cold weather, a fair crowd was on hand to witness the exhibition tilt, and it was reported that a substantial sum was realized from the sale of ticket books, the proceeds going to one of the Glen's injured players.

Wanamaker paced the Glens with his home run and a single with Mulvihill and Tomaso getting two singles apiece in the winner's nine-hit attack. Hunter, Sword and Mallory got the rest.

Duff hit a homer and double for the Guards with Greenham hitting a four-bagger and single, Scrutton Hopkinson a pair each.

Players and officials of both teams were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marty Halloran following the game where refreshments were served during the post-game sports "bull session".

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

National League President Ford Frick handed Brooklyn Dodgers and their rooters some good news yesterday—cash fines but no suspensions for Jackie Robinson, Roy Campanella and Preacher Roe.

Frick, newly-elected commissioner of baseball but still acting as chief of the senior loop, fined Robinson and Campanella $100 each and tagged Roe with a $50 penalty for creating a rumpus outside the umpires' dressing room in Braves Field Thursday. The same took place after the Dodgers had dropped a costly and controversial 4-3 decision to Boston.

Several Brooklyn players had kicked the door of the umpires' room on the way to their adjacent dressing chambers. A police guard was called. The players were still fuming over the ejection of Campanella by umpire Frank Dascoli in the eighth inning.

Most observers were of the opinion that suspensions might have been dished out if it weren't for the closeness of the pennant race at this stage.

New York Giants, who started taking World Series reservations 36 hours ago said yesterday the capacity of the Polo Grounds already was heavily oversubscribed—so that no further requests would be accepted.

Mrs. H. W. Soper of Montreal's Kanawaki Club, won the Canadian Women's Senior Golf championship at the Toronto Golf Club yesterday.

She carded 188 in the 36 hole competition, eight strokes in front of Mrs. G. E. Hackney of the Selgneury Club, Mrs. Hackney was another eight strokes ahead of Mrs. T. J. Agar of Toronto York Downs, Mrs. Agar, held the womens' championship for the past five years.

Low net prize was won by Mrs. Armond Smith of the Hamilton Club, who turned in a 235-66-169 for the 36 holes.

Billy Richardson, fast skating right-winger from Camrose Alta., has been signed to play with Ottawa Senators of the Quebec Senior Hockey League this season, it was announced at Ottawa yesterday. Owned by Minneapolis, Richardson was rated the fastest skater in the United States Hockey League last season while playing with Denver. He scored 30 goals and 29 assists.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look to the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 20

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Excellent prospects for all essential matters, particularly for interests of the family, home, friendly relations in general. All important now to pray for peace. Brain work highly rated.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Day promising for your affairs, for matters of civic and national concern. Monetary work and business, especially for armed forces strongly sponsored. Enjoy some fun, too.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—With your Mercury, Sun and Venus in favorable aspects, the whole day urges action, accomplishment in well arranged program. Include prayer. Mental keenness should be high.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—You in the armed services, you recuperating in hospitals, etc., can have blessings bestowed now if you have faith in God, Grand influences to aid all urgent essentials.

July 24 to August 23—(Leo)—No place for frowns, pointless activity or inactivity, this encouraging Sunday. First attend your soul's needs, then follow through other important matters. Make time for recreation.

August 24 to September 23—(Virgo)—Read Gemini now. All worthy interests and activities sponsored, but care is advised in money matters, making important changes, whether in business, locality, whatever. Rest, too.

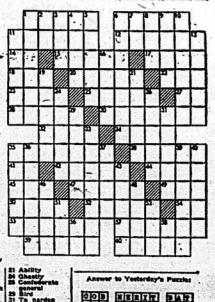
September 24 to October 23—(Libra) — Soundly inspiring period. Unusual undertakings (if honorable, purposeful) favored. Conferences, making plans among the honored, Church should come first - where possible.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio) — Your Mars' aspect discourages unnecessary activity, impatience. Much can be achieved today in useful, urgent undertakings if you follow sensible rules. Rising sensibly.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius) — Jupiter advises against extravagance, stresses need for an amiable disposition to obtain the very generous offerings from Venus, Mercury and Sun vibrations! Watch for benefits.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn) — Some restrictions likely if extensive changes are contemplated in any matters of importance. But day on whole is friendly for good work, healthy recreation. Your soul first!

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius) — This Sunday will yield generously to sound management, wholesome activity; does not encourage selfish ideas, rest-less changes. Start with a prayer to obtain right direction.



February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — You can garner the benefic influences from Venus, the Moon, Sun and Mercury if you proceed with Achievement, cheerfully. Do think of God, His blessings. Enjoy good fun.

YOU BORN TODAY: Rather quiet, meditative and tactful in disposition. Have deep feeling for humanity, justice and the finer things in life. Although affectionate and loyal, are usually not demonstrative; seldom complain of ailments, will work hard for family, organization, church. May have to watch diet to ward off ailments later in life. Should start at your aim in life as soon as possible, for you can achieve a high place if you strive. Don't worry and keep health fit.

Industry Raps Ottawa's Curbs On Purchasing

By FORBES REUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

The makers of stoves, refrigerators, radios, and the various other things that come under the heading of "household appliances" feel the government has made it hard for people to buy their products.

They feel the industry is being made to bear too heavily a part of the fight against inflation; that, in fact, credit restrictions and excise taxes, in their present degree, do not fight inflation; that people are spending their money anyway on lower-priced goods, without being able to buy higher-priced articles which they need.

These views were expressed at the annual press conference given by officials of the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers' Association in connection with the exhibition's annual meeting at Niagara Falls, Ont. W. C. Cannon, of Toronto presided.

Points Expressed

Here are some other points expressed in the general discussion:

Current production in electrical appliances is down by more than one-half from the same time last year. This has led to lay-offs. Employment has been kept at its present level only by increased inventories and the industry is fearful of losing trained personnel which it may need later for defence orders.

Present defence orders account for about two per cent of production and this may go up to five per cent in the next six months or a year; but, in the opinion of spokesmen, it is not likely to go up fast enough to take care of the slack caused by reduced civilian sales.

The radio industry reports that it had 223,000 radios on hand in Canada. The washing machine industry says it could step production for the rest of the year and still be able to supply present needs.

Backing up a view that the credit restrictions have slowed down and monthly payment requirements—and increased excise taxes, have worked more drastically than the government intended, Mr. Cannon said:

"It is reasonable to believe that the government's motive in increasing excise taxes and instituting credit restrictions, was to effect a 30 per cent reduction in the production of appliances in relation to 1950 levels. Actually, these and other factors have decreased production by 50 per cent and it is felt that when the situation is fully appraised many more will be granted the industry."

No Encouragement

However, spokesmen added they have received no encouragement from the government that there will be any changes in the credit restrictions or taxes.

The situation is complicated by the prospect of shortages in materials, if, for instance, buying should return to the 1950 level by the end of this year, there may be shortages of basic materials, appliance men said.

However, it was indicated, this does not mean that the appliance maker, with unsold goods gathering in his warehouses, would seek to keep a staff together in the adjustment period between normal and possible defence production.

The electrical industry in general, outside its appliance divisions, is busy in the fields of apparatus and supply.

Nevertheless, the industry in this year has felt the effect of United States and British anti-trust petition under what it considers unfair conditions.

In the first six months of this year imports of United States refrigerators were about 30 per cent of Canadian production. Last year, 41,258 United States radios, with a retail value of $1,250,000, were brought in, and, it was stated:

No Check Made

"No check whatever is made on these sets to determine if they meet our electrical standards at the time of entry."

Opinion at the press conference seemed to be that Canadian producers have reasonable protection on tariffs as such, but that there has been a weakening in the enforcement of anti-dumping and valuation regulations.

United States producers might not actually be "dumping" goods, it was stated, but they are selling at cut prices in order to keep up production so that they will be entitled to a larger allocation of materials.

In regard to British and European competition in such products as refrigerators, radios, heavy generators, etc., it was stated that British wages return in the electrical industry are con-ithrt the rates paid in Canada.

These low wages, it was stated, are made possible by British subsidies on food which, in effect, constitute an indirect subsidy to British industry through making it possible for it to pay lower wages.

New Coyote Killer Proves Successful

Edmonton (CP) — Alberta's coyotes are in for a cold winter. Scattered tests of new cyanide "coyote getter" guns claimed the lives of 60 of the "highly vaccinated."

William A. Lobay, provincial crop pest control chief said that Peter Chubb, an area control officer in the municipal district of Ponoka, 60 miles south of Edmonton, produced the best score in the early tests.

Mr. Chubb set out 30 "coyote getters" — and found 23 dead coyotes.

"The beauty of the coyote getter is that they kill the coyotes in the farming area where the poisoned carcass is left unmolested by flocks and herds," said Mr. Lobay. "Formerly, most of our coyote killing was in unsettled areas where they were doing considerable injury to cattle."

The Alberta minister of agriculture has received applications from 16 municipal districts that wish to organize under the anti-coyote campaign.

HOW TO INCREASE LILY BULBS

Lilies are hoted for their stately lovelliness. An ardent gardener can easily supplement his supply of bulbs by the above methods. Shown in left upper corner is a lily in full bloom.

C — shows how scales develop. 2 shows individual scales and 3 shows young plants growing from small bulblets. D — by seed. E — a typical lily pod growing seed. Prince Edward County Rich In Historical Lore

Picton, Ont. (CP)—It's difficult to separate the facts from the fiction in Prince Edward County — and few of the residents try to do so.

They have shifting sands, a mysterious lake, buried treasure and more than one place that could well be haunted.

The sands are dunes blown about by the winds after they have been washed up from Lake Ontario. Already the huge dunes that rer ·ble a small desert, have engulf · hotel. They stretch for 4½ r. are a quarter-mile wide and are heaped 40 feet deep by the prevailing westerly winds.

They make a fine place to lie in the sun and dream about the buried treasure, supposedly buried in the sands of Outlet beach by the crew of a French frigate. Rather than lose the gold the men buried it—or so they say.

The strange lake is "Lake on the Mountain." Five miles in circumference it has no apparent source of supply other than rain and snow but always remains at the same level, 240 feet above the Bay of Quinte, only a stone's long throw away.

Odder road on the island — suitable for ghosts and otherworld residents—is the causeway to Timber Island. Under a foot of water it is surrounded by weird and silent marsh.

Named for Queen Victoria's father, the county was first settled by United Empire Loyalists. Royal Loyalists. In 1861 it had a population of 20,000 but now it has only 18,000.

Commercially, the county boasts that it produces more agricultural goods per capita than any other in Ontario. Farm production runs beyond $3,500,000 each year. Nearly 200,000 of the county's 253,000 acres are under cultivation.

STORM KILLS TWO

Montreal, Sept. 28 — (CP) — A brief electrical storm swept over the city last night, causing one death and disrupting traffic and communications. Dead is Ernst Vallikonsky, who stepped on a live wire, ripped off a power pole by strong winds that prevailed in the storm.

Ottawa — (CP) — One woman was killed yesterday when high winds whipped through the capital, causing extensive property damage. Mrs. Sylvia Bourvette, 46, died of injuries five hours after she was struck on the head by a large stone, loosened by the wind from a downtown building.

WILD WEST CHARITY STANDISH

By CHARLES JUDAH

Everyone except Duke Rogers, Angel, the stranger and Charley Standish edged away from the table. Rogers' temper was monstrous. What if don't Angel feel like taking your bet?" he snarled at the stranger.

"Then it make such an attractive offer that no honest man could resist it. I'd bet $5,000 against the lot IOU and the money here on the table that I can throw 10 duke aces in succession."

He tossed the dice. Surely enough the double ace came up.

"One," he said.

Duke snatched at the dice, but again he was too slow. Quickly, yet without apparent effort, the other retrieved them and threw again.

"Two. Three. Four. Five—"

Duke Rogers realized that he was not only being exposed as a cheat but made to look like a fool as well. The former did not matter so much since everyone in San Lorenzo knew that he trimmed the visitors from the east and the visitors themselves half expected it, but he could not suffer the ridicule. He would be laughed out of New Mexico. His mind worked rapidly. Gun play was well enough, but he preferred to have his opponent get balance when it started. He leaned far over the table and spat. The stranger wiped his face and threw the dice.

"Six. Seven—"

Men were crowding towards the door. The stranger was not a stranger to Charley Standish. He was Kenneth Mollyjo, and though San Lorenzo had not speculated on the outcome of a gun fight between Ken and the Duke no one was anxious to witness it.

"Eight. Nine—"

As he called each new rolling of the double ace Mollyjo's voice was soft, but to Duke Rogers it was a bell tolling doom.

"Ten!"

There was a brief pause. Charley's note and the money were still in the middle of the table. Rogers reached towards it. A knife flashed past his hand. Spellbound the gamblers stared at the wickedly winking blade that pinned the IOU to the table. A moment of thick silence was broken by Angel.

"You cheap, dirty louse," she screamed.

Keeping his right hand free, Mollyjo swept up the money, and with it the IOU.

"Remember your manners, Angel," he said softly. "Duke is a guest."

But Angel had sloughed her disguise as a lady. She was her true self now. She was angry. Angry with Duke for having permitted himself to be outwitted, even after she had warned him that Ken Mollyjo was in town and meant trouble, angry with Mollyjo who stuck his nose into other people's business; angry most of all at Charley. Charley had crushed, humiliated and sobbing only an hour or so before, was now, without the sense to know what it was all about, the centre of attention—with two of the most dangerous men in New Mexico on the verge of shooting each other over her.

Charley did not know the meaning of all the names Angel called her, but she recognized enough of them to guess the remainder. As a lady she was insulted. All the fury of the past three days exploded. She was avenging Dougie; she was avenging outraged lover most of all she was avenging the degradation of her own recent tears.

As the women struck and clawed the two men relaxed their mutual wariness long enough to stare. Suddenly Kenneth Mollyjo laughed—and San Lorenzo was obliged to postpone learning whether he or Duke Rogers could draw a gun faster.

"Good idea," he roared gleefully. Sounding the war whoop of the Apaches, he flung himself across the table.

Charley's battle was bitter but brief. When Angel's hands had clouded her brain lifted she found herself kneeling on top of Angel, astride her, with every fibre of her being as her thumbs pressed deeper into the tender, quivering throat. Slowly she relaxed. What a poor scrap of a thing this beaten Angel was! If she were only as insolent as she had been an hour ago! "Your Douglas will swear the night is day, or day night, if I but whisper it in my sleep," she had boasted.

"It's midday," Charity said Angel stared at her out of eyes that begged dumbly for mercy. "I say it's midday," she repeated.

"It can't be," Angel croaked, "the night—"

Charity's fingers caressed the throat. "It's midday!"

Angel thought she was mad. "It's midday," she said obediently.

"And white's black if it pleases me."

"White's black," Angel repeated obediently.

Charity sighed. It was a sterile game. She got slowly to her feet.

"I'll still till I tell you to move," she commanded, and looked across the room.

Duke Rogers back was bent like a bow against the gaming table. The point of Ken Mollyjo's knife was pricking at Duke's throat.

"Don't," Charity cried, forgetting her own recent lust to kill. "Don't, Ken."

"Murder."

"Would anyone care?"

Charity touched Angel with her foot.

"She might."

"Isn't quite a better reason?"

"You might be hanged!"

"That's an unpleasant possibility," he admitted.

Canada to Issue 4-Cent Stamp For Royal Visit

Toronto, Sept. 29 (CP) — Postmaster General Winfret said last night Canada will issue a special four-cent stamp to commemorate the forthcoming visit to Canada and the United States of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

At a banquet sponsored by officials of the Canadian International Stamp Exhibition, he said the new stamp would be simple and would bear portraits of the Royal couple.

Princess Elizabeth has appeared three times in the past on Canadian postage stamps — in 1935, 1939 and 1946.

Announcements of prize winners in the stamp exhibition, held to commemorate the 100th anniversary of postal administration in Canada, were made at the banquet.

Grand prize winner was Gerald Wellington, Vancouver, B.C., whose exhibit, composed mostly of early British Columbia stamps and covers, won the major award over exhibits entered by collectors in the United States, Belgium England and Portugal.

Other Canadian winners included:

George T. Fulford, Brockville; George T. Fulford; R. M. Phin, Hespeler; Col. Sydney D. Smart, Oshawa, and A. K. Grimmer, Timiskaming, Que.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—While aspects are most friendly, you will have to hold self in check, lest you go out on limb too far. Be solid in thought like you gifted folks can be, and you can achieve much.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Day can be very productive of new benefits, advancement, but extra care must be exercised making changes in plans without sufficient study, knowledge. Less haste.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Bend backwards to be pleasant, co-operative and you will receive treatment in kind, and make desired gains. Personal attitude will help greatly bringing about harmony, happiness.

July 24 to August 23—(Leo)—Getting along smoothly with those working with you will bring fresh advantages, better living. Those who are congenial only when it suits purpose or advancement gain little. Smile and win.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Get early start this stimulating day and you will finish on top, and have time for relaxation. Generally progressive day with extra care stressed in written matters, loans, all contracts.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—No time to make sudden or non-improving changes in position or business plans. Be steady and things will be beneficial. Romance, marriage, social and personal health should be good.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Generous outlook for your earnest accomplishment; perhaps unexpected gains in money, real estate, other deals. Appropriate period to make up for lean past days, those we all have.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)— No really contentious outlook, maybe a little dull in spots but should not hinder you getting ahead on schedule. However, don't be too self-assured and be patient with those under you.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Disregard slight obstacles, tedious moments in early hours. Things will clear to better than normal for gains. Watch details, heed sound advice, be tactful in business and personal talks.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Be open to advice, sound suggestions. Benefits from associations and interests of general character rather than in special matters, things unusual. Study your outlook.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Fine planetary aspects. You in artistic fields may have to try harder and be more satisfied with moderate gains. Industry, trades, selling, manufacturing, valuables items very favored.

YOU BORN TODAY were born under Libra, ruled by Venus, Goddess of Beauty. Mentality high; many judges, guardians, teachers, scientists in this Sign. You refuse, if living up to your better self, to be drawn into cad-ish, cheap wrong doings. Your moral code is of the finest. You get more pleasure out of nature and human beings than out of money. Will go to great extent to attain happiness. Should avoid having too set likes and dislikes. Shun violent exercise. Remainder of '51 has new, good advantages.

Would my life insurance be enough to take care of my family today?

"It costs a small fortune today to keep things going—to buy food and clothes, to pay for a place to live, and to look after all the other household expenses.

"That's all right as long as I'm on hand to buy these things from what I earn—but what if I weren't here and my wife had to get along on my life insurance? How long would it last?

"How can I arrange my insurance to make it go as far as possible in taking care of my family?"
